How true of the age when Jesus came on the scene. To understand the degree of that darkness, one needs only to read the previous history, of which a mere bit can be given here. During the Maccabean wars, it seemed for a time that Israel was about to take her place as a nation among the nations of the world. But this ray was only a false hope—the prophets had not connected any Messianic predictions with this war of the Maccabees, nor focused any particular attention thereto. With the Maccabean (Hasmonean) dynasty, combining the high office of the priesthood and the political rulership under the headship of one man, came the rise of parties and sects. The Sadducees who were the aristocrats of the day, were in favor of it. Against this assumption of the high priesthood by the ruler stood the Hasidim (the Pious). From the Hasidim emerged two groups—the Essenes, who would have nothing to do with the government, and the Pharisees, who parried with the Sadducees for control of the Sanhedrin and the reins of the government. When the Sadducees were in control the Pharisees would often work against them through their influence with the people. The rivalry of these two factions down through the years became bitter and bloody. There arose rapidly between them the fanatical hatred of deadly enmity. Under Jannaeus civil war broke out. He was defeated and driven from the country. The Pharisees took pity on him and invited him back. He then crucified 800 of them. Through the weakness of Hyr-

A DOCTRINE OF CHRIST DEPARTMENT

By Frank G. Coleman, Jr.

THE MAN CHRIST JESUS

I Tim. 2:5: "For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the Man Christ Jesus." In redeeming man from sin, God determined that it was to be accomplished through a mediator who should unite in himself both the nature of man and the nature of God, in order that he might reconcile God to man and man to God. In all of God's creation there was not a being who could be "a daysman between us, that he might lay his hand upon us both" (Job 9:33). No angel, no archangel, no cherub, could make a blood sacrifice of infinite worth. No man in earth could assume the nature of God, for the sin from which God purposed to redeem him prevented his laying hold on God in any way. So God took our nature to be His own and dwelt among us.

God assumed into personal subsistence with Himself a humanity generated by His own almighty power and wisdom. Eternal Spirit became flesh that God's own blood might avail to purchase the church of God (Acts 20:28). The Eternal was made in time, the Infinite became finite, the Immortal became mortal, yet continuing Eternal, Infinite, Immortal. This is the mystery of godliness: God was manifest in the flesh (I Tim. 3:16). God the Son became the Son of man, the man Christ Jesus, eternally to represent in the courts of heaven the believing remnant of the fallen race with which He identified Himself.

His Humanity—Perfect

A spotless, perfect, man was needed to redeem men. His person must be free both from the taint of inherited sin and from actual sin. In all the years of human generation, natural generation had not produced such a sinless personality. It remained for God to work a divine, creative miracle in the production of a new humanity; one which secured, from its earliest beginnings, freedom from the slightest taint of sin. This He accomplished when our Lord was "conceived by the Holy Ghost" in the womb of a virgin mother. Paternal generation in such an origin was superfluous, and so the unity of His person was not affected. He remained a single personality. His birth was not the creation of a new personality, the assumption of which would make Him a monstrosity possessed of a dual personality, but it was a divine Person already in existence entering upon a new mode of existence. Only the greatest of miracles could effect such a thing. Because His human nature was of miraculous origin, Christ was the "holy" One from the very beginning.

The fact of the perfection of His Person is evidenced, not only in the supernatural conception and the virgin birth, but in the record of a virgin life. The record of His life as man is a record void of the slightest blotch upon His perfection. Not once is it said that He offered sacrifice for sin. In His whole prayer life there is not the least indication of a single prayer for forgiveness on His own behalf. He faced the world with the dogma of the new birth, and yet His teaching is that of One Who alone, of all earth's teeming millions, needed it not. He threw down the gauntlet of His perfection and challenged His bitterest enemies to convince Him of a single sin, and all that their hatred could bring forth was a trumped-up charge supported by suborned witnesses! He was perfect man, and so could die for sins not His own.

His Humanity—Real

No such heresy today attacks the humanity of Christ as rocked the church in the second and fourth centuries in the Docetae and the Apollinarians. The attack today is all on the side of His Deity! It is not necessary, therefore, to defend the integrity of His humanity; but to consider its reality in the light of His relation to the race surely should be profitable.

He called Himself, and was called, "man." The Scripture references are so abundant that we need give none, save that which we have already used, which tells us that the Man Christ Jesus is the mediator between God and man. Very God was ready to mediate His suit against a rebellious creation. Very man He Himself became, to be the Mediator.

Body, Soul, Spirit

He possessed the elements of complete human nature, body, soul and spirit. He lived in a human body, the material evidence of the reality of His human nature (Lk. 24:39). This body he took that God might die, "that through death he might . . . deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage" (Heb. 2:14).

He possessed a rational soul capable of experiencing the ultimate in sorrow, for He says in Mt. 26:38, "My soul is exceeding sorrowful, even unto death."

He possessed an indwelling spirit, for we read of His miraculous death that He dismissed His spirit (Mt. 27:50), saying, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit" (Lk. 23:46).

Human Limitations

That His was a real humanity is further evidenced by the fact that He was subject to the ordinary limitations and necessities of mankind. He knew hunger (Mt. 4:2), thirst (Jn. 19:28), weariness (Jn. 4:6), sleep (Mt. 8:24).

Human Development

He was subject to the ordinary laws of human development. He grew (Lk. 2:40, 52). He asked questions (Lk. 2:46). He learned obedience (Heb. 5:8).

He suffered being tempted (Heb. 2:18). He was made perfect through sufferings (Heb. 2:10).

Human Death

But the crowning evidence of the integrity of His humanity is the fact of His death. God could not die, for God is Spirit; but God manifest in the flesh could, and did die; and His death is the token of His union with those unto whom it is appointed once to die. This is the evidence that our Elder Brother is one with us, that He took Satan's mightiest weapon into His own bosom, accepting the wages of sin not His own. This is the teaching of Heb. 2:14-17, "Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, He also Himself took part of the same; that through death He might destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage. For verily He took not on Him the nature of angels (who are deathless); but He took on Him the seed of Abraham. Wherefore in all things it behoved Him to be made like unto His brethren . . ."

How marvelous the matchless love and wisdom of God! Whereas He once said of us, "Behold, the man is become as one of us" (Gen. 3:22), we may now with all humble thankfulness express the God-sent means of our recovery in the words, "Behold God is become like one of us."

His Humanity—Perpetual

The Man Christ Jesus lives today! John saw Him in all the perfection of His Person (Rev. 1:13-18). He is seated in heaven as humanity's only sinless representative. There at the right hand of God the Father He lives, in the same body, now glorified, in which He lived and suffered and died and rose again. In that body, living though pierced, He will yet come again that every eye may behold Him and they which pleased Him! There is a man, who mediates between God and men, and:

We Shall Be Like Him!

"The first man is of the earth earthy: the second man is of heaven (RV). As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly. And as we have borne the image of the earthly, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly" (I Cor. 15:47-49). He became one like us, that we might become like Him; and so we shall, for we shall some day see Him as He is (I Jn. 3:2).

What Must I Do To Be Lost?

"He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God" (Jn. 3:18).

People are not lost because they have altogether failed to live a moral or useful life.

The damning sin that separates people from God is unbelief—the rejection of the Savior whom God has sent into the world. The fundamental work of the Holy Spirit is to convict men of sin because they believe not on Jesus Christ (Jn. 16:8).

The root of this unbelief is in the life. "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil." Christ is rejected because men choose the passing pleasures of this world.

To be lost therefore—do nothing! Go on living the self life. Ignore the One sent to pay the infinite price of your redemption.

"He that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him" (Jn. 3:36).

Think you that it is any slight matter to ignore the Son of God? God sent One to save us who was dearest to Himself. He has a name above every name. He is infinitely true and deserves to be trusted. He is infinitely good and deserves to be embraced.

How great is the sin of unbelief! It is aggravated from the dignity of the Person Who is slighted and because of the terrific price which He laid down for our redemption!

Unbelief is the great damning sin because it leaves one under the guilt of all his sins and because it is a sin against the remedy that God has provided.

"He that believeth is not condemned." Though he may stand convicted as a great sinner, yet on acceptance of the Lamb of God, the process is stayed, judgment is arrested and he stands justified in God's sight.

Reader—what will you do about it?

Florence Newberry Gribble Writes Our Readers

(Yaloke), Bozoum, par Bangui
Afrique Equatoriale Française
March 25th, 1940

Dear Readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald:

For the first time I am writing consciously for your columns, as today we received your maiden effort. (Mrs. Gribble had just received her copy of the first issue of The Brethren Missionary Herald.)

We come bringing to you a request for prayer, an all-inclusive one, our need of power for every task.

As a child I myself formulated a definition for grace which, it may be, theologians will not accept: "Grace is the power to love."

Now, we know that "love is the greatest thing in the world," and that faith works through love. What an intricate linking of these three wondrous privileges—to believe, to love, to be the recipients of His grace, His transforming power as an unmerited favor. What power, what grace, may not faith which works through love, bring down from above through the exercise of believing prayer.

First of all, in prayer, as well as in character, we must have faith. Hugh Latimer, that noble martyr of the 16th century says:

"Love cometh and floweth out of faith. Love is a child of faith, for no man can love except he believe; so that they have two several offices, they themselves being inseparable. 'And now abideth faith, hope and love, these three, but the greatest of these is love.' And though she is the chiefest, yet we must not attribute unto her the office which pertains unto faith only. Like as I cannot say the Mayor of Stamford must make me a pair of shoes because he is a greater man than the shoemaker is, for though the mayor is a greater man, yet it is not his office to make shoes. So, though love be greater, yet it is not her office to save. This much I thought good to say against those who fight against the truth."

Yes, it is the office of faith to save. If I might put Latimer's thought in my own words, I would say it is also the office of love—not human love, but Divine love, as we read in Jn. 3:16. Just as human faith must work through love, so I believe Divine love must work through faith.

The balance between faith and love seems to me to be a very important one, a balance which another of God's servants (Drummond) wonderfully used for a time, but seemed eventually to lose. In that truly remarkable sermon, "Love The Greatest Thing In The World," Drummond says:

"We have been accustomed to be told that the greatest thing in the religious world is faith. That great word has been the keynote for centuries of the popular religion, and we have easily learned to look upon it as the greatest thing in the world. Well, we are wrong. If we have been told that, we may miss the mark. 'The greatest of these is love.' It is not an oversight. Paul was speaking of faith just a moment before. He says, 'If I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not love, I am nothing.' So, far from forgetting, he deliberately contrasts them! 'Now abideth faith, hope, love'; and, without a moment's hesitation, the decision falls: 'The greatest of these is love.'"

As we contrast Drummond and Latimer, we note two things. Drummond failed to differentiate and to observe wherein love is greater than faith. Latimer noted this distinction clearly. Drummond fell into apostasy, as we know from the most famous of his works, "Natural Law In The Spiritual World." Latimer sealed his testimony with his death and was put to death by fire, dying with Ridley, to whom he said: "Be of good cheer, Ridley, and play the man. We shall this day, by God's grace, light up such a candle in England as, I trust, will never be extinguished."

And we now, in these days of trial, must have not only the grace to pray and to pray in love, we must have the faith to prevail over obstacles—the faith which gives the victory, the faith which staggers not—the faith which works through love.

Perhaps now, as never before, we are to learn the meaning of Gethsemane. We have had in normal times the faith of assurance, and that faith shall not be taken away from us. But we must have the faith also which endures—what Chadwick calls "the faith of desperation."

"There is no more heroic example of desperate faith than that of the three Hebrew children. The situation was desperate, but they answered bravely, 'Our God, whom we serve, is able to deliver us from the burning, fiery furnace and He will deliver us out of thine hand, O king. But if not, be it known unto Thee, O king, that we will not serve Thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up' . . . I have only space to mention Gethsemane. Ponder deeply its 'Nevertheless.' 'If it be possible . . . nevertheless!' Deep darkness had settled upon the soul of our Lord. Trust meant anguish unto blood and darkness to the descent of hell—Nevertheless! Nevertheless!!"

We are facing troublous times. It is a serious business now to cross the waters. It may be that our board, our furloughed missionaries, and our candidates shall be given the faith of assurance that all will be well with the boats on which they sail, that they will strike no hidden mines, meet with no disaster. It may be that to us all now must come the faith of desperation (not despair) as we pray that

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR JULY 7, 1940

Elijah, Messenger and Prophet

(I Kings 17:1-16)

Suggestions for the Leader

All of the Old Testament saints ought to teach us something about a life of faithfulness. They cannot be perfect examples as all sinned. This is not an excuse for us to sin. Our Christian exhortation is to look unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith.

Christian living does have its joys and problems, victories and discouragements. Like Elijah we do not stay constant, yet ideally we should. If we lived where God wanted us we would not have reverses and discouragements.

The end of Elijah's life and sojourn here was with a glorious translation. This is our hope, if not this then a resurrection from the dead when Christ appears.

Let the leaders impress upon our minds how Elijah stood for God when it seemed everyone turned away from Him.

1. Elijah's Courage. I Ki. 17:1; 18:17-19; 21:17-20.

At first he faced an evil king unafraid. He charged we, too, must say, as we enter our Gethsemane: "If it be possible—nevertheless!" If it be possible, let no lives be lost at sea—nevertheless, not our will, but Thine, oh Lord, be done!

Peter knew by what manner of death he was to glorify God. We know not what perils the immediate future holds for those who sail the seas. Here at present, all is well. But as missionaries, whether by death or by life, our chief aim is glorify God. Can we do it by being less fearless than those who serve the world? As a missionary, as a candidate, in times of war each one of us is a soldier. It may be our privilege to be obedient, not only unto death, but unto a speedy death. Shall we not pray, pray with faith which works through love unto that grace which will become to us the power to conquer, and give to us, in life or death, the victory?

Yours prayerfully,

FLORENCE N. GRIBBLE

the king with his sins and guilt. The reason he could stand was that it was for the Lord. The Lord stands for his own. When we realize God's presence, we shall not be afraid. Have no fear what men shall do unto you (Heb. 13:6). Conviction of righteousness makes men brave like Daniel, Paul and Martin Luther.

2. Elijah's Faith. I Ki. 19:31-38; Jas. 5:17-18.

He believed God and took Him at His word. It took great faith to predict the period of no rain or dew. Had it failed to come true, he would have been denounced as a false teacher.

The test on Mt. Carmel was an expression of Elijah's faith. The water in the trench stands as a symbol of the independence of all attempts of the flesh to supplement the work of God. Elijah had success in claiming the impossible by faith.

3. Elijah's Message. I Ki. 18:21.

He urged people to be out and out for God. He declared that it was useless to trust in Baal. He challenged the teachers of error to prove that they were right. He insisted that we can be victorious when we stand for God.

4. Elijah's Fear. I Ki. 19:1-4, 10.

Even great men of God felt discouragement and often so after victories. Elijah feared the queen, even though God gave him assurance that He would be with him. The devil wants us to get gloomy and discouraged. Even though we grumble, God still works on. Christian admonition is that we need have no fear for anything or any person.

5. Elijah's Glorious Ascent. II Ki. 2:11.

After Elijah's life of victory and defeat, God took him in a glorious translation. Not until his work was done was he taken. A successor in Elisha was trained to take over his work. Let no man feel that he is so important that God could not raise up another to carry on his work.

Elijah was the man of his day to stand for God, and during the tribulation on the earth he will return to witness to the true God.

Questions

1. What are some of the problems confronting a man who tries to live for God while many people about him scoff?
2. What was the supreme test to see who was the true God? I Ki. 18:24-38. Does it hold today?
3. What is the promise of God for those who fight for Him? Joshua 1:5-6.
4. What is the purpose of calling Elijah back to the earth? Mal. 4:5-6.
5. What lessons do we learn from the life of Elijah, the messenger and prophet?

C. E. TOPIC FOR JULY 14, 1940*Ahab, the Covetous King

(I Kings 21:1-14)

Suggestions for the Leader

Covetousness is a sin for anyone. It leads to terrible things. In Ahab's case, it led to lying, stealing and murder. Ahab's downfall came out of a series of unhappy choices. They were selfish and not honoring God. If we learn good traits to follow in some men, we ought to avoid the bad traits of others.

Life ought to consist of more than the abundance of things a man possesses (Lk. 12:15). We have lived too much for money. It is wrong to give it such an important place.

1. Ahab, an Outstanding Sinner. I Ki. 16:29-34.

He made a record of sinning against God more than all the kings that had gone before. He sinned in taking a wife from the wicked Sidonians. Her name stands for everything shameful and degrading. When sin works toward a climax, there is usually one in whom the principle becomes embodied. Ahab was that man of his day, Hitler is the man today, and the antichrist will be the man in a coming day.

2. A Rebellious Heart. I Ki. 18:17-18.

The state of the nation is Ahab's day was a result of his own attitude of heart. Sinners usually try to shift responsibility or blame on others. The real trouble for Israel was started by Ahab's ancestors, but was made worse by his rule. It was declared to be the forsaking of the commandments of the Lord.

3. Ahab, a Recipient of God's Mercy. I Ki. 20:13-20, 29.

The warning of God's prophet was a proof that God had not withheld His mercy. Baal, a false god, could not help Israel. Only God could rescue the people. When the enemy came, God fought for Israel. God made a wonderful test and display of His power on Mt. Carmel. It stands today and the proof of the true God.

We have received many blessings at the hand of the Lord.

4. Ahab's Failure. I Ki. 20:41-43.

Ahab failed the test God gave to him. He failed to carry out the commission to destroy the man who was wicked. How frequently we view matters differently from the Lord. To fail God in a commission is to bring trouble upon ourselves.

5. Humility Shown by Ahab. I Ki. 21:27-29.

God is more than willing to bless than to curse. Judgment is described as a strange work. Ahab had not ordered Naboth's death but he had to bear the responsibility. Showing humility, Ahab did gain a little time before judgment fell. Even humility can't atone for sin. Sin bears its marks in this life as well as later. The way of the transgressor is hard.

6. Ahab Died an Inglorious Death. I Ki. 22:34-39.

He tried to go on in his sin and at the same time escape the penalty of it. There was no place where Ahab could flee from God. Judgment came to him in the hour of battle. No disguise can hide us from God. The story of Ahab teaches us that when God speaks, it is for us to hear His voice.

Questions

1. Tell of the many sins in Ahab's life that caused his downfall.
2. Do you think that it is wrong to be unequally joined together? 2 Cor. 6:14.
3. What is the sin of covetousness? Are men guilty of it today?
4. What is the relation between sorrow and repentance? II Cor. 7:9.

EXTRACTS
DIARY

(NOTE: This section is the start of a bush trip, the first trip of this kind for Freda and Anne, and probably the first in which a whole station force went to the same section of the field and worked it after the manner of a station existing there.)

Feb. 19, 1940.

The day set for the start of what is sometimes called "a bush trip," when missionaries leave what little there is of civilization (namely a square mud house of several rooms, a few developed acres near a road, with a few surrounding buildings put up by a white man, as store house, workshop, garage, etc.) and into a section where there is a round mud house of one room as a rule, well off the auto roads and in a section where there haven't as yet been many white people.

Thus this morning we woke up to start the day on the run, as it were, as there were yet many things to do before we could leave at the desired time of 3:00 P. M., just after the hottest time of the day had passed.

The lady folks (Mrs. Kennedy, Freda and Anne) were busy getting the bedding, "grub" and household utensils into boxes, while yours truly gave to the workmen instructions that would be followed more or less, mostly less, as to what kind of material to gather, how much and how long etc., etc. Filled the gas tank in the Dodge, put in the tools that we hope we will not need, checked the tires, put in a few bike repair tools (there is always a chief's son that has been foolish enough to buy a bike for which he is not able to get repairs, inner tubes or parts, and after a few months riding over the bush paths and not being expert enough to dodge the stumps and snags, you can imagine the bent forks, wheels, missing spokes, torn tires etc.)

"Bring on the stuff, we'll pack and load the truck." The orders from the Administration were that we should take the minimum of natives along on account of the epidemics, thus we took only an evangelist as interpreter, another as house boy, and another as cook. Trunks and duffle bags were placed around three bicycles (one for each—Mrs. Kennedy, the evangelist and myself). Shortly after 3:30 P. M. we were off! It is only 60 kilometers or about 40 miles to the place we were going, but that is a long way in Africa—about the same as going to San Diego and back from Los Angeles.

After 25 miles of first class African bumpy roads, we came to the branching off place to take a secondary (?) road for another 15 miles. It was almost 5:30 when we arrived at the cotton selling place where there is a river that is not bridged. On its banks at this place there is a very small village. This village is there mainly to furnish guards for the cotton at the cotton house and to furnish passage across the river via a canoe dug-out. After sending one of the boys for porters, we got out our baked beans, bottle of water and a few sandwiches and proceeded to lunch. The few natives around first of all had to examine our food (with their eyes only—for which we were glad as it might have been with their hands)! Would we eat as other white men they had seen? I am afraid we didn't, since we knew it would be dark before we reached our destination. Thus we decided not to unpack anything, but eat community style, each one dipping his or her beans from his own respective corner of the casserole full of beans. When the dish was empty we were full for some reason or other, and after a few sips of water and a piece of cake we were ready to go on.

By that time the natives' attention had shifted. They saw this little white girl only 3 years old had a baby! It wasn't a baby like theirs, so it must be something special. Anne would hold it out for them to see, but there was a mad scramble backwards as they fell over each other getting away from the extended doll. Then Anne moved its head and arms, and how they did pound on their chest! Then as Anne advanced toward them to let them have a better look, children screamed, babies yelled, women chattered, and the men and boys scrambled for safety, all because of that thing that looked like a person, but was stone or something—but it moved its arms and legs and head!!!! By that time Anne was ready for a good time, and she dug out her teddy bear. She held it in her arms, then advanced with it, and the same scene took place as before. Then with a gesture of throwing it at them, there was a real clearing of natives, but the dust that they raised!

Finally a few porters came, the boys having meanwhile proportioned the loads so that they wouldn't be too heavy. Mrs. Kennedy, Freda and Anne started to walk the remaining mile and a half. The boys also left to start getting the rest house into shape. I remained to get a guard for the truck and to see that all the stuff at least started on its journey to our rest house. It was getting dark fast. The moon was up though, and as soon as the sun was gone, we started to have moonlight sufficient to travel by. After all but one box had left and they said there were no more porters coming, I hopped the bike and peddled to the village. Somehow I missed the snags

"And He hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God . . . blessed is the man that maketh the Lord his trust"
—Psalm 40:3, 4.

and stumps and crossed a few foot bridges and arrived at the rest house. Got enough porters for the box, and paid those that had carried the things, and then arranged for food for the boys, and water for cleaning up for us, and wood for the cooking.

I don't know what Anne had in mind as to what the bush is, but she was expecting to see something different. We finally explained that the place where the rest houses were and this village also was located, is called the "bush." After that she was satisfied that we had arrived at the bush and was ready for bed and so are we all.

Feb. 20.

No windows in the rest house, and only a small door, so we missed fresh air during the night; but since this is the land and section where lions and African wolves also like the night air, it isn't safe to sleep outside at night. We had breakfast and met the Chief, a real old fellow, and afterwards had a service.

We spent a large part of the day getting organized and ready for the work here for a period of two weeks plus. Anne had another doll and teddy bear exhibition! In the evening we had another meeting, and trying to light our pressure lantern found it fouled. Thus we ate supper to the light of a yellow kerosene light furnished by a small lantern. This is lots of light in the eyes of the native. They sometimes huddle together for the evening chat, and if someone has a lantern, they don't put it where you would. We would put it in the middle of the circle, but they put it outside the circle. Why? All I can find out or figure is that if they put it into the circle, the rest of the villagers couldn't see that they had a lantern; or it might be that, if they keep it back of them, they can see sooner and better if there is a lion stalking around close by or not.

Feb. 20.

Needing to check up on a few things about the truck, I cycled to the river. Anne wanted to go along, so I put her on the saddle bag, back of my seat. We took care of the business and then got a native to give us a canoe ride up and down the river a ways. Anne certainly enjoyed it, and on seeing a nice sand bank, asked to play in it. We stopped, took off her shoes and socks, and she had the time of her life.

After lunch, a runner came in with a letter from Mr. Jobson saying that we had some freight in the Camerouns and no way to get it in, and the dead line was the 15th of Feb. The letter was written the 6th, and here it was the 20th. He also said that since I had charge of the truck, there was no other way out but that I would have to go get the stuff. Should I leave just at the start of an itineration trip like this, take all the stuff back home, and leave for the coast? It didn't seem right, and bewildered, I read the instructions and the rest of the letter to the signature. I must say here that this is the meanest letter I have yet received since in Africa, and it had to come from brother Jobson! What made it so? Well, to make a long story short, there was a P. S. which said that just as he was calling a porter to take this by bike to us, word came by another porter that the "stuff" was at Bozoum!!! I heaved about 10 sighs of relief at once. But what was meant about that, you ask? Because I wasn't asked to read the postscript first! It reminds me of the farmer that filled several pages of abusive language to Sears & Co. because they failed to put the pump handle with his pump order. After writing the letter, he thought he had better take a last look, and found it! Well, he sent the letter anyway with the P. S. "Excuse me, I find de handle in de box!" After this I read P. S. first! We certainly praised the Lord that He had again worked the impossible and thus we could continue our ministry in this needy place. So a good joke was played on me, at the same time showing that the Lord's hand is not shortened. Also received permission to use my shot gun for hunting, thus we could again have some fresh meat once in a while without killing one of the few chickens that one sometimes succeeds in rearing.

Feb. 24.

The natives were sitting around taking in the sights this morning, when all of a sudden folks started running, scattering in every direction. What is the matter? I saw no reason to run. Upon asking, they said that a boy had just arrived with the word that the Administrator was at the river to buy their cotton today. They left very quickly at this word, but it was certainly slow in comparison to that leaving that will take place one of these days soon when the word of the archangel and the sound of the trumpet are heard! May that day come soon.

I had never been to a cotton buying market, so I loaded Anne on the bike and off we went. We got there before the others and had a chance to converse with the Administrator and the cotton packing house man, Mr. Bierin of Belgium. The cotton market is quite a scene. There is a string of natives bringing the baskets of cotton to the scale. These baskets contain from 50 to 75 lbs. each. They weigh them, and the grower of the cotton is in another line. The Administrator calls out the weight, the cotton man writes it down and pays the grower in line. In a surprising short time a lot of cotton passes the scale.

Sunday, Feb. 25.

It is hard to keep track of days on the station, and especially so in the bush. Here is Sunday already! We had announced a few days ago that since they had repeatedly asked for an evangelist to come here to teach them, we had sent one week-ends, and that now we were here to see what could be done, and if they would get grass and sticks together to build a house for the evangelist and a place to meet in we would arrange to have a fulltime resident evangelist here. (Benamkor is the name of the chief village of this circuit.) A little after sunrise folks began gathering for service. We had a very large crowd and after the service was about half over, others started coming from neighboring villages, bringing bundles of grass on their heads to help make a roof for the chapel. After the service, we asked the late-comers and those that were still arriving, to come to another place in the village where there was a large tree, thus shade, as it was getting warm, and we had service number 2. After that it was too hot to do more and we went to the rest houses to await the evening hours of service. Meanwhile there was a procession of villagers, they were going to burn grass. We were glad that they had at least come to church service first, many of them. They came back about 3:00 P.M. most of them empty handed. Used the observation of showing the emptiness of a life apart from Christ in that evening service.

SHINING FOR JESUS

On a board or in candlesticks have several candles, all sizes and colors, from tiny birthday candles to tall ornamental ones, used and new.

Ps. 18:28, "For Thou wilt light my candle: the Lord my God will enlighten my darkness." We all have a wick to light—our soul, all ready to shine—but Jesus must light it. He said, "I am the Light of the world" (Jn. 8:12).

No matter what the color, the light is the same. The testimony of Christ is the same. The same story of salvation is told to the African boys and girls, Chinese, or Indians.

Small candles do not give as much light as a big one, but the light is just as good. The tiny candle represents just a child. Read Ps. 8:2.

Candles are used all over the world, but not in heaven, for there is no night there. See Rev. 22:5, 21:23. So now is the time to shine for Jesus.

Ornamental candles are only beautiful to look at, but are of no use unless lighted by Christ. Jesus says, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven" (Mt. 5:15-16).

A light in the house shines through the window and can be seen far out into the darkness. So when Christ lights our lives (I Thess. 5:5; Eph. 5:8), the light within (II Cor. 4:6; Lk. 11:36) shines out into the darkness of the world about us (Phil. 2:13).

Topic for June 30 CIRCLE C. E.

On the floor make two large circles of string. One circle is named Rom. 3:23, the other Jn. 5:24. First stand in the circle named Rom. 3:23. Explain how all are sinners and are lost. Then read Jn. 5:24, and as the portion is read, "But is passed from death unto life," step over into the other circle. Tell how easy it is to be saved—all are in the lost circle until by faith in Jesus Christ they just step out of it into the saved circle. Each boy and girl must make the decision when it is to be done. "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth" (Eccl. 12:1).

Have each one stand in the circle and repeat the first verse, then step over as they say the second verse. By the time they have each had a turn they will have memorized the verses and the message will be impressed upon their minds.

ISRAEL IN JESUS' DAY

canus, Jannaeus' grandson, Herod, the Idumean, gained a foothold.

Pompey's siege against Jerusalem to help Herod regain the upper hand marked the entry of Rome into Jewish history with a massacre of 12,000 Judeans. After some time Antony appointed Herod king of Judea. On the eve of the siege of Jerusalem he married Mariamne, the Hasmonean princess. After the walls had fallen, in 37 B. C., and with 100,000 dead behind him, the bestial Herod began the slaughter of his Hasmonean relatives—even his wife and sons, and finally a son by a former marriage. Emperor Augustus said of him, "It were better to be that man's pig than his son!" A contemporary says of him, "Herod stole to the throne like a fox, reigned like a tiger, and died like a dog."

Salvation !

During the reign of such a man; in the midst of Jewish sorrow, defeat, and stifled hopes; crushed by taxation and Roman overlordship (the iron heel); baffled and threatened by intrigue and espionage; kicked and goaded by oppression, deportation, and death—into such a complex, forlorn, hopeless, enimatic, heart-rending cosmos of human beings, God placed the Flower of fairest beauty, just a slip, but Him that should become the chiefest among ten thousand. Upon earth's thickest darkness burst the radiance of the Bright and Morning Star. In Zion rose the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His wings.

Incomprehension

" . . . . The darkness comprehended it not." Jesus said, "This people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing (Mt. 13:15)." "Ye will not come unto Me that ye might have life." "O Jerusalem, how oft would I . . . . but ye would not." The people as a whole finally turned their backs upon God's Light. The Pharisees who bitterly hated the Sadducees joined with them in plotting His death.

Religious Sects

Of the more important of the sects to be reckoned with, the Essenes occupy a unique place in this period. They were very devotional and temperate. They despised wealth and most shunned matrimony. Some withdrew from the cities and formed colonies while others dwelt in every city. Anyone joining the sect sold his possessions and cast into a common treasury. They dressed in white, but did not have two cloaks nor pairs of shoes. They looked for the Messiah and the kingdom of God.

Was our Lord an Essene? We think not. He held an almost opposite attitude toward marriage. He was opposed to their exaggerated reverence for the Sabbath. He did not shrink from the use of oil. He emphasized the internal and spiritual; they, the external and material.

The Sadducees, on the other hand, were worldly, aristocratic, and boorish. Always in their hands was the high priesthood. They regarded only the Penta-teuch. They were against belief in the resurrection. They were unconcerned about Christ until they found out about His Messianic claims. Then they were alarmed for fear of the intervention of Rome. They were the oligarchists of that time.

The Pharisees, although primarily religious, often became energetically political. They believed in angels and spirits, in conditional reincarnation, and, in the resurrection. They believed in the law of Moses, but added traditions, which they said came down from Moses and the prophets. The great defect of Pharisaism was that it made sin so purely external. A thing was right or wrong if some external condition was present or absent. A man would not break the Sabbath rest for the donkey if he rode him, but if he carried a switch to accelerate the pace of the donkey he was guilty of laying a burden on him.

The attempts made by recent Jewish writers to exonerate the Pharisees from the guilt of Jesus' condemnation has no foundation. They were legalists, self-righteous, ostentatious, proud, and uncharitable. But Jesus came to call sinners to repentance, of whom, Paul, a Pharisee, says, "I am chief." Such was the picture of Israel when Christ appeared.

LIGHT ON TRUTH

By Bernard Schneider

THERE WILL BE DISGRACED CHRISTIANS
WHEN JESUS COMES

Some time ago I was holding a meeting in a small town in the Middle West. While there I heard of a young man who in the past had been upheld as a model young man in the community. In all his activities in the community he seemed to be on the side of righteousness, and was a popular member of the local church. One morning the newspaper of the neighboring city told of a gambling raid staged by the police department of that city the night before, and to the utter astonishment of the readers in that small community, among the names of those caught in the place of gambling was the name of this model young man. A fine young man at home, he was secretly indulging in unlawful practices. It is hard to describe the result of the discovery. When the young man finally came home, he refused to leave the house for several days. He was disgraced and beaten by the sudden revelation, and went about for some time with his head down.

In I John 2:28 we read: "And now, little children, abide in Him, when He shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before Him at His coming." The original of "not be ashamed" is "not stand disgraced." Many Christians who are now regarded as fine believers are going to stand disgraced before the Lord when the secrets will be revealed and it will be seen that secretly they indulged in things and practices displeasing to the Savior Who bought them with His own blood.

A War-Time Prayer

(Evangelical Christian)

O God of love, Thine eyes look down
 On blood-stained field and shattered town;
 The widow's tears, the orphan's cry,
 The wounded soldier's agony,
 Are known to Thee. Thy children's woes
 Are not forgot: their Father knows!

Great Judge of all, defend the right;
 Cause right to triumph by Thy might.
 Our righteousness we dare not plead;
 Yet save us in our utmost need.
 Our sins are many in Thy sight:
 Forgive us, and defend the right.

For those we love, O Lord, we ask
 That Thou wilt help them in their task:
 'Tis Thine to save alive or kill;
 Bring them safe home, if such Thy will.
 And may they trust, amid the strife,
 In Christ, who gives eternal life.

Lord God of hosts, whose mighty will Makes wrath of man to praise Thee still,
 By this shed blood, these bitter tears,
 Prepare the coming of those years
 When righteousness and peace shall reign
 O'er hill and valley, sea and plain.

Jehovah God, Thy promise stands,
 Whate'er the fate of kings or lands.
 Before the dawn the night grows dark:
 'Mid lust and hate, 'mid fire and sword,
 Awake Thy church on earth to mark,
 The nearness of her coming Lord.

"BOUCA NEWS FLASHES"

By Mrs. Joseph H. Foster

"For they themselves shew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God: and to wait for His Son from heaven, Whom He raised from the dead, even Jesus, Which delivered us from the wrath to come."

Change of Hearts

During the month our native pastor made the usual preaching trip down the Bangui road. Previous trips had been made, but no special interest in the gospel had been shown by the people. When he returned he gave the following testimony to the church at Bouca, which supports him: "The night before I left home I prayed much, and said, 'Lord I am going forth to serve Thee; Lord fill me with Thy Spirit. Go before me and prepare hearts to receive Thy Word. Save men, women and children from the power of the evil one that they have been serving so long, and bring them to know Thyself.' The next morning when I left home, I preached in every village and garden where there were people, but only a few expressed a desire to follow the Lord."

"After three days I arrived at the large village near Marli. It was evening when I arrived. I was tired and did not want to preach that evening. But soon a large number of people had congregated and said, 'Abraham, we want to hear the Word of God; tell us the good news.' I did not want to preach, but when they kept on asking, I had to. I talked to them until it was very dark (meaning very late). When I had finished, men began to tear strings of medicine from their bodies, and said; 'We are through with this. We know what you say is true, and we want to follow the Lord.' Others confessed their sins, everything from lying to murder. Women rose to their feet and said, 'We are through praying to the devil, we want to know how to pray to God.'

"Brethren, I have often preached, but never have I seen the Spirit of God work in hearts as He did in that meeting. Never have I experienced anything like it. If only all of you could have seen it! I stayed with them a few days, then went on down the road to Bogongolo.

Earnest Hearts

"Our first stop was at the chief of the Canton's village near Bogongolo. The people asked why no one had come to stay with them. They said, 'We have some money left from the cotton that we sold. We want to buy a Christian from Bouca who will come and stay with us.' I told them that men could not be bought to preach the Word of God, but as God calls them, and as they hear Him and give their hearts and bodies to Him to work for Him, are they sent forth to preach. They said, 'Are there no such God-called men at Bouca; who will want to come here?'"

He assured them that he would make their request known to the church when he returned.

Ready Hearts

When Abraham gave his testimony to the church; one of the Christians heard the call, and offered himself to the Lord to minister to the people at Bogongolo. However as usual there were obstacles to be overcome before he could take up the work. He is one of the chief's head men, and had to get permission from his superior to leave the village and his work in order to make the change. Then too, his wife was a sleeping sickness patient, and she could not leave Bouca until she was dismissed by the doctor. He prayed three weeks before he had the courage to ask his chief to release him. However when the proposition was made to him, he gladly gave his consent and said, "I cannot refuse to give you to God for work for him, because He has blessed my village and people." So if the Lord wills, we hope to send Andre Abrou and his wife to Bogongolo within a week. The Lord has undertaken for her, so that the doctor dismissed her from further treatments for the present.

Pray

For the new converts at Marli.

That many will be ready to receive the Lord Jesus as their Savior at Bogongolo.

For Joshue and his wife who labor at Marli.

For Andre Abrou and his wife

EDITORIALS

By Louis S. Bauman, Editor

The Easter Offering

At this writing, the Secretary-Treasurer is still without definite knowledge as to the results of our Easter offering. Most of the churches are doing splendidly, so far as they have reported. Most of those reporting have passed last year's mark. However, we understand that a number of the churches, for reasons that are already well known, are withholding their offerings or are sending them to another board. That is the inalienable right of any sovereign congregation of Brethren believers. We shall never deny them that right, as that right is being denied by some. If any church does not choose to support the heralds of the cross that are carrying the story of salvation to tens upon tens of thousands who have never heard that story, we must leave them to God, while the rest of us must carry on. We shall never desert, especially in a time of world peril such as that through which we are passing, those who have trusted us to "hold the ropes" while they went down into the pits of darkness. We are sure that all Brethren folk, who still believe in the integrity of these missionaries, will just sacrifice a bit more, and make up for any losses sustained in the way of those who are falling away from this work.

We extended the time for the receipt of the Easter offering to June 30. However, whether it is received in time to be reckoned as a part of "the Easter offering" or not, matters little. Gifts sent us now will go to the same great cause, even if they have to appear in later reports. Have you sent in your offering?

Membership Cards

A large number of churches do not report their offerings until the very last minute. Consequently, work stacks up in the office. But the Membership Cards showing the membership of those who gave $5.00 or more, paid up, making them in good standing, will be sent just as soon as possible. Be sure your local church has sent in your offering, before making inquiry as to why you have not received a receipt, if you made your gift but have received no acknowledgement.

Pray For Your Board of Trustees

Never in the history of our Foreign Missionary Society has its Board of Trustees been face to face with such difficult problems as in this present hour. The problems created by the war and possible territorial changes in Africa greatly concern us. The problem of getting home weary missionaries whose furloughs are long overdue—the problem of getting the missionaries in the homeland, who are so anxious to go to the relief of their brothers and sisters in Africa, back to the fields—the problems resulting from our denominational troubles—all these things make it necessary for your board to make its work a subject of unceasing intercession before the throne of God. We thoroughly believe the saying: "Prayer Changes Things." Then, pray, brethren, pray!

We Are All Greatly Concerned

Yes, we are all greatly concerned as to what the present war in Europe is going to do to our missions in French Equatorial Africa. Should Germany win in this struggle, and take over that country from France, just what the attitude of the German government will be toward Christian missions within its empire, we dislike to even try to guess. But, if ordered out for any reason, there are always "regions beyond" into which the ambassadors of the cross of Christ can move. We have had an agreement with France—an agreement that that government demanded we sign—that we would move our missionaries out of the land if the government so required. And we have always kept ourselves prepared with the funds to do this, if necessary. We are happy to say, however, that our missionaries have always grown in favor with God and men, as Paul put it once upon a time. Let us hope they will do so with whatever government they must work under in what is still French Equatorial Africa. Pray earnestly for them.

Our Missionaries In Quebec

Since in the present situation it is absolutely impossible to secure transportation upon the seas, the board has sent Brother and Sister Morrill, Brother and Sister Robert Williams, and Sister Ruth Snyder, to Quebec, where they are giving themselves to an intensive study of the French language, especially with regard to speaking it. Miss Tyson, Curtis Morrill, and Garner Hoyt, went to Quebec in the missionary auto, and made a thorough investigation. We learned that there, with less expense than in France, the French language, as pure as in France itself, can be learned. We rejoice that this very necessary item is being attended to as our missionaries wait upon the Lord's own moving for their transportation.

What We Learned At Dayton

Your foreign missionary editor went to Dayton (Ohio) to attend the trial whereby the so-called "Ashland College Group" within The First Brethren Church of that city, being a minority "group" within said church, is seeking to dispossess the majority of the members of the property in which they worship.

From all that we had heard, we presumed that there was to be an attempt to show that the pastor, Eld. Russell D. Barnard, and his flock, had departed from the faith and practice of The Brethren Church, yea, from the faith and practice of the New Testament itself, and that the pastor was burning strange fire upon the altar; and, therefore, because of this, the majority "group" could no longer claim to be "a Brethren church," and should return the church property to the minority "group" which was still the true Brethren Church.

(We thought that we would be interested in hearing the testimony to prove the charge against Eld.

Barnard and his flock, showing that they all were apostates from the way of life and the faith of the Brethren. We regret that we did not get to hear the testimony, and have had to get our information second-hand—but from many witnesses nevertheless. We, together with our good Brother McClain, were ruled out of the court room during the testimony, inasmuch as we were "potential witnesses." It was difficult for us to understand why the "Ashland Group" demanded that we be shut out, since no one should fear to "tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth," before all men. However, in ruling us out, they ruled out some of their own witnesses, which was too bad!)

To our utter amazement, the charge of departure from the faith was never hurled in the court room. Therefore, any attempt to prove that Eld. Barnard was not a qualified Brethren on the ground of a departure from the way of faith or the way of life, was not made. We were glad for that, for Brother Barnard happens to represent a very large contingent of Brethren against whom that charge is continually hurled.

The plain charge against Eld. Barnard and his flock was, and is, that they were not subservient to the super-government of The Brethren Church, which is no longer congregational in its form of government. It was contended that all Brethren churches are subject to a super-government, even the National Conference, and also to its subsidiary organizations to the extent that the National Conference grants said subsidiary organizations the exercise of power.

That was interesting to the writer. For 47 years the writer has been in the active ministry in The Brethren Church. At one time, as a field secretary for both The National Home Mission Board and The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, within the space of two years, he visited nearly every Brethren church in these United States and talked over our denominational problems with our pastors. For a number of years he was the secretary of the National Conference, and one year, he was its Moderator. For a number of years, he served on the Executive committee of The National Conference, and has served as its chairman—thus has been "The President of The Brethren Church," although he will have to confess he never was aware that this high office existed until recently! For several years, he served as national statistician. He has been in almost continual attendance upon his district conferences, and upon the National Conference all these years. At these conferences he has listened through all these years to a discussion of our denominational polity. For nearly 40 years, he has been sitting as a member of the Board of Trustees of the Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, most of the time in official capacity, and has helped to select every missionary that has gone to the fields for foreign service. For some years he was a member of the Board of Trustees of Ashland College. For many years—nearly 20—he has edited the foreign missionary number of The Brethren Evangelist. He is the author of the well-known booklet, "The Faith Once For All Delivered Unto the Saints," the fifth edition of which is again exhausted—a booklet that has been used for the past 30 years by practically all Brethren pastors and their churches, to pass out among other peoples to inform them as to what the Brethren Church is and what it stands for. He has spent years in evangelistic work, holding revivals in practically every one of our larger churches. He has been closely associated at one time or another with most of the pastors of the denomination. He was for more than 30 years intimately associated, and a continual correspondent with Dr. J. Allen Miller, who was supposed to know all there is to know about The Brethren Church, its government, and its beliefs. He was an intimate friend of Dr. J. M. Tombaugh, and conducted a number of evangelistic campaigns for this man, who occupied the office of moderator of The National Conference more often than any other man. With him we often discussed the faith and polity of The Brethren Church. The writer is the son of one of the founders of the denomination, his father, W. J. H. Bauman, being the only delegate from west of the Missouri River to the famous Dayton Convention of 1883. He has been associated with others in the organization of a number of our leading churches. It has been his privilege, under the blessing of God, to lead in the building up of the largest Brethren Church in the United States. For nine years, he was the pastor of The First Brethren Church of Philadelphia, an intimate associate with Eld. Jacob C. Cassel and other members of that historic church, that existed as a Brethren church before The Brethren Church as a denomination was born. He stood on the historic ground time and time again, and studied historic Brethrenism before most of our modern promulgators of what they call "historic Brethrenism" were born. Many years ago, he accompanied Dr. J. L. Gillin over those historic grounds, assisted him in gathering data for his famous book dealing with Tunker faith and practice. It is in no spirit of self-glorification that we have written all this, which we have hesitated to write. But it would seem that in his connection with the work of the Brethren Church, he should have come to know something of our form of government. Yet during all this employment for the church, and during all these long years of active service, while he continually preached and boasted before all people that he belonged to a denomination of Christians that was congregational in its form of government, and was utterly free from the obnoxious Czarism under which Christians in other denominations were suffering—IN ALL THOSE YEARS, NO PREACHER, NO LAYMAN, NO COLLEGE PROFESSOR, ABSOLUTELY NO ONE EVER TOOK ISSUE WITH HIM ON THIS QUESTION OF OUR FORM OF CHURCH GOVERNMENT. ON THE OTHER HAND, ALL WERE AGREED THAT ALL BRETHREN CHURCHES WERE CONGREGATIONAL EVEN (as some thought) TO AN EXTREME, AND CERTAINLY WERE ABSOLUTELY SOVEREIGN IN EVERY WAY. All agreed that when these churches assembled in any conference, it was ever a voluntary assembling of sovereign churches, and that no decisions of such conferences were binding upon the local congregations.

But, behold, several weeks ago, the writer had to go to Dayton, and there learn from the lips of leaders in the Ashland College Group that he was "all wrong," and has been wrong for years — that Brethren churches are not sovereign at all!

We had to go to Dayton to learn that no matter what Ashland College may teach, Brethren churches must support it, or be counted disloyal to the church, and not entitled to representation in the councils of the church. It matters not that Ashland College has repeatedly declared that it is not subject to the control of The National Conference, and that no district conference can elect its representatives on its Board of Trustees—that districts are thrown the sop of nominating trustees that can be received by the Board of Trustees or rejected at will—that the trustees can change the constitution at will, and give to non-Brethren as much control as they please—that powerful non-Brethren influences sit upon the board—all this matters not, for such was the testimony brought out at Dayton.

We had to go to Dayton to learn that if The National Conference elects a board for publications, for missions, or for any other purpose, no matter what the editors may believe and teach, no matter what views the missionaries may possess, unless the local congregation yields its right of sovereign action, and gives loyal support to that organization, it must suffer being set outside the fold, and any delegates it may choose cannot sit within the conferences of the church.

We had to go to Dayton to learn that local Brethren churches, to maintain their right to exist as Brethren churches, must approve and support a seminary for the vital work of the training of the ministry of the church—a seminary that is not controlled by the church, but is controlled by a college that likewise is not subject to the church, and whose Board of Trustees number a powerful body of men who are not even members of the church; and that these supposedly sovereign churches may not give their support to a seminary that is absolutely loyal to Christ and His teachings as set forth in the New Testament, and as are commonly accepted by The Brethren Church—a Seminary every one of whose trustees and executives are Brethren tried and tested through years—a seminary where no non-Brethren member may sit as a professor and trainer of a Brethren ministry. We had to go to Dayton to learn that for a Brethren church to support such a seminary will cost the congregation its right to representation in a "Brethren" conference, or to even be known as a Brethren church. The writer was in the court room long enough to hear the attorney for the plaintiffs say that because the First Brethren Church was guilty of such "disloyalty" as this, he proposed to prove that it was not entitled to be called a Brethren church, and "is not a Brethren church."

We had to go to Dayton to learn that back in the year 1915, the delegates to The National Conference adopted a Manual of Procedure that took from all Brethren churches their congregational sovereignty, and that without previous notice of such action, and without any subsequent consent! A strange proceeding — that! Even now, few Brethren churches on either side of the present controversy know that this was done, if done it was! The judge must say!

We had to go to Dayton to learn that The National Conference controls all local Brethren Churches. The local churches do not control the conference.

We had to go to Dayton to learn that Brethren churches that are loyal to all that, in years past, has gone to make a sovereign Brethren church, although they may choose delegates true to the faith and of unquestioned moral character, yet when those delegates come to the door of the conference, a committee of over-lords may sit at that door, accept whom they will, reject whom they will, without accusation and without trial—thereby giving absolute dictatorial control to the over-lords in control of the super-government inside the tent to do what they will, and to carry out their purposes, irrespective of the desires of any local congregation.

We had to go to Dayton to learn that The Brethren Church has returned to the very same form of government that brought about the division, and rendered The German Baptist Church in twain in 1882; and that the battle that our fathers fought and in which they suffered so much—the battle for ecclesiastical liberty—has come to nought.

We had to go to Dayton to learn that our "National Conference" is only a resurrected "annual meeting," and that the "Loyalty Group" is only another "standing committee" to visit our congregations, to pass

"Miss Emmert Describes a Hunt for Big Game"

Yaloke, par Boali, par Bangui, Oubangui Chari, A.E.F.
Feb. 5, 1940

Dear Friends:

What a joy it is to get out on the road once again! Those of us who seem to be of more utility on the station than out on trek, nevertheless often sigh for the privilege of hunting far afield. Isaac loved Esau because he brought in big game, but Rebekah was glad for the garden produce. How happy a family they would have been if they had been content to work together! So it is here in Africa: some of us till the soil on the home base, and others are able to combine hunting with the gardening, for we must all be toilers of the soil. But it is not difficult to see that it takes both occupations to make a balanced meal.

Africa is a big game country, but the weapons of our warfare are not carnal. We hunt for lost souls, and are enabled to find many who want to turn away from idol worship to serve the living God. Just today we found a village where everyone except one woman claimed to be a Christian. They said Volongou, our pastor, had been there and had told them to put away all their fetishes, tear down all their altars, and worship God. I looked around for their sacred cactus plant or for a carved totem pole or some other sign of devil worship, but I found none. All I could find was a string of tiny pieces of wood around a baby's neck. It appeared that they had nearly lived up to what light they had. But, oh, the depths of the riches of the Word of God of which they were ignorant — upon our loyalty to Christ and to His church—to tell us who is, and, who is not!

We had to go to Dayton to "learn" what we do not know yet, and what we believe that a lot of Brethren folks on both sides of this unhappy controversy, do not know. Nevertheless, everybody that was there knows that that—the right of a congregation to govern its own affairs—is the issue. So said all the attorneys. So said all who listened to the testimony.

It is now awaiting the decision of the judge who sat upon the bench. He must say whether the First Brethren Church of Dayton (and that means all of us) is a sovereign church, with the inalienable right to control its own affairs, or whether it must return to the former slavery of a super-government from which our fathers supposedly set us free in 1882 and 1883, through the organization of what they supposed was an assembly of free believers. We await the decision of the judge in the utmost confidence that God will preserve unto us the heritage that our fathers left us. Meantime to quote the attorney, who read through Holsinger's History twice, and read and studied every document that shed any light upon Brethren history, faith, and practice: "Henry R. Holsinger must be turning over in his grave!" and this is where the station work is necessary. We must send out trained workers, and how can they be really trained unless they learn to read the Word? And how can they learn to read without schools?

This particular village was such a nice shady place at the edge of a wood. Two giant trees towered over the neat row of thatched roofs. A large coffee plantation on the opposite side of the road attested to their industry. A good herd of black and white goats, with two and three kids to each mother, roamed over the yard. Their black skinned owners had a goodly proportion of children likewise, and besides there were no disfiguring sores or itch as is usually the case. It was a prosperous, well-kept village, as Africa goes—a pretty scene that will remain in my picture gallery for some time.

The place where we had stayed the night before was a contrast. It was on a level plain with only one lone tree in the whole village. There was a plantation of young rubber trees at one side, it is true, but there was no shade to break the heat. A large number there said they were Christians also, but the outskirts of the village were bordered with cactus plants. When attention was called to this fact, the chief said he was going to have them all cut down. In fact, he had one large one hewn down that very day. Let us hope that he will complete the task—not that a cactus is not a decorative plant—but because in the African's mind it is connected with devil worship.

Another little sketch in the day's trip will not be soon forgotten. Across the stream from the place where we had spent Sunday was a cluster of three or four houses. There were eight adults and eight children sitting in the common court yard. The only man in sight had large swellings here and there on his body. A hunch backed woman had queer blisters all over her body. But I was especially attracted to one very pleasant faced elderly woman sorting over some grain. One of my boys said: "This is really part of the same village; they could have gone to the service there if they had wanted to." But some way, we felt constrained to stop and talk to them a little while.

'No, there were no Christians there.'—'No, they had not heard the good news often.'—'Yes, they should like to hear again.'

At the end of a very earnest plea from one of my native aids, there were five of the group who said they would quit the worship of their fathers and become children of God. Among them was the pleasant faced old grandmother. Perhaps she hadn't understood the import of quite all that was said. But if the end of her earthly pilgrimage should come before another messenger should pass that way, would not God understand the willingness of this old woman to turn toward her Maker and be cleansed? Was not the kindness of this old heathen face her witness that she had followed after what good she had known? Yes, there are degrees even of heathendom.

But this letter is getting long enough. Multiply these villages by 20 and add variations, ad infinitum, and you will have an idea of my 15 day trip between Yaloke and Bellevue on the least frequented road. Dr. Gribble has kindly loaned me her Plymouth and her chauffeur. Our water boy, who serves as cook, is the third member of the party. We go leisurely, stopping at each village, and staying several nights where there is a suitable stopping place. There are government tourist houses at intervals convenient for the white traveler; and of course, the boys can always find a shelter for the night.

This is the hunting season, so occasionally we find the people gone to the hunt. This was the case where we stopped today. Not a person was in sight at our camping place. But our evangelist, Paul Belekaou whom we had seen at the chapel, soon came up to us. His young helper, Bouzou, was off to the near-by hunt. We could see the black smoke and flames at no great distance.

It was only a few minutes until Bouzou came running in to greet us, shiny with perspiration, and incoherent with excitement. There was a fight raging over the hunting ground. Two different villages claimed the same grass plot—the men of one village had set fire to it, and those from the second village were trying to drive them away. They had beat one man severely with clubs, and all were brandishing their spears at one another. The chief told this youngster to clear out or else he would get hurt, and since he was a stranger here, it was best that he flee. So he fled. He was sure there would be a great many wounded and perhaps some killed.

We were relieved later to find that the ones having set fire to the grass were driven back home but without any wounded, except to the man who had been beaten. Doubtless the animals all escaped in the meantime, and the fire died out. So it is that while men quarrel, the big game escapes. Let us center our attention on the game. There are many in this particular grass plot yet unreached, who will help hunt them out?

Yours for more souls,

MARY L. EMMERT

Dr. Floyd Taber Writes His Usual Interesting Letter to the Home Folk

Yaloke, par Boali, Oubangui-Chari, A.E.F.
March 12, 1940

Dear Home Folks:

Is it true that I have not written to you since Field Council meeting?

We went to Bassai on Nov. 29. Just a while before getting there the one new tire on the Chevy blew out. There are two good tires on front . . . which came from the factory, whose mates have all gone out long ago. And—no spare! Had ordered tires from Bangui in June, but they have not yet come. And those old tires are still running! Dr. Weber is right. The Lord is good to missionaries!

While on the subject of cars, the spring shackles for Dr. Gribble's Plymouth arrived by mail the end of January — six months after being ordered from Holland — and were not the right ones. She immediately wrote on January 29 for another to be sent by air mail, and we installed it yesterday! I have not heard of any exchange of communications between here and Europe so rapid since the war started. So now there is one car on the station ready to run.

But, to go back to conference. It is getting "gooder and gooder" every year. Dr. Gribble's key note message on the first evening, on the subject "First" (first things, putting Christ first), was carried thru the whole two weeks. One event not on the program was Marguerite's baptism by Brother Foster in a little stream nearby. It was the first white baptism the natives in our mission have witnessed.

One thing we brought back from Field Council was a greater zeal to break loose from the station and evangelize. So, although there were only 10 days between Field Council and our conference of native evangelists at Yaloke, I spent a week of it at Boda. Had a service each morning in the chapel, then spent the forenoon and afternoon reading the Sango New Testament with the group of between six and ten who knew how to read. At 5 P. M. daily I went to a different village to preach. Then, after supper, had reading and prayers with those who wanted to come.

While there I went one morning to a coffee plantation, where there are several hundred workmen, and no evangelist stationed, but one of the workmen, who maintains a Christian testimony and gathers a group together for prayer each day. Unfortunately, no one among them knows how to read, which makes it so hard for them to get spiritual food.

During the week, two Christians from M'Baiki came to ask me to come there and teach the group of about 40 who gather for prayer. M'Baiki is an old center of Roman Catholic work, and the natives of the local tribe are so indoctrinated that they will not listen to our message. But it is an important government post—so many "foreigners" come in to work for the government or for some private enterprise. Among these is this group of those who have heard the gospel in different places and are trying to maintain a testimony. A few of them are able to read a little, but not correctly. I was unable to visit them on this trip, but am very anxious to do so soon. It is so much more encouraging to find a group ready to form a church on their own initiative than to place a paid evangelist in a village, and never have them get ready to walk on their own feet.

On the day after Christmas began the two weeks' conference with native workers. The 27 evangelists were all in from the chapels, along with 20 youngsters in the Sango New Testament class who hope to be evangelists. In addition, we gave the school children and station workmen a vacation, and for the first time since I have been here, a good number of the Christians who are not evangelists took an interest.

Each morning, at six o'clock service, there was a report of work done in the villages and a Scripture message, given by the evangelists. Then, at 8:00, Dr. Gribble and Mary Emmert took turns giving devotional messages to introduce the prayer service, which lasted until anywhere between 10:00 and 12:00. When it finished early enough, there was a discussion of business before noon. As always, one of the big problems was how to spread our limited forces so as to come as near as possible to meeting the needs of the field.

At 1:30 came the regular class to teach the Sunday School lesson for the following Sunday. From 2:30 to 4:00 I gave a series of studies in the Epistle of I John. After sitting thru all that, they thought it was enough for a day; and that is not surprising when you realize that many of them did not know one letter from another until they were adults, and these who have had the most schooling are in the stage of puzzling out a verse one word at a time. We have little idea what painstaking effort it takes just to go thru the mechanics of reading; and then we must add to that the colossal intellectual gymnastics of making those words, deciphered with such pains, convey an abstract idea to minds that never until recently suspected there was such a thing.

This is a typical beginners' reading class. Although the boys attending the mission school come from a number of villages, only a few go back to live. This leaves many villages without anyone who can read the New Testament or give the Christians spiritual food.

But of course the real problem is spiritual instead of intellectual. We constantly see examples of the word: "Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and hast revealed them unto babes." On the other hand, just as at home, there are many whose real underlying motives are position, prestige, money, or ease; so their eyes are blinded to the spiritual realities that can be seen only by the pure in heart.

On Jan. 3 Brethren Jobson and Kliever rolled in on their way to Bangui. We prevailed on them to stay and help us in the Bible Conference for a couple of days, which was a real blessing to all of us . . . .

When they left for Bangui, the plan was that on their return Brother Jobson and I would make a two weeks' visit to the chapels in the Yaloke field together. But they brought the bad (?) news that the governor was planning to come here between the 15th and the 18th and wanted to see me. Of course that meant I could not leave until after his visit, and he did not come until the 25th. Anyhow, when he did come he was very cordial and friendly, and seemed to be favorable to our work. However, he is especially interested in industrial work — training carpenters, blacksmiths, gardeners, etc. But I feel I simply can't undertake a program of that kind in addition to all the rest, to tie me that much tighter to the station, when the villages are calling.

On Jan. 29 Mary Emmert left for a three weeks' evangelization trip on the roads thru Bossembele, Lindahoro, and Bossangoa. A barge out of operation kept her from going on around by Bogangolo and Bouca, so we sent a couple of evangelists on that road. She and they reported a great hunger for the gospel on both roads. We rejoiced to learn that the Bouca church plans to send a resident evangelist to Bogangolo, since the chief there had sent repeated calls to us, and it was a great burden on the hearts of our evangelists that someone should go there; and yet we knew it was out of our territory. There was great thanksgiving here when they learned the Lord had answered their prayers by providing a worker from Bouca. It is also a source of joy to them to realize they are closing in the gaps and that workers from the different stations can meet for fellowship and mutual encouragement, with no unreached tribes between. She brought Florence Bickel back from Bellevue, to be here to welcome the twins. Since they have delayed their appearance, we are having the happiness of a prolonged visit with her.

During the same time I took Boumeli (who, after Volongou, is our best evangelist) and a couple of Bible School boys and a cook, and visited all the villages between here and Banakomo (50 miles) on the Bozoum road. At one time there were a whole string of chapels on that stretch of road, but now only one — Cazeli, where Allen Bennett is buried. It was very sad to go into villages where there had once been a good group of converts, but who were unwilling to go all the way with the Lord, and who lost interest to the point that the evangelists were withdrawn to be put in places more ready to receive the gospel. They still want to consider themselves Christians, but their lives are such a mixture of heathenism and immorality that they can have no testimony, to say the least.

On this dark background there were two brighter areas—the villages near enough to Yaloke to be visited on week end trips, and those near enough Gazeli to be visited by the evangelists stationed there. This encourages us to believe the evangelists have a testimony while they are active in a territory; but they have not formed indigenous churches that can stand when the evangelist is removed. If this territory is ever to be permanently evangelized, we must aim at a native church, capable of living and growing without a resident worker sent from the mission. Otherwise we will be forever beginning over again to evangelize territory already covered. So, the thing I looked for in each village was a nucleus to start a church, on whose head we could put the responsibility for carrying on the work. Here is what I found:

1. Although in almost every village the list of converts was made up of men, women, and children, it consisted of husbands without their wives, wives without their husbands, and children without their parents. This makes impossible, without further conversions, the formation of Christian families, which seems to me indispensable for the formation of the nucleus to a Christian community.

2. Although boys from more than half of the villages had been to school at the mission, they had afterward gone into the employ of some white man—of course, many of them in the employ of the mission—so had not gone back to their own villages to live. So there was no one in the villages capable of reading the New Testament, and thus giving spiritual food to the Christians.

Villages are pleading for teachers, but there are none to send!

3. As is only to be expected with this lack of spiritual food and nurture, many had fallen back into the old ways—or rather, into an inextricable mixture of the old and the new, which in their eyes constitutes being a Christian, but in ours being a pagan. In short, they have already reached the stage of masses of people in “Christian” lands, making a superficial profession of Christianity, but never having had a complete revolution of the underlying purposes of their life and never having received a new life from above—which things, in theological language, we call conversion and regeneration.

In Zawa's village, after a message in which I tried to set forth the need of these things, the chief, who has never even made a profession of personal conversion, said: “When the evangelist comes we gather to sing and pray and listen to him preach. What more is there to do?” I pointed to a heathen altar and said: “You can't worship God while you keep that altar. You must turn your back on the old ways and worship God alone.” He said he would have that altar torn down, but still it was only superficial. He was not ready for a complete change of heart.

So many are in the same case. They ask, “What good thing can I do to inherit eternal life? What lack I yet?” They want to do one more thing to add to what they have done already, not able to realize they are handling only the surface, and that the first thing is a fundamental change inside. They can see a list of commandments they ought to keep; but the god of this world hath blinded their eyes, lest the glorious light of the gospel of grace should shine in—that they must receive before they can keep! They want to add one more point to their goodness, not realizing that One only is good, not perceiving the idolatry of considering anything in themselves as good, not willing to renounce all, to deny themselves, to take up the cross, and follow Christ. They fail to see that they must either deny Christ or deny themselves; that they must either say “I am good, He is helping me to be better”; or, “I am nothing, He is all.” You probably ask: “What have the missionaries been preaching out there all this time, if the natives don't understand the first principles of the gospel any better than that?” The answer is easy: What have ministers been preaching in the homeland all these years? (Not all of us, Brother Taber!—Ed.)

In two places on the road, there seemed to be a nucleus ready to organize a church—at Zawa, 20 miles from Yalohe, which has been visited regularly by the evangelists which go to school on the station during the week and go out preaching over week ends; and at Gazeli, where Allen Bennett is buried and where we have evangelists stationed. But the point that seemed to present the most promise of any was the mining camp at Datoli. A small group of workmen who had been baptized in the Mid-African Mission and in ours, are holding regular prayer meetings with a larger group of inquirers, and seem to be main-

LOIS IRENE TABER ARRIVES

The following communication from Dr. Floyd Taber has just reached us.

General Staff Headquarters of “The Storks”
Somewhere in Greater France

Official Communique of May 8, 1940:

Our aviation has just accomplished the most outstanding exploit of the war.

By means of false alarms and simulated attacks over a period of more than two months, we had completely demoralized the enemy defense. Then in a daring night raid we eluded their vaunted vigilance, and were able to land our expeditionary force, unseen, behind the lines.

After a desperate thirty-six hour struggle, our forces gained a complete victory all along the line, and remain masters of the field. The flying squadron has returned to its home base, without the loss of a single man, woman, or piece of equipment.

As a result of this decisive victory, the little isle “Lois Irene,” which had been surrounded for several months, is delivered. Although small (twenty-one inches by eight and a half pounds), this isle is expected to have a glorious future, and already occupies a big place.

Yalohe, A. E. F.

taining a testimony. The big difficulty is, not one among them knows how to read; so they want some one to come and teach them. The sad part is, many workmen at the camp have been to school at the mission, but no longer take any interest in the gospel. We are much in prayer that the Lord will call someone for this work, either from among the workmen there who already have the training, or from the station.

Four other villages on the road expressed an earnest desire for someone to come and teach them; but we have none to send! They have begun to understand a little of the gospel, and even have some baptized Christians among them; but have been so long without leadership that I was impressed as never before with the feeling of compassion Jesus had for the crowds “as sheep having no shepherd.” “Pray ye the Lord of the harvest . . .”

At Gazeli I had an unusual chance to preach to people from all over the canton. They had all brought their cotton on to sell, and the buyer did not come on the promised day, so they had nothing to do but wait; and I preached in front of the cotton hanger each morning and evening to about 300. Of course we never get crowds like that in the villages, because very few of them have that many inhabitants.

While I was away, Volongou stayed here to take care of the church work. Before that, while we were awaiting the governor, he took a trip on the Carnot road, as far as Yolo. Now, while we are awaiting the new arrival (who seems to be as much behind the promised date as the governor was!) he is making a circuit that takes about a month on the Zalaouance, Bozouma, Bamangangou, Boali and Bossembele roads. We had hoped to place a strong evangelist at Bossembele, and it was decided to send Boumeli; but then it was discovered he had schistosoma, and had to stay on the station for a series of piqures (injections) for a couple of months. I took him on the road with me so that I could give them to him while he was out preaching. When Volongou gets back, we hope to send Boumeli on another long trip to visit M'Baiki.

While on the station, my most regular occupation is spending the afternoons teaching the class of evangelists and prospective evangelists the Sango New Testament. The forenoons are filled with a little bit of everything without accomplishing much of anything.

The pig palaver seems to be settled, at least for the time being. Since I penned up all the pigs belonging to Kolouane and he had them hauled away, and we have a boy to take care of ours, they have not been destroying anything. But the goats—ah, the goats! They kept getting worse and worse, until they were destroying all the natives' gardens and all our shrubbery. So I gave the villagers until March 1st to make arrangements to have their goats kept somewhere, or in some way so they would not come here, and set my foot down hard (believe it or not!). The workmen were to catch all goats found on the station, and the owners had to pay a franc apiece (a little over two cents) to get them back.

At the same time, unbeknown to me, one of the natives of the mission put some poison on his coffee plantation, and two goats died from it. One of the two was a goat we were renting for milk, and which our goat boy was responsible for! Of course, that raised a big howl from all the goat owners of the vicinity. That was the method they always used in the old days, and the owner of the garden was recognized as having the right to kill any animal (or even person) destroying it after two warnings. But people of the mission do not have the right to defend themselves, according to the old laws! In dealing with offender, I said it was not the right thing to do. But I secretly hoped it would be a lot more effective than my system of fines in scaring the owners into keeping their goats away. But alas, three weeks have not passed, and the place is again overrun! And a lot of the owners fail to show up to claim their goats, giving us the embarrassment of keeping them in "jail."

What to do next?

I forgot to tell you, during the trip to Bangui, I was sawing some lumber for Jake Kliever to take to Bekoro, when—grrr!—something in the tractor transmission "went bust!" So now we are trying to have our lumber sawed by hand with a big pit-saw. Hope to find time one of these days to find out just what is wrong with the tractor. Of course there is no hope of getting any parts for it out here, as it is an old Model T.

Well, this letter has been in the making a week, and still the twins haven't showed up. Florence Bickel has thought up good names for girls — Rose and Morose, but we can't figure out a good combination for boys. Any suggestions?

Did you see the cartoon?—A man rushing into a layette shop: "Double the order I just gave you; and stand by for further announcements."

JEHOVAH - NISSI

By Florence N. Gribble, Bozoum par Bangui, Oubangui-Chari, F. E. Africa

Before me as I write is a precious little book with which many of you are familiar—"Daily Light." The evening text for March 1 is "Jehova-nissi: the Lord my banner" (Ex. 17:15).

Funk and Wagnall gives as the definition of banner: "Any flag or standard." It gives a new thought to my tired brain, a new impetus to my weary body, a new comfort to my bruised heart. The flag that I am to fly, the testimony I am to bear before men is Himself. The standard I am to reach, the height I am to obtain, is His standard, His righteousness. The things which I am to seek most earnestly, most passionately, most ardently, is His glory. Others, perhaps, may seek their own glory; I am to make it the passion of my life to seek His alone! Every action, every decision must pass the test supreme: "How much will it glorify my Lord?"

Out here on the mission field we are privileged to bear a new testimony in these difficult days. In days of trial we are finding Him faithful. When most of the world is in turmoil we ourselves are in peace, perfect peace.

"Thou hast given a banner to them that fear Thee that it may be displayed because of the truth" (Psa. 60:4). And He is giving us a chance to display it. We are coming in contact on every hand with those who are spiritually hungry—here and there a miner who has not been mobilized, occasionally a planter who has been asked by the government to stand by his plantations, here a native chauffeur whose heart is rent with agony as he bows at the bedside of a dying wife and then must leave her in our care as he hastens to his duty—these are the ones before whom the banner is being displayed; and those who look at the banner know that it is being displayed because of the truth! Will you not pray for them, that they may accept Him who is the Truth?

"He brought me to the banqueting house, and his banner over me was love." You dear ones at home can little realize, as you think of your missionaries far away in one of the colonies of a country involved in the world catastrophe; you can little realize, I repeat, that He has chosen this time to bring us to the banqueting house. There is in most parts of our field greater interest in the gospel than before. Church attendance is larger, interest is wider, the Holy Spirit's working deeper than it was just six months ago!

"If God be for us who can be against us?"

"Behold, God Himself is with us for our Captain!"

"These shall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb shall overcome them!"

"God is with us." Yes, and His banner over us is love. And of that love the heathen around us are receiving glimpses, shimmering and receding at times because of our imperfections, but glimpses nevertheless of Himself, through His missionaries and through the indigenous church in Oubangui-Chari, as we imperfectly reveal Him. Will you not pray for us and those before whom we display this wondrous banner of truth and of love?

Shall not the church in Oubangui-Chari, through your prayers, become "terrible as an army with banners"? Surely it means something to our enemies, those spiritual beings who surround us on every side, when our banners trail not in the dust but are gloriously upheld! Shall not you at home and we upon the field be to the prince of Oubangui-Chari, he who reigns in the hearts of the heathen, "terrible as an army with banners"? If so, it must be through prayer that our spiritual adversary may be overcome.

"Satan trembles when he sees

The weakest saint upon his knees."

Some of us, during this dry season, have been "staying by the stuff." There have been classes to teach, hospitals to care for, the weak to be sustained. But there have been those who have been privileged to go forth with the gospel. Mrs. Jobson will be writing of the experiences she and her husband have had in hand-to-hand conflict with spiritual adversaries in the Karre and other villages. Miss Emmert will be writing you of the rich blessing that has attended her upon the Bambia road. Dr. Taber will be writing you of the need and response on the Bozoum road, etc. Native Christians, too, have had their conflicts and their victories. Voloungou, on road after road, has seen the gospel triumph; Salmouci and those with him have returned with glowing reports as they have suffered and served on the Bogangoro road. And you have shared in these victories as you have been praying for us.

We cannot think of a more fitting message to you who pray, and to our own hearts on this field of battle for the Lord, than the 20th Psalm:

"The Lord hear thee in the day of trouble;

The Name of the God of Jacob defend thee;

Send thee help from the sanctuary, and strengthen thee out of Zion;

Remember all thy offerings, and accept thy burnt sacrifice;

Grant thee according to thine own heart, and fulfil all thy counsel.

We will rejoice in Thy salvation,

And in the name of our God will we set up our banners:

The Lord fulfil ALL thy petitions.

Now know I that the Lord saveth his anointed;

He will hear him from His holy heaven with the saving strength of His right hand.

Some trust in chariots, and some in horses:

But we will remember the name of the Lord our God.

They are brought down and fallen:

But we are risen, and stand upright.

Save, Lord: let the king hear us when we call."

The African as Seen by a 'Green-Horn' Missionary

By Jacob P. Kliever, Bekoro, Oubangui-Chari, F. E. Africa

When one starts out to a new country for a new work, to be among a people that have never been his neighbors in the homeland, there are many thoughts that enter the mind, many questions that appear, and a few guesses are made as to what it and they will be like.

There are also others that have never been there that are ready to tell what it will be like. There are also those who have been there that tell you what their eyes have seen and what their experiences have been. In this case, it would be a miracle if there was an identical story told by all concerned as to their guesses and impressions. But nevertheless, here is another forthcoming to be added to the long and varying list.

On being introduced to the natives, we noticed there were some that felt real important, and it was necessary to give them an extra good hand shake.

There were others that wanted to be noticed, but were shy. There were those that wanted the front seats, and the choice places in the chapel services. Thus we came to the conclusion that we weren't, thus far at least, among a people so different from some of those we had just left.

When I found time to take a hike, gun in arm of course, and shot a little game, I found that there were those that wanted the choice pieces, those that were anxious to get all their share and plus, if possible. Again I couldn't help but think, "Why, that is what I have seen at home also."

Then some folks told us that it wasn't safe to trust the native, that it was necessary to have things under lock and key. I found that they have a philosophy very much as I have often heard at home: "Every one has a right to live," even if it is by taking the other fellow's goods.

How impatient we sometimes get, when we try to get the native to do a little work for us. They must certainly be related to the fellow that fell heir to $10.00, and when they brought it to him, he asked them to turn him over and put it in his "left hind pocket"! One missionary has said he wondered if they didn't feel bad when at the end of the day they looked back and saw so little accomplished, and another answered that no doubt they were proud of the amount of work they got out of doing that day! Well, we had the P.W.A. and other high-powered labor organizations at home before I left, and either they learned from the African, or else someone here has already taught the African! But you ought to see these same lazy natives when it comes time to hunt or play. They have changed so that you wouldn't recognize them. Oh how our hearts long to be able to produce this same energetic application to the things of the Lord.

I have been saying "some" right along, because, few as they may be, we find some notable exceptions, and others that are apparently becoming interested as we would see them. I have been trying to show some of the natural and native characteristics, and I have found, and trust you see also, that they are really just human beings that are included in those mentioned in Jn. 3:16.

Let us take a quick trip into one of our church services. What do we see there as to motives that brought the native to hear, and as to results?

We have noticed that when there is lots of work in the plantations, but the chief and administration let those off who want to come to church on Sundays, there is an increased attendance on those Sundays. Wouldn't it be the same at home? There are those who we can see, have come to let others see the new dress or the old pair of shoes they have just bought from a white man, or a new pair of yellow and red golf socks they have just acquired. It seems to me that it was in the United States of America that I have noticed some that were worthy of being suspected as being in that group. Yes, some come with motives that are not those that we have for coming, but how glad we are that they come! When they come, and the Word is given, it is quick and powerful, and can bring about results here as well as at home.

Here again there are some that come, hungry. It has seemed such a long time since they have been around the board for a meal from the Word. They have walked, starting the day before, and after 35 miles of travel on foot, they are tired, dusty, but happy to hear again the Words that have, and are, Life. How they drink it in, as dry ground drinks in the first few drops after a long dry spell!

They return to the villages, and by His grace, are living a life of testimony, taking the beating for not drinking and eating food to the idols, for not dancing and entering into the dissipation of the village. Bravely they face the charges that their children are sick because they are forsaking the way of their fathers. But time after time, the Lord has taken these very times of testing and used them as a drag-net to bring others to Himself.

The native evangelists have all the love of my heart. I almost believe I envy them. They have the language, and are not bound down by station duties. They are ready to go in ten minutes. If a call comes to go to another tribe or village, in half an hour, family, goods and all are ready to go. A small trunk of the few clothes, a song book, a Testament, etc.—his bed mat rolled around his blanket—and he is ready to go. If we would decide to move, there would be at least a week of packing, a truck load of stuff, and then all to unpack again! Why can't we all be free to go and come like they are? There are a few that covet some of our stuff, but they don't know how well off they are!

Why do I love to preach the gospel to the native? Why am I happy even though keenly I miss the wonderful fellowship with my Christian friends and loved ones in the homeland?

First of all I must answer that I am sure the Lord has called me here, and thus I could do nothing else than come. To have stayed in the homeland would have brought unhappiness to loved ones and friends and no peace and joy to self. But if even the going to the place that the Lord has called you brings a sweet peace and joy, how much more when there are experiences that come your way bringing added joy and blessings. I have often thanked the Lord for the joy of rich Christian fellowship with native Christians, especially with several groups of evangelists. We forget they are black and see them as children fashioned in the image of God!

One of the black evangelists had been preaching in a village, saying that the folks listened to his message as if it were a wind blowing (not much attention to words). After the message, they came to him and asked if the missionary had given him that shirt. He answered, "No." He was then asked, "Did he give you the money with which to buy it?" Again he answered, "No." They then started to listen. Again he was asked: "Doesn't he pay you for going out with this 'affair'?" We at Bekoro are trying the indigenous system to the Nth degree, and thus he answered again as before, and that it was his Christian brothers that made it possible to come to them with this message, which was a message for them to take to heart. It was God's message, and not man's. Thus that village is now ready and anxious to have an evangelist that they will support and to have a chapel that they will build!

Another evangelist has been going to a district 35 miles away, from the which there have been folks coming here. Yesterday, four young men were here to buy Gospels of John. Only two of them could read fairly well, and thus we sold only to those two. The others wanted one, and we told them that we were asking the Lord to make possible the placing of a full time evangelist, that would be their evangelist and that could teach them to read etc. How happy they were, and they went back rejoicing to tell the news and to pray also.

J. Irvin Overholtzer Visits Our Argentina Mission

J. Irvin Overholtzer, director of the Child Evangelism Fellowship movement, recently visited our missionary field in the Argentines. You will certainly be interested in his impressions of our work and of our missionaries, and therefore we shall quote from a personal letter that he has written to the editor, and also from a circular letter he sent out all over the world to his "prayer helpers." In a letter to the editor Dr. Overholtzer says:

"I have wanted to write you about our visit to the Brethren Mission in Rio Cuarto, Argentina, but I have waited until I could enclose our circular letter giving something of our experiences on the whole trip.

We were delighted with both the missionaries and national Christians whom we met at Rio Cuarto. Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy are certainly rare workers, and their ministry is being greatly blessed of the Lord and bearing fruit that will abide.

After visiting so many missions which have Bible Institutes for the training of native workers, I am praying that your board will see their way to open such a school at Rio Cuarto."

In the letter to the editor Dr. Overholtzer expresses a desire to visit our work in Africa also, and he is planning to make a tour of Africa in the very near future, if the Lord opens the way.

And then in his circular letter which is sent out to all countries and all those who are interested in the great Child Evangelism movement, Dr. Overholtzer further says:

"We closed our last letter at Santiago, Chile. From there we flew over the Andes to Cordoba, Argentina, a flight which gave us the most thrilling sight of God's handiwork in nature that we have ever seen—

One blind woman, all wrinkled, her skin about 3 sizes too large for her (We could see this, as her full dress was made up of a string of beads and about two dozen leaves!) gave this testimony, "All my life I have tried to find satisfaction from the idols, in drinking beer and in smoking, but now I am happy in Jesus; and even though I am blind, I am so glad that some day I shall see my Savior's face!"

Why do we want to preach the gospel here? Because the Father loved these "poor black sheep," which are among those "other" sheep, enough to allow his only begotten Son to lift the penalty and burden of sin through his sacrificial death on Calvary. Christ loved them enough to empty himself, come in humiliation (He the Son of glory!) and die for these to whom we are witnessing. If I truly love the Father, if I truly love the Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, can I sit idly by and not be concerned about those whom He is so anxious to have hear the message of salvation also?

"How shall they believe in Him of Whom they have not heard? How shall they hear without a preacher? How shall they preach except they be sent?"

O, let us take our hearts off of things, and let them be stayed upon Him! Then we will be interested that all the world may know this wonderful gospel of love and grace!

range upon range of mighty mountains literally piled upon each other! Surely such a God can care for all of us and meet our needs. Long before we left for South America, Dr. Louis S. Bauman of Long Beach, Calif., secretary of the mission board of The Brethren Church, wrote urging that we visit our mission with headquarters at Rio Cuarto, Argentina. Rev. J. Paul Dowdy of that mission met us at Cordoba and took us in his auto to Rio Cuarto—130 miles. Here we spent over three wonderful days. The missionaries literally sat at our feet eagerly drinking in every word so that they might put Child Evangelism in their station, covering a wide area. I addressed their national Christians several times and held two children's meetings, with many children accepting the Lord. One of these was a Sunday School held in the open air. There were about 40 children there and everyone professed to accept Christ. This is an indication of the willingness of the children in Latin America to come to the Lord. Mr. Dowdy has become a member of our International Advisory Council and I have asked Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy to become fellow-ship directors for western Argentina.

Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy and dear little Jimmy, their small son, drove us back to Cordoba, where we took the plane for Buenos Aires."

It is evident that the work of Child Evangelism can succeed and does succeed in Roman Catholic South America as well as in Protestant North America. We believe that the solution to the evangelism of Argentina or any other country on the face of the earth is more readily found in the work of Child Evangelism than in any other way. "Train a child up in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." That was the Lord's advice in this matter 3000 years ago and it stands today!

EARTHQUAKES

Do you know that earthquakes are on the increase? The World Digest for March 1936, in an article on earthquakes listed seventeen major ones which took place in 1935. Only the severest quakes receive mention.

From 1906 to 1924 there was an average of one each year.

From 1930 to 1933 there was an average of 10 a year.

In 1934 there was a total of 33.

In 1935 there were 95 quakes which was a number equal to the entire 29 years which preceded.

When our Lord was asked concerning the signs of His return, he said "For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places" (Matt. 24:7). If our Lord was not talking about our time, He was talking about a worse time. It takes a mighty good laughter to laugh off all this.—W. 10th St. Bulletin, Ashland.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary Celebration

Cabrera, Prov. Cordoba, Argentina

By Luis Siccardi, Pastor

On Jan. 27, on the occasion of the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the gospel work in Cabrera and vicinity, we passed an afternoon of spiritual rejoicing at the country home of our sister Ana de Bornand. As may be seen by the accompanying photograph, there were 88 in attendance. Some 35 Brethren of Cabrera, Deheza, and Las Perdices, were not able to be present.

I shall relate the history of the beginning of this work according to the information I have been able to gather. In the year 1915, a Sunday School was opened in the rural home of Don Samuel Bornand, now deceased. This school was conducted by Sister Emma Perrin, a widow, who, not speaking our language, taught in French, her pupils being Swiss-French. Some time later, Brother Gayetano Spring, vation Army, his mother, Emma Perrin, and Don Gayetano Spring, these being the founders of the work. All of these speakers gave prominence to the above mentioned points, and then gave a call to the unsaved to accept the Lord. They called attention to the fact that to obtain salvation it is not sufficient to belong to a Protestant family, since salvation is not inherited from the parents, but is of Christ and is an individual matter.

After the service a brief social period was greatly enjoyed, and the accompanying photograph was taken. I close now expressing thanks to all the Brethren who cooperated in the celebration of this notable date. I pray God that our work here may come to be, by His grace, what He would have it be. In spite of His inexhaustible mercy and patience we are not what we should be at this late date in our history. For this we ask forgiveness, and expect, by God's help, a new and glorious era for our work here.

who was conducting a Sunday School in Cabrera, took notice of the work of Sister Perrin, and consulted with the Brethren Bornand and Perrin, who sought his help in teaching the class in Spanish. So he began with regular meetings, with cooperation of the families Stoller, Bornand, Rosell, Muller, and others, all of Swiss origin and Protestants from the beginning.

Later, Dr. Yoder learned of the existence of this group and visited them. He arranged with them to hold monthly preaching services alternately in the homes of Don Marcos Stoller, Don Julio Perrin, and Don Samuel Bornand. In this manner the work continued for a while until a hall was rented in the town of Cabrera. Then the first pastor, Mr. Edward Atkinson, was sent to this place, and our church was formed by those from this group who conformed to our Biblical principles. The rest of the believers continued to cooperate with us in matters of spiritual, moral, and material aid.

On the occasion of this 25th anniversary, the speakers were Brother Remy Perrin, an officer in the Sal-

PRECAUTION

They say a wife and husband, bit by bit,
Can rear between their lives a mighty wall,
So thick they cannot talk with ease through it,
Nor can they see across, it stands so tall!
Its nearness frightens them, but each alone
Is powerless to tear its bulk away,
And each, dejected, wishes he had known
For such a wall, some magic thing to say.

So let us build with master art, my dear,
A bridge of faith between your life and mine,
A bridge of tenderness, and very near,
A bridge of understanding, strong and fine—
Till we have formed so many lovely ties
There never will be room for walls to rise!

Never yet abyss was found Deeper than the cross could sound."

On an African Safari for Christ

January 20, 1940

Only eight kilometers to Baibokoum, so we got in in good time after preaching at Mbassai. The Mboum there are so hard to reach. What a change in such a short distance! We have left the Mboum tribe and entered the Sarra-Laka district where the Mohammedan influence is strongly felt. This is a peculiar post showing its predominating Moslem influence in the privacy obtained by high mat enclosures. The village is divided into streets where one walks between high grass mats. The government buildings are beautiful and the grounds well-kept. We found a group of interested and happy Christians. Noel (our best Karre evangelist who has been stationed here temporarily) was happy to see us. The work here is truly indigenous, having been started by the native Christian nurse who is in charge of the government dispensary here. The "church" is an enclosure where many rocks afford good pews and benches, where the sky forms the roof above, and a man-made mat gives the desired privacy. We were impressed by the spirit of reverence and worship that invaded the whole evening service.

January 21

We are glad to have the opportunity of spending Sunday here. Late last night the administrator and his wife returned from buying cotton. We went to church early, and didn't get to see them; but she sent us a large basket of vegetables and strawberries. The head administrator from Moundou arrived during the morning, and the official left with him in the afternoon; so we didn't get to see them at all. The cook of the Moundou official came over to greet us. He said he was a Christian, and after talking with us a few minutes he took out his Sango New Testament and read the fifth of

"We entered the Sarra-Laka District, where the Mohammedan influence is strongly felt."

Romans with excellent diction, after which we had prayer together. We sent a note by him to our missionary friends, the Vearys.

January 22

Left Baibokoum about 4 A. M. and had to travel for a long time by lantern light. We had a long hard trip to Lakka-Panna on the Kounang road. The loads didn't get in until late afternoon, although we had stopped to preach along the way. We were strongly impressed by the many large villages in close proximity on the road. This road has just been put thru the wild rough Panna mountains this year to make the tribe a bit easier to control. Near Lakka-Panna, we met a road employee who tried to impress us in a big way, but didn't seem to draw much but ridicule from the men of the village. He wanted to talk of how much he accomplished by whipping people. "Pika" seemed to be the biggest word in his vocabulary. He did get his wife busy in a hurry to bring food to the boys who were tired and hungry. The village here is almost as large as that of Mann, and the chief seemed to be unusually fine. We spoke by moonlight to a huge crowd. After we were in bed, our boisterous, blustery friend arrived from the neighboring village with 30 some children he had rounded up. He said he had to whip them to get them there, but he was determined that they and he himself should hear the gospel.

January 23

Crossed the Kounang mountains. We had to walk much of the way to help our boys. The climb over the mountains was hard and reminded me of some of those out of the way roads through the Colorado mountains, or of the old grapevine of the Ridge Route (California) of former days. I started out ahead of Estella and preached twice before she caught up to me. We crossed the river Lim in canoe. The chief of Lakka-Panna came that far to escort us on our way. No preacher of the gospel, either black of white, had ever been over that road, and the people "heard us gladly." Late in the afternoon, I stopped to preach at a very large village. My interpreter punctuated all his sentences by puffs on a smelly old pipe. The story was so new to them that there was much exclaiming, slapping of their mouths, etc. Reached Kounang just before sunset, and had a royal welcome. Louis, his wife, and all the Christians seemed glad to see us. We visited Louis' class, and found him doing good work.

January 24

Since both we and the boys are getting tired, we decided not to attempt the difficult bush trip to Paoua, but to back track and go home by the shortest route. We left early for Touloulou, stopped to greet Christians at Ndim, and reached our destination in good time. These Pondo people certainly are a hard lot. The boys say many of them are yet hidden out in the bush uncontrolled. About midnight, I was awakened by commotion outside the door. I had it barricaded with chairs, after getting up several times to chase goats. We didn't object strenuously to sharing our quarters with chickens and rats, but we did draw the line at dogs and goats. I got up to see what was the matter, and found two men outside the door with a large pot. They said it was water, and since I knew there had been difficulty getting water earlier in the evening, I decided to open the chair barricade and accept their gift. As they entered the hut I thought: "Well, I never smelled water like that. nor heard any that sizzled so!" It proved to be beer, and I had a difficult time persuading them to remove it, as none of us drank. After all the noise was over, and the men had gone, two of our boys came quietly around the edge of the rest house to see if we were all right. Good protectors they would be, if we needed earthly protection!

African Women Portering Cotton

January 25

We went by the auto road to Lokadia, and left our loads to take the short-cut through the field. We were surprised to arrive ahead of them and have to wait for hours. Finally our three boys who were with them came limping in. The Pondo porters we had hired had set their loads down in the middle of the bush and skipped. Our boys had to double up the loads, and finally managed to come in with them. We appreciated their faithfulness in the face of difficulty.

January 26

My push boys had a stubborn streak today, so I decided to walk and "Put shame on their heads," as the natives say. They tried in vain to persuade me to ride after they caught up with me at the Pende river. I walked the whole distance, 18 or 20 miles, and was glad to find that I could take such a jaunt and still feel well afterwards. We are spending the afternoon and night here at Pousse again. The baby we left here two weeks ago was brought to us immediately by the mother. It looks so frail; but we hope that it will live to grow up as a testimony to God's working. Those poor ignorant people have no idea of the care such a tiny mite of humanity should have.

January 27

This has been the longest, hardest day of our entire trip. We left early, expecting to make a fairly long run to the big village of Lia, where we would stay all night. Before we got there, however, we learned that the officials were there buying cotton so we would have to go on. We had a hard time getting porters, as everyone was at Lia selling cotton. The 10 children that are going in to Bassai to school helped out, though, by dividing up the loads so they could handle them. We took a long rest at the river, then pushed on. Since so many villages were empty, with practically everyone at the cotton center, we went on through to Gani. We walked quite a bit to relieve our boys and reached Gani after dark to find all the people of that district gathered there to sell cotton the next day. The chief, a good friend of the mission, gave us a royal welcome, and fed our large family of boys and children well.

January 28

Even though this was Sunday, we had to move to make way for the arrival of the administrator, so we broke camp right after service at the chapel. We are now back in our own territory and at home.

We hadn't gone far, when a car came along and we were invited to ride the rest of the way home. We accepted the offer, and left our boys to bring in the empty pushes. In about an hour, we made the trip that would have cost us the entire day by push. "Be it ever so humble, there is on place like home." Bassai looked pretty good to us when we alighted at our very door after 24 days of roughing it in the bush. The Lord had been gracious to us all along the way. He had kept us all in health and strength, He had kept our people here at Bassai, and He had protected our property. We had had a blessed trip.

The Lord had been with us, and at times we had been conscious of the evil one too in his attempts to thwart the work of the Spirit; but, in spite of difficulties, we thank Him for the seed that was sown, and ask Him to nurture it until it brings forth fruit. Our part is to sow the seed. We must leave the results with Him. We are sure that He will bless those who professed His name and whom we taught to pray. Wherever we found a group who wanted to step out for the Lord, we made someone responsible for gathering them together to pray and to ask the Lord to send them a teacher.

"The harvest truly is plenteous but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of harvest that He may thrust forth laborers unto the harvest."

STIMULATING BUT NOT NOURISHING

Some one asked John B. Gough whether alcohol was a food or a medicine. His reply was, "It is very much like sitting down on a hornet's nest—stimulating, but not nourishing."—The Expositor

FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF THE BRETHREN CHURCH

Friday, May 10th, 1940

Present: Kimmell, Bauman, McClain, Koontz, Barnard, Shively, Mrs. Whetstone, Mrs. Vanator.

1. Conference with Missionaries.

The following missionaries met with the board: Ruth Snyder, Mr. & Mrs. Morill, Mr. & Mrs. Williams, Miss Tyson. The problem of learning French was discussed. Charles F. Yoder, retired, also met with the board.

2. Transportation and Language Problem.

A motion prevailed that the matter of transportation to and from the fields, and advisability of French study in Canada, and the determination as to which of the approved missionaries are to be sent out and the time thereof, be committed to the officers of the board, with power to act, the Secretary-Treasurer to act as chairman. Mr. & Mrs. Dunning are to be regarded as members of this group.

3. The Hathaways.

A motion prevailed that the Hathaways be returned to the field with the understanding that his work and station shall be determined by the board.

4. The Yoder "Retirement Agreement."

A motion prevailed that the pension of Dr. C. F. Yoder be paid up to Mar. 9, 1940, and be terminated on that date, because in his editorial published in The Brethren Evangelist of that date he seriously violated Article 4 of his "Retirement Agreement," which reads as follows:

"RETIREMENT AGREEMENT"

Between the Board of Trustees of the Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church and
Dr. C. F. Yoder

In response to Dr. Yoder's own expressed desire to retire from active missionary service, set forth in a letter under date of Jan. 25, 1937, and renewed at this 1938 meeting of the board, and in recognition of the 30 years service he has rendered to the cause of Christian missions under our Society, he is hereby retired from active service, on Sept. 1, with an allowance of $50 per month under the following terms and conditions:

"1. That since Dr. Yoder has expressed a desire to reside at Cordoba, Argentina, with his family, this city shall be regarded as the place of his residence.

"2. That any missionary activities he may engage in shall be limited to the city of Cordoba (Population 250,000).

"3. That any such missionary activity, together with all Brethren missionary activities in the Argentine, shall continue under the direction of the regularly constituted authorities of the Society in that country.

"4. In his utterances and writings, both public and private, Dr. Yoder shall support loyally the work and authorities of the Foreign Missionary Society which is undertaking to make financial provision for his retirement.

"5. Since the Society is providing the financial allowance for Dr. Yoder's retirement, it is understood that he shall report to the board all missionary contributions sent to him directly or through channels other than the board, and that the disposal of all such contributions shall be under the direction of the board.

"6. That, in addition to the writing he desires to do, Dr. Yoder be encouraged to continue his preaching ministry outside our missions and territory, but it is understood that any such preaching or visitational ministry within Brethren missions or territory shall be exercised only in response to the invitation of and under the direction of the regularly constituted authorities of the Foreign Missionary Society in the Argentine.

"7. That since the board feels that any continued agitation, either on the field or in this country, of the recent problems affecting Dr. Yoder and his family can only hinder the progress of the gospel, and wishes it discontinued by all concerned, it is a part of this agreement that Dr. Yoder and his family shall cease any and all such agitation of these problems.

"8. That the stated amount of this retirement allowance shall be readjusted in the event of Mrs. Yoder's death, or in the event that Dr. Yoder's earnings from outside sources shall exceed $25 per month.

"Note: Because of the peculiar and unusual conditions surrounding the relation of Dr. Yoder to the board, it is understood that neither the age of retirement nor the amount of the allowance stated in the agreement shall be regarded as establishing any precedent or general policy on the part of the board in the matter of missionary retirement.

"This agreement shall become effective on Sept. 1, 1938.

Signed, on behalf of the Society by:
C. F. YODER      A. V. KIMMEL, President
LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Sec.-Treas."

The section of Dr. Yoder's editorial which violates Art. 4 of the "Retirement Agreement" reads as follows:

"The Brethren Church came into existence because of abuses by which church authorities, acting on man-made rules, expelled those who believed in a certain liberty of conscience. By adopting the Bible only as its creed, the church has preserved both loyalty where the Bible speaks, and liberty where it is silent. It stands for one gospel, and not for two or half a dozen.

"In regard to missions it wisely provided for one mission board, The Missionary Board of The Brethren Church, chartered to do both home and foreign work, for, after all, it is one work.

"The whole future of the missionary work of the church must await the action of the coming General Conference, but as that is not far distant, there are two things that loyal churches, and individuals can do. First they can lay aside the offerings as usual (and even more than usual, for more will be needed) and hold them until conference, or since the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church is chartered to do both home and foreign work, offerings may be sent directly to this board, being made payable to Dyoell Belote, Office Secretary, 225 W. Liberty St., Ashland, O. If designated to be used for any special work, offerings will be so used, and if not so designated, they will be held subject to the will of the coming General Conference. This matter must be left in the hands of each congregation, (or individual) which after prayer and full consideration of the matter must do as led of the Lord.

"There is no simpler solution for the unification of our mission work. With one board there will be more perfect relations between home and foreign work and less expense of administration. The system has long been successful in the Church of the Brethren and requires no new machinery whatever to do applied in the Brethren Church.—C.F.Y."

Upon above motion, Shively, Whetstone, and Vanator voted "No."

5. Resolution of Confidence.

The following Resolution was passed unanimously by the board, each member present voting affirmatively on a recorded ballot:

"RESOLVED: that we, the undersigned members of the Board of Trustees of the Foreign Missionary Society of the Brethren Church, hereby express our firm confidence in the work of our Society, and in the Christian devotion of the missionaries laboring under its direction: that we expect by God's grace to stand behind these faithful workers with our prayers and gifts so that their ministry may continue and be enlarged; that we condemn without reservation all efforts to divert to organizations other than our Society the contributions which have been providing for their support in past years; and that we call upon all Brethren churches and pastors to continue their support of our Society under whose direction these faithful missionaries are serving the Lord."

A Letter From Mrs. Sheldon

Dear Friends in the Homeland,

Tomorrow will be Easter, the day which we commemorate the resurrection of our blessed Lord. The heathen in this land do not know a living Savior, for their fetishes have no life. We praise Him for all who have turned from serving idols, to serve the true God, and to wait the coming of His Son from heaven. Our thoughts will be much with you in the homeland as you give to make the continuation of this work possible.

In January our family spent two weeks at Bosangoa, where we gave forth the gospel and assisted in reorganizing the reading classes. The children, and older ones as well, took new interest in the primers which we had completed just before going down there. Some days we took a number of the native Christians and went preaching on the different roads that lead out from the post. Mr. Sheldon expected to take a trip on one of the bush roads, but the meningitis epidemic has curtailed our work considerably.

It has been about two months since the first case of meningitis at the post, and now the doctor says there have been more than 200 known cases. About three weeks ago our water boy's little son fell ill with it and he was deathly sick. The French doctor happened along and said it was meningitis. Well, our water boy is a very fine Christian and much prayer went up for the lad's recovery. To make a long story short, the boy was up and around in less than a week. We all feel that this is a special answer to prayer, for the other cases either died or are still very sick. There have been four cases on the station, two of which have died. We have closed school and regular services. Tomorrow (Easter) the Christians expect to meet in little groups here and there so as not to have too many together. Some of the Christians have died at the post chapel, but we praise the Lord that there have not been many. We have to commit ourselves to Him for keeping in these days.

Miss Bickel went to Yaloke to nurse Mrs. Taber, and has not yet returned. We expect to go for her when it is time to return. We are more or less cut off from the other missionaries because we are not allowed to send runners at this time. We have heard that there have been some cases of meningitis in the Bozoum and Bekoro districts also.

Our furlough was due in January but we don't know when we shall be able to take it because of the war. The missionaries on furlough so far have been unable to return, and of course that makes us short of workers. It probably would be easier to go home than it would be to return, but of course there is a great risk either way. We are quite tired out after four years under this tropical climate, but He is able to keep us and to renew our strength. Pray for us as well as Mrs. Kennedy's and Miss Emmert's furloughs which are about due. They, of course, have the same difficulty as we.

Yesterday three lads arrived at our door, tired and footsore. They had come over a bush road, tramping about 30 weary miles—and all to buy a gospel of Mark and a song book. We have never been to their village, but faint rays of light have penetrated to their darkened lives and have made them want something better. They, as yet, know not how to read, but they are hoping to learn from another boy who was once at the mission. We hope to visit their village as soon as the roads are open. Don't you think that lads like these should have the opportunity to hear the Word a few times at least. Many in other places have grown tired of the old old story, and are turning to other things which can give no peace.

May the Lord stir your hearts to pray for this work and to give that it might go forward. We have an opportunity that angels would covet, so let us not treat it lightly.

Yours in His service,

HATTIE C. SHELDON

PRAISE and PRAYER

PRAISE

Let us praise the Lord that the door which He opened in French Equatorial Africa for our pioneer party in 1920 is still open for the testimony of Jesus. Complete liberty is granted for the evangelization of this territory thru itineration, village chapels, translation of the Scriptures, circulation of the Word, Bible Schools and reading classes, and all station activities. This is truly an item for thanksgiving in these days of war and apostasy. Let us ask the Lord to keep the door open until the last village has heard the message of salvation and the last soul comes marching home.

We are sure that you will join with us in praising the Lord for the blessings we enjoyed at Bozoum over the Easter season. Pre-Easter services were held in the chapel and a goodly number listened with keenest interest as we read and explained the chapters from the gospels that relate our Lord's arrest, trial and crucifixion. The Christian women who come to favoring the termination of the Yoder "Retirement Agreement."

6. Delozier Letter.

Motion prevailed that the secretary write a letter to Brother Delozier, assuring him of our continued prayers.

7. Trustees Election.

A motion prevailed that C. H. Ashman, Geraldine Judd, and Alan Pearce, arrange the details for the election of trustees for this year, 1940, in accordance with the Constitution and By-Laws, Section IV.

8. Adjournment.

A motion prevailed to adjourn to the call of the chair.

A. V. KIMMELL, President

LOUIS S. BAUMAN, Secretary-Treasurer.

the afternoon reading classes read from these portions during the afternoons preceding Easter, and as they read these precious chapters for themselves they exclaimed, "Oh, how He loved us." Many of the Baya children heard the story of the resurrection "straight" for the first time. The Easter morning services, attended by a chapel full of people, was a blessing to natives and missionaries alike.

PRAYER

About the time these prayer notes are read by members of our prayer bands and supporters, the Lord willing, the Central Bible School will again be in session. Pray very earnestly for all the students who shall attend, and especially for their wives, that the Lord will give them a new vision of what they could do for Him if they would walk out upon His promises in faith. Pray for both Mr. Jobson and I as we minister to these workers and their wives.

We are rejoicing in renewed interest, in the Bible reading classes here at Bozoum, and solicit your prayers for four classes of men and boys, and one class of women and girls. Pray that the Lord will open their eyes to see His truths as they labor over the the mechanics of reading.

Noel is still at Baibokoum, a post 230 kilometers north of Bozoum. The Lord has been testing both him and the group of believers there. Pray for his ministry in the Word, and that those who love the Lord there may grow in grace. We are looking forward to having baptism, the first in that place, in the month of June, and organizing the believers into a local church.

Pray for the converts' class here at Bozoum. There is a large number attending, but the most are irregular due to the changing work in the town. Pray that the Lord will enable them to grasp the meaning of His grace for them, and their standing in Christ. Jacob has been faithfully teaching these believers since the first of the year. They have memorized many verses from the Word. Pray that the Lord may speak to them out of these inspired words.

In Psalm 28:9 we read "Save Thy people, and bless thine inheritance: feed them also, and lift them up for ever." This is the prayer that we would have you offer for us as missionaries. We need to be lifted up. Discouragement is one of Satan's effective tools—one that he uses constantly on missionaries. Pray that the Lord will lift us up, quicken us, vitalize us, and give us a greater vision of possibilities in Him. Pray that He will prosper us in our conflict with the forces of evil, for His Name's sake.

Yours in Him,

MRS. ORVILLE D. JOBSON

HE WAS A "POOR HEATHEN"

A certain rich man did not approve of foreign missions. One Sunday at church, when the offering was being taken up, the collector approached the millionaire and held out the bag. The millionaire shook his head. "I never give to missions," he whispered. "Then take something out of the bag, sir," whispered the collector. "The money is for the heathen."

GLEANINGS FROM MISSIONARIES' LETTERS

BROTHER JAKE KLIEVER of Bekoro, Oubangui-Chari, F.E.A., in a letter to the editor dated Jan. 25, 1940, gives a hint which someone in The Brethren Church might take. Apparently our mission in Africa is badly in need of some practical fellow—of what my mother used to call a "Jack of all trades"—to "do these secondary things." We believe the Lord would richly bless somebody who may not be able to preach the gospel or to go out and tell the story effectively, but who would go to Africa and do for our missionaries the "secondary things," relieving them so they could put in their time out in the bush telling the story of redeeming love. Anyone who would "do these secondary things" in that way would be a real missionary. Brother Kliever writes a very interesting letter, and we give to our readers several paragraphs therefrom:

"We are entering into the heart of the dry season now, but there are waters ever refreshing that quicken the soul, and praise God, we have access to them at all seasons of the year. I have never built anything but a bird house before coming here, and now I am to try to put up a mud house. My name will probably be dirt as a builder, all right. If dad and mother weren't so near the crossing line, I would urge them to come and do these secondary things for us so that we could give our time for preaching. I am sure, since he is also a good hunter, that the food situation would be cared for and that clothes wouldn't be too great a problem. But I guess that will just have to remain a 'would like to' thought.

"We are having two epidemics this year, according to last news. The roads are closed south and west of us on account of spinal meningitis, and north of us there is a barrier (10 miles above us) for yellow fever. There is a strange calm over us, though, as we realize nothing can touch us but as His loving hand permits. We are concerned about those that shall die this year, and so many in the regions that as yet we have been unable to touch. That means also that itineration will be restricted until the rainy season. I am not made of sugar, and thus won't melt from a little rain. I have been rained on before, and that in Africa too. I hit three showers (really downpours, bathtub at a time!) coming on motor bike, and in 35 miles got it three times. I took a little extra quinine, and all is well.

"As to the weather here. I see nothing different from our California weather as to heat; it is quite bearable. As to rains, we have them at home also. The only thing that is against us here in the way of health is that pesky little mosquito that gives malaria. I personally feel better here than I did the year I studied in Europe. Even Anne has a little attack of malaria at times, but is as peppy as you would want any youngster to be, impatiently waiting for that baby brother. She asked why he didn't come by auto, so as to get here quicker! Freda is as well as at home, so we are praising the Lord for keeping us, and we trust to be used to His glory."

MARY L. EMMERT has written the editor a very interesting letter. Our readers will be interested in this paragraph:

"The last few Sunadys we have been having a fairly good attendance at church and Sunday School. The total hovers around 680, without counting the babies in arms. I had 79 in the beginners' class, which consists of those below school age, supposedly. It took two native assistants to help me keep the toddlers quiet. They really are fairly well behaved, though, for they enjoy the picture chart so much. Children who never see a picture in their home are naturally more entranced than those who are surfeited with them."

What do you pastors in the homeland think of an attendance like they have at Yaloke? How many of you are preaching to 680 souls, excluding the babies in arms, each Sunday? What a wonderful work God is doing through these saintly men and women who have laid their lives upon the altar in order that the story may be told in darkest Africa.

BRETHREN FOLK IN HAWAII

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph J. McConahay, a deacon and a deaconess of the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, are now living in Hawaii, where Brother McConahay is in charge of the Associated Gas Company's interests on the island. These folks are greatly missed in Long Beach. We are hoping that they will grant our request for an article for this magazine, showing forth what our Lord and Savior has done for that great Isle of the Pacific. In a very interesting letter that the editor has received from Mrs. McConahay, she gives us a touch of life in Honolulu, the capital city. She says:

"We wish you and Mrs. Bauman could come over for a visit. Some things are nice here, and others—not so nice.

"Wish you could have been with us the other day when we attended our first Hawaiian luau—or feast. The luau is as old as the Hawaiian people, and whenever they wish to honor someone or celebrate a great occasion they have a luau. This one we were invited to was in honor of the new son and heir of Mr. and Mrs. Char, high class Chinese. There were over 150 guests there including Chinese, Japanese, Portuguese, Hawaiian, and Haoles as the white people are called. We were seated at long Ti leaf covered tables under a huge canvas canopy out in their garden. The tables were decorated with ferns and huge hibiscus blossoms of various hues. The menu was—roast pig, wrapped in leaves and baked whole, underground; roast sweet spuds, cooked in the same manner; raw salmon with some kind of tomato and pepper sauce; chicken cooked with tarro leaves, which looks and tastes like spinach; poi, which is the native's main diet; pudding made from ground coconuts and their milk; fresh pineapples; 3 kinds of cake and all kinds of soda pop. It was all pretty good, but the poi! Everything was served on Ti leaves or paper cups. We were given paper spoons, but they were very inadequate and it is customary to use fingers—we did! Either that or go hungry! Upon leaving, each guest puts a dollar into the calabash for the baby; this is also 'customary.' We enjoyed it very much, and it certainly was a new experience.

"Shortly after we arrived, the company employees had a Chinese Kau-kau for us. We never saw so much and such a variety of Chinese food in all our lives. Some was good, and some wasn't so good, but we tasted it all.

"We find the climate rather trying, but hope to get acclimated eventually. The temperature has been around 80 degrees most of the time, but it is a heavy and humid 80."

Bro. R. D. Barnard, pastor of First Brethren Church of Dayton, O., writes, "Had fine services yesterday. Seven accepted Christ yesterday, three the Sunday before, five the Sunday before that. We baptized 10 last evening. We have a baptismal service about every two weeks. The Sunday School and worship services have gained back almost all the losses sustained in the 'walk out' last fall. Finances are better than they have been in years. We just thought you ought to have this little report, since other publications report a work in Dayton that isn't ours as though ours didn't exist. Well, it does exist, and is quite alive to be non-existent."

The First Brethren Church of Buena Vista, Va. closed a five day Bible Conference with Prof. Herman A. Hoyt June 16. A revival meeting with R. Paul Miller as evangelist is planned to begin soon. Bro. Arthur Malles came to this church as pastor a year ago. Since that time 40 have been baptized and 45 received into church membership. A spiritual revival has taken place and many improvements have been made on the church property.

A Jewish Bible Conference is planned for the First Brethren Church of Waynesboro, Pa. A. B. Machlin, Christian Jew from Buffalo, N. Y. is the speaker.

The West Tenth Street Brethren Church, Ashland, O., recently published the report of all previous attendance records broken on four consecutive Sundays. The attendance records were 290, 296, 305, and 328. A Vacation Bible School and Bible conference were conducted simultaneously during the week of June 10-16, and a Vacation Bible School through the next week to June 20. Robert Culver, pastor of the Ankenytown, O. Brethren Church taught classes throughout the Bible School and spoke at the evening Bible conference meetings. ## YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

Naaman, The Leper

(2 Kings 5:1-14)

Suggestions for the Leader

The story of Naaman has many interesting parallels and illustrations in the experiences of the sinner. Leprosy was incurable as far as men knew; so is sin. Leprosy made a man an outcast; so does sin. Leprosy was deadly; so is sin. A man can be great in the eyes of the world but still be a sinner, as a sinner he is as nothing in the eyes of the Lord. The healing came through faith; not that the water could wash away the disease.

There are some people who place a meaning upon baptism that should not be there.

Faith saves. Baptism is an outward sign of that inner faith.

1. The Condition of Naaman. 2 Ki. 5:1.

Leprosy caused separation and was deadly in the end. It is like sin. Naaman was an honorable man and mighty; yet a leper. So sin strikes all men regardless of position. His attitude was not favorable for a cleansing and had to be changed. No matter how many good things a man might do, if he is a sinner, he is not ready for heaven. Sin may allow ordinary relationships, but eventually slays its victim.

2. The Personal Testimony. 2 Ki. 5:2-5.

The gospel is for the "up and outers" as well as for the "down and outers." The testimony of a little girl led to the healing of the mighty warrior. How would we witness for God if we were taken away from home to a strange place where the name of God was dishonored? How many of us have really done any witnessing? God appointed the little girl for a witness for the great general. We also are appointed to witness to someone some place.

3. The Pride of the Leper. 2 Ki. 5:11-21.

Pride is really worse than leprosy. Pride goeth before a fall. Naaman marched in military style for a healing but it was for a show. The sinner, like Naaman must be humbled and must simply depend upon God's Word.

Naaman made another mistake by supposing that a healing could be purchased with money. Gifts of God can not be purchased.

4. Naaman's Faith. 2 Ki. 5:14; Lk. 4:27.

Faith is to hear the Word and claim its blessings. As long as Naaman refused to obey God's plan for healing he remained a leper; upon submitting he was healed. Here is a case of a gentile receiving a blessing that the Jews lost because of their unbelief and disobedience. Our business is to persuade men to have faith in God. The water didn't heal him but his faith did.

Questions

1. How does the story of Naaman prove God's willingness to bless the Gentiles as well as the Jews (Lk. 4:27)?
2. Why did Elijah refuse money for Naaman's healing?
3. In what way does leprosy stand for sin?
4. Can you give an example of a testimony that led to a conversion?

Old Testament Characters—Daniel

Opening Song: If Jesus Goes With Me I'll Go.
Scripture: Daniel 1:8.

Prayer.

Special number: Duet, "Dare to Be a Daniel."

Story:

The picnic basket was all packed. There were delicious little cakes that mother had made, and eggs that Jean had stuffed. Tommy had helped to make the sandwiches. Everyone had helped so well that it lacked a half hour of the time when Miss Smiley would call for them. The fifth and sixth grades were having their picnic together this year down in the new park. Mother had wondered a little if she should allow them to go with only two teachers to look after them. After all there was a lake, and she knew how free everyone felt on an outing after so many months of school. But she couldn't say no to the eager faces of her children.

She had planned to get everything ready early, so when Tommy looked at the clock and said "Shucks, it's a whole half hour yet," mother said, "Let's sit here in the swing, and I'll tell you a story while we are waiting. This is one about a boy named Daniel. Sometimes we think about all the Old Testament characters as old men who lived long ago, but after all, we know that they were all boys or girls once, and even tho we live differently now in so many ways, our desires and problems and temptations are still the same. So many folks always want to do everything the crowd does. They are afraid to be different even if they know what the crowd is doing is wrong.

"Daniel was one of the children carried away from Jerusalem into Babylon when the people were captured; and he wasn't the only one, for there were many of them. But there are several whose names are given to us. They were such nice looking and healthy boys too. Just think how they must have felt to be carried away from their homes and their parents too maybe, and to have to go into a strange land to work for the king. For the king picked out all the nicest looking and smartest boys to work for him. Now the people in that land were pagans, they didn't worship God as the little Hebrew boys did. They did strange and terrible things for their worship of the pagan gods. And of course they thought the boys ought to live as they lived. But these boys were too loyal and true to their God for that.

"The king wanted them to eat the meat and drink the wine which was on his table, but Daniel said no. He wasn't afraid even if the king should punish him. But the prince who was put over the boys was afraid to tell the king as it might make him very angry. So he said, 'If you don't eat what we give you, you will get thin and pale, and then the king will find out that you have disobeyed him.'

"But Daniel said, 'Just let us prove that we can eat only herbs or vegetables and drink water, and still look healthy.'

"So the prince let them try out the plan, and sure enough, at the end of 10 days they were even fairer and fatter than the others who had eaten of the forbidden things of the pagan king. You see God took care of them when they were true to Him.

"Thank you, mother," said Jean, "for that lovely story, I think I know why you told it to us. We promised to be different since we accepted Jesus last fall."

"Here comes the car," shouted Tommy, as he picked up the lunch basket, and then he stopped and kissed his mother goodbye.

"Now don't you worry about me, mom. My middle name is going to be Daniel from now on."

Closing Song: He will hold me fast.

Benediction.

A REAL PREDICAMENT

A little Boston urchin named Mary, aged five years, is a Christian Scientist to the marrow.

Mary fell one day and barked her shin, and rubbing the hurt with her hand she began to cry. Her aunt, an unbeliever, happened along at this moment. The aunt was mindful of Mary's faith and of those contradictory tears, and with a mocking smile, she said:

"Why, Mary, are you hurt?"

"No, I ain't hurt," sobbed the little girl, restraining her sobs as best she could.

"But if you are not hurt, why are you crying?"

"I am crying," said Mary, "because I am mad!"

"What are you mad about?"

"I am mad—boo-hoo—" wept the little girl, "because I can't feel I ain't hurt!"

The Muddle of the World

Every great crisis in the world has called men and women back from the dream-world of their own creation into the grim world of reality. And this is no less true of the crisis which now threatens civilization. Certainly, with the second major disaster of the 20th century now in progress, men and women will recall the aircastles of the past generation, especially those dream "Utopias" which the so-called intelligentsia have been building since the first World War, and which the people so heartily endorsed. The peace conferences, the disarmament conferences, the League of Nations—all of these belong to that dream-world out of which men and women are awakening to find that just like dreams of the night, they were only dreams. At least some are awakening to the fact that men are not so educated that they will not fight, or else this is just a horrible nightmare through which we are passing.

But where many are awakening to the grim realities of war that threaten civilization from without, others are awakening to the fearful facts which threaten civilization from within, if we can draw any conclusions from the writings of Walter Lippmann appearing under the caption "Today and Tomorrow." For he writes as follows: "Democracy cannot be made to work by people who think it enlightened to be cynical, grasping, concerned with the expediency of the moment and contemptuous of all standards which transcend it. There is not enough intelligence or character in this way of life to govern a nation successfully. For democracy was founded by men who had convictions that there is truth and that there is good and evil; it was never meant for men who reject this view of life, and in so far, and it is now very far, as the democracies have fallen into disbelief and unfaith, they are in a desperately dangerous muddle about everything that matters most to themselves and their children."

Now while we are all inclined to agree with Mr. Lippman, for he is right as far as he goes, admitting as he does that men have ignored, if not rejected, "truth and good" upon which democracy is founded, still, even Mr. Lippman, with his keen analysis of the present situation, has not touched the vital spot in the present crisis. He seems to be completely oblivious of the fact that "truth and good" as a way of life is completely powerless to operate separate and apart from character that has been made new by the regenerating power of the Holy Spirit. The thing which he suggests, to put it into Biblical language, is the "law of Moses." That was the way of "truth and good," and it is the only real standard of "truth and good" for men. But it failed utterly, not because it was not a good standard, but because "it was weak through the flesh" (Rom. 8:3). It had poor stuff to work with. Human character was corrupt, sinful, undone, unreliable, unstable, impotent, failing utterly, and it still is. And there is the trouble with any sort of kingdom that may be established today.

God's Idea of a Real Kingdom

All of this leads one to ask what God's idea of a real kingdom is. And while the Bible is full of information on this point, the Lord Jesus felt it necessary to deliver further information to his mistaken and muddled disciples covering this subject, and this we find recorded in Mt. 5-7. Since kingdoms must have subjects, laws, attitudes, and responsibilities, so this is true of the kingdom of heaven, and so the King of that kingdom discusses these very important matters.

At the very outset he discusses the subjects of the kingdom. And this he does because this is the most important aspect of the kingdom after the question of the king is settled. So Mt. 5:3-16 is devoted to a discussion of the character and influence of the subjects of this kingdom. "Blessed" marks the opening of this manifesto of the King, and ought to be well marked in every Bible, for it is the most important word in the entire discussion. Indeed, it is almost startling for the King to begin the description of His kingdom in this manner, for you will notice that there is nothing formal or documentary about it. It does not begin with "whereas" as such official statements would begin today. Instead it begins with the word "blessed." And since the King begins there it is well that every student of the Word begin at the same place. And if the kingdoms of the world were

A worthy missionary in India had the hymn, "Rock of Ages," translated into Hindoostani. On retranslation into English by a student, the first two lines bore this inspiring and illuminating aspect:

"Very old stone, split for my benefit, Let me absent myself under your fragments."

—New York Times

to begin there, as Jesus did, sorrow and sighing and crying would flee away, for trouble and turmoil and trials would disappear. Be careful to note the fact that this word begins this great message of the King, it also begins every verse from 3-11, and thus this section derives its name from it, namely, the word "Beatitudes," meaning supreme blessedness.

Now this word appears 49 times in the New Testament and is rendered 43 times "blessed" and 6 times by the word "happy," the latter rendering being the more accurate, but the former word carrying the finer and fuller meaning, so long as it is understood to refer to a consciousness, a condition, or a state of character and not the bestowment of blessing from without. Thus the King is describing the character of the subjects who shall make up His kingdom and over whom He shall rule. And this character is a "blessed" character, that is, a "born-again" character, which has been imparted to men by the operation of the Holy Spirit. Thus we find the words of Christ agreeing in this manifesto with His great declaration to Nicodemus, "except a man be born again (from above—Greek) he cannot see the kingdom of God" (Jno. 3:3). And here, the very place where the kingdoms of the world have failed, the Lord has laid the foundation for the success of His kingdom, for no kingdom can succeed whose subjects do not possess the right kind of character.

One day it was the writers good fortune to come across an excerpt from the writings of Elihu Root, one of the former statesmen of the United States. He said, in commenting upon the various forms of government, that in his experience he had seen hundreds of panaceas, both political and governmental, all of which would work if we just had the right kind of men. And how true that is to the facts. Governments fail because of the kind of men who make up those governments, for all world-governments operate on the principle that men are good. And men are not good. So where the governments of men fail, God's government will not fail, for He plans that every subject who enters his kingdom shall be born again.

Character Creates an Atmosphere

Such character, when it is in operation, produces characteristics that make for the beauty and richness and blessing of such a kingdom. It creates an atmosphere that men want but for which they have been seeking in the wrong way. For such characteristics issue from character, they do not produce the character. And here is what such character produces: "poor in spirit, mourn, meek, hunger and thirst after righteousness, merciful, pure in heart, peacemakers." Among these will not be found any of those characteristics which are so highly esteemed today among men, and by which the kingdoms of the world are rated as strong or weak, great or small, succeeding or failing. Nothing is said here of race-power, or military prowess, or material pomp, or political prestige. And yet all of these are the current talk of the newspapers and the bane of legislators. Germany's air-fleet is the greatest in Europe. England dominates the seas with her mighty fleet of warships. Russia's army is the greatest in its history and greater than that of any other nation. America is the wealthiest nation on the face of the earth. But none of these are mentioned as characteristics of Messiah's kingdom. And herein is the blessedness of this kingdom. But mark it well, this blessedness issues from the "blessed" nature of the subjects of this kingdom.

Perhaps the most striking characteristic of all those that are mentioned in this list is the one which heads the list, "poor in spirit." Now this does not mean a poor spirit, nor poor spiritually, but is the exact opposite of proud in spirit. And you can very readily see that this looks from the self to the sovereign of the kingdom. Here we see self-abasement which results in submission. It is that appraisal of self which sees only deficiency and failure, and when looking at the sovereign sees His sufficiency and success, which ultimately produces submission to the sovereign. Although the sovereigns in the kingdoms of men must force submission to their wills, not so in the kingdom of heaven. For there the subjects will bow the knee willingly to their great, good King, and His will will be their will because they love His will above their own.

But what fact is more patent to the minds of men today than that the kingdoms of the world are refusing to bow the knee in submission to the great King, the Lord Jesus Christ. Nor will they bow the knee until He comes in glory, and with the sword of His mouth lays them in the dust. Then, and not till then, will the world experience and enjoy the peace which today a sad world rejects because she rejects the Prince of Peace.

The Underlying Causes of the European Crisis

By Arthur N. Malles, Graduate of Grace Seminary, 1939

With the world facing one of the most drastic changes of all time, with most of the western world at war, it might be well for the Christian to attempt to understand the underlying causes of this European crisis. The writer well realizes that only time will reveal all of the causes of this conflagration. Nevertheless there are certain outstanding causes which can be plainly seen even now. These may be grouped under the following four heads.

The Material Cause

During some of the more recent shake-ups in Europe in the 1900's, certain large nations have lost valuable colonies. This is a very real cause of our present crisis. The average citizen of the United States cannot fully appreciate what these colonies mean to the nations of Europe. Our country produces such a variety of products and has such a wealth of natural resources that we are not nearly so much dependent upon our colonies. Europe's picture is different. Some of these nations are hardly larger than a few of our 48 states put together. Their natural products and resources are limited, making their colonies very necessary. This scramble to regain lost colonies lies behind the present war.

The need for raw materials and the like must also be mentioned under this head. This has become a world of steel and oil and coal. Few if any nations of Europe have all of these in sufficient quantities to suffice. Grasping for these raw materials adds more oil to the present flames.

The National Cause

Under this head we may notice first of all the desire for national prominence. This desire to shine nationally has motivated nations down through history. But in these days of dictatorships and one-man nations, the desire for prominence for the nation must be classed high among the causes of war.

One must not overlook the late treaty of Versailles of June 28, 1919. This treaty placed requirements that constituted national insults upon Germany and her allies. Colonies were taken, military restrictions laid down, heavy indemnities had to be paid. One needs but read the current newspapers showing the German flag proudly flying over the historic French city of Versailles to understand what a large part this drive to undo this treaty had in the present crisis in Europe.

The Racial Causes

Europe is made up of so many different nations, each with its own separate language, each with different customs. And each nation seems to feel that those who differ from themselves are wrong. Strangely enough, but true just the same, each nation feels it is the top of perfection in all ways, and people with any other language or customs is a barbarous nation, much inferior to themselves. This racial attitude must not be overlooked when one is searching for a cause.

On the other hand, Europe is one big conglomeration of races, for the most part intermixed. True, there can be found some centers, even large territories where one race is predominant. But there is so much of Europe that is inhabited by a mixture of various races. These groups in any one locality have been allotted to one nation, often to the wrong nation. Here is another cause for the present crisis.

The Spiritual Cause

Last, but by no means least, must be mentioned the spiritual cause. Lying beneath the surface of all these material causes is the larger cause: sin.

Natural man, without God in the world, has the sinful Adamic nature motivating and controlling him. And it is only as we recognize this fact of sin in unregenerate man that we have an adequate explanation of this present war. Natural men cannot continue long to do good. Greed and lust will come out. Not until that great King of kings comes into His own kingdom to purge out all that is sinful will this old world ever be past crises such as we are now facing. Not until God deals with sinful man finally will this world be the place God intended it to be.

No matter what the cause or causes of this crisis, the true child of God sees God behind the scenes, ever controlling these events to His own glory and to the good of His children. No matter how black the gathering clouds may seem, such a person can look up with confidence to the great God of eternity and cry, "But thanks be unto God, who always leadeth us in triumph in Christ" (2 Cor. 2:14 A.R.V.).

The International Effects of the Present European Crisis

By Robert D. Culver, Middler in Grace Seminary

It is extremely difficult to do more than estimate the final extent of the effects of the present crisis which finds its center in Western Europe. In the first place, the cloud of hate, prejudice, and wishful thinking that is dust in the eyes of every individual is bound to distort in some respects the true picture. And in the second place, we are only in the first inning of the game and nobody knows what the final score will be. Nevertheless there are a number of forces, international in scope, the final effects of which may be closely ascertained.

1. The world's commercial and economic system has been already tremendously affected. German bonds and investments are selling high and investments in Allied business are selling cheap. Evidently investors are afraid that the French franc and the British pound may be worth no more in a few weeks than the German mark was at the close of the last war.

2. The industrial system of the whole world is undergoing a drastic change. The war industry is now the only industry in both Germany and England. Women are replacing men in the factories and in the fields in order that the men may shoulder guns. Natural war materials, which a few months ago were not being used at all or were used for purposes of peace, are now being run through our munitions and armament factories as fast as wheels can turn. In our own nation, practically every citizen is behind our government in its effort to speed up the production of arms for our own use and for the use of the Allies. Shipyards are building battleships as never before. Henry Ford offers his services as a builder of airplanes and promises a thousand a day when he gets going. Rayon mills are turning to gunpowder factories. And before long even the farmers may be told what produce of the soil is most needed and be commanded to produce it.

3. We are just now beginning to see the effect of this war on scientific enterprise. Germany's scientists are searching for new synthetic products to take the place of commodities cut off by the Allied blockade. Allied scientists are searching for the answer to Hitler's war machine. Even Richard E. Byrd in far off Antarctica feels the effects of this war, for Congress just turned down a bill to finance him for another year because of national defense needs.

4. It is self-evident that the world's collective and individual thought is beginning to change radically as a direct result of this war. Our general interest has changed from our immediate surroundings to a certain fearful wondering if what is happening in France may happen here, whether we be Brazilian, Canadian, American, Japanese, or Palestinian. Intolerance and war frenzy is taking the place of our boasted enlightened attitudes. Only this week a Cleveland customer was knocked down in a cigar store by two Legionaires who thought his credit signal of the upraised arm was a Nazi salute to the proprietor. A German bakery clerk was slapped by a salesman in my own community this week when she dared to voice pro-Nazi sentiments. Uruguay is thinking of the fifth columnists as well as Uncle Sam. And even Orphan Annie has turned to the company of those who expunge the subversive and fifth column elements from our borders.

All these are but phases, symptoms of a greater world eruption, that informed people everywhere believe certain to follow soon. And these same movements are obvious and available to anyone who reads his newspaper once a week. But there are certain other effects that are seen for the most part only by those who read news in the light of prophecy.

5. One thing is sure, the war has given a tremendous impetus to the religious forces of the anti-christ. In all of Western continental Europe, Daniel's "God of forces" now reigns supreme. He is the real deity behind the "form of godliness" in every nation of the world. The watch-word is "Prepare war," not "Prepare to meet thy God." Unless God's plan for the age includes another great revival, this trend is bound to lead to the enthronement of the "man of sin" who "opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God" (2 Thess. 2:4).

6. A very obvious result of processes now at work, the most impossible to conceive a few years ago, yet the most interesting to every one who "loves the appearing" of our Lord from heaven, is the rise of the four great political powers of the end-time. Heretofore inconspicuous Japan now asks to sit in with Europeans in the settlement of affairs of Europe and shows signs of dominating the whole of south-eastern Asia. The Bible reader underlines Rev. 16:12 and knows the "way of the kings of the East" is being prepared. As early as last fall, even unbelieving Walter Lippmann saw the great merger of northern nations coming. The Bible reader turns to Dan. 11:40 and knows that the king of the "North" is getting ready, even as he takes over Esthonia, Lithuania, Poland, and part of Finland, and acts as if he would either eventually join Hitler or swallow him up. He hears Mussolini demand the Mediterranean possessions of France and sees the Revived Roman Empire taking shape as predicted in Dan. 7 and Rev. 17. The king of the "South" has not yet plainly made his appearance (Dan. 11:40), but 24 hours could reveal him.

7. Moreover, this force is most obvious for every thing seems to be moving toward the coming of a final world dictator. It seems that he is rapidly moving to "Take peace from the earth" (Rev. 6:4). And multitudes are already saying, "who is able to make

The Prophetic Significance of the European Crisis

By Blaine Snyder, Graduate of Grace Seminary, 1940

A recent conversation with a young man revealed a very commonly held notion among men. This is the attitude that there have always been wars and rumors of wars, so this present crisis is nothing unusual in history. To the natural mind there is an element of truth in that view and we are told to expect such a feeling among men in the last days. Yet for the student of God's Word there are some events taking place today of unparalleled significance. Not all of these can be dealt with in the space of this article, but at least three should be mentioned.

The first thing to notice particularly concerning the present crisis is the alignment of nations pointing toward the final four great powers spoken of in Dan. 11 and in Rev. 16. Two areas of especial interest are the "south" and the "east." One of the latest bits of news carries the information that Italy and Egypt have severed relations, while the tie that binds England and Egypt is tightened. The Italian minister Serafino Mazoline was handed his passport and arrangements were under way to escort him back to Italy. Every precaution is being made by England in the Great Sea area to maintain her position. Who is to say that the final kingdom of the "south" is not even now taking shape?

Another quarter of the picture which demands our attention is the "east." Rev. 16:12 speaks of the coming of the "kings of the east." Until very recent years it seemed that the literal fulfillment of the prophecy was almost impossible. Now the story has changed. After many years of almost inactivity Japan is coming to the front to dominate the east. Little by little that nation is pushing her way into the once great Chinese Republic and cutting it up into small puppet states under the domination of Japan. The radio informs us of a fresh attack by the Japanese in their struggle for control here and a place in the sun. At last there is arising in the "east" a military power of no mean significance, confirming to the letter the Word of God.

Movements in other quarters of the globe indicate that the stage is being set for the final great powers.

In spite of Italy's present association with the Germans, when the proper time has come the revived Roman Empire will raise its hoary head. Perhaps the exhaustion of the present contestants will be the signal for this event.

A second factor of importance in the present crisis is the destruction of human liberty. Mussolini is reported to have said, "Liberty! Is there such a thing as liberty? Civilization is the inversion of personal liberty . . . Mass cannot govern mass. Quantity cannot govern quality." With this in mind he proceeds to destroy what we call human freedom. With the capitulation of France will go the last of the great democracies on the continent. With the bowing of Latvia and Estonia we can see the spread of Russian influence in western Europe. Thus, even in these moves we can see faintly outlined the culmination which will result in the final powers.

A third factor which must be mentioned is the attitude toward God's chosen people. Hitler went into power pledged to a program of anti-Semitism. (This is at least one of his 25 points which he has lived up to!) Mussolini hates the Jew. In fact every one of the great dictatorships is against the Jew. Even England has come to the place where her word to the Jews is no longer trustworthy. What does all this mean? It means that our Lord spoke a truth of which men were not aware when He said, "Ye shall be hated of all nations." Never was there a time when the truth of these words have been so apparent.

As the Christian views the present situation what does it all mean to him? What should be his attitude toward it? Briefly the answer is this: "When you see these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh. Seeing then that you look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless."

MANY ARE CONCERNED

Many are concerned about the state of the nation. On every hand people are asking who is going to pay the bills, who can pay the indebtedness of our national, state, and city governments? Someone has figured out that our public debt has reached a total of $415 per person. Dear reader, the word of our Lord is coming closer being fulfilled each day than many realize. Read Luke 21:25, 26: ". . . upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity . . . men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth."—Washington D. C. Bulletin.

war against him" (Rev. 13:4). This does not necessarily point to Hitler as this world dictator, but it does definitely indicate that his personage may soon appear on the scene.

8. Finally, these thunderously and magnificently awful events of which we hear daily, may be but the prelude to the "terrible day of the Lord." If so, then the effects or rather the consummation will be universal and international, for it will very shortly come to pass that "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea" (Hab. 2:14). And so our prayer is, "Come quickly, Lord Jesus."

The Unveiling of Jesus Christ

An Exposition of Revelation 7

By R. I. Humberd

The Two Great Companies

"And after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of heaven" (v. 1).

When in college, one of our professors took part of the chapel hour to convince the students how ignorant the old Hebrews were. They even believed the earth was flat and square. But probably that professor had never read the Old Testament; especially where it says, "It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth" (Isa. 40:20). It is even common language with us to say "the four corners of the earth" when we speak of the four directions.

These angels control the winds. Another angel has charge of the waters (ch. 16:5); while another has power over fire (ch. 14:18). No doubt there is more about us in control of angels than we can realize.

Here, as well as in the former chapter, the fruit trees are protected, but soon the storms will be let loose to work great havoc to this source of human food supply.

The Seal of God

"And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea" (v. 2).

Just what this seal is, we are not told. When a person is born again, he is sealed with the Holy Spirit (Eph. 1:13). So here this sealing may mean a special anointing of the Holy Spirit for a special purpose.

"Saying, hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of God in their foreheads" (v. 3).

There is a lull in the judgments between the sixth and seventh seal, to give time for this sealing. This may be a visible mark in the forehead, for it will be during the time when others will wear the mark of the beast in their foreheads. This mark is the Father's name, and will thus set them aside, as they move among men, as followers of the true and living God (ch. 14:1, 13:16). Also under the judgment of the fifth trumpet, the infernal creatures of the pit are able to see and distinguish those who wear this mark.

Keep on Sighing

Because of the wickedness in Jerusalem, the Lord sent one to "set a mark upon the foreheads of the men that sigh, and that cry for all the abominations that be done in the midst thereof." When the wicked were slain, they were to "come not near any man upon whom is the mark" (Ezek. 9:4).

Many a righteous soul today is tortured with the wickedness of the times in which we live—great bill boards, screaming out the advantages to the nerves and digestion of those who will smoke a certain brand of cigarettes; other signs, announcing the theatre and the movie with pictures so bold and so full of adultery, and trampling under foot every virtue held dear by those who love the Lord.

It may seem useless to thus "sigh and cry for all the abominations," but there is a God in heaven who takes note of every attitude of heart, and soon a day will come when He will speak. Thus in face of seeming failure, let the righteous still cry out against the daughters of our land who "walk with stretched forth necks—making a tinkling with their feet—the chains, and the bracelets, and the muffers—and the ornaments of the legs—the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping pins" (Isa. 3). True, they will be marked and shunned, but close by their side and just behind the scenes, there walks the Lord of glory.

The 144,000

"And I heard the number of them which were sealed: and there were sealed 144,000 of all the tribes of the children of Israel."

If a Seventh Day Adventist should claim to be a member of this throng, let him give proof to which tribe he belongs. These are all Israelites, not a Gentile among them.

A time is coming when Israel "shall declare my glory among the Gentiles" (Isa. 66:19). Christ, speaking of the end time said, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations; and then shall the end come" (Mt. 24:14).

Christ sent out His 12 apostles with directions to "Go not into the way of the Gentiles—but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand—Ye shall not have gone over the cities of Israel, till the Son of man be come" (Mt. 10).

These last words no doubt leap forward to the preaching of the remnant during the tribulation period. Their gospel will be the same as John the Baptist and the apostles—the gospel of the kingdom of heaven.

The gospel of the grace of God was given to Paul by special revelation (Eph. 3:2,3). It is the good news of salvation by grace through faith alone and is characteristic of the church age. The gospel of the kingdom of heaven, that was proclaimed by the apostles and that is to be again proclaimed before the "end come," is a call to repentance because the King is ready to set up His kingdom.

The Jews of our day are most certainly being prepared for such a ministry. They are in every nation under heaven; they know the language and the customs; they are used to the food and the climate. Let them receive a special outpouring of the Holy Spirit and the entire world will be evangelized in a short time. Turn 144,000 John the Baptists or apostle Pauls loose and the world would be evangelized in short order.

Preaching of the Remnant

The 12 apostles, representing the remnant of their time, had a special endowment to preach this gospel, and so in the end time the faithful remnant of the 144,000 will have a special sealing in their foreheads.

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory — then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: And before him shall be gathered all nations and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats" (Mt. 25:31).

Here we see that at the close of the tribulation period, Christ will gather the living nations and judge them. He "shall gather out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity; and shall cast them into a furnace of fire—Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father" (Mt. 13:41).

The standard of this judgment will be, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me" (Mt. 25:40). As the apostles went about the "cities of Israel," the standard of judgment was the treatment given them. Let a city reject them and it rejected its God; let them refuse to hear and "it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city" (Mt. 10).

So here, the 144,000 go forth with a call of repentance to all the nations. People do not become righteous by feeding these messengers, rather do they feed them because they are righteous. A righteous person will receive God's people with peace and will enter the kingdom age. The unrighteous will hate and persecute them and will be cast into a furnace of fire.

Judgment of Individuals

This judgment of living nations in Mt. 25, is often misunderstood. The nations are not judged as nations but as individuals. It will be the unrighteous individuals that will be cast into a furnace of fire. There are righteous in all nations and God will not deal thus with them because their leaders were evil.

In the kingdom age there will be no nations as we know them today, for they will be dashed in pieces as a potter's vessel (Ps. 2). The Gentile nations will become "like the chaff of the summer threshing floor" and pass into oblivion (Dan. 2:35). The kingdom of our Lord must fill the whole world and the law of the whole earth must go out from Zion.

BETTER GARDENS

E. R. Black

Gardening has long been my recreation. God's fingerprints are upon everything in, around, and above the garden. Nature's voices quiet the nerves. Man's first home was a garden. The soil, water, air, light and darkness, every species of grass, herb, tree, flower, vegetable, grain and fruit was the gift of God. It was "the garden of the Lord." Man's eviction from that Paradise is a parallel to the spoiling of the garden of his soul.

In "God's tilled field," "the garden of the Lord," are all my deeper interests today. This garden is entirely "a new creation," a new life, a new nature, a new spirit, a new heart, with possibilities glorious to contemplate. This garden is His; I am only His gardener. My supreme ambition is to "bear fruit" that will "glorify him" today and merit His "well done" when my gardening days are ended on earth.

I am learning better that everything that hinders this fruit-bearing hurts and dwarfs my own soul and spoils my peace and joy. My Employer has so made the garden of my soul that my joy and His glory are inseparable. His wonderful Book on gardening lists all the lovely fruits and flowers that beautify a man; and also specifies the long list of noxious, offensive and destructive weeds, thorns, and thistles that defile and degrade character.

I think neighbors and friends are more critical today than formerly; they discern the difference between possession and profession; they observe what I am more than what I say. My garden must have God's fingerprints upon it. I want to attract my neighbors and friends to my garden, so that I can introduce them to my Employer and persuade them to garden for the Lord. My prayer, "Lord, make me a better gardener for Thee."

THY WAY IS BEST

By Mildred Michael, Flora, Ind.

Dear God, because Thou knowest best,
I dare not turn away
When to some long and cherished hope
Thou answerest me "Nay."

When I have thought within my grasp
I saw my dream complete,
And then before my outstretched hand
It crumbled at my feet—

When I have prayed with aching heart,
With hope and faith sincere,
That Thou wouldst spare to me the one
Within my heart held dear—

When I have thought these things should be,
In faith I asked for them,
Why they should be denied to me,
I could not understand.

Perhaps I've looked with longing eyes
Toward yonder distant goal,
And all unknowing wrecked my bark
Upon the rocks and shoal.

So, Father God, call Thou me back,
And make Thy will be mine,
And let my work, my hopes, my will,
Be gladly lost in Thine.

And though I can not see Thy face—
For night is dark and long—
Or can not see Thy outstretched hand,
Thy voice shall lead me on.

Thus I need never stand before
The great white throne of God,
For I have walked no path I chose,
But walked where Jesus trod.

CREATING EFFECTIVE MISSIONARY EMPHASIS

II. Methods of Presentation

A. To Beginners and Primaries—by illustrated stories.

1. The sand table. This makes a desirable setting for the story, as the mountains, valleys, rivers and lakes can be easily represented. People, huts, trees and other objects characteristic of a country can be clipped from magazines, mounted on cardboard and cut out for sand table use. Thus the life and customs of a people can be easily presented.

2. The story. Let us profit by the reactions of a child as he visits a new home. First he sits shyly on his mother's lap, then he begins to notice objects in the room and soon ventures to examine them. Before long, he investigates the whole house if he is permitted to do so.

Tom Hammers

When we present missions to children, we open the door to a new country. Let us therefore take them on a trip to show them its entirety—the houses, trees, transportation, costumes, how the people eat etc. Make the story so vivid they will never forget it. Locate everything—"Here is the house, here is the low door, here the meal is ground" etc. Make the story center around your pictures of curios—i.e. if you portray life in an African village, build it in its natural setting and make your story fit your display (which, of course, you are certain is correct in every detail). Live the story as if you and the children were actually sitting beside the native on that grass mat laid on the dirt floor of his windowless hut, or were engaged in the duties of which you speak. The vivid imagination of the child will make these things real as the pictures help him visualize the facts which you relate.

3. The method. To give a child a clear conception of missions, discuss thoroughly one country at a time (rather than a certain phase of several), and give a review at the next meeting. In studying a new country, the various aspects can be presented and then compared or contrasted with previous studies.

4. The scope. Though our denominational interests should be stressed, no other fields should be overlooked, for until Christ withdraws His command to teach all nations, the mission field remains the whole world. Missionaries tell us they mention severally the work in every land when they pray. Should not we, therefore, familiarize ourselves with the needs of all that we also may uphold them in prayer?

5. The training. The Beginners and Primary Departments should also lay the foundation for missionary gifts and prayers. The children are simply thrilled to support a native boy or girl, and it is surprising how earnestly their prayers accompany their gifts. All their offerings should be for a designated purpose, of which they should be reminded each time they contribute.

B. In Junior and Junior High Departments—Deepen previous impressions by doing rather than by hearing.

1. Missionary portrayals. It is quite instructive for the boys and girls to give an occasional missionary presentation in native dress, depicting customs and local incidents and fixing in their minds geographical locations. This can and should also contain a definite message which will result in souls being saved and lives consecrated.

2. Missionary classrooms. One department combined interest and instruction by having each class choose a country and decorate its classroom accordingly. Each class also chose a name in the native tongue of the country represented. Competitive tendencies so predominant at this age made the results most gratifying. An inspection of all the rooms was like taking a trip around the world.

3. Missionary assistance. The natural tendencies of these children to make collections can also be put to practical use in making scrap books of helpful material for missionaries on the field. Chalk talks and object lessons clipped from old quarterlies or religious magazines are always useful. Songs for both children and adults with an especially good message and suitable music, are welcomed and can be translated into the desired language. New methods which have been helpful at home will be profitable on the field. These, when put in looseleaf form for convenience in filing, will be of infinite value to a busy missionary.

4. Missionary responsibility. Personal responsibility to support and pray for missions will become more interesting and vital if the children send missionary boxes to the field. Here the foundation is laid for future missionary societies, so care should be taken that only practical articles in good condition are sent. This worth-while service will also mean more to them if they earn the money to send the box. Perhaps they will also want to support a child in a mission school at home or abroad, or have a part in some definite missionary project.

5. Missionary activities. The Junior and Junior High age is the opportune time to begin to train for service. Talents consecrated to God in this great habit-forming period are not likely to be squandered in future years, though one may not be privileged to devote his life to Christian work. The common tasks of cleaning up the yard or mopping the kitchen floor

The Jews Past - Present - Future

By Irene Karrar

Some 4000 years ago God separated Abraham, the father of the Jewish nation, and told him that he would bless the world through his seed, the Jews. He said, "In thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." Our Savior was a Jew. In Hebrews we find He passed by angels and chose to take upon Himself the seed of Abraham. As a Jew He wrought out our salvation.

The history of the Jew is without parallel in human history. Though oppressed, downtrodden, carried through nations, the Jews have outlived all their conquerors. No nation has ever given to the world such a number of great men: Such a man of faith as Abraham, such a great leader and lawgiver as Moses, such a statesman as Joseph, and such a wise man as Solomon. The preservation of the Jewish race is a miracle of history. It is like the bush burning, yet unconsumed. For them the Red Sea was driven back and Jordan parted. They were miraculously fed in the wilderness and divinely sheltered and guided by a pillar of cloud and fire. The sun and the moon stayed on their courses so that they might have time to slay their enemies.

The Jew stands today either among the cultured or the peasant, as one in desperate need of the gospel. He knows too much about the unbelief and hypocrisy of the churches today. But he has a hungry heart. The modern Jew-hating propaganda is driving the Jew away from the gospel because he knows there are many engaged in the business of anti-semitism who are supposed to be Christians. How wonderful if Christians could see the Jew as God sees him! Concerning the Jew, God holds out salvation on the basis of reconciliation in the cross of Christ. The time is not far off when we in America must decide as individuals what attitude we will take toward the anti-Jewish movement in the world. We should love the Jews as God loves them. The greatest thing we can do for the Jew is to lead him to Christ, our Savior.

For centuries the Jew has wandered among the nations as the Bible says. He has been without a national home, without a king or any form of government, and without any national defense. Moses wrote by the inspiration of the Spirit of God, "And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from the one end of the earth even unto the other; and among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy feet have rest; but the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and a falling of eyes, and sorrow of mind, and thy life shall hang in doubt before thee; and thou shalt fear day and night and shalt have none assurance of thy life."

The Jewish nation today is out of the direct will of God, away from the Lord, the place of blessing, and dulled by unbelief. Today the Jews are wandering in a new way—not among the nations but in the sea. More than 900 refugees from Europe have been cruising from one continent to another looking for a place to land. Not a nation on the face of the earth has so far offered these homeless people a place to rest the soles of their feet. If it were not revealed in the Scriptures we would not understand the meaning of this. Many have attempted suicide as a door of escape from their helpless condition.

The Jews are without a king for the time being. Their King is in heaven and they are scattered among the nations of the earth. The living Jews shall be saved when Christ comes again.

for an aged couple, or of doing other deeds of kindness in Christ's name, may become a labor of love for Him who said, "Bear ye one another's burdens," and "Consider one another to provoke unto love and good works." Carolling at Christmas and Easter or singing outside the window of some lonely shut-in will prove a blessing. Visitation at the children's hospital or among the aged in the general hospital (how the old folks love children)! will be most enjoyable, but care should be taken that no words be entered where contagion is possible. A few songs, and perhaps the recitation of a fitting Scripture passage or a cheery poem with a Christian message, will mean much to many an aching heart. Bouquets (or at least one flower for each person), with a Bible verse attached, may be left to cheer after the children are gone. Postage stamp text cards are suitable and even adults will not resent receiving them from a child. They often revive childhood memories and sometimes lead to conviction.—G.A.

The Bible tells us that the Jews will go back to the Holy land and regain it. We find this true today. God is slowly gathering them up, from all nations and putting them where they belong. When the nation goes back in unbelief, God will allow the great tribulation to act as fire of judgment and the nation will turn to God, and they will finally turn to Christ, confessing Him as their Savior and Lord. After Christ their king reigns supreme all the nations of the earth shall turn to the Jews for the knowledge of God. The Jews are unaware of the great future God is providing for them. Although they rejected their Messiah once when He came the first time, they will receive Him when He comes the second time.

The least any Christian can do is to pray that the Jews of the world may quickly respond in the proper way to the world trends and that they individually and collectively may consider the claims of the Lord Jesus Christ. Two thirds of the Jews are to be cut off and die during the great tribulation yet to come. Surely the most vicious Jew hater will be satisfied with such a slaughter.

When the Lord comes back again the Jews will have been converted to Him, and He will make them a ruling nation. The prophet Isaiah says concerning them. "The nation and kingdom that will not serve thee shall be punished; yea, those nations shall utterly be wasted." There is no future blessing for the individual nor for the world that is not in some way connected with the Jews. Do we hope to go to that city for which Abraham waited? That city is the new Jerusalem. A Jewish Bible, a Jewish capitol city of heaven, Jews all to be converted and to rule the earth; our honor to sit down with Jews in heaven!

RECKONED DEAD (Rom. 6:11)

By Dr. V. C. Kelford

Why should I pray for power, dear Lord,
When Thou dost dwell within?
All power on earth to Thee is given—
All power to Thee in heaven.

Help me, I pray, to understand,
Divide aright Thy Word.
To pray for power when Christ-indwelt
Is not the will of God.

Presenting this, my body, now
As Thou Thyself hast willed,
According to the promise given,
I shall be Spirit-filled.

So, then, when crucified with Christ,
When He lives, and not I,
To learn to yield will be my prayer
And what it means to die.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR JULY 28th, 1940

Brahmanism

(Col. 2:16-23)

Suggestions for the Leader

The reason we have so many religions is that men are bound to be religious. If they do not know the true worship, then they will make another.

Christian mission work is the best answer to the spread of false religions. We must evangelize or be overrun by other systems. Even here in America we have all kinds of false religion. The speakers will tell us of the evils of Brahmanism.

1. The Ways of Life of Brahmanism.

Like every system apart from Christianity it is based upon works. The worshipper depends entirely upon the priest to make his sacrifices. The system claims knowledge as a way of life. They say men are holy and perfect beings. To become divine one must practice self denial. Notice how Christianity emphasizes belief, truth, acceptance of Christ.

2. The God of the Brahman.

The followers worship the sacred writings known as The Vedas. They worship many gods instead of one. They do not believe that he is personal. They have a negative aspect to their system instead of a real constructive program.

3. Self Denial.

Brahman followers practice strict self denial and even torture their bodies. The holy men dictate to the people and they must obey. To deny oneself ought not be to the point of hindering the body. The Bible teaches that the body of the Christian is the temple of the Holy Spirit. Real self denial will be to God's honor and glory.

4. The Future Life.

They say that man must become extinct and at death the soul goes to Brahman. They believe at death the soul enters the body of another form. This is called transmigration. They believe that men may even come back as animals, and that an evil man comes back, but in a low scale.

5. The Brahmins and Christ.

The teaching of the Brahmins has fastened upon

India the awful caste system. The vast difference in social planes makes it difficult for the people to realize that God is no respecter of persons and that Christ came to save all. Their teachings such as that man is not a sinner, that God is not personal and that there are many gods instead of one, make the approach of Christian missionaries hard.

Questions

1. How far do you think a Christian should go in the matter of self denial?
2. How does the future life, as taught by the Bible, differ from the teachings of Brahman?
3. Contrast the teachings of the Bible with that of Brahman on the subject of earning eternal life (Eph. 2:8-9).
4. Explain the only Way of Life as found in Jn. 14:6.
5. How do we depend upon a priest in Christianity? Tell how Christ is our High Priest.

Bible Heroes: MOSES

Song: Throw Out the Lifeline.

Prayer.

Scripture: Heb. 11:23-26.

Special Number (solo, duet, or instrumental): Under His Wings.

Story: Moses and Miriam (Ex. 2).

"Let me tell you about a boy who didn't care for wealth and power when he had them instead of his family. While the children of Israel were in Egypt, a Pharaoh came to power who did not remember what Joseph had done for his country. He began to persecute them. He made them work very hard, and even said all the boy babies must be killed. A young woman named Jochabed could not bear to think of her beautiful baby boy being killed. She hid him for a while. Then one day she had a wonderful idea. She made of waterproof ark of bulrushes, like a little basket, and set it in the part of the river where the princess came to bathe. She told her daughter, Miriam, to watch and see what would happen. I know she must have prayed that God would take care of her baby son. Sure enough, the princess came down to the water, saw the little ark, and called her maids to bring it to her.

"Such a beautiful baby" she cried. "I will take him for my own." Then she saw Miriam and told her to call a woman who could take care of him. Miriam called her mother, and how happy the little family was to be together again. So baby Moses lived with his own family for a while. His mother taught him all about his own people and the God of his fathers. One day the princess came to take Moses to the palace to be her son. He was old enough to remember his home and mother. Though he had all the riches the court could give him, I think his heart was hungry for his simple home and family, for as he grew older he would go back to the place where the Israelites lived. One day he saw an Egyptian beating one of his brethren and was so angry he killed him. When it became known he ran away to the desert rather than go back to the court. Here he lived until God called him to deliver his people from bondage and take them to the promised land.

Questions for Discussion

Name some things that money cannot buy. Rom. 6:23; Eph. 6:8-9; Prov. 18:24; Rom. 5:1-8; 8:32, 35-39.

What will Christ do if you let Him come into your heart? Jn. 1:12; II Cor. 5:17.

Bethany Camp Through the Eyes of a Christian Worker

"Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by Him" (Col. 3:17). We are one of those who believe that the fruit which is going to stand the fire in the day of His appearing is that which has been done unto Him. No service is menial in His sight.

As we visited with the workers at Camp Bethany we felt and discovered that all seemed to be working as unto the Lord. Whether washing dishes, running errands, setting tables, or what not, all seemed to be working as "unto Him." Needless to say, then, there was cooperation without which no work is a success. Every one wanted to do his share, to help the other party in any task that was before him.

Personally, we believe that one of the requirements of a minister is that he be willing to do a little manual labor. How we rejoiced to see these young preachers and students from Grace Seminary roll up their sleeves, put on their boots, unbutton their collars, and demonstrate the truth of Gen. 3:19. One could mention the names of Kriegbaum, Remple, Miller from Tracy, and others. We feel this example was good for the youngsters who assisted in the camp. This spirit of work, cooperation, and doing all as unto Him is going to bear fruit in any field where God leads our young men to take a pastorate.

One could not close any testimony without a word of commendation of Brother and Sister Polman, who demonstrated what we have known so many years—a general, a commander, and a captain who loved not only our Great Commander but all His servants.

May Bethany Camp grow and continue to be blessing is our prayer.

MONTHLY PRAYER CALENDAR

On their respective birthdays, the names, favorite Scripture verses, and prayer requests of pastors, missionaries, and others in the brotherhood who are prominent in Christian work, will appear under this head. Please see that each member in your society is assigned one of the following names for daily prayer. Assign a different name to each member weekly. If you know of others whose names should have appeared this month, please notify your News Editor at once.

July 2—Mrs. Elias Zimmerman, wife of missionary in charge of the Los Angeles (Brethren) Jewish Mission. Ps. 103:1-2. No requests submitted, but pray for the testimony given forth at the mission and for the Jews everywhere.

July 4—Robert Hill, pastor of Bethel Brethren Church, Osceola, Ind. II Cor. 5:17. Requests prayer for the unsaved in that district, for the plans for building their church, for a new young people's weekly Bible class (two were recently saved at one of the meetings), and for a place to meet until their new building is erected.

July 7—Dr. Kenneth M. Monroe, Dean of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. II Cor. 5:15. July 8—Mrs. Floyd Taber, missionary in Africa. (Requests supplied since war conditions prevented arrival of Mrs. Taber's requests.) Pray that the native Christians may grow in grace and remain faithful to the Lord, that the missionaries will receive all the money sent them, and that their supplies will last until more can reach them under present chaotic conditions.

July 10, Miss Florence Bickel, missionary in Africa. (Requests supplied since her own were delayed by war conditions.) Praise the Lord for the indigenous churches in Africa. Pray that they may stand true and be able to carry on however war conditions may effect the work, and that someone may be sent to replace the Sheldons during their furlough so Miss Bickel need not be alone on the station.

July 11—Rev. Orville D. Jobson, superintendent of our African mission stations. (Requests supplied since his own are delayed by war conditions.) Pray for wisdom in arranging the work on the field, in carrying on the volume of official business with the government at this critical time, and in shouldering his many other responsibilities, also for the seminary in his charge.

July 15—Robert Williams, missionary candidate to Africa. Requests prayer for the missionaries in Africa in this uncertain hour when the territory may be seized by another power which may thrust out the missionaries with suffering and persecution; that the way may be opened for missionaries to go to Africa; and that the native evangelists and pastors may be "strengthened with might by His Spirit in the inner man" so that they may be able to carry on the work if the missionaries have to leave.

July 15—Mrs. Leo Polman, wife of pastor at Ft. Wayne, Ind. I Cor. 15:58. Requests prayer that Christian homes may be a real testimony of steadfastness and stability to the world, and that our children may be kept in these trying times and be called in service for the Master

July 16—Rev. Claude H. Pearson, missionary to seamen at San Pedro, Calif. Gal. 2:20. MacArthur in San Pedro.

July 16—Ricardo E. Wagner, native pastor in Almafuerte, S. America. II Cor. 12:9. Requests prayer that the Lord will give him wisdom and very special guidance in all of the problems relative to his wide field of service (besides his pastorate he holds services in Berrotaran and Elena and visits a number of other towns when possible), and that they may be found ever in His hands and in His will.

July 18—Rev. E. W. Reed, pastor at Sunnyside, Wash. S. of Sol. 2:16 first clause. Requests prayer for our brotherhood in the words of Paul in Eph. 3:14-21.

July 19—Rev. Robert Culver, pastor at Ankenytown, O. Eph. 2:8-9. No requests submitted, but pray for his ministry.

July 21—Mrs. Orville D. Jobson, missionary in Africa. See "Praise and Prayer" elsewhere in this issue for her requests.

July 25—Mrs. Randall L. Rossman, wife of pastor at Altoona, Pa. Jn. 14:27. No requests submitted, but pray for the work at Altoona.

Extracts from the Kliever Diary

Feb. 25—We praise the Lord for the decisions that were made. But always we feel as if so little is accomplished on Sundays. The natives have their work that they must do, planned by the chief and the administration. Although the administration doesn't force them to work Sundays, the folks get so little done of what they should that they have to take Sundays to do it, and thus we hardly ever can have more than one service a day in a village even on a Sunday.

Feb. 26—Had breakfast (by myself) at 4:30 and then on the bike and a moonlight start to preach in a village a good hour's stiff pedaling from here. We arrived just as they were gathering around the gathering place to get their assignments to work for that day. Had a nice service and started back to headquarters. On the way back we stopped at the different villages to greet the chief and get acquainted a bit. This evening we backtracked to another village, and I had a sort of reading class with the men of the village while waiting for my interpreter. We used the dirt for a blackboard, writing the letters on the ground; and later using a stem of grass for a pointer, started to make paper talk to them. Meanwhile Jean (John) the evangelist came and we had the service, after which we returned to Benamkor again.

Feb. 27—As there is a path that circles this whole circuit, and by going round the circle we may touch each village, we started another trip on bike by moonlight. The circuit is about 75 kilometers or about 50 miles. We preached three times and returned by 2:30 P. M. We took it rather easy, as the bush paths are rough in places, sandy in others and over logs and rocks in others. We got a good idea of the section of the field that we are calling Benamkor Circuit. We saw all kinds of game on the way around: antelope, large and small; scared a herd of water buffalo (more dangerous than lions when wounded or alone); and also saw wild pigs and fowl. When we got back, here was a runner with my gun and the needed lamp parts. A quick walk around the suburbs (?) and after stalking a small herd of antelope I brought down one and we had fresh meat!

Feb. 29—News has arrived of the death of one of the babies of the mission, the baby of an evangelist. He writes to us, as if he were trying to console us, saying that the Lord gives and the Lord takes. There is news of an epidemic of meningitis in Bekoro vicinity.

Mar. 2—A runner comes by bike from the mission at Bekoro. There is a bad sickness: some of the mission villagers are sick, many in the neighboring villages have died, and one of the poisonous snakes has bitten the wife of a workman. The venom from this snake deteriorates the blood and it becomes as water, and the ears, mouth and little wounds or cuts are all outlets for the blood. This is about 3:30 P. M. so Mrs. Kennedy and I get into the truck and hurry to the mission, not knowing what this is, but knowing that we are needed. Freda and Anne stay at Benamkor, as we plan on looking into the epidemic and giving medicine to the snake case and then returning to pack or stay out the planned time. The first thing we see is that the garage has fallen in. One of the workmen is taken with this disease, and others are afraid they will have it, so they crowd the dispensary for medicines of prevention. We return to Benamkor. Darkness has set in, and as there is a little getting ready of the truck to store it for a few days more, Mrs. Kennedy goes on by bike, and the cook and I make the necessary arrangements. We cross the river in the canoe; and in getting his bike out, the cook almost capsizes the boat and into the water he goes, cook, bike and all. It is black-night. His shoes came off in the spill and are finally fished out of the river bottom. Here was hoping I wouldn't go and do likewise, and thus it was, I disembarked safely, and we arrived to a very late but welcome supper.

Mar. 4—Started out again to pick up the villages that we had missed on our previous almost daily bicycle preaching trips. Sent the runner on ahead with my bed and to arrange to have water for washing and drinking purposes. He started in the morning and we left at 3:30 P. M. by bike and arrived right after he did.

He had been detained a little by lions that were drinking at a water hole, and he did the wise thing by not moving after he saw them until they departed. I asked if they attacked cyclers also. They said no, not if you go fast enough. I thought of how every bridge near these water holes has a sandy stretch which requires slow speed if not walking, and decided that I would rather not meet lions on a bike trip. It was quite warm, and after a blessed service, we sat around a small camp fire and chatted. You learn many things from natives as to their customs, beliefs, etc. around the campfire that way. These will be the subject of a series of articles if time and opportunity comes for them. I will say that there is a spirit in one of these villages that tells where the inquirer may find lost articles, what medicine to take to get well, what to do to straighten out certain affairs, etc. It is the spirit of someone that died, they say. I asked if there was a medium, and they said no. Then they said they had to pay money or give food for the advice or council of this spirit. Then I asked who took the money, and it is his former wife, thus the mediator. A chief, for instance, lost his money. This spirit told him where it was and for another sum of money was to tell him the name of the person who had it! One party said they had only so much money, and the spirit said, "You hid 10 francs under that fallen tree by the path," and it was true! Your guess and conclusion is as good as mine. This medium, by the way, refuses to have anything to do with children of God!!

Mar. 7—We are up early after gathering things last night, and are on our way back to the mission. We make the short extra run to Paoua to see the administrator about the epidemic, to get advice and also to make a few purchases. Arrive home in time for noon meal. Anne was pleased to see Bekoro again, although she never once asked that we should start for home again. The funny thing about it is that when we go to Bassai or to Bozoum (also the time we went to Yaloke), she almost immediately asks to go back home. After asking around, we found that she likes Bekoro and Benamkor because they have mud

THINK IT OVER

Just suppose the membership of your church was 50 people, would you be in or out?

Suppose your membership was good for just one year, and that reelection depended upon the good you have done in your church during that time. Would you be reelected?

houses, and she apparently doesn't feel at home in the brick mansions of the other stations. If she doesn't feel at home there, what will it be when she gets to U. S. A.?

Many are sick with this whatever-it-is. We are sure it isn't meningitis, but it is something seemingly contagious and yet not highly contagious.

Mar. 13—Minnie has been working almost day and night fighting this whatever-it-is. I have been trying to get workmen and material to get a house together and to replace the garage and the workshop that caved in after 4 year's service. Minnie's and our house seem tired also and ready to cave in, so something has to be done; thus am putting up another house, temporary of mud. (Never even built a good bird house at home!) There is enough work in the mission to keep a builder busy building and repairing, and how it wears on the nerves to have the call to preach, people dying all around, people wanting to hear the message of salvation, and here we must be occupied, with what? building, carpenter work! Why? So we have a place to sleep. If it wasn't for wife and child, I'd say, "Forget the building and get out and preach," but I know Rom. 8:28 is still in the Bible.

Mar. 18—Buried the wife of a prospective evangelist. She had been taking good care of her husband, and came down with it and died. He is so sick, they think he doesn't know she has gone on. This is the first adult of the mission village Christians to die. The villagers were going to come here and have a heathen mourning. We put a stop to that, and then they wanted to take the body and mourn over it and bury it in the village. We refused this also, telling them to help dig a grave, and we would have a funeral service right here in the mission. It was my first funeral service, that is the first service I conducted since in Africa. What a joy to be able to preach that this soul will live again in a body to die no more!

Mar. 20—I felt well enough to get up again, and thus started to move around to get ready for the work of the day. A couple of workmen came. It was still a half hour too early, but time to beat the first drum for prayer meeting. I asked them to beat it, and they said, "Shall we work today?" I asked, "why not." They said, "Can we work and bury our brother at the same time." So I knew that Mannanie, the prospective evangelist, had gone to keep his wife company in awaiting the glorious resurrection.

Mar. 29—After a hard day, decided to visit one of the nearby villages, and as Mrs. Kennedy, wanted to go also, we took the truck and went. We went to Bedam, another prospective chapel point, and found them working, preparing for the chapel and evangelist. We divided the group that came to hear the Word. Mrs. Kennedy took the believers, and I took the unbelievers. After a short but definite message and appeal, 15 more in that village professed to accept Christ. That is one fine way of getting rid of "that tired feeling"—get out an preach to lost souls!

NEW BOOKS FOR YOUR LIBRARY

WOMEN AND THE CHURCH, a textbook and manual for women's organizations, by Louise Miller Novotny, proved to be a very interesting book. Many helpful ideas can be had from its study. In the first few chapters the women of the New Testament are interviewed and their outstanding virtue discussed. These chapters would make fine Bible studies. Then follows the chapters on the different avenues of service in which women may serve in the church. The teacher, the caller, the Women's Bible class, the children's worker, the deaconess, missionary societies, women's council, are each discussed in detail. Organization and methods for development are very usable. This would be a very good book for a reading circle. For short Bible studies in class meetings or missionary meetings, each chapter would prove beneficial and helpful. Every woman can find her place of service after studying this small concise book.

FROM THE FIELD

CAMPBELL BRETHREN CHURCH Lake Odessa, Mich.

Times of refreshing from the Lord have come to us at Lake Odessa thru the preaching of the Word by our Bro. Harold Dunning. Even before the meetings began there were evidences of Satan's opposition, and this opposer of the universe of men and angels and of God kept up his work thruout. But thanks be unto God Who giveth us the victory thru our Lord Jesus Christ, he was not able to overcome the work of the Spirit. The people had a mind to work and pray, and as a result of the preaching of the Word with power, there were 17 decisions for Christ.

During the second week of the meetings we ran a Bible school, our first experience. We had an average attendance of 80, and 11 of the decisions for Christ came thru our Bible school. Altho all of these decisions were children of ages 9-15, we nevertheless have a nucleus for the future of the church. Evidence that the revival is continuing since the meetings is borne out in the confession of Christ by a young mother. Many of these have been baptized and taken into the membership of the church, and four await baptism. We covet your prayers in behalf of our Junior Dept. and our transportation system.

There were 53 who joined in the communion service, the highest number at the Lord's table for several years. Rev. and Mrs. Dunning were indeed very enjoyable guests, and our fellowship was of the finest order. We kept them and they kept us busy every minute of the two weeks. Our appreciation goes to them, and to all who entertained, and to all who helped with the Bible School work. We were a tired but happy group of people in this experience.

NEW TROY, MICH.

I am writing to tell you about our summer Bible School which was held during the week of June 17-22.

The school was held in cooperation with the Rural Bible Missions of Michigan. This group is doing a great and effective work in reaching the children of the rural communities for Christ. They work primarily through the schools. At present they are covering the rural schools in 15 counties in the state about once each month.

Our church is too small to hold the school we planned. Therefore, after much prayer, we approached the superintendent of the school in New Troy. The superintendent very graciously opened the building for our use and has already granted us the use of the building for our school next summer. While the town is small, they have a large beautiful school building to serve the outlying rural community.

The next thing we needed was a bus to transport the children, as we had promised free transportation to all who would come, and some of the children lived several miles from New Troy. The Lord knew our need and laid it upon one of the rural districts, which brings their children to New Troy in the winter, to loan us their bus for the week. When we asked the use of the bus, the driver replied, "I would like for you to pay for the gas." We are praying that the Lord may send us a bus of our own by fall to use every week in a Saturday Bible School.

Three neighboring churches (all fundamental) cooperated with us in the school. Teachers came to help us from two of these churches. The third church did not have any teachers who were free, but urged their children to attend. We also enjoyed the fellowship of Bro. and Sister Umbaugh during the week. They were both students in Grace Seminary during the past winter and are serving two little churches in Indiana during the summer months.

Ten teachers came during the week to help us in the school. Some of these teachers were not able to attend every day but others always came to take their place. The school was divided into seven divisions or classes. On Friday evening a graduation service was held. Awards for attainment were given to those who learned the most Scripture verses during the week and to the ones who brought the most new pupils. Three girls, 14 years old tied for the Scripture verse award by learning 47 verses apiece during the week.

Sixty children, 5-14, were enrolled in the school. This number would have been more than doubled if the strawberries had not decided to hurry and ripen during this week. For this reason, we are planning to have the school earlier next year.

Yours in His Service,

RUSSELL L. WILLIAMS

WEST HOMER BRETHREN CHURCH Homerville, Ohio

Our Daily Bible School was a very good success, averaging about 45 in attendance. Five teachers gave of their time and sacrificed money in order to hold the Bible School from June 5-14. They spent time that many housewives would have thought was needed at household duties, all because of Him Whose they are and Whom they serve, that children might be trained in the things of the Lord. These teachers planned the school and saw to the transportation besides teaching from 9:00 A. M. till near noon.

On Sun. night, June 16, 36 pupils of five classes, under the direction of the five teachers, took charge of the service. In this service songs, choruses, Scripture verses, answers to catechetical questions by verses of Scripture, charts, and outlines to stimulate interest in the study of the living and written Word were given, which indicate the Lord by His Spirit had been directing the school from beginning to end each day. Bible Schools are necessary and possible in rural communities even though for short periods.

By Robert Culver

Alva J. McClain, who has been on a speaking tour of the West Coast, had the following itinerary, all in California: June 10-14, La Verne Brethren Church; June 16-21, San Diego Brethren Church; June 23-26, First Brethren Church, Long Beach; June 29-July 6, Mount Herman Bible Conference; July 7-10.

The Building Which Now Houses The First Brethren Church of San Diego, Calif. was dedicated at a special Saturday afternoon service June 15. This new building was completed three years after the founding of the work. Our congratulations to the congregation and pastor Albert Flory.

About the first of May Robert W. Hill, student at Grace Theological Seminary, became pastor of the Brethren Church of Osceola, Ind. The church has been without a building for several weeks, but has been meeting in homes. Attendance has passed the 50 mark and recently nine persons accepted Christ in a Sunday morning service.

Brethren Young People of Southern Calif. aged 12-25 attended Camp Seeley, July 6-13.

Camp Buckeye, training camp for Brethren young people of Northeast Ohio was conducted at Camp Y-Noah near Akron June 22-28. There were 127 in attendance, including staff.

Green Mountain Camp for Brethren young people of the Southeast was conducted near Edinburg, Va. June 20-July 13. During the first week, young people, aged 11-15 attended, and during the second week young people over 16 yrs. of age.

The First Brethren Church of Waynesboro, Pa. recently closed a very successful summer Bible School. Children ranging in age from 4-15 attended, and enrollment attained 150. The Waynesboro church has recently adopted a unified Sunday morning service, and from all reports seems to like it.

The Danville Brethren Church (Ohio) recently enjoyed nine days ministry of Bro. Conard Sandy. Bro. Sandy presented stereoptican lectures on the Near East and Palestine. Even though the services were not definitely evangelistic, three souls accepted Christ as Savior. Pastor S. M. Justice reports renewed interest in the Word and in attendance.

Pastors and church correspondents please notice!!! There is no change in the mailing address for material for this column. Continue to address Robert D. Culver, Winona Lake, Ind. Yes, the news editor moved for the summer, but forwarding arrangements have been provided for all classes of mail.

Has the Emergency Offering Disappeared?

As this copy is being prepared we are wondering what has happened to the emergency home mission offering that was taken in June by the churches. We had heard of many fine opinions as to how it would be reached. BUT TO DATE WE HAVE SEEN NOTHING OF IT EXCEPT THE REPORT OF ONE MISSION POINT AND A FEW ISOLATED GIFTS!

We are going ahead with the fields and projects for which this added offering was supposed to have provided. But we cannot do so very long on limited funds. Since there were few, if any, pledges, the offering should be ready at once. So pastors! look around and make a few inquiries and see if your treasurer knows what to do with the offering since he has it. We need it now.

The offering will need to come in during the next two weeks if they are to be reported before national conference. This is what we would like to do. Help us make a full report then. It will encourage everybody.

THE NEW WORLD ORDER—

That we are approaching the end of an era seems to be the widespread conviction of present day world leaders. It is preached from thousands of pulpits; it is forecast from hundreds of lecture platforms; it is published far and wide and repeatedly, in newspapers and magazines. "The present order of things is passing away." "The end of this war will see the end of civilization." "The ship of civilization is not going to sink in five years or fifty years, it is sinking right now, right before our very eyes." "It is all over now—mankind will take to caves." And so they continue. When Jesus Christ came the first time—when He came to die on Calvary—the philosophers of the world were commonly agreed that the world was getting old and that they had tried everything and everything had failed to elevate man and save him from despair. A new era for the world of men after a terrible upheaval of human experience was anticipated.

All of this is not without real significance. There is little doubt but that the presentiment of woes ahead is already taking hold of the hearts of men. Did not Jesus say in Lk. 21, "Men's hearts failing them for fear because of looking upon the thing that are coming upon the earth"? There is little doubt that keen minded men of the world can see the trend of things from a purely materialistic standpoint. But what about the 'new era'?

This new era is forecast by many in many different ways. There is an organized group of British leaders who already for years have had a new world arrangement all thought out. They are organized and are working feverishly in this country now seeking converts among American leaders. The Hitler group have their plans for the new world after this war is won—by Hitler. Stalin has his plans for a Communistic world, and is waiting slyly to put it over. Mussolini also has a new world plan with Rome over all. Here in this land there seems to be no end to idealists who have what to their minds is a perfect plan for a perfect world "after the war is over."

It seems never to occur to any of these that God has a plan, and that God is the only One able to put His plan into effect! The rest will all fail for they are all built upon the might or goodness of man, and neither of these is genuine. Only after God's mighty arm has bound Satan in the bottomless pit can a new order for this world come about (Rev. 20:1-3). Only after antichrist has been cast alive into the lake of fire (Rev. 19:20) can "righteousness cover the earth as waters cover the sea." Only when the saints shall reign with Christ a thousand years, (Rev. 20:6), shall "every man dwell under his vine and under his fig tree, and none shall make them afraid." That will be a real new world order in contrast to the way men's hearts are now failing them for fear. The only time this world of men will enjoy rest and peace will be when God Himself is at rest with this world. Only those will enjoy God's new world order who have "God's order" in their hearts through being born again through faith in Jesus Christ.

HAS SATAN'S SHORT TIME BEGUN?

In Rev. 12 we have the prophecy of the day ahead when, with the time at hand for winding up all things in this age of grace, Satan will be cast out of the heavens for good, with all his fallen angels. When that time comes, says the record, Satan will at last realize that he has but a short time left in which to do all the damage he would like to do. His crowning hate is against Jesus Christ, the Son of God, Who has received all honor and power from God the Father, the hour and power that Satan enviously sought to grasp for himself. Therefore the first object of his wrath will be the Jews, for out of them Jesus Christ came according to the flesh. The Word says that he will send out a flood of water 'from his mouth' with the purpose of swallowing up poor Israel.

When we behold the flood of hate that is pouring from the lips of men like Hitler and thousands of others who hate Israel, and observe the flood of human armies which they are forming for the final purpose of crushing not only Israel, but Israel's Messiah when He returns to deliver them, we wonder much if perhaps Satan has not already been cast out of heaven and now realizes that he has but a short time before he shall be cast down to hell, 'to the sides of the pit'. He is moving things pretty fast today. The nations are churning and raging; madly, blindly, steadily converging toward the final roundup before the Mount of Olives and—death. The present world holocaust was born in a hell of Jewish hate and persecution in Germany. Can it be that here Satan is starting his last campaign against Jesus Christ? If it is, there is one glorious comfort—it won't last long. Christ has promised that His true saints will not be left here to endure it, but will be taken away to be prepared to take part in His glorious victory which will soon follow (Rev. 19:14). Keep your ear attuned for the 'up-calling'.

JEHOVAH'S WITNESSES IN JAIL

Down in Waxahachie, Tex., 200 so-called 'Jehovah's Witnesses' descended on the town and distributed literature inciting the people to renounce the United States government and despise our flag. When some of the recipients read the literature and realized the nature of it and protested, the police came in. The Jehovah's Witnesses started to run, but 90 were arrested and jailed. In Odessa, Tex., 50 more were jailed and then set out of town for the same reason.

Now no doubt there are some very sincere people among these zealots, and we sometimes wish that many of the people in our own Brethren churches had half the zeal for the real truth that these folks have for their miserable concoction of religious ideas. However, we deplore that such a pitiable association of unscriptural ideas should bear the name of Jehovah, our blessed Lord, and that such misguided zealots should be heralded far and wide as His true witnesses. The militant, harsh and unchristlike spirit that we have observed in them is enough to turn anyone away from the things they profess. Their manner also embitters many unbelieving people against all things religious. It has not been so many years since the first world war and it was then that the militant pacifist spirit of this group of devotees made it very hard for many of our sincerely conscientious Brethren young men to obtain the consideration for their non-resistant principles that was provided for them by the government. There is little doubt that if our nation enters war again that conditions will be made worse than ever by these very same people.

In stirring up the people to "renounce all man-made governmental systems," and in refusing to salute the flag of their country, they reveal plainly that they are not witnesses of Jehovah, at all. Rom. 13:13 declares, "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake, whether it be to the king as supreme, or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evildoers, and for the praise of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that with well-doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men; as free, yet not using your liberty for a cloke of maliciousness, but as the servants of the Lord. Honor all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king." May these and all other misguided folks be led to the simple truth as it is in His Word. Let us as Brethren beware that we do not attempt to use our Scriptural liberties as a cloke for maliciousness. The only way that we can hold the truth and love with a pure heart is that we be born again. The saddest thing abroad is the sight of those who are unsaved, unborn again, and yet trying militantly to 'defend' the truth of the Bible—a truth that they do not even know. We wonder how many of these so-called "Jehovah's Witnesses" really know Jehovah! Let us pray for them.

"UNION NOW" !—

Paul Mallon, well known American journalist, in his recent column declared that the union of all democracies is swiftly taking shape. He quotes Dale Carnegie as publicly declaring that Governor Stark of Missouri was sure to be the next president after Roosevelt; that Roosevelt is sure to be re-elected and then become the first "World President of Democracies" in about two years, or about 1942 or 1943; that then he will resign and give the office to Stark; that the Canadians are not worried over the future at all in spite of what may happen to Europe; that the Canadians are expecting the United States to soon bear the large part of the weight of the present war with men, money and materials; that soon after the war the population of Canada will spiral to 50,000,000 instead of the present 11,000,000; and that all of Great Britain will soon be under one government with its Capital at Ottawa; that the outlook is such that the dreams of a world union of democracies is very near at hand, since Britain is certain to become a pure democracy very soon.

It all sounds very nice. Men continue to plan and propose and lay out the future of the world as they would like to have it. But God's future plan for this world is not a democracy. It is a pure despotism! And Jesus Christ the Lord of glory is to be the Despot! (Jude 4; Acts 2:34,35). Happy day for the world of men when they are ruled over by One Who loved them and gave Himself for them!

YOU AND YOUR TROUBLES

Recently the Reader's Digest carried this little gem:

"Don't go out to meet trouble. Just sit still, and nine times out of ten someone will intercept it before it gets to you."

That is a good piece of advice for all of us. But there is something better than that. The Christian has it. He has a perfect "Interceptor."

"This poor man cried, and the Lord saved him out of all his troubles" (Ps. 34:6).

Hide behind the Lord, brother. He will deliver you!

You Should Read These

The American Prophetic League has been publishing some short, pointed, timely and Scriptural pamphlets. They are especially designed to be helpful in these tragic days. They have recently sent out three pamphlets written by Rev. Keith Brooks.

The little booklet entitled, "The Age End Prophecy of Our Lord," is challenging to many untaught and mistaught professing Christians. It will be an eye opener to many.

"When He giveth Quietness" is rich for the souls of Christians in these trying days. Without question this is the most helpful and rich little gold mine of encouragement for tried hearts in these days that we have ever read.

"Inescapable Facts" is a tract to place in the hands of any unsaved person either in or out of the church. The reading of these recent works will stir the soul of any one. You may obtain them by sending to the League at 4747 Townsend Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif. # The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse—Are They Riding Today?

By R. D. Crees, Pastor at Waynesboro, Pa.

Riding, riding, riding! Faster, faster, faster! Here they come!—The four horsemen of the Apocalypse!! Their hoof-beats sound nearer every week. They are mentioned in the newspapers every day. They bring war, famine, and death. They usher in the end of this age. It is high time that we awaken to the need of winning men to Christ before their chance is cut off by the pounding of the hoofs of the horses of these four mad riders.

1. The Rider of the White Horse—The Antichrist

In Rev. 6:2 we read, "And I saw, and behold a white horse, and he that sat on him had a bow, and a crown was given unto him, and he went forth conquering, and to conquer."

This rider should not be confused with the coming of Christ pictured in Rev. 19:11-16. There will be no crown for Christ and He will have a sword instead of a bow when He comes to earth again.

Satan is the world's greatest imitator, and knowing of the prophecy in Rev. 19 of the coming of Christ on a white horse, he will mount his false Christ, the antichrist, on a white horse to fool the nations. The prophecy of this deception is in Mt. 24:5, "For many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and shall deceive many."

The antichrist, who is the beast of Rev. 13, will rule over the ten-kingdom federation occupying the territory once covered by the old Roman Empire. In turn he will conquer the kings of the south, north, and east, only to be defeated by Christ in the battle of Armageddon. The rider of the white horse may be alive now and may be preparing to begin his conquests.

2. The Rider of the Red Horse—War

In Rev. 6:4 we read, "And there went out another horse that was red, and power was given to him that sat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they should kill one another, and there was given unto him a great sword."

This rider takes peace from the earth! This Peace Palace of the League of Nations at Geneva has recently practiced "blackouts" for protection against possible air-raids. Mussolini laughed at the League and took Ethiopia; Spain was conquered by the aid of foreign troops; Japan wars on China; Germany takes Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland; Russia turns against little Finland, etc. Almost the entire world is at war today. War is the rider of the red horse! Men are killing one another. The world is armed to the teeth, a world war seems inevitable.

All this was predicted in Mt. 24:6, 7a, "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that ye be not troubled; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom."

General Pershing declared, "Unless some move is made to reduce armaments we may well ask ourselves whether we are doomed to go headlong down through destructive war and darkness into barbarism."

Dr. L. S. Bauman declares, "As a matter of bald fact, peace in a world that is armed to the teeth with the most hellish weapons that the ingenuity of demons ever invented—peace in a world that has placed these great arsenals in the hands of madcaps such as Stalin, Mussolini, Hitler and other lesser paranoiacs—peace in such a world has about as much chance as a snowball would have in hell."

War is riding the red horse today and the stage is rapidly being set for the final battle of Armageddon when Christ will intervene and set up His kingdom of peace. Until then we will have no peace!

3. The Rider of the Black Horse—Famine

In Rev. 6:5,6 we read, "And I beheld and lo a black horse; and he that sat on him had a pair of balances in his hand. And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny; and see that thou hurt not the oil and the wine."

War always leads to famine. Farmers are drafted for fighting and the ground lies idle. Naval blockades cut off outside food supplies. Nations concentrate on killing other men and find it hard to feed their own people. Profiteers flourish and prices soar.

The Scripture pictures a shortage of food, accompanied by high prices and government control. Who said, "It couldn't happen here?" A few years ago our own government controlled production and prices under the NRA. In all the warring nations of Europe food is scarce and is controlled by the government. Many people are starving already. Famine has come and the worst is not yet! Such conditions were pictured in our parallel Scriptures in Mt. 24:7, "And there shall be famines and pestilences."

The passages in Revelation also indicates the restrictions to be placed on oil in that day. Today in sections of Europe men are allowed only a limited amount of gasoline per week. Oil is needed for war. Without it to facilitate transportation, men are useless, airplanes are grounded, tanks are stalled, guns are silenced, ships are anchored.

Frazier Hunt, writing from Tripoli, Syria, on Feb. 20, 1940, says, "There is a three letter word that holds the secret of this war. It is oil. The British and French armies are now in the Near East to help guard the oil fields, the two outlets being Tripoli, Syria, and Haifa, Palestine."

According to the same Scripture wine will be priceless but necessary. What a tragic picture! Millions may be starving in a great famine, but oil and wine must continue to flow—for this is war!!

4. The Rider of the Pale Horse—Death

In Rev. 6:8 we read, "And I looked and behold a pale horse; and his name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with sword, and with hunger, and with death, and with the beasts of the earth."

The fourth horseman is Death. Grim, savage, and relentless, he always rides with war and famine. One-fourth of the population of earth will thus meet death through war and famine.

Thousands of men are being slain today on many battlefields. Civilians are perishing in air-raids. Many are starving.

Scientists claim civilization cannot survive another war for the instruments of destruction are so severe that mankind will annihilate themselves. It is beginning now.

We can recognize three of the four horsemen of the Apocalypse now. War, famine, and death are riding all over Europe and are threatening America. But what of the first horseman, the antichrist? He is the leader. He may be even now preparing to lead the other three horsemen on their mad ride around the world.

Christians today should ride, too, as Paul Revere did, warning this sinful world of the coming of the four horsemen, even to the United States! Let us seek to win souls to Christ so they may be prepared, come what may!

SELF PRAISE

By C. A. Jackson

"Self praise is half scandal." So the timeworn phrase goes. But if the truth were really applied with a twist and needed energy, I would say, "Self praise is 90 per cent scandal, and 10 per cent cheap gossip."

Why do we want it?

Here are a few reasons why praise lappers will lose out at last:

1. They will lose the respect of those who love them now.
2. They will diminish the conception others hold of their ability.
3. They will cheapen the service they render.
4. They will move to the spawning ground where certain tumbles are germinated!
5. They will merit demerit!
6. They will develop a phobia for New Testament humility.
7. They will forestall the growth of meekness as a "fruit of the Spirit."
8. They will twist the words, "inspiration of God," into, aspirations of men.
9. They will fail in bringing down conviction on human hearts.
10. They will well earn, and get it, the title, Chief Praise-lapper!

TESTIMONY TO THE JEW

The First Brethren Church of Whittier, Calif., has been giving a very definite testimony to the Jew for several years. We are not satisfied with the giving of money only. We sought out a place where we could personally give the testimony of the Lord to the Jew

Ashman, Zimmerman and helper, and converts (Jewish) direct. We discovered it in the Mission conducted by Brother Zimmerman in Los Angeles. We offered to come once a month and conduct a service. Our offer was accepted. The Lord has abundantly blessed our fellowship together, and souls have been saved.

This Mission is being sponsored this year by the Brethren churches. All gifts for it are being sent to the Home Missions Council. It is a most worthy work, and there need be no hesitancy in giving to it. It is located in the very heart of a large Jewish center. We have learned to love Brother Zimmerman and his workers.

Recently it was our privilege to baptize and receive into the membership of the church three men and one woman from this mission. All four are Jews and were won to Christ thru the testimony given there. The pictures accompanying this article were taken on the front porch of the Whittier Brethren Church.

A NEW FEATURE — Home Mission Story No 1

We are glad to announce the beginning of a new children's column which will appear regularly in our Home Mission Number each month, beginning with this July issue. Ever since we started The Brethren Herald we have had a desire to launch a department that would provide the home mission spirit for our children. We desired something that we could put into the hands of our teachers of children to help them in this angle of the work.

Mrs. Herman Koontz

Several months ago while in Roanoke, Va., we were talking of this need to our sister Myra Koontz. At once she said that she felt the same way and was willing to try to provide that very aid. We jumped at the chance to obtain her services, for her high talent in this sort of work is outstanding. We lost no time in making definite plans for the work.

Today we publish the first story of a series of 12. They are adapted for reading to children, for expanding in a larger lesson, and for providing the teacher with a story to tell in her words to her department. The clarity and simplicity of these stories for children make them extremely attractive to teachers. They are of such high quality that when one series of 12 is over, they will be gathered together in a booklet and used later as standard work for teachers in this department of the work.

A LITTLE BOY'S GIFT

By Mrs. Herman Koontz

The cheerful sunbeams slipped in and played upon the flowers set on the windowsill and on the bluebirds pasted on the window pane. They fell, too, on children's happy faces, for they had found the Children's Department of the Blue Ridge Sunday School.

No wonder the children had happy faces. Singing all the choruses and praying their thanksgiving prayers had made them ready for Miss Brice's Sunday morning story. Now they were listening to her voice.

"You remember," she said, "how we all enjoyed giving our pennies and nickels and dimes last fall so that our home mission offering could make it possible for many more children to hear the Word of God." We were so pleased that this department was able to give $100.00 to that great work.

"And now we hear that so many new groups of people want churches that our Council needs a great deal more money in order to help them. This means that we have another chance to give to the Lord Jesus in this way.

"For the next few Sundays, while you gather your offerings, I shall tell you some Home Mission stories at our regular story time. Most of them will be 'truly-true' stories. A few of them will be 'let's pretend' stories. But all of them will tell you how you can help home mission churches, or what great things home mission churches are doing.

"The story today is from the book we love the best, the Bible. So we know that it is a 'truly-true' story. We will see that a little boy's very small gift can become very large when it is given to the Lord.

"Little Hiram was hurrying along a rough steep path. He kept saying to himself, 'Oh, I hope I am not too late.' Only that morning he had heard that the great Master, Jesus, was not far away, and he had longed so deeply to hear him speak that he had asked his mother for permission to go to try to find Him. She had said he could go and had wrapped a lunch for him to eat on the way. Five little pancake-like loaves and two small fishes were fastened together in a bundle which he still carried. He was much too excited to stop to eat them.

"Soon he followed the path over a little ridge and there before him on a gentle slope he saw a large company of people.

"I am so glad I am not too late," he said to himself, as he slipped through the crowd, as only a boy can, up to the very front. He wanted to be as near to the Master as he could.

"The Lord Jesus had already been talking to the crowd for some time, but they were so eager to hear His words that He talked on and on. Finally He closed the wonderful sermon, and mindful of the hunger and weariness of the throng He said to Philip, one of the disciples, 'Where shall we buy bread that these may eat?'

Hiram was near enough to see the astonishment on Philip's face as he answered.

"Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not sufficient for them that everyone might take a little."

"At once Hiram was reminded of his own little lunch. 'Do I dare offer the Master my lunch, which is so small even for one person?' he asked himself.

But he wanted so much to give the Lord Jesus something, however small, that he slipped up to another disciple named Andrew, murmuring that he wanted the Master to have it, and handed him the bundle of lunch.

Andrew took it at once to Jesus, and after the people were seated He said grace and then began to break the loaves and fishes, and under His fingers the pieces grew and grew until there was more than enough for everyone.

Hiram was the happiest little boy you ever saw as he trudged home that night, because he had given all he had to the Lord and the Lord had blessed his gift."

Miss Brice smiled at them as she said in closing, "God will bless your gift too, if you give it to Him gladly and wholly, and He will make it grow, as well."

Brethren Youth Ready for Second Camp at Bethany

WHAT A PASTOR'S WIFE THINKS OF BETHANY CAMP

To me the results of a Christian camp are what we should look for as to whether it was a success or not. I have seen the lives of some of the young people who attended Bethany last summer entirely changed, their lives given to Christ for whatever service He may call. Surely these are the results we should see from a truly Christian camp. I think the refreshing and spiritual atmosphere of Bethany Camp instilled in the lives of our young people will cause them to bring this same spirit home into our churches and make our young people's groups at home more usable in His service. It is the changes we see in the lives of these young people after they return home that makes us realize Bethany Camp should receive our whole-hearted support.

MRS. ERNEST PINE, Juniata, Pa.

SECRETARY OF HOME MISSIONS COUNCIL SPEAKS

It is the conviction of the undersigned that Bethany Camp not only served a most vital need last fall, but also has shown that such a movement in behalf of our young people must be maintained through the years to come. We believe that God used Bethany Camp to provide the outlet for young life, and that spiritual inspiration which young people need in the process of obtaining a true Christian fellowship. We believe that Bethany Camp with its program of teaching, testimony, spiritual encouragement, and responsibility of life to Christ, together with a healthy social fellowship and recreational program, forms a priceless contribution to the awakening and strengthening of our young people to the ministry of the gospel. We trust that such a movement shall never pass from among our Brethren young people.

VICE-PRESIDENT OF W.M.C. COMMENDS BETHANY FOR OUR YOUTH

"Who could be more interested in young people than women—mothers who have young folks of their own whose lives must be trained and guided so carefully? In these days when practically all of their contacts are as one huge magnate in the hands of Satan to pull them away from spiritual things, we need to be on the alert to supply proper fellowship and recreation as well as teaching.

"Bethany Camp last summer met that need in a very wonderful way. As an adult, I naturally enjoyed the fellowship we experienced around the tables in the dining room. My greatest thrill, however, was not

Some testimonies from our youth, as well as from those older, who were in attendance at Bethany last year. They bring back memories.

Mother and father, no better vacation investment could be made in youth than to send your boy or girl to Bethany Camp. Read the following testimonies. They speak for themselves!

A TESTIMONY FROM A JUNIATA YOUTH

The most enjoyable week of my life was spent at Bethany Camp, Winona Lake. The spiritual atmosphere of the camp is a real inspiration to those whose privilege it is to stay there. I never met or fellow-shipped with such Christian young people in all my life—young folks who are out and out for Christ and who count it a wonderful privilege to serve Him.

The campfire, faggot, and dedication services are so inspiring, and create a feeling of spiritual friendship among all. How shallow and little the things of this world become after a week of real refreshing Christian fellowship at Bethany Camp with true born again young people in the Lord.

BETHANY CAMP—A FINE PLACE TO STAY!

As one who in the matter of age is of course not eligible to belong to the B.S.L.V., I am able to speak of Bethany as an onlooker, who nevertheless had the privilege of being on the inside.

From this unique position my impressions were formed, and I hope some of us "oldsters" will be permitted again to enjoy the fellowship of that fine group of young Christians.

Brother Leo Polman and wife did an excellent job. No doubt they learned many things which will be helpful in a later experience; but no complaint could be made of their handling of what must often have been a trying situation. Their unfailing Christian graciousness was outstanding.

The high spirits and love of fun of our young people will be a happy memory for years to come, and how we rejoiced when those same fun-loving youngsters turned to the serious side of their program and proved themselves really consecrated, Spirit-filled, obedient children of God.

A TESTIMONY FROM A MOTHER AND A FATHER WHO WERE PRESENT AT BETHANY CAMP

When we learned from the Polmans, some time prior to national conference, that there would likely be some accommodations during conference for married folks at Bethany Lodge, we decided we would take advantage of the opportunity. We had not been to Winona for several years, and the annual reports from conference were not particularly inviting. But we went, and what a delightful time we had. We really lived right with the young folks in the camp. The Polmans did a very commendable job of entertaining and caring for the campers. And we would not overlook the part played so faithfully by the seminary boys and others in dining room and camp service. The meals furnished were good, and it seemed to us, all that could be expected. Brother Polman contends that they "broke even" on the venture. They deserve our sincere praise.

The spiritual feast of fellowship in the dining room was far more beneficial than the material. To join in such inspiring songs as "Oh, Oh, Oh, Oh, What He's Done for Me," "Every Day With Jesus," "This Little Light of Mine," to say nothing of "Here We Stand Like Birds in the Wilderness" and "Everybody Happy, Well I should Say," really made us feel at least young in spirit. And the spiritual feasts at Victory Circle! To hear such wholesome testimonies from young Endeavorers, and the encouraging messages from older Endeavorers, was really marvelous. For these young people to hear the thrilling reports from our young mission pastors, and how God has been blessing their efforts, means only more and more life-work volunteers. And the young peoples' church in the camp auditorium on Sunday morning was a real soul-searching service, with definite decisions and rededications. The Spirit can work only where there are yielded hearts. We feel that the greatest inspiration of this conference lay in the vicinity of Bethany Lodge and Victory Circle.

We doubt not about the future of our small church. God is anxious to show us what can be accomplished when we yield our wills to His. Camp Bethany (as well as Camp Buckeye) have produced marvelous changes in the lives of our Dayton young people. Praise His name, for He is worthy.

MR. and MRS. MORSE M. HOOVER, Dayton, O.

"Bethany Camp for Brethren young people at the national conference has been a dream for several years. Last year as it was about to be fulfilled, our hearts almost failed us as we considered the details in the entirely new venture. But it was truly a great blessing to us. We never worked harder, nor were any happier. From the first registration to the last goodbye, every minute was filled.

"Mrs. Morgan, a most competent lady in the kitchen, organized the kitchen and serving staff in short order. We all agreed that if the seminary boys preached as hard as they washed dishes, they would be a grand success.

"The smaller children enjoyed the classes led by the seminary girls.

"The fun, singing, and good food, made the dining room a popular place. Tennis, rowing, croquet, swimming, and afternoon speed boat rides, took up any spare minutes. And the evening devotions at Victory Circle will long be remembered by many as the place of definite surrender to the will of the Lord in their lives."

LEILA POLMAN, Fort Wayne, Ind.

AND HERE'S WORD FROM THE OTHER SPONSOR

This year, our second National Brethren Youth Camp at Bethany will without question be better than last year. The program and activities will make this year's camp a real vacation with a purpose for young and old. We learned much by way of experience from last year's camp.

Many already have sent in their pre-registration fee of $2.00 for their reservation for this year. More is still available for youth, and a limited number of reservations can be taken for adults as well. Do not take a chance. Send in your pre-registration at once. Total cost, including room, board and recreation, $10.00. This includes all bedding (sheets, pillow case and blankets). For full particulars, see The Brethren Missionary Herald magazine for June 8th.

Send your registration or for further information to Leo Polman, 3326 South Calhoun Street, Ft. Wayne, Indiana.

A Great Bible Conference in Fort Wayne

The Indiana Brethren Bible Conference held its second gathering in the First Brethren Church at Fort Wayne June 18-20. This is a small conference from the standpoint of number of churches associated with it, but it is not small in blessing. There are just seven churches and three mission points in the conference.

The first day the attendance was not large but after that it grew steadily until the building, which is not a small one, was well filled. Throughout the conference the Eureka Jubilee Singers filled each service with melodies that filled and stirred the heart. The Spirit of God surely uses consecrated music to the glory of the Lord and the blessing of His people.

The Bible teaching was of a very high order. Dr. Harold C. Mason of Winona Lake, Russell D. Barnard, Arthur Carey, Robert Ashman, A. B. Machlin, and R. Paul Miller gave Bible addresses.

An aggressive extension program for the district was approved and several new points were endorsed. This district is surely wide-awake to its opportunities and is determined to make the most of them while there is time.

The name of the conference was changed from "The Indiana Brethren Bible Conference," to "The Central Bible Conference." The place of the conference for meeting in 1941 will be Bethel Church, Berne, Ind., where a royal welcome always awaits visitors. The date was set for June 10-12, 1941. Because of the premature stage of our work the constitution committee did not report a finished draft, so the committee was continued for another year.

That we here reaffirm our historic position to the effect that we as Christians believe that we should not engage in war in any capacity as combatants; that we realize that the nations of the world may feel it necessary to engage in war at times, but because of our heavenly citizenship we as Christians are enjoined not to return evil for evil;

That we here reaffirm our belief that Christians should not go to law with each other as stated in I. Cor. 6:1-8, but that we should rather "take joyfully the despoiling of our goods" (Heb. 10:34);

That this Bible conference be dedicated to the "progress of all local Brethren churches" in our sphere of service "without interfering with congregational control and government" as set forth in the charter of The Brethren Church; and that cooperation in this conference be entirely voluntary on the part of local Brethren churches, understanding that the work of the conference is only advisory as it relates to our local Brethren churches.

"What the Home Missions Council is doing"

ACROSS THE NATION

with our
secretary

THE REVIVAL AT MUNDY'S CORNER

The first meeting that the secretary has held at Mundy's Corner has just closed. This is a country church nine miles northeast of Johnstown. This congregation was once united in a circuit with the Vinco Church. Now each church is independent and going along in a fine way. While the population of the nation has been going cityward for generations and our greatest field is undoubtedly there, yet we must not forget that there are sections where strong country churches can be established and maintained. There are many advantages that the country church has over the city work.

At Mundy's Corner we found a field well prepared. There had been good advertising done and the people of the community were expectant. Good attendance was had on the first night, and the full house greeted us right along except for a couple of stormy nights. The Spirit of the Lord moved among the people from the very first. A favorable and friendly attitude was everywhere. Each night, two prayer meetings were held, one for men and the other for women. These prayer meetings were well attended and were the secret for success.

The spirit of soul winning among the people was fine. The way men sought their friends and won them for Christ and the way young people led others to the Lord was simply great. If these folks continue thus the church building will soon be unable to hold the people who come.

Neighboring churches manifested an excellent spirit of fellowship. Delegations came from Juniata, 35 mi. away, from Conemaugh, 9 mi. away, from Vinco the nearest neighbor, some from the 1st Church of Johnstown, etc. The Franklinboro Mission under the leadership of the Rev. Ray Starr, a minister that has recently come into The Brethren Church from the Evangelical Church, came twice. They brought some fine children's musical features. One day we were pleasantly surprised to have Brother and Sister Lorenz drop in.

We greatly enjoyed these meetings. The people were responsive. A large group of young people dedicated their lives and joined the Brethren Student Life Volunteers in a special service held for young people. The hospitality of these people is second to none. Our home was with the pastor and his bride, the former Harriet Martin. Their new parsonage is now almost completed and we had the privilege of sharing it with them. This parsonage is a tribute to any congregation. Altogether we had a very happy time with Bro. Ken Ashman and his people.

Bro. Ashman, the pastor, has done a most excellent work in this community and is highly respected by his congregation and all others. The hard work that he has put in here is now being rewarded with real success. It is enough to make any pastor's heart glad. The congregation already is in need of a Sunday School addition to their building. There is a real future in this community, for our church really has no competition. There as a big field here and the people are getting a vision of a real future. We expect to see an addition to their building very soon.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S CONFERENCES HAVE BEGUN

Realizing the need of special work among our young people designed to help them in their life problems and in deciding their life work, the Council has finally arranged with Brother and Sister Harold Dunning to hold special young peoples meetings in all of our eastern churches during this coming summer. The meetings have already begun at Listie, Pa., and the early reports are that God is richly blessing this work. We had the opportunity of a conference with Brother and Sister Dunning while we were at Mundy's Corner, and this enabled us to get them started right away. We believe that this work will bring a rich harvest in dedicated lives among our young people.

VINCO, PA.

Our people at Vinco, as all will recall, were forced out of their building with their pastor last winter. They immediately started up again with 40 members, meeting in an old dance pavilion. Now they have a new site and their building operations have already begun. The high point in their Sunday School was reached a short time ago with 117 in attendance. On the last Sunday that we were at Mundy's Corner, Bro. Ord Gehman, pastor at the Vinco church, reported 5 conversions that Sunday and that he baptized 15 that afternoon. God is surely blessing them and they are enjoying peace and prosperity in every way.

WOOSTER, OHIO

After our return from Mundy's Corner it became necessary to make a trip to Wooster, Cleveland and Fremont, all in Ohio. We needed motion pictures of these points in preparation for the secretary's trip to all the churches this fall, in behalf of the swiftly increasing Home Mission fields.

We found Wooster's congregation present bright and early for Sunday School. We lined them all up and took their pictures, and a fine group they made. The people had just completed one coat of brilliant white paint on the exterior of their building, and it looked mighty fine.

The work at Wooster is growing and we noticed that the Sunday school and church had many new faces that we had not observed before. Bro. John Squires is pastor here and is doing careful foundation work. The growth so far has been slow but very promising.

CLEVELAND, OHIO

From Wooster we drove to Cleveland for some more pictures. We arrived just in time to get the folks before they left the morning services. We found an excellent congregation in attendance. We noted especially a new optimism as the result of the increased opportunities that were theirs since obtaining a permanent house of worship. We got a fine snap shot of Rev. and Mrs. Tom Hammers and little Janet.

Rev. and Mrs. Tom Hammers and Janet

Upon our arrival we found the pastor and his young people in the midst of preparations for leaving for Buckeye Young People's Camp. Bro. Hammers is one of the leading figures in the establishment and maintenance of this wonderful young people's work.

We preached for them that Sunday night. We were surprised to find such a fine attendance in view of the tremendous rain storm that came up just before the service started. Cleveland has a new spirit of progress and is now beginning to go forward.

FREMONT PURCHASES GROUND

From Cleveland we drove to Fremont on Monday and met with pastor Phillip Simmons and officers of the new church. We made final arrangements that day for the purchase of the building site for this growing congregation. More will be heard of this work in the very near future.

KENTUCKY CHURCH GOING UP

This has been a hectic week for the secretary. The task of assembling material for this new building and getting it transported to Clayhole, Ky., has been quite exacting, coming as it did just at the time of the Indiana Brethren Bible Conference sessions and at the time that it was necessary to get out the Home Mission Number of The Brethren Missionary Herald. It gave us a busy time.

By the time this is being read, we expect the church building to be completed and all the men who have volunteered to help put it up back home again. We are anticipating a great time together in this good work.

Bro. William Schaffer of Conemaugh has been secured to do the interior finishing since Bro. William Johanson's health would not allow him to go. Bro. Schaffer snapped into action with his characteristic zeal and already has plans set for his work.

Bro. John Leistner, one of the leading members of our Berne church, has offered his truck to haul the mill work and hardware to the church site. The women of the Berne church are sending down foodstuffs to help Sister Landrum with the extra expense of feeding a group of hard working hungry men.

The next issue of the Home Mission Number will carry the account of how it was done in two weeks and what happened. It will be a time of blessing that many will never forget.

FLORA BEGINNING TO BUILD

On Sunday, June 30, the secretary drove to Flora, Ind., for a final conference with the building committee before construction starts. There is a fine group of capable men in this congregation and things are moving right along. In a few weeks we will be showing a new Brethren Church.

AROUND THE COUNCIL TABLE

Greetings to our beloved Brethren:

I have been asked to send in a report of our newly organized Grace Brethren Church at Flora, Ind., which is only six months old, but is quite strong and doing things for our blessed Lord. We are aware that we are not worthy of the rich and manifold blessings He showers upon us, but we do praise Him for them all.

On Jan. 7 we held our first separate services in the basement of the public library. However, the Lord led us very definitely in holding a Bible conference in December in the library basement, and showed us the sweetness of spiritual harmony and fellowship; and thus we were better able to start out in faith on the promises of God, knowing Rom. 8:28 was for us too. We soon had a pastor engaged (Rev. Henry Rempel) and the work has been progressing from every angle.

Some of the first things we did was organize a W.M.C., a Young People's Mission Band, and three Christian Endeavor Societies, which are all growing spiritually and numerically. The prayer meeting service is attended by 30 to 40, and is the only prayer meeting held in town.

R. Paul Miller has been with us twice and delivered two very powerful sermons that are still bringing results. He advised us as to how to proceed with our building plans.

Our Easter offering for Foreign Missions was over $250.00.

Twenty-seven of our members attended the graduation services at Grace Seminary. We are truly thankful the seminary is so near and we have enjoyed a number of students and professors as speakers at various times.

Our membership charter roll is about 80. Our Spring communion service was held recently and well attended.

We believe one of the outstanding services our Lord has blessed us with was our Summer Bible School. We felt led of the Lord, yet our faith was so small, but we put our trust in Him who doeth all things well, and began announcing it through the papers. The first day 2 enrolled and on the last day our enrollment was 107. The highest attendance was 75 and the average 61½. No handwork was used, except for the pre-school age. The Bible or New Testament was carried by nearly every child. The ages were 3 years to 19. One outstanding class was the young people which started with 4 closed with 23, and was taught by Bro. Rempel and Esther Hanna. Other teachers were Violet Dyson, Geneva Clingenpeel, Gladys Fife and Mabel Flora. We feel this is very definitely a step forward in establishing our new church. There were 67 children and young people in the closing service on Friday night, and the room was filled completely with parents and friends.

Flora (Ind.) Daily Vacation Bible School

While our pastor and his bride are honey-mooning, the pulpit, will be filled by Garner Hoyt, R. I. Hum-berd, Professor Hoyt and Homer Hanna.

We are anxiously looking forward to our pastor and his wife's return and are so glad we no longer need to excuse ourselves for saying Mrs. Rempel.

May God's richest blessings rest and abide upon all His dear children until our Lord's return.

MRS. MABEL FLORA,

Flora, Indiana

Excuses The Christian Worker Encounters

(Lk. 14:15-33)

Suggestions for the Leader

Hiding behind excuses is the devil's trick to keep many from salvation. No excuse is great enough to keep one from accepting Christ. The best way to deal with an individual is to set aside the excuse and deal with his need by presenting Scripture. This will accomplish more toward leading a soul to Christ than lengthy arguing about the excuses.

It is better to have a good knowledge of a few Bible verses than to start with too many. Both the worker and the one dealt with may become confused unless proper consideration is given each verse. Successful personal workers have a grasp on information which is to the point. The Bible has an answer to every case. One meeting unusual cases may study them in the light of the Bible and return to be of help. The danger is not that we will run into hard cases, but that we will not try to lead others to Christ. There is a crying need of soul winning in and out of the church. Determine what you will do, being sure the Spirit of God has revealed His will to you.

Excuses fall into classes. They have been the same for years and years. Once we have an idea what excuses to expect, we can detect a man's needs before he finishes his complaint.

1. Indifference. Mt. 22:37-38.

Many are unconscious of their lost condition and feel no need for God because Satan has blinded them. Show them from Scripture that all are sinners and have no hope of heaven apart from Christ (Rom. 3:10-12, 23; Jn. 14:6; Acts 4:12). Through the Scripture the Holy Spirit convicts sinners. Once one admits his need of salvation, he is not far from accepting.

When indifference toward spiritual things causes one to change the subject, insist upon the most important thing in the world personal surrender to the Lord.

2. I am all right. Jn. 3:3-7.

Not many will say they are ready for heaven. They may parade their moral character, but inwardly they know they are sinners. Morality is not enough. The heart is not cleansed unless one comes to Jesus and yields to Him. All have gone astray; not one is righteous; there are no exceptions. Remind the one who claims he is all right that he is living under a false hope. Without the new birth none will enter the kingdom of God.

3. As good as others. Rom. 14:12.

This may be true, but who are the others? The poorest in the church! Those in the church might not be saved! Real salvation is joining the Lord, not joining the church. The man in the church who has the Lord as a precious possession is many times better off than the best moral man in the community that makes no profession of faith. One can not be saved by a life above the average. Salvation belongs to the Lord.

4. Criticize Christians and churches. II Cor. 10:12.

The worker is defeated if the sinner gets him to explain and apologize for the weaknesses of the church and of Christians. Lead the prospect's thought away from others to himself. We may freely admit many professing Christians are not what they profess to be; but ask if the prospect intends to find fault with Christ. We are interested in leading men to Christ, not to follow the example of those condemned by the sinner and the Word of God. To feel the injury with the critic is to weaken the case and open the door for more charges. Bring him to the place where he must talk about Christ and how He lived.

5. The amusement question. II Cor. 5:17.

Refrain from discussing amusements before the unsaved, who say they see no harm in the things of the world. Once one becomes saved the Lord will unmistakably reveal the matter. Hold the sinner to his need of a Savior, and Christ as the answer to all his problems.

6. Expect to gain salvation by doing something.

Many say they are trying to do the best they can. The best we try to do is not enough. God expects more than we are able to do. That is the reason He provided salvation in the Lord Jesus Christ. Man cannot develop a righteousness that pleases God (Isa. 64:6). We gain favor with Him not by trying but by trusting.

Additional Scripture

Jer. 17:9; Rom. 2:1-3; 14:4; Mt. 7:1-5; Jer. 13:23; Jas. 2:10; Rom. 6:23; Acts 17:30-31; Rom. 8:7; 8; I Sam. 16:7; Rom. 2:1-16.

Questions:

1. What is the greatest need of all who make excuses for their lost position?
2. How can we lead people away from comparing themselves with others?
3. What is the use of Scripture in dealing with the lost? Isa. 55:11.
4. Do you think there is another reason back of the excuse that causes people to refuse Christ?
5. What is the advantage of keeping the conversation centered about Christ in dealing with the lost?

Bible Heroes: JOSEPH (Gen. 45:1-5)

Little Jo watched his big, strong brothers get ready to help dad in the field. He had to stay with mother and the girls. They were nice to him, but he wanted to be out with the men. "Can't I go along today?" he asked timidly.

"Aw, you're too little, and besides you haven't had your breakfast," Jim said.

Jo's eyes filled with tears. "Mother, will I be big and strong like Jim and Bill some day." Her eyes were sad as they looked into his eager face. He had never been very strong.

"You're growing up, and going to be a fine young man some day. I don't think you will be quite as big and maybe not quite as strong, but there will be a big place for you to fill. Lots of great men were not big or strong."

"Tell me about it, mother."

"I think you know the story about Joseph in the Bible?"

"O, yes, he was sold into Egypt by his brothers."

"Yes, but before that he was just a little boy too. He had ten big brothers—I suppose all big, strong and rough. Joseph was not so old, or maybe not so strong, so he stayed with his mother and baby brother, Benjamin. Maybe his brothers called him a sissy, but because he was quiet and stayed at home and had the kind of heart and mind that God could use, he began to have dreams and visions of the future. He told his brothers about them, but they mocked him and became very angry, especially when he told about their sheaves bowing before his. They were even more angry when Jacob gave Joseph a coat of many colors, so they planned to kill him.

"One day Jacob sent him out in the fields to see how his brothers were. They were not where they had been, and it was quite a while before he found them. When they saw him coming they said, "Let us kill him," but the oldest, Reuben said, "Let us put him into this pit." He planned to take Joseph out later, but while he was gone the others sold him to men going to Egypt. There he kept himself clean and pure, and didn't do any of the things those heathen people did. Even when he was put in prison he still kept true to God, and God revealed the future again to him when he told the baker and the butler their dreams. Finally because he foretold the great famine, Pharaoh made him head of all the agriculture in the country. Because he was true to God he was given wisdom and courage and power. Maybe he never became big and strong physically like his brothers, but he had more than they. He had the spirit to enable him to forgive them, and do good to his whole family, and save them from famine."

Questions for Discussion

How does Joseph remind you of Christ.
What kind of a person can God use best?

Greetings

FROM THE FIELD

Mundy's Corners, Penna., The Pike Brethren Church, has just concluded a "Victory Revival" with Rev. R. Paul Miller, Secretary of The Home Missions Council, as evangelist. The "Victory Revival" was conducted for two weeks, June 2-16. Brother Miller brought to the Pike Brethren a series of soul-stirring gospel messages. That his preaching was not in vain is evidenced by the visible results of the services. 39 individuals made first time confessions of faith, 34 of whom have already been baptized and accepted into the membership of the Pike church. 5 came seeking membership, having been previously baptized by trine immersion. 109 members of the church made new vows of faith and consecration. This was not a mass movement but was the result of individual decisions for the Lord. Family altars have been started; homes have been reunited; tobacco, liquor, and numerous other sins have been discarded. The Pike church has been greatly strengthened in all ways.

At a special young people's meeting conducted on the closing Sunday of the revival, 26 young men and women signed dedication of life pledges, promising the Master to serve Him in any way that He should desire. These have already been enrolled in the B.S.L.V.

The renewed vigor of the church has made necessary a complete reorganization of the Sunday School. New classes, new teachers, and new procedures were introduced with telling effect on Sunday, July 7. Alterations in the church property were made in order to facilitate this new work. In the very near future the Christian Endeavor will be reorganized in order to broaden its work and influence to all the young people of the church.

At the close of the meeting, the Pike congregation presented unto Brother Miller a love offering totaling exactly $200.00. A word of appreciation is extended to The Herald Press Inc., of Cleveland for their kind assistance in printing and advertising.

EIGHT POUNDS OF NEWS FROM THE KLIEVERS

Bekora par Paoua par Bozoum
Oubangui-Chari, French Equatorial Africa.

May 29, 1940

Dear Friends and loved ones in the Lord,

We know you will rejoice with us in the safe arrival of Donna Marie, a little bundle of joy weighing just eight pounds.

Despite all passport, visa, declarations, and other travel difficulties such as transportation and passage, which all have increased with the war, she got through, arriving at 3:40 A. M. Central European time after giving us just 1 hour and ten minutes notice!

With the loving and tender care of both Dr. Floyd Taber and Mrs. W. Kennedy, all is well and both mother and baby are in the best of condition.

Your prayers and thoughtfulness in our behalf are appreciated beyond that which frail words can convey.

As ever awaiting and expecting the very soon return of our Lord.

IN A HOLLOW PLACE

A mother was once summoned to the police station by the dreadful news: "Your child has been run over!" She hastened to the station house and found her child surrounded by strangers. The sergeant had not yet arrived. She was told that the wheels had passed over his foot, but on examination she found no real injury. She said, "Willie, how could the wagon have passed over your foot and not have crushed it?" The child looked up into his mother's face and said: "Mama, I guess God put it in a hollow place."

Christ does indeed keep His people in a hollow place, while they are amid the evils and confusions of earth. He that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about.—Evan Lena in The Expositor

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

THE COLOR SHE LIKED BEST

By Jack Green

Have you boys and girls ever seen a "Gospel Nut?" I am going to tell you what it is like. It is a walnut with all the goodies taken out and pretty colored ribbons put inside the shell. When we want to tell the story of the Lord Jesus we work it like this:

First we pull out a black ribbon. This tells us of sin and reminds us that we are all sinners. Yes, "all have sinned," and they are black in the sight of the holy God. Now the Bible tells us that sin cannot get into heaven, but God wants every one to be with Him, so He made a way that we can get there.

Then we pull out the bright red ribbon. This reminds us of the blood of the Lord Jesus. This was the way which God made for every one to get to heaven. "God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The Lord died that our sins might be forgiven.

Next we pull out a beautiful, pure, white ribbon. Soap and water will wash away the black dirt on our hands, but it is only the blood of the Lord Jesus that will wash our hearts from black sin. The Bible tells us that "the blood of Jesus Christ makes us clean from all sin." That is the only way we can be "as white as snow."

Now let us pull out the next ribbon. It is a bright green. How pretty it is! It reminds us of the grass, the trees, and things that are growing. We too must grow more like the Lord Jesus every day after He has made us white as snow. We must be kind and sweet, and must obey our mothers and fathers. We can grow by reading God's Word and praying every day.

Last comes the beautiful gold colored ribbon. This tells us of heaven. My, what a wonderful place it must be! If we ever get there it must be because our sins have been washed white in His blood.

One day I was going down where the little colored boys and girls live, to tell them this wonderful story. I came across a group of little black boys and girls who were playing. I called them over and asked them if they would like to hear a story. Of course, all children like stories, so they sat down on the curbing and I began to talk. First I pulled out the black ribbon.

"What color is this?" I asked.

One little girl with her big eyes rolling and her pretty white teeth shining said, "Um, dat's black; dat's mah favorite color."

Funny, wasn't it? Well, that is just the way. This little girl was very certain that the Lord loves black skin but not black hearts, and she was right.

OUR BIBLE CHARACTER ALPHABET

Answer to L: Lot.

M was a princess who married a brave, handsome young man. The king wanted to kill this young man because the people loved him more than they did the king. M saved his life by helping him escape through the window and putting a dummy in his bed to make the guards think he was sick. Find her name and the name of her brave husband in I Sam. 19:9-17.

ARE YOU WEARY?

Lord, when I am weary with toiling,
And burdensome seem Thy commands,
If my load should lead to complaining,
Lord, show me Thy Hands—
Thy nail-pierced Hands, Thy cross-torn Hands,—
My Savior, show me Thy Hands.

Christ, if ever my footsteps falter,
And I be prepared for retreat,
If desert or thorn cause lamenting,
Lord, show me Thy Feet—
Thy bleeding Feet,—Thy nail-scarred Feet,— Lord Jesus, show me Thy Feet.

O God, dare I show Thee
My hands and my feet?

—May Bradley.

All Missionaries

We recently heard a missionary on furlough from his work in South America, speaking on the words: "For whether we be beside ourselves, it is to God" in 2 Cor. 5:13, say that a missionary needs to be a fanatic, in the sense that he must be wholly given over to God. But he further pointed out that when the Christians at home speak in admiration of the entire consecration of missionaries who go out to the foreign fields, they usually fall far short of God's idea in the matter. The command is, "Go ye into all the world," and it is given to every believer. We are all under obligation to the work of world-wide preaching of the gospel. Each one of us should be a fanatic for God, so given over to Him that the world will look upon us as fanatics, will call us mad. Then we can be used of God in the world-wide spread of the gospel message, because we shall be in condition to be used of Him, whether here or abroad.

When God says into all the world, do we take Him at His word? Or do we begin to limit Him? We immediately think of the needy peoples of Africa, Asia and South America; we may even be broad enough in our thinking to include Europe. But do we include the United States, our own home state, perhaps our next door neighbors, or those across the street? God says all the world, and if "the love of Christ constraineth us" it will surely reach out unto them.

So let us continue to admire the consecration of those missionaries whom God has called to the far places, and who have responded by putting their very lives into His hands. At the same time, let us also "present our bodies a living sacrifice" unto God, perhaps then He will in turn call us to a near or distant field; or maybe we shall be used to "stay by the stuff" at home.

Only when we have given ourselves fully to Him can we know that sweet peace which comes when we are in the center of His will. Only then can we function as healthy members of His body, in true co-ordination with our Head in heaven.

Women of the W.M.C.—we are all missionaries!

Our Coming National Bible Conference

When you read this, our national Bible conference will be just one month ahead. We are not prepared as yet to publish a program; but, having seen a rough draft of the program as it is in the making, we can assure you that it will mean a feast of good things, a vast amount of helpful suggestions to take back to your local councils, and of course, much business to be transacted.

In view of all this, may we stress the objectives yet to be reached: the July offering sent to Mrs. Koontz for administrative purposes, the thank offering to be sent in or brought to conference by your delegates, your reports to be sent to Mrs. Andlauer.

Your officers are looking forward to a closing of this first year of our W.M.C. in a time of precious fellowship with each and all of you in the Lord, and to reports which will show a large proportion of our Councils meeting all objectives.

Let us be much in prayer for each other and for the work whereunto the Lord hath called us.

OUT OF THE MAIL BAG

From Grace Brethren Church, Waterloo, Iowa

Have followed the "Out of the Mail Bag" from issue to issue and have enjoyed the information and inspiration from the same very much. Our W.M.C. is a "young group" and has only been organized for about nine months, but has good working accommodations, 28 contributing members, and a zeal for the work of the Lord.

It may be of interest to you to know that in October the land was broken for our new church building, and early in January we held our first meeting in the church. We are now enjoying the capable ministry of Bro. Frank Coleman, Jr. with a thriving congregation whom we pray may be used mightily of the Lord in the salvation of souls.

In our new building we have a room planned and furnished by the ladies where we hold our W.M.C. meetings. Inasmuch as we were late in getting organized we are not going to be able to meet all our objectives successfully. Since being organized we have met regularly, given toward the offering as designated in our objectives, studied the lives of our missionaries and received much good from the Bible study period from the book of Romans.

We feel that the Lord has blessed greatly since the Council was organized, and we ask your prayers for us and for the Waterloo church that we might be faithful in His service until He comes.

MRS. EDWIN J. SCHROCK, Secy.

East Canton District Conference

About a year ago this district became the pioneer in the new alignment, organized fully, and held its first conference. The women of the district withdrew from the National W. M. S. at the same time and formed a district organization. Since then W.M.C. rallies have been held each quarter, and we met again in the second East Central District Conference, held in the First Brethren Church at Canton, O. June 19-21.

The W.M.C. elected officers as follows: President, Mrs. R. E. Gingrich of Ellet, O.; Vice-Pres., Mrs. John Aebly of Middlebranch; Secy-Treas., Mrs. Rogers of Sterling; and Prayer Circle Secy., Mrs. A. Y. Robinson of Canton.

The business sessions were held on the mornings of the 20th and 21st and at each session a Bible lecture was given by Rev. Chas. W. Mayes, pastor of West 10th St. Church, Ashland, and editor of the Brethren Missionary Herald.

We are now looking forward to another district conference in September, as it was decided to change to a fall date instead of spring; and of course to the larger fellowship at National Bible Conference in August.

NEWS FROM THE FOREIGN FIELD

Mrs. Hathaway Shares Her Letters With Us

Mrs. John W. Hathaway, now on furlough and living at Fillmore, Calif., sends some excerpts from her letters to give us first hand information as far as is possible at the present time and under present conditions.

From Sister Kennedy's Letter Dated Mar. 23, 1940

During our absence from the station an epidemic of some kind of meningitis or flu broke out here. The first week it wasn't very serious but after our return it seemed to gain new force. So we have been busy caring for the sick, doing what we could as long as strength permitted. We have had 16 or more on the station, several very severe cases, others not so bad. Two have died, a young man and his wife. Wasn't it nice they could both go together? One baby seemed to be going blind in one eye but the eye is getting better. The baby is rather poorly as yet. The rest have recovered fairly well. Had to take a two day's rest myself but they seemed to be over the worst. There are still several in the villages but strength and time haven't been sufficient to visit all of them. What help we could give has been sent through their brothers.

Our classes have had to be abandoned because of the epidemic. We trust it may soon be over. Some 50 miles from here they say they are burying two or three a day.

Trials and testings have been severe but we praise the Lord and are happy to be busy for Him.

From Brother Sheldon's Letter Dated Apr. 13, 1940

We have been having an epidemic of spinal meningitis in our district and there have been so many deaths. Two boys died on the station and another had it but got over it. Boikete, whom perhaps you remember, died out at a chapel with it last week. In some places chapel services were stopped. We had services outdoors here in small groups and one Sunday we had them meet down in the village. It surely is a terrible plague. We hear that it is at Bekoro now also and some have died of it in the station village. The truck helper, I believe, died of it. It seems to be spreading over quite a territory. It was the son of our water carrier that got it towards the first and he had been up here a couple of days before.

From Sister Foster's Letter Dated Apr. 5, 1940

The spiritual end of the work is going along nicely. Since the New Year we have been able to open five preaching points. One is at Marli, one at Bogongolo, one at Mokounze Kete, a bush village; one at Youngamara, one on the Batangafo road; and one at Marze, a bush village on the busy road to Ft Crampel. I know that most of these names are strange to all of you, but we mention them so that you can pray for the work. Our crowds are not nearly so large on Sundays on the station, but a great many of the Bouca people or people who were staying here have returned to their own posts, and other villages have been moved farther away. Then, too, a great deal of work is being done. The new bridge across the Fafa is taking a lot of men, then an auto road is being built part way to Ft. Crampel on through the bush, and our commander has built a beautiful new dispensary and is now building a nice house for the doctor who will be stationed here within the next few days. We are so thankful that the Bouca people will have a resident doctor. It is so hard to see them sick and have no way of helping them. Among the Christians many have been healed in answer to prayer, but not all are Christians.

We are still in our one room house. The Lord has not opened the way for us to do anything but stay and wait on Him. The Lord is blessing His Word throughout our territory, and we constantly praise Him for every soul that is being saved. The Lord has also raised up five believers who volunteered to go and give forth the good news.

Mrs. Homer A. Kent, Our President, Forwards This Very Interesting Letter From Mrs. Foster, Dated Apr. 8, 1940

Dear Sister Kent and all the women of the W.M.C.

It is a fact that the power of your prayers is being felt in our work. There is much that we could feel concerned about, but the Lord is keeping us in perfect peace. Then too, thus far we have had our every need supplied; though just now supplies are very low in Bangui. And lastly, we are being greatly blessed in the spiritual end of our work. Every week there are those who come and say that they want to walk with the Lord. Many who had professed accepting the Lord before, but who had turned back, are returning confessing their sins and indifference.

Both of us send greetings in the name of the Lord Jesus.

R. FOSTER.

There Is Included a Carbon Copy of a Circular Letter Sent Out The Same Day By Mrs. Foster:

Every morning and evening we praise the Lord for the peace and the quietness about us; and every day we pray for the dear folks throughout Europe, who are in the midst of turmoil. We little know what they are enduring; and the hard part is that we cannot help them except to pray for them. What a menace men like Hitler and Stalin are to the world. We surely do pray the Lord will make a short end of them.

Early this morning I went down to the garden and planted some turnips, lettuce, carrots, okra and spinach. Hope they will all grow. I have been planting potatoes, but it remains to be seen how they will do. I am afraid one place the soil is too wet. I rather think they will be very scarce this year; because more and more the white people have need of them. No doubt if the war keeps on, food will become more and more scarce. One can make out if it is possible to get flour, potatoes and a few other necessities; especially if one has a good garden. So please pray that the Lord will bless our gardens this year above all other years; also that our seeds will get here that we ordered from home. With so many ships being sunk, one never knows but it is the one that has our packages or mail of some kind or other. So pray concerning the shipping of supplies for Africa that they may reach here safely. We never realize how dependent we are upon the rest of the world for our food until the supply is cut off.

Last evening at the service a woman gave a very wonderful testimony. She said that she was going along the road carrying food to her husband who with a group of others had gone after bamboo. She was all alone on the path, when a lion came out of the grass. At first she was terribly frightened but she made a loud noise and the beast turned off into the brush again. But night was coming on and she had nowhere to sleep only in an old house that had been abandoned by people who were compelled to move to the road. Before she lay down to sleep, she prayed and gave herself into the hands of the Lord, then she covered her head with her dress and went to sleep. She said she did not know whether the lion would find her or not, but she knew the strength of the Lord was greater than all the lions in Africa. In the morning she wakened and praised the Lord for having kept her. She again followed the path of the previous day, and had not gone far when another or the same lion came out of the bush again. This time he was more persistent and followed her quite some distance. Finally she met a man, but instead of him being a help to her, he offered to take her to her husband only on the promise that she would repay him with her body, which she refused to do. The lion disappeared into the bush again when he saw more than one person and without further molestation she reached her husband safely. Perhaps some people will not credit her story but lions are becoming a terror to the people. A few weeks ago one killed and dragged a woman out of her house into the bush. This happened on the road between Bouca and Bossongoa. The past few years they have been a terror to the people on that road. This woman gave all the praise to God for having arrived home safely after such a harrassing experience. We are so glad that they are learning to give God the praise. It shows growth in their Christian life and experience. Pray for these "babes in Christ."

The Message of the Prophet Habakkuk

By Harold L. Dunning, Missionary Candidate to Africa

Habakkuk means "to embrace," and is very characteristic of that prophet's chief characteristic. For, while little or nothing is known about him personally, yet as we examine what we do know, he, among all the prophets, seems to have a peculiar zeal and affection for the Lord above them all. He seems to stand forth among them as John among the Lord's disciples.

This great love for the Lord is evidenced by his jealousy for the holy reputation of God. "He alone of all the prophets was more concerned that the holiness of Jehovah should be vindicated than that Israel should escape chastisement." To him the retainment of God's holy name was the most vital of all things. What a lesson we might take from this prophet—we, who confess love for the Lord Jesus Christ! About which are we more concerned: our own satisfaction, or His holy reputation among the sons of men?

However, while we do not know so much about this prophet, we do have from his pen this most interesting and vital book. For, while this book is a small treatise of only three short chapters, it contains a most vital message. Its importance is brought out forcefully when we consider the condition of the prophet before he received this revelation, and also after he received it. Note chapter 1, verses 1-2.

"The burden which Habakkuk the prophet did see.
O Lord, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear!
Even cry unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save!"

The contrast is very apparent. Note now 3:17-19.

"Although the fig tree shall not blossom,
Neither shall fruit be in the vines;
The labor of the olive shall fail,
And the fields shall yield no meat;
The flock shall be cut off from the fold,
And there shall be no herd in the stalls;
Yet will I rejoice in the Lord,
I will joy in the God of my salvation.
The Lord God is my strength,
And he will make my feet like hinds' feet,
And will make me to walk upon mine high places."

From the first two verses we hear the voice of one weeping, and from these last verses, the prophet's rejoicing. In one place we hear the sob of tears, and in the other, the note of music. One place has the cry of sorrow, the other, the clarion note of singing. In the one place we see the prophet prostrate with trouble, and in the other he is dancing for joy. Before he receives this message we hear him offering a severe, though humble, complaint; and after the message, we hear him offer one of the greatest confessions of faith written in the Holy Scriptures. What produces such a change? What worked this remarkable and much to be desired change in this man? It was the message written in this little book; and if you and I can but grasp that message today and appropriate it into our lives, it will reproduce the same fruit in us. Here is the message that will change tears to laughter, and sighing to singing. Therefore, let us carefully examine it.

Harold

This book falls into three natural analytical divisions which are identical with the chapter divisions. In chap. 1, we have the perplexity of the prophet unfolded; in chap. 2, we have the promise and admonition of Jehovah given; and finally, in chap. 3, we have the prayer of the enlightened prophet. Let us rather carefully consider each one of these, for they each contribute something towards bringing out in this message that which effects such a marvelous reverse in the prophet.

The Perplexity of the Prophet (Chap. 1).

This perplexity is revealed in two complaints made to Jehovah by the man of God. The first complaint is registered in v. 1-4. We must remember in reading this that it is not the complaint of a God-hating infidel, but rather, the honest expression of the troubled mind of a lover of God. Look at these verses:

"O Lord, how long shall I cry, and thou wilt not hear!
Even cry unto thee of violence, and thou wilt not save!
Why dost thou show me iniquity, and cause me to behold violence?"

For spoiling and violence are before me:
And there is strife, and contention riseth up.
Therefore the law is slackened,
And judgment goeth not forth unto victory,
For the wicked doth compass about the righteous;
Therefore judgment goeth forth perverted."

Hab. 1:1-4 (part R.V. Also fit.

The complaint is that sin and corruption has permeated the whole nation of Jehovah's chosen people. The prophet lived and wrote about the days of kings Jehoahaz and Jehoiakim, who were the successors following Josiah. But this revival seemed to be superficial, for, upon the death of its leader, Josiah, the nation rapidly recurred to the old paths of lawlessness and spiritual adultery. Habakkuk saw the newly recovered law scoffed at and perverted. He saw the priests of the temple debauch themselves in new revels of iniquity, and the nation go lusting after other gods. Sin was open, and the sensitive conscience of this man of God was offended at every turn of the way. He saw the weak treated violently and the poor spoiled even in their poverty.

As we examine this carefully, we also see a note of personal complaint, for, it seems as though the prophet was feeling the lash of the sinners' scoff and criticism of him.

The thing that troubled him most, though, was that the Holy One of Israel, beholding all this corruption and injustice, seemingly was doing nothing about it. The One Whom he loved and Whose holiness he held in great respect seemed to look on without wrath and without rendering unto these sinners judgment for their sin. As he saw the righteous suffering and the wicked prospering, he asked the question that has been in our hearts so often. How can the holy God view all this and not punish these great sinners?

Immediately God answers him. Look at this answer, v. 5. "Behold among the heathen, and regard, and wonder marvelously." It is as though he said, "Habakkuk, you are limiting your vision and therefore you can't see and are perplexed. You look only at Israel and all her abominations. Look further, lift your eyes and gaze at the movements among the heathen Gentiles."

"Behold among the heathen, and regard and wonder marvelously:

For I will work a work in your days,
Which you will not believe,
Though it be told you.
For, lo, I raise up the Chaldeans, that bitter and hasty nation,
Which shall march through the breadth of the land,
To possess the dwelling places that are not theirs.
They are terrible and dreadful,
Their judgment and their dignity proceed from themselves.
Their horses are swifter than leopards,
And are more fierce than the evening wolves,
Their horsemen shall bear themselves proudly,
Their horsemen shall come from far;
They fly as an eagle that hasteth to devour.
They shall come, all of them for violence:
Their faces are set eagerly toward the east
And they shall gather captives as the sand.
And they shall scoff at the kings,
And princes shall be a scorn unto them:
They shall deride every strong hold;
For they shall heap up dust, and take it.
Then shall his mind change,
And he shall transgress and offend:
Even he whose might is his god."

In so many words Jehovah told the prophet, "I am working. I am not sitting back tolerantly in face of all this continued evil. I who hold the reigns of the nations (and it is good to remember that while Hitler and Mussolini dance so proudly in Europe that their reigns are ultimately in the hands of the Holy and Just One) I am about to launch a work that you would not believe even though I draw you a picture of it. I have raised up an avenger to judge Israel for her treatment of my law and my holy name. I have filled the heart of the Chaldeans with choler against this debauched people, and they with all their military pomp and power will devastate this land and avenge my name against this people." Thus Jehovah answers his prophet's complaint.

However, before we leave this answer of Jehovah, it may be interesting to note its prophetic significance. Of truth, the Lord is speaking here of historic Babylon and her invasion of Israel under Nebuchadnezzar. But if you will look carefully at this passage, I believe you will discover many things which will lead you to believe that, primarily, the Lord was speaking of another invasion of Israel—an invasion yet to come. It is the invasion which will take place when the antichrist will lead the host of anti-semitic hatred up to the gates of Jerusalem in the day of Jacob's trouble, and there seek to wipe the chosen nation from the face of the earth.

It is interesting to note that the Revised Version changes the third person plural of v. 7-10 to correspond with the pronoun used in v. 11, the third person singular. This makes the passage read:

"He is terrible and dreadful
His judgment and his dignity shall proceed from himself,"
Vs. 8 "His horses....his horsemen...."
Vs. 9 "He shall come....his face....he shall gather...."
Vs. 10 "He shall scoff....etc."

This seems to hint that this whole invasion hinges around one certain person.

True, this one person could have been Nebuchadnezzar, but note again that the imagery used to describe this nation and its invasion is very significant in the light of Dan. 7. There we see that Babylon is referred to as a lion with eagle's wings, Medio-Persia as a bear, Greece as a leopard, and Rome as a dreadful and terrible beast. Looking at the imagery of this invading host, we see the eagle and leopard referred to in v. 8, and the dreadful and terrible beast referred to in v. 7. Hence, it seems hardly right to conclude that this is any one of these historical kingdoms, but rather, a composite picture of them all. If we had the time we could investigate Rev. 13 where the beast out of the sea proves to be just such a composite. For, that great empire that will rise under the domination of the antichrist shall incorporate all of these kingdoms within its dominion.

Then again, in the light of a translation of that difficult v. 11 in R. V., and especially the translation given by Grotius, which reads, "His power is his own as one who is a god to himself," it is very interesting to compare II Thess. 2:4 where we read of the coming beast, the antichrist.

"Who opposeth and exalteth himself above all that is called God, or that is worshipped; so that he as God sitteth in the temple of God, showing himself that he is God."

Hence, if the time were but ours to examine this passage more carefully, we would see that the eye of prophecy here transcends the invasion of Babylon and the historic judgment of God upon Israel. It views the final work of chastisement upon Israel when the beast and his hosts shall seek to blot off the earth the chosen nation of God, which shall be saved only by the appearance of the Lamb coming with His glorified and militant church in clouds of glory.

THE UNVEILING OF JESUS CHRIST

An Exposition of Revelation 7

In the kingdom age there will be no nations as we know them today, for they will be dashed in pieces as a potters vessel (Ps. 2). The Gentile nations will become "like the chaff of the summer threshing floor" and pass into oblivion (Dan. 2:35). The kingdom of our Lord must fill the whole world and the law of the whole earth must go out from Zion.

The Innumerable Company

"After this I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations—stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands" (v. 9).

As this company of Israelites thus appear upon the scene in the interest of the God of heaven, it will bring fearful persecution. They will be hungry, thirsty, lonely, in need of clothing, become sick and be cast into prison (Mt. 25). There is no mistaking their identity; their mark is in their forehead. To persecute them is to persecute their Lord; to love them is to love their King.

We do not know how long their ministry will last, but an innumerable company of every nation under heaven will hear and turn to the Lord. They will stand before the throne, clothed in white raiment and have palms in their hands.

White robes stand for divine approval and unspotted righteousness through the blood of the Lamb. Palms bring to our mind joy and victory. Though their faith meant death, it was a victorious death and now with unmingled joy they cry "Salvation unto our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb" (v. 10).

There are those who would have us believe we are saved by our own good works plus Christ's death; others tell us that we are saved by Christ but must keep ourselves saved by our good behavior. But here in heaven the honor for our salvation is all accredited to God and the Lamb.

As these shouts from the white robed multitude vibrate about the throne, another company takes up the strain and echoes back in blessing and glory and honor "unto our God for ever and ever" (vs. 11, 12). It is the voice of all the angels.

Unselfish Angels

We may well marvel at their unselfish interest. There is not a selfish note in all their praise. Ages and ages ago these mighty sons of God stood by as their Creator formed the sun and moon and threw out in boundless space the stars and constellations.

The foundations of our earth are in the sun, and our sun is anchored to another sun and on and on. Thus God laid the foundations of our earth when He created the material universe. It was when God thus displayed His unlimited power that "all the sons of God shouted for joy" (Job 38:7).

But one time evil entered among the heavenly host and many sinned. Many of these great and shining sons of light marred their glory, tarnished their crowns and spotted their garments. "God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell" (2 Pet. 2:4). As far as we know, there was no offer of salvation to sinning angels. But here are all the angels about the throne; angels that saw their own kind cast down to hell, but here they are rejoicing at the salvation of sinful men.

Comfort and Assurance

"And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, These that are arrayed in white robes, who are they, and whence came they? And I say unto him, My lord, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they that come out of the great tribulation, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb" (v. 13, 14, R.V.).

Here we have one of the many times where our Lord stops to give comfort and assurance before revealing some fearful judgment. Although this great innumerable company comes up out of the great tribulation, yet we see them safe and in heaven before that fearful time comes upon the earth. For although we are in Daniel's 70th week, it is in the last half of that week that the great tribulation runs its course.

Safe For Evermore

Life was not easy for them as they played their part in life's brief drama. They were put through great distress as the dogs of hell hounded their every step. They were starved and scorched and burnt, but now they are safe and their sorrows are over forever. "They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more, neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them into living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes" (v. 16, 17).

To be free from sin; to be clothed in spotless purity; to know that all is well for eternity; this fills the deepest wish and longing of the child of God. Never again will tears dim those eyes nor a sigh escape those lips. Verily, what boundless and untold joys await those who love the Lord.

Yet shall it be, I know it shall:

All things are possible to me."—C. Wesley.

LETTERS TO A COUSIN

By Art

So far we have not printed the name of the writer of these splendid letters featuring precious truths about the Christian life. We feel now that it is time to identify him as our pastor at Clayton, Ohio, Rev. A. D. Cashman.—Editor

Dear Cousin Bert:

I am glad that you wrote to me concerning your experiences at the Christian Endeavor convention you attended the other week end. You must be in one of those few counties where the leadership in that organization still speaks out boldly against worldliness and encourages godly living. Those illustrations like the "fishing frog and the deceitfulness of sin" you wrote about in your letter will remain with many of those young people for a long time. I remember one I heard in such a convention about a kind of eagle which is bold enough to attack a seal. It will swoop down and suddenly fix its claws into the flesh, and by the strength of its wings, pull the seal to shore. But sometimes the seal is too strong for the eagle, and not being able to let go its hold it is dragged down under the water and is drowned. Then the speaker pointed out how often people lay hold of sinful pleasures, expecting to master them, but are overcome by them. Their heart's affections are so fixed on them, and settled in them, that they cannot let go, and are dragged down into the perdition that drowns men's souls.

I believe it was at a Sunday School convention where I heard about jellyfish pleasures. The speaker was telling how harmless looking the jellyfish is, but how deadly in character. He related how small fish seemed to delight in the sheltering folds of its seemingly soft and tender tentacles, but in a little while they become paralysed, captured and devoured. Then he said, "Jellyfish pleasures are swimming about in abundance in the sea of human life. Strong drink is the name of one of them; gambling, the giddy dance, the modern theatre and the love of money are others." And then he appealed to us to avoid these jellyfish temptations as we would a monster jellyfish while bathing in the ocean.

I just read an interesting illustration along this line the other day. It may be that you will want to use it sometime in a talk on this subject, so I will pass it on to you. "When the piercing eye of the rattlesnake is fixed upon its prey, terror and amazement render it incapable of escaping; and while involuntarily keeping its eyes fixed on those of the reptile, it has been seen to drop into the mouth of the rattlesnake as if paralyzed. Just so, many young people in like manner fall helplessly into the destructive jaws of sin, because they keep looking at it until its fascinating eye overcomes them."

Doesn't it just grieve you, Bert, to see so many young people ignore every warning and defy every spiritual and moral law to gratify a carnal appetite? It is especially distressing when we see it being done by supposedly Christian young folk who should know better. Yet we must be careful ourselves, and it is a sort of safeguard to us while we are giving warning to others. Have you ever noticed how Heb. 3:12, 13 reads? "Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God. But exhort one another daily, while it is called today; lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin."

Don't you believe what that chap with whom you roomed said about your conduct not making any difference, just so you are saved when the Lord comes. It does make a difference, and it fits right into the theme we have been discussing, because His return is an aid to being ready. I am recording here what is recorded in 1 Jn. 3:2,3: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is. And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as He is pure." In Eph. 5:27 Paul tells us that Christ wants to present the church, His bride, to Himself, "not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." A young woman in love with a young man, who is to be her bridegroom shortly, is not going to permit herself to flirt with someone else, especially not with one beneath her standing. There are those who will do that very thing if they think they may not see the other lover for many years to come. Yes, Bert, we should expect Him at any moment these days when so many Scriptures are being fulfilled that must immediately precede His appearing; and let us so live by His grace that "when He shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed at His coming" (1 Jn. 2:28).

Yours in the blessed Hope,

The One Key to Scripture

STUDIES IN THE HEBREW EPISTLE

"Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have Eternal Life; and they are they which testify of me"—John 5:39.

STUDY No. II — Chapter III — By ORD GEHMAN

The chapter before us begins with "wherefore," which stands as a connecting link between the first two chapters and the one which is immediately to follow. Because of God's final and complete revelation through His Son, by which we are made partakers of the heavenly calling, our attention is invited to the consideration of the Apostle and High Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ. We note here a very fine and clear distinction labeling those who belong to the Lord Jesus Christ.

First of all, there is a reference to "holy brethren." By sounding the depths of the meaning of these two words as they are here used in conjunction the one with the other, we find a world of rich and fruitful significance. So many of God's children seem so ready to "shy at" His Word today when someone suggests the Biblical admonition of a holy and separated walk before God. Both Testaments are filled with a plea repeatedly used for a holy and a separated walk before God on the part of His children. A holy life before God means a life of consecration, separation, and sacrifice. Not only does this verse suggest a holy life, but being truly brethren is involved. It is my conviction that these two words cannot be divorced. If the lives of God's children are marked by a "holy conversation" (II Pet. 3:11), and a holy attitude toward His creation, then we will all be "brethren." If we are truly brethren in the Biblical significance of the word, then our very lives will be marked by a holy walk with one another and with God.

In the second place, v. 1 calls our attention to the profound fact that we are "partakers of the heavenly calling." "Our conversation (citizenship as one version puts it) is in heaven," writes Paul to the Philippians. No greater glory could possibly come to the regenerated heart than that we are made partakers of this heavenly calling. When we consider that God has vouchsafed to erring and rebellious human-kind such a marvelous revelation of His will for man, we cannot but be made more humble and gracious before His sovereign will, not awaiting some far-removed day in a promised future when we shall be made partakers of the heavenly calling in Christ Jesus, but now are fellow-heirs of God's grace with the Son. No more tremendous responsibility could possibly befall God's saints. Does this make for careless living in Christian experience? Emphatically no! In my brief pastoral experience it has been my observation that no truth of God's Word tends to keep His children as true to Him as does this. Think of it! "Holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling." "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when He shall appear, we shall be like Him; for we shall see Him as He is" (1 Jn. 3:2).

On the basis of this revelation of God's will, the first consideration in our lives is to be Jesus Christ: no longer our human alibis, but His will in our hearts; no longer our Whys?" and "Buts" — only a sweet submission to the High Priest of our profession, Jesus Christ; no greater demand placed upon the Christian heart; only His will. The very sphere of our profession is centered in Christ Jesus, the Lord of glory; the central figure of God's Word; the great Stabilizer of God's children before Him.

Our minds are attracted to a consideration of Christ Jesus. We notice the faithfulness of the Lord Jesus. He came into the world to fulfil the Father's will. A comparison is drawn between Christ and Moses. Moses was faithful as a servant in the house of God in giving the testimony of those things which were to come. But Christ came as a Son faithful to the Father's will over His own house. Moses was true to God in presenting those things which pointed to the Lord Jesus in His coming into the world to fulfil all the sacrificial system of the Old Testament. Christ came as God's fulfilment of the things Moses had expressed beforehand. Christ came to establish His house, Whose house we are.

The Holy Spirit reminds our hearts here that the expressed proof of our eternal salvation comes in our lives of patient confidence and rejoicing hope firm unto the end. Two great doctrines of God's Word regarding the Christian life, greatly misunderstood and misapplied are herein contained. I refer to God's part of man's salvation, and man's part. On God's side comes preservation; on man's side comes perseverance. These two great truths can never be divorced the one from the other. God preserves, praise His holy and adorable name! Man perseveres, blessed responsibility! In the steadied Christian life there is always a perfect balance between these two marvelous truths. They are not the same, as some have supposed, yet they are very closely inter-related in their application in our Christian experience.

"Were these things taught in the Old Testament?" many will ask. We can answer in the affirmative. It is the writer's firm conviction, based upon God's Word, that no one was ever saved, is now saved, or will ever be saved, apart from the grace of a Sovereign God. Salvation by grace is taught in the New Testament, but it is taught in the Old Testament as well. Going back to Israel's wilderness experiences, we see God's grace and judgment applied. The same gracious invitation was extended: "Today if ye will hear His voice . . . ." God was not displeased with those who did hear His voice, but with those who did not hear-ken and their hearts were hardened.

A warning comes forth from the Holy Spirit regarding the deceitfulness of sin. Sin is so delusive. We have become inclined to catalogue sin in our thinking as to its extent and effect. But let us remember, brethren, "Sin is any transgression of the law of God." The Christian's question should not be, "How much will this effect my Christian experience?" but "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" Paul taught, "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" (1 Cor. 10:31). This becomes the Christian's criterion of conduct.

How prone we are to forget all that God has spoken for our admonition and good and for His glory. An entrance into the blessings of God is promised to God's children who, in simple, childlike faith, place every trust in Him and His Word. The sin question is very vital in the lives of God's children. Unconfessed sin is exceedingly detrimental, but "if we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness" (1 Jn. 1:9).

"Nevertheless the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, 'The Lord knoweth them that are His.' And, 'Let every one that nameth the name of Christ depart from iniquity'" (2 Tim. 2:19).

FAITHFULNESS

By V. C. Kelford

Across my path, dear Lord, I see
The shadows of eternity.
Fast passing years their tale have told,
A few the sheaves my arms enfold.
But O, dear Lord, how sweet to know
Thy judgments, not as man's below.
The ground of Thy dear, sweet caress
Is not "how much?" but "faithfulness."

THINK IT OVER

Every Mohammedan regards himself as a missionary. The majority of Christians regard it as another man's work. Can the Christian faith mean less to the Christian than Mohammedanism does to a Mohammedan?

Adam as a Type of Christ

(Romans 5:1-14)

Suggestions for the Leader

Typology is a study that is interesting and extremely helpful to Bible students. Many persons and things pointed to another which would be greater and that would come in the future. It is one of those things that ties the two Testaments together.

No type is perfect. Sooner or later every type breaks down. Nevertheless we have beautiful and nearly complete types of Christ that tell us in a new way His characteristics.

Seldom do we guess in our study. The Bible actually tells us that Adam was a type of Christ. He is the best O. T. type concerning headship. He is also the contrasting type, being absolutely different in other respects.

1. Adam was created in the image and likeness of God.

"So God created man in His own image" (Gen. 1:26, 27). Adam soon lost his resemblance to God and became ungodly.

Christ is the exact and eternal revelation of God, "the image of the invisible God" (Col. 1:15), "the express image of His person" (Heb. 1:3; Phil. 2:6). "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (Jn. 14:9).

2. Adam was created to be God's companion.

"After our likeness (Gen. 1:26), that is to say, in interests as well as appearance. But see how he hid himself (Gen. 3:8) and was driven out (3:24). Here is broken fellowship.

Christ has always been God's companion. He thought it not robbery to be equal with God (Phil. 2:6). He was in the beginning with God (Jn. 1:2). He had glory with the Father before the world was (Jn. 17:5).

3. Adam was formed of the earth and was earthy.

He was made of the dust of the ground (Gen. 2:7); Of the earth (1 Cor. 15:47).

Christ was the Lord from heaven and not from the earth. "I proceeded forth and came from God" (Jn. 8:23, 42). "A body hast Thou prepared Me" (Heb. 10:5). "The second man is the Lord from heaven" (1 Cor. 15:45).

4. Adam received his life from God.

"Breathed into his nostrils the breath of life" (Gen. 2:7).

Christ is Himself the life of God. "He that hath the Son hath life" (1 Jn. 5:12). "Last Adam . . . a quickening spirit" (1 Cor. 15:45).

5. Adam was given a world-wide dominion.

"God said . . . Have dominion . . . every living thing" (Gen. 1:28). "I have given you every herb . . . tree" (1:29).

Christ as a man exercised this authority: in the animal kingdom (Mt. 17:27; Mk. 11:2, 7-10) and in the vegetable kingdom (Mt. 21:18-19). Even the elements obeyed His will (Mt. 8:26, 27).

6. Adam lost his great authority.

The ground was cursed; thorns and thistles came (Gen. 3:17-18). "So He drove out the man" (Gen. 3:24).

Christ shall forever retain and increase his domain. Of the increase . . . there shall be no end" (Isa. 9:7; 35:1,2,7; Amos 9:13).

Questions

1. In what ways was Adam like Christ?
2. In what ways was Adam unlike Christ?
3. What is the difference between our relation to the first Adam and the last Adam? I Cor. 15:22.
4. How did Christ regain all that Adam lost?

Junior-Intermediate C.E. Topic for Aug. 11, 1940*THE LITTLE MAID — II Ki. 5:1-15

The little slave maid in the house of Naaman the Syrian awoke. The Syrians had swept down upon her father's village, and destroyed it, and carried away all those young men and girls who had not fled. She felt again that fear that had come over her when she had heard the hoof beats of the horsemen and the cries of the helpless people. Syria was a beautiful country, but it wasn't home.

As she lay there thinking, she seemed to feel that she should witness to her God even in this hard place. So she arose and went to her mistress. She found her mistress weeping. "Oh, my little maid," she sobbed, "My lord Naaman has the dread disease, leprosy. O, what shall I do?"

She said to her mistress, "Would God my lord were with the prophet in Samaria, for he would recover him of his leprosy." Her mistress told her husband and he told the king. The king was very much interested, for Naaman was captain of his hosts. The king said, "We will send a letter with gifts to the king of Israel, and you shall be healed."

The king of Israel was not a godly man, and thought the king of Syria was trying to pick a quarrel with him, for he could not heal Naaman. But when

Elisha heard of it he sent word that Naaman should come to him. So he went down with his horses and his gifts, and stood at the door of Elisha's house. Only a servant came out and said, "Go and wash in the Jordan seven times and thy flesh shall come again to thee, and thou shalt be clean."

Naaman said, "Where is the prophet? Why doesn't he come out and talk to me, and do some great thing for me? I am a great man, and he sends his servant out to talk to me." He was very angry. "Why, the waters of our own rivers in Damascus are much better than this muddy little stream, Jordan." He started to go home. But one of his servants said, "My father, if the prophet had bid thee to do some great thing wouldst thou not have done it? How much rather then when he saith to thee, 'wash and be clean'."

Naaman looked at himself and saw the effects of the terrible disease, and then at his servant, and felt very humble. He went and dipped himself seven times in the Jordan and he was cleansed and healed. Then he came back to Elisha who saw him this time, and he acknowledged Jehovah to be the only God. He wanted to give his gifts to Elisha, but Elisha refused them.

Naaman then went home. Even afar off his wife could see how happy he was and knew he was healed. He said, "I am not only healed of my leprosy, but I know now that Jehovah, the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, is the one true God."

The little maid was so very happy. In the midst of sadness and trial she had been used of God to be a witness to Him.

C. E. NEWS FROM PERU, IND. SENIORS

Greetings to Brethren Christian Endeavorers:

The Senior C. E. of Peru, Ind., wishes to greet you all in the name of the Lord. Altho you may not have heard from us lately, we have not been silent in our work "for Christ and the church." We have had many good times in Christian fellowship in our programs, prayer meetings, and social gatherings.

Some of our programs have been in the form of discussions with topics and others with special speakers. We were privileged to have Prof. Sandy of Grace Seminary as one of our speakers. On another Sunday our senior group and the adult group united and Prof. Hoyt also of the Seminary was the speaker. Another program was planned around the lives of Rev. & Mrs. Robert Williams, missionaries to Africa. Mrs. Williams formerly lived a few miles south of Peru and this made the meeting more interesting to us all. We had a program in which the Holy Spirit was the leader and the Bible the text book. It was announced as a night school. Our Quiet Hour meeting was on one of the consecration meeting nights. All the chairs were placed in a circle about an imitation fire. Aside from the fire, candles for the leader and pianist were the only other lights while the topics were given and choruses sung by the group. We are using the topics as prepared by our National C. E. Topic Editor in The Brethren Missionary Herald.

The social and recreational part of our C. E. program included the following. We had a "hare and hound chase" in which our pastor, Rev. Ashman, and two other members of the society were the hares. They laid a trail out into the country with paper, and some blind trails too. Then the rest of the members and friends led by Mr. Gilbert, one of our C. E. sponsors, led the hounds following the trail. Darkness overtook the hounds but at the end of the trail an open air feast of steak sandwiches, fried potatoes, salad etc, was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Of course we had a hallowe'en party, and a snowball party using suggestions from the Herald.

We conducted a service at the County Home. An evening of singing Christmas carols took us to many homes and to the two hospitals here. At the places where we sang where there were sick folks, we also left them a box of fruit and nuts. We were rewarded for our efforts at most places with something to eat, and we had real fun in seeing those shut-ins' faces lighten up when we sang to them.

Altho we had a great time in our social events we had far richer times in seeing two young ladies accept Christ for the first time because of the efforts of some one of the Senior Endeavorers. Several other Endeavorers rededicated their lives during the year. With these brief items of C. E. news from Peru we say farewell for the present.

We feel that we have had a successful year in Senior C. E. but do not feel that there is no more to be done. We have quite a number of young people in our Sunday School whom we are trying to interest in C. E. and Christ, for after all the real purpose of C. E. is to bring others to Christ.

As I am writing this report we are working on final plans for a "Holy Land Cruise" Contest to continue from July 7th until one group arrives in Jerusalem.

So we close with best wishes to all.

In His Service,

MADELYN COMERFORD, Sec.

AN INVALID'S TESTIMONY

(Reprinted from the King's Business)

Every one needs to work in order to remain normal, and it is such a comfort that none of us are too ill to know the joy of accomplishment, the opportunity to win crowns, sheaves to lay at the feet of the Lord of harvest. Years ago I was reading the Bible to a little boy of nine who had recently given his heart to Christ. He had had no Christian up-bringing, and thus the truth of the Word of God was all new to him. I found that he caught the marvel of it in a way that shamed me at times. I was explaining about the five kinds of rewards, and read to him the verse: "Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness . . ."

His eyes grew bigger and bigger, and at last he fairly gasped, "Oh, are there going to be crowns too? I should think it would be enough just to save our souls!"

There is so much we who are the Lord's can do. I have long had the habit of praying for those whose stories of sin and sorrow are spread all over the pages of our newspapers, even for the murderers awaiting execution. And of course, I pray for all Christian work and workers everywhere.

Then there is that very quiet work of grace. All summer I have thrilled to a miracle in our back yard. We had a sapling fig tree, only knee high. We poured on the water, and it drank it in and spread its little branches to catch the sunshine. I took such pride in it and would stroke its straight strong trunk and limbs so unlike my twisted body. It grew so quietly, never a sound or a stir, yet now it is six feet tall, and this fall gave us largess of gifts, great fat figs bursting with their own sweetness. So we, on quiet beds of pain, may drink in His Word, and open our hearts to His Holy Spirit until we too bear fruit.

It is such a blessing to know that God makes no mistakes, that this illness is not something that just happened to me. "Shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He hath no understanding?" No, the enduring is mine, to be sure, but the responsibility for it is entirely His, and what a difference that makes! Nothing can even touch the child of God without His permissive will. It is not necessary for me to know the reasons, for they are safe with our dear Lord, "in whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge."

I am no wise theologian, but I have thought that surely God will be glad when this is all over and He will no longer have to watch His children suffer, when all tears will be wiped from our eyes, and a song put upon our lips. Until then cannot we "endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ," and spare Him the sound of our wailing?

HERE AND THERE

By Robert Culver

The Grace Brethren Church of Waterloo, Ia. enjoyed the ministry of Prof. Herman A. Hoyt July 15-17. A Daily Vacation Bible School has just been closed which had an enrollment of 170 pupils and staff with an average attendance of 104.

The heads of four different schools of Christian learning have recently ministered in the First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif. They were as follows: Dr. Wallace Emerson, Pres. Westmont Bible College, Los Angeles, Calif; and Dr. Louis T. Talbot, Pres. Bible Institute of Los Angeles, both of whom spoke June 16; Dr. Alva J. McClain, Pres. Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind., June 23-26; and Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer, Pres. Dallas Theological Seminary, Dallas, Texas, July 1-3.

The Most recent Long Beach (Calif.) C. E. Bulletin speaks well for Brethren Christian Endeavor in that district. According to this bulletin, of the 15 churches in the District Union, almost half the membership comes from the First and Second Brethren Churches of Long Beach.

Dr. V. C. Kelford, member of our Fort Wayne, Ind. Church, is the new dean of Florida Bible Institute at Tampa, Florida. With Dr. Kenneth Monroe, Dean of Bible Institute of Los Angeles, this makes two deans of well-known Bible Institutes from among our Brethren men.

The East Central District Mission Board met at the Rittman church July 14. Pastors present were L. L. Grubb, C. W. Mayes, S. M. Justice, R. D. Culver, R. E. Gingrich, Wayne Baker. Lay members of the board present were John Guthrie, Floyd Moine, Edmund Hastings, and another good brother from Ellet, Ohio whose name the writer just can't recall. The afternoon was spent in discussing business concerning district mission work at established and prospective points.

The Pike Brethren Church, (Penna.) of which Bro. Kenneth Ashman is pastor, had the best attended communion service in its history July 7, with 146 present. Over the period of the last three Sundays there have been over 30 baptisms. July 7, 24 new members were received into the church. On the same day was Sunday School reorganization with 199 present. This church is sponsoring its own young people's camp again this year, Aug. 13-18. Visitors and outside registrations are welcome at $3.00 each.—The reason for this fine record??? A prayer meeting that averages 50.

Over one hundred young people from Southern O. and from many denominations assembled at Chau-tauqua, O. July 1-7 for a young people's conference.

The Brethren Church was represented by many of the young people and by three of the faculty of six. Herman A. Hoyt, professor at Grace Seminary, was main Bible teacher throughout the week. Rev. and Mrs. Leo Polman directed all the music activities. Bro. Polman also delivered two evangelistic messages and conducted a decision service at which there were 67 definite decisions for Christ. Nine during the week found Christ as Savior. Other speakers were Ralph Stewart of Moody Bible Institute, Rev. Hobert Hess of Centerville, Ohio, and Leland Wang, Chinese Evangelist of Shanghai, China.

Events at the First Brethren Church of Sunnyside, Wash. during recent weeks include: a program of special music presented by the Biola Trumpeters and a week's series of meetings with Ralph Underwood, June 3-9. Bro. W. E. Reed has just closed his sixth year as pastor of this church. During the last four years 78 have been baptized and 76 have been received into church membership.

OF SUCH IS THE KINGDOM, by Esther MacKay; The Bible Institute Colportage Ass'n., publishers. This true story is told by a mother to whom God entrusted a little son. This little life was dedicated to the Lord, and as the child grew older, his every thought and action was that of a sweet young Christian.

Donnie, for that was his name, gathered his little friends, Jews, Catholics and Protestants, into the basement of his home where he conducted a church service. Young and old were won by his gentle manner and deep sincerity. Donnie had accepted the Lord as his Savior at the age of 5.

As the days passed, Donnie's health failed. It was necessary for him to undergo an appendectomy. Due to complications he never recovered. When the end came, neighbors and friends from every walk of life crowded into the church auditorium.

Through this terrible battle the father and mother came victorious because of their faith and trust in Jesus Christ. Many were won to Christ because of this victory in the lives of the parents. Many lived a richer, fuller life on earth, waiting only for the time when there would be a blessed reunion with our Lord Jesus Christ.

This book is especially adapted to those who have lost a child, as well as beneficial to all who read it. 62 pages, paper cover, price 30c.

PARTIAL EASTER OFFERING REPORT

EDITORIALS

By Louis S. Bauman, Editor

THE EASTER OFFERING REPORT

We are printing in this issue a partial report of our annual Easter Offering. This report reveals only a very small part of the money that was given in our Easter Offering to carry forward the work of our foreign missionaries in Africa and in South America. The great mass of this money is being held in the treasuries of the churches that gave it. And, that the donors may fully understand why it has not been turned over to the Treasurer of The Foreign Missionary Society, we give this explanation.

The readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald are aware of the seizure by autocratic and illegal methods of the control of The National Conference of The Brethren Church, at Winona Lake, Indiana, in 1939. All honest men who witnessed that fiasco, deep down in the hearts of them, know what was done. An Ashland College leader once tried to explain to us: "This illegal operation was necessary!"

Then, it will be recalled that last March, the man who seems to have become Ashland's foremost spokesman, Eld. Charles F. Yoder, "contributing editor" of The Brethren Evangelist, advised all Brethren churches that they might do well to send their Easter Offering to "The Missionary Board of The Brethren Church," more commonly known as "The National Home Mission Board," and an institution utterly controlled by the most radical leaders of the "Ashland College Group"; or, Eld. Yoder said, the churches could hold their offerings in their treasuries, until "The National Conference" would meet, and tell them what to do.

Of course, this "National Conference" is the one illegally organized, and therefore some of us cannot recognize it as having any authority whatsoever. It is a "Conference" so utterly biased that it did not place on a small committee a man sympathetic with the Grace Seminary Group of churches, to which more than half the members of The Brethren Church belong, except in one or two cases, where no Ashland College man was available.

The fact that the Ashland College Group of Brethren Churches could seize control of the National Conference and all but two of our District Conferences, does not mean that a majority of the members of The Brethren Church are of Ashland College persuasion, by any manner of means. We would welcome a popular vote of the members of the entire Brethren Church on any issue. Let us recall that in 1884, James G. Blaine polled one million more votes in The United States than Grover Cleveland polled. However, Cleveland was elected president of the United States. Cleveland was elected by presidential electors. Conferences are controlled by "delegates"—only another name for electors.

As further evidence that Eld. Yoder seeks to place the Foreign Missionary Society under the complete control of this illegally organized "National Conference," which violated its own Manual of Procedure, and arbitrarily threw out 88 duly signed credentials of delegates from Brethren Churches, whose standing never in all their long history, was called in question, we have only to quote from a recent letter of Eld Yoder to the editor:

"In response to urgent requests from givers to know what to do under the imminent complete division of the church, I merely suggested that as this is a question for the General Conference to decide, offerings might be held until the time of Conference . . . . If you had any sense of honor you would resign and turn over this Co-operating Board of the Brethren General Conference to the Conference to which it legally belongs instead of trying to betray your trust by going over to a new and disapproved sect and carry the trust funds of The Brethren Church with you."

No, what a pity that this "new and disapproved sect" which furnished last year 85% plus of all the funds that came into the hands of the treasurer of The Foreign Missionary Society—what a pity that this "sect" does not turn over the funds it gives to a conference that does not expect to allow the members of this "sect" any voice whatever in its deliberations this year. (For proof of this last statement we refer our readers to the action of the Ashland controlled Indiana District Conference). The First Brethren Church of Long Beach, which is a member of this "new and disapproved sect," last year (1938-1939) gave more than one-fifth the entire foreign missionary offering. Yet, of course, if its pastor "had any sense of honor" he "would resign and turn over" all this money to this "Conference" that denies his "sect" any right of representation. Certainly! Why not be honorable and brotherly?

But, just what would happen if he should do this? Eld. Yoder does not leave us to guess. He further writes in his letter of June 22, 1940:

"It is also dishonest to pretend that what I wrote means the abandonment of our foreign missionaries. I did not and do not favor such abandonment unless they first abandon the Church which authorized them to go out. If they choose to go with another church they must consider the consequences of such a choice, but the responsibility will be theirs."

And there you have it! Eld. Yoder holds that to support Grace Theological Seminary, or any Church organization that is sympathetic with it; or, to refuse to support Ashland College or any of its affiliated organizations, would be to "abandon the Church." And, he believes that missionaries who continue to hold membership in any Brethren Church that supports Grace Theological Seminary "choose to go with another (and) must consider the consequences." And who does not know exactly what Eld. Yoder means by this threat? The question is, will the Ashland Group continue to follow this man's leadership?

The gist of Yoder's letter is simply this:

"The Foreign Missionary Society legally belongs to The Brethren Church. The Brethren Church is composed not of sovereign Brethren Churches that merely hold to the New Testament in the fullness of its teaching. Brethren Churches must support Ashland College and its Ashland controlled District and National Conferences before they can be recognized as Brethren Churches and sit with the elect. Therefore, we say to all our Brethren Churches, to our Foreign Mission Board, and to all its missionaries: 'Line up, or consider the consequences!'"

Christian courtesy forbids our mentioning the name of a very famous person in Europe!

But, in view of this attitude taken by this outstanding spokesman of the "Ashland College Group," does any one need wonder that Brethren Churches that are still free, are demanding of us that no money of theirs, given at this Easter time, is ever to fall into the hands of any organization over which Eld. Yoder exercises any influence? They do not propose that our foreign missionaries shall "line up, or 'consider the consequences.'" Under this threat, they are holding their offerings in their own treasuries until they are assured that those gifts will go for the purpose for which they were given at Easter time, and that means for the support of the missionaries that are now on the fields, working under the direction of the members of the Society who by their gifts have made and are making this work possible. They are ready to send the money to us when they can be assured it will not be diverted from any missionary, simply because that missionary would not kneel before the oligarchy of Ashland College, some of whose members seem to be out to destroy what they cannot control.

The Foreign Mission Board appreciates the support given it by the W.M.S., and by churches of the Ashland College Group—churches that seem not yet to have bowed fully the knee. We want to assure them and all the members of the society, that we do not believe the money they have given will ever be used other than for the purposes they gave it. We do not believe that any court in the land would fail to see the justice of our plea.

But, the treasurer of The Foreign Missionary Society is compelled to believe from Eld. Yoder's pronouncements, and by the action of the last "National Conference" and of the recent Indiana District Conference that an attempt is going to be made to throw out of The Brethren Church as being non-Brethren, all churches now sympathetic with Grace Theological Seminary. If it could be legally proven that we are not Brethren (which we refuse to admit is within the realm of possibility), then just who would own The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church? Should that day come, with it would come the destruction of The Foreign Missionary Society, for 85% of its members are and always have been, of Grace Seminary persuasion. You cannot carry on mission work in foreign lands without funds. Of course, on the ashes of that Society, there would be rebuilt another Brethren Foreign Missionary Society that would go forth and carry on for Christ and His Church in Africa and Latin America. And, we may ask, just who are they that are really responsible for the organization of Grace Seminary, the Brethren Home Missions Council, and the Women's Missionary Council.

In the meantime, The Foreign Missionary Society continues to recognize all Brethren Churches as sovereign congregational churches. We shall show no bias against any missionary because of the Church or "Group," to which he or she may belong. We shall continue to be true to every trust, no matter which "Group" has committed it unto us. Funds are coming in at present as fast as we have need. We know that the churches who are still holding their foreign offerings in their treasuries will keep faith with the missionaries, and provide.

You see, it appears that the Grace Seminary Group of Churches seem to have taken Eld. Yoder's advice also. However, God is putting into the hearts of Brethren Churches on both sides of the fence to provide as fast as our missionaries have need. We know that our churches will keep faith with the missionaries who have trusted them to "hold the ropes" as they went down into the pits of heathenism, seeking the lost.

If Brethren are really "brethren," and the time has come when the two "Groups" feel that they cannot walk together, then a sane brotherly course would be for representatives of the two "Groups" to go to their knees, ask God for the guidance of His Holy Spirit; then, arise and sit down and talk over our problems, and see to it that if we cannot walk together in peace and love, we can at least be just, and recognize the fact that we all have some rights because of past support, and thus seek an equitable so-

WOMEN'S WORK

By MRS. MINNIE KENNEDY
French Equatorial Africa

Is it worth while to spend all one's time on the women in Africa? Can they possibly amount to anything? Will they ever come to an understanding of what is being taught them? After all these years of bondage and darkness, can they come to the light? Would it ever be possible to have Bible women in Africa as they do in India and other countries? Humanly speaking the task would be impossible, but with God all things are possible. And we know He delights to do the seeming impossible.

The women and girls of Africa are beginning to understand that a new day has dawned for them. It has taken a while to awaken in the hearts of the majority even so much as a desire for something better. And still there is much ground to be possessed.

It is often said, "The man is the head but the woman is the neck which turns the head." Sometimes the necks are rather stiff. This is even true of the African women. Just a few months ago, a woman came forward after church service to make a confession. When questioned she said that her husband was taking new wives and she wanted to bring the affair to God and have us pray for him. He accepted the Lord not many weeks before, simply, as has been discovered since, to be able to get more wives. You'll wonder what kind of teaching he has been getting. Accepting the gospel in order to be able to get more wives! It's not the fault of the teaching, but it's the testimony of the young girls. The majority of the young girls, especially in the near villages, have accepted the Lord as their Savior. Many of them, seemingly, have the desire to live a new life in Christ. They are refusing to marry any who are not Christians. Therefore some of the men have decided to accept the gospel in order that they can say they are Christians. But then the girls ask them, if they are Christians, why they are taking more wives. No, they won't have them. Not all of them have this courage. We wish they did.

Another woman, the head wife of our head chief, brought her young son to the after meeting in order to have us pray for him that he would accept the Lord as his Savior. He seemed to be a lad of eight or nine years. His father had given him food to place before the idols and he did it. Since his mother has accepted the Lord, she objects to her son having anything to do with idols. She wants him to become a Christian so that he'll refuse the next time.

Others take beatings and cursings because they refuse to eat food offered to idols, or drink beer, etc. they come forward in church to get right with their Lord again. What powerful necks they could be, if they only knew it!

Therefore, we realize that the great present need is regular, consistent teaching. Daily contact produces daily growth, which will mean greater blessings in their own lives and consequently in their homes and in the church, too. It is true that the women and girls are slower to comprehend than the boys and men. It is a harder task, but it is worth the effort. Nothing worth while comes easily.

I believe I am right in saying that unless we spend greater effort on the women and girls, our efforts spent on the men and boys will, to a great extent, be spent in vain. For if the women take a stand against plural wives, beer drinking, idol worship, etc., the men will naturally have to come to time. It is the women's work to make the beer and care for the idols.

Our efforts must be spent not only on the girls and younger women, but also on the older women. They have charge of the idol worship, caring for them, preparing food, and teaching the young girls the same. It took two years of regular village visitation for the head wife mentioned above to come out of darkness into light. She didn't attend Sunday church services, so the only way to reach her was to go to her. If all our head women were converted, idol worship would soon be disappearing.

When Jean Mane's mother accepted the Lord, the younger women of the village said: "If she gives up all her idols, we will too." The next week four young women and one old lady had the courage to accept the Lord as their Savior because of the example of one old lady. This second old lady was head of a Girl's Spirit Organization. She was beaten, almost to death, because she refused to return and continue it.

When I first arrived at Bekoro, we often stood at our back door, watching an older woman taking the girls out into the bush, a short distance from the village, to perform some of their evil spirit performances. Since the regular work among the women has been started, we haven't seen any of this. There have been times, after a death, when the women have gone thru the performance of chasing the spirit of the departed one back to its clan. This seems to be disappearing too.

I'm reminded of the drunken women that we used to meet on the roads. Out in the bush we still encounter some, but we don't see them on the road near us here as we did formerly. I wouldn't want to give the impression that the women are perfect. No, there is much ground to be possessed, much need of a greater growth and consecration. Their confessions from Sunday to Sunday tell us that, and yet just the fact that they do come and confess shows a growth in grace. Considering their former state, they have come a long way. We're encouraged from time to time, when we see those whom we knew to be living in sin, come back to confess and get right with the Lord. We refuse to look at failures and discouragements. Some who have held out for years, refusing to come, have recently made a confession. The war has caused a number to think seriously about their souls' welfare, we have learned thru some of the Christians.

We have only touched the border; a tremendous work lies before us. But we take courage because we have a mighty Captain. When we stop to think of the possibilities and privileges of being co-helpers with the Lord in this field of service, we wish we had six years instead of but six months before furlough time.

One doesn't see the progress being made until one visits the villages where the gospel has never been preached. On a recent bush trip, we visited six new villages. No one, black or white, had ever visited them with the gospel message. They didn't know what a missionary looked like. The majority of these women and some of the men are supposed to be possessed by the evil spirit that has power to kill at will. In fact, they told us all the women had this spirit. No one visits those villages unless sent by the government or head chief. Then they deliver their message and leave immediately. Not knowing this until later, we wondered at the strange spirit and atmosphere. Such glum faces, our hearts cried out, "Can these dry bones live?"

Yes, 120 came to life and should be fed that this new life may grow into abundant life. You may wonder just as I have, could they possibly understand, just hearing the gospel message once? After having been told about these evil possessed folks, I asked the men to tell me just how they became possessed of this spirit. The answer was, "They just claim that they have this spirit and make it known. They receive it into their hearts (insides) and gbo ngangou (hold with force)."

So when the gospel is presented to them and we tell them to believe it and receive it into their hearts, why wouldn't they understand? They confess with their mouth and believe in their hearts that they have received the Lord and the Holy Spirit. They exercise faith in receiving this evil spirit; why shouldn't they exercise faith when we ask them to receive the Lord and His Spirit in the same way?

Several months ago, we met one of these dry-bone kind in a bush village. She had accepted the Lord as her Savior, but oh how blank her face looked! Every time we met her on our village visits, we wondered, "Did she understand?" But this day in the bush, she sat down and talked a while, telling of answered prayers. Then she bowed her head and prayed a most intelligent prayer. Does she have life? Most assuredly she does.

The method of approach used with the women and girls is the same as that of Child Evangelism. After reading, extensively, of their methods and results, I felt led to use the same out here. The Lord has blessed exceeding abundantly above that which we asked or thought.

The natural heart cannot receive the things of God, so why not have them make a decision and accept the Lord first, and then teach them?

When the girls' vernacular classes were started, we used this same method. Today we have about 100 girls enrolled, and all have confessed the Lord as Savior. Some have advanced quickly. Some are coming along slowly. The Lord knoweth those that are His, and not one shall fail.

Perhaps you would be interested to know how the girls' classes were started. Well, they started them. The boys' classes had been going on for over a year and only one girl attended. After our first visits to the villages near Bekoro, 39 girls presented themselves, the next week, along with the boys. When asked why they didn't come before, they said that they didn't know it was for them too. Today more than five girls are able to help with the teaching. With their help we are able to carry on more classes. With their help we are starting village classes for the women and children who do not attend station classes. A missionary or evangelist to visit once a week, to start them on new lessons, and then they continue that same lesson the rest of the week, or until visited again.

This same method will be used in the chapel fields, carried on by the evangelists and their helper. They will work their circuits as we work the villages near the station.

The women's reading class on the station had an enrollment of 22. These are all station women. Not knowing Sango, the trade language, their progress has been slower than that of the girls.

Is it worth while to spend this effort on the women and girls? From visible results, a thousand times, yes! In God's sight, thousands of times more so. It amused me one day, after some of the girls had made rather rapid progress, to hear the men and boys were asking: "Are they going to teach us?" Once again the neck turned the head. They started digging in harder than ever, so there would be no danger of having to be taught by the girls.

As has been said, we have only touched the border, and a tremendous work lies before us. And the best way of advance is on our knees. To pray and to pray unceasingly is the only way we can hope to accomplish this great work. We in our selves can do nothing; but we "can do all things through Christ Who strengtheneth us." The Lord has begun the good work in them, and we know that He Who has begun it in them will perform it until the day of Christ. The Lord has begun the work and He will continue it, regardless of us. But He has seen fit to give us a part in helping in this work; so we praise Him for this privilege of being a helper, and by His grace and help will continue on as long as He permits.

The Oldest Living Thing Today

(See Front of Cover)

Four thousand years have come and gone,

As the years must come and go,

Since I first greeted the graying dawn

And sped the sunset's glow.

From out a past that has long been dead

I have come my glorious way,

And I proudly rear my unbowed head,

Though the crown be hoary and gray.

When the first iron weapons were used by man

At the walls of Babylon,

I was one of a seedling clan

Struggling up and on;

When Alexander sighed at fate

And longed for worlds to gain,

I was a sapling tall and straight,

Prince of my own domain.

When the star of Bethlehem shining high

Guided the three wise men,

I saw it there in the azure sky,

For I was a monarch then.

Chaldea, Egypt, Persia, Greece,

Carthage, Rome and Spain

Fought and ruled till their empires ceased

And I watched them with disdain.

For mine was the span of the countless years,

Their span but a fleeting day,

And they lived and died with their smiles and tears

While I lived on for aye.

Then westward the tide of conquest flowed

To a land beyond the sea

And another nation faced the road

Of man's brief history.

For man must come and man must go

As man has come and gone,

And the tides of empire ebb and flow,

But I go on and on.

My trunk is weather-beaten and buried,

My branches are bent with age,

But I hold the book of an older world

For those who can read the page.

Down through the aeons I've held my sway

And time has proven my worth,

The oldest living thing today

That stands on the face of the earth.

"NO RELATIVES WANTED"

By Dr. Floyd Taber, Yaloke Station

"Keep all my relatives away!"

It haunts me—this cry of desperation, torn from the heart of a thrice bereaved father; the voice, the manner of a man who was crushed until he could stand no more; but, above all, the expression of unspeakable dread in those haunted, haunting eyes. Through those eyes I am getting a new vision of the soul of the African.

Dekonou is one of strongest evangelists. By that I do not mean one of the best educated, nor one with special natural endowments, nor an eloquent preacher. In all these directions he is mediocre. But, I mean one conscious of his divine calling, who has a vision of his God-appointed task, and works at it 24 hours a day; one of the few who sees the incompatibility between the ways of his forefathers and the way of the cross, and who preaches and practices without flinching the way of the cross; one of the strongest in standing out against the superstitions and practices of his brethren according to the flesh.

Today the death angel has visited his home for the third time. Three of his dearest treasures are gone.

But of course the "natives" don't love their children as we love ours! Perhaps not just as we do; but, in their way, I am persuaded they love their children more than we do ours. The one goal of native life is child-bearing and child-rearing. No tragedy can approach that of childlessness.....to lose children is to lose all that gives meaning to life.

When you pass through the deep waters, what happens? Telegraph wires flash, express trains travel at caterpillar speed to bring parent, child, brother, sister. Your heart cries out for the consolation of loved ones. You must have them, even if they are on the other side of the continent.

And Dekonou's heart? Did it not cry out for this comfort? A native at arm's length from heathenism—does he not need every source of consolation? Ah yes, he needed it. His heart was bleeding for it.

Then why this cry: "Keep all my relatives away?" Because he knew the kind of comfort they would give. "You have turned your back on the good old ways and chosen the new. What do you have to show for it? You had better change before you have lost the other two children and it is too late." Or, more insidiously, "It is all right to preach the new way. You have a good job as an evangelist. But there is some charm so simple, so easy, that will not interfere with your Christian life in any way, that will protect them." Or, most dangerously of all, "It is all right for you to go that way if you will, but the children are ours as well as yours." (Ties of relationship are very strong among the natives. In some respects, an uncle has more rights over a child than the father.) "Are you going to tear them away from us and kill them? Don't you have any love at all for your own children?"

Dekonou knew all that, and volumes more. He knew his own trembling heart. He knew he would not have strength to stand against their traitorous comfort. And so, in his extreme weakness, but in grim determination, he laid bare his soul in the cry: "Keep all my relatives away. I don't want to see one of them. I want to go back to the Lord's work."

"Do you have any converts that are really sincere, or do they all come for a job, for education, for prestige?"

Sometimes I wonder. When I see one, who seemed to give the brightest promise in every way, fall back into the old life, I wonder, "Was there any sincerity at all in his wonderful profession and eloquent preaching, or was it all a sham from the beginning? But today, after getting a glimpse at Africa-soul through Dekonou's eyes, I rather wonder that any, even with the most earnest desire to serve the Lord, are able to stand true.

The Lord knew how much it cost to be a genuine disciple. "If any man hate not mother and father, and brothers and sisters, and children and wife..... yea, and his own life also....." Truth for Galilee; truth for Africa; truth for America. There is just one path of discipleship. Dekonou has found it. Have you?

Zembe . . . . The Leper

(A story true in every detail)

By Mrs. Florence N. Gribble, M. D., Yaloke, Oubangui-Chari, Africa

Ragged was no name for it. He had no rags, save one, and that of the tiniest. Leprosy was no name for it. He had no skin, it seemed, save his spots and ulcers. Hunger was no name for it. He'd never had food, save such as he begged. And, as the missionary doctor looked at him, pity was no name for it. That throbbing sorrow in her inmost heart seemed to take in the whole leper race, of which he is a subject. But, what to do? Medicines? Yes — alepol, piqures, dressing and bandages for his ulcerated body; soap with which to bathe, salt which he might exchange for food — all these were at command. But shelter—no! Not at that time.

Now it has been found possible to consecrate a tiny house of two rooms to the cause of lepers who are absolutely bedridden. But then, three and one-half months ago, there was nothing! For it was Jan. 17th, the very day that the leper dispensary was opened at Yaloke, that he presented himself. He had come from a distant village. Had some strong instinct brought him that long distance on opening day? Shelter? But the leper dispensary on the rolling hills near Yaloke is not a hospital. Some day we trust a village will be built by lepers, for lepers, with the same government as other villages of Oubangui-Chari. But it is not yet authorized by the government!

Within? But the little dispensary has no beds, no room for beds! Where, then? Alas, there is no place. One dares not even suggest. But hope? Always! Perhaps he could find shelter with leprosy friends in nearby villages. Perhaps he did.

Time after time he returned for treatment. Then he came no more. Inquiries were of no avail. Dead? More likely somewhere in the bush, discouraged at the slowness of what he had hoped would be a cure as spectacular as that of yaws.

Weeks passed. On Sat., Apr. 20th, one of the doctors was visiting the uttermost cottage of Yaloke hospital. Standing on the veranda she saw a leper whom she recognized.

"But you do not belong here," she remonstrated at once.

"I came to see you," he replied. "Zembe is very ill. Can you come?"

"Where?"

An African Leper Boy

"He has a little house beside mine in the grass out there," he explained.

In a moment the doctor was in the push following the winding trail which led somewhere. Not far, either—just out of sight, in the long grass, were two huts. In front of one of them lay Zembe, the lost leper—more naked than before, if that were possible; more helpless, by far.

Helpers were summoned instantly. Needs must be supplied. A bed, a mat, blanket, bandages, dressing, food, water—all these were brought, most of them too late. For, Zembe had starved to death. The leper beside him had but scant nourishment to share. He had occasionally given him water. Yet Zembe had said, in dying, "Much as I suffer from hunger, my greatest agony is thirst."

Oh, the hunger that could be satisfied, the thirst that could be assuaged! "Inasmuch as ye did it not." We condemn the leper beside him for not sharing with him the little he had. Do we do more? Our only comfort was that that morning of Apr. 20th we had been able to offer to the Lord Jesus bed, mat, blanket, bandages, dressing, food water. To Zembe they were of no avail in prolonging his life.

And his soul? Yes, at one of the services at the leper dispensary Zembe accepted Christ. He is with Him now. Will you not pray that we may more earnestly seek and find the lost of Oubangui-Chari?

TWO MILLION SOULS—NOTHING

Sir William Robertson estimated that 11,000,000 men died in the World War. General Tasker Bliss put it at 13,000,000. Of course the difference of 2,000,000 means little since it is only soldiers—just men. But they are men for whom Christ purchased salvation. War never considers the value of a soul. But God considered it! Christ died because of His love for lost souls. There are many about us for whom we are responsible. Look at God's estimate of the value of a soul and bring someone to Christ.

THINK IT OVER

BABY NEWS . . . and OTHERWISE

(LETTER FROM FLOYD W. TABER, M. D.)

Oubangui-Chari, French Equatorial Africa

Dear Home Folks:

My last was signed, "Yours in waiting." You have already received the communique which told you how long we kept on waiting—all thru March, all thru April, and until May 8. But you know the proverb—"All things come to him who waits" — on himself. It would be truer to say, "All things come to him who waits on the Lord." And truly, our expectation was from Him, and He did not disappoint us. He did the "exceeding abundantly above"; and in spite of feared complications, Ada is coming along just fine and is getting her strength back a lot faster than we had dared to hope.

Floyd W. Taber

No use my telling you about the baby; you wouldn't believe me anyhow, since I am the father. But, even knowing that, my pride can't resist. She is a bouncer. She looks like Marguerite did—the same deep crease across between her nose and her overhanging fat forehead that almost swells her eyes shut. When she does get them open, they are blue—yet. The one big difference is the hair; the other two were red heads, and she is a brunette. She is not quite so fat as Marguerite was, since she weighs a trifle less (only eight pounds, ten ounces) in spite of being an inch longer (twenty-one inches). She gained three ounces the first week. She drinks like a trooper, and still there is plenty left, even if her appetite should increase considerably.

On Friday, when Lois was nine days old, the Sheldons arrived at Yaloke on their way home from a trip to Bangui, where they had gone to buy things for their approaching furlough. They stayed until Wednesday (yesterday) and then started for home with Florence Bickel who had been away from her medical work for three months, so it took a tremendous amount of patience to stay so long. I don't know how we could have gotten along without her, since it made all of us jump; and she did as much work as the other three of us put together.

Monday morning I left home to welcome another expected arrival (at the Kliever mansion) up in this neck of the woods. Allowing for bad roads, and stops at Bozoum, Bassai, Bainsi (cotton plant) and Paoua (administrator) and one on the road where I met Brother Jobson, I did not do so bad to get here at 9:45 p.m.—210 miles.

On such trips we usually take a "boy" along to relieve our minds—and our hands—of all the details of care of the car, etc. I brought the one who is the most expert along that line of any we have at Yaloke, Denis Galassoue. When we were a little ways out of Bozoum, I said to him, "When I told Doa to pump up the tires, I forgot to tell him to pump up the spare, so he may have forgotten it too. Next time we stop, you see about it."

In a few minutes we met Brother Jobson. When we were driving on again, I asked, "Did you see about that tire?"

"No, Monsieur Jobson was sitting in the seat, and I would have had to reach in front of him to get the gauge."

Well, I controlled myself and made no mention of the exceptional politeness, nor of the fact that it is possible to tell whether a tire is flat without a gauge, and simply told him: "When we stop at Bassai, be sure you see about it."

After about an hour there, "Did you see about the tire?"

"Yes, I looked. It is not pumped up."

Here it was evening, in the wilds of Africa, after a hard day's driving to try to get thru in time, with a wheel I expected to go bad any minute, and the spare—flat! I suppose that would not bother you folks at home at all. But for me, I have to confess that for about 30 seconds the pressure inside me was at least a thousand pounds per square inch. I believe it was only the Lord that kept me from exploding. Instead, I just laughed—and laughed—and laughed. I hope we never get anyone out here who does not know how to laugh. I don't believe he would live long.

But, why shouldn't I have "landed on" that fellow for his ornery, lazy dumbness. Because I believe he was neither ornery nor lazy nor dumb—in this particular case. He is a boy who was dissatisfied at the mission, and he left to have his fling—got a job in Bangui. But now he has just come back, and everything in his attitude proves to me he is trying to do his level best. Then it must have been plain dumbness! Yes, if it is dumbness to fail to understand the thinking of another race. But in that case I am just as dumb as he is, perhaps more so. And if it is dumbness, what good would it do to "bawl him out?" I have come to believe that the natives think of our bursts of righteous indignation with the mild toleration we show toward someone who is raving about something of which he does not understand the first principles.

Well, we got here in plenty of time, have everything ready, and now are sitting down to wait. That is why I have time to write a letter. As soon as the party is over, Jake plans to call in all the evangelists, and we will have a Bible conference for a week or ten days.

Of course, during our waiting time I stayed at Yakloke. We went out frequently and preached in nearby villages evenings, but could not do any itineration. While we were tied down there, we had two series of special meetings—one previous to Easter, the other leading up to Pentecost. Miss Bickel helped a number of times in these meetings, both on the station and in the villages. So, what was Bellevue's loss was our gain.....

Enjoyed a visit by the Jobsons on their way to Bangui. Of course, each time someone comes thru, we put them to work, so our church hears some good preaching quite frequently.

Hoping you are the same,

FLOYD TABER

Jake Kliever Manages to Keep Busy

Bekoro, April 10, 1940

Dear Fellow-missionaries:

Believe it or not, we moved yesterday!!!! Yes, the house is finished, and we moved. It will never be lived in again! All night long we heard a creaking and moaning and groaning. We slept somewhat fitfully; and first thing in the morning we dug up a ladder and found things were worse than we anticipated. The bracings were giving way, and the ridge pole (I guess that is what you call the stick that holds up the peak of the roof), and the cross piece that it was resting on was out of position, had dropped about 8 inches, and was being held by the mud of the wall, resting on a width of about 2 inches on either side!!! We have been wondering why there have been none of the never failing hard windstorms of this time of the year, but now we see that the Lord has worked another miracle, and thus we are alive to tell the tale.

Where did we move? That is another tale. We got along so well at Benamkor, that we just moved in with Mrs. Kennedy. Thus, there are two families in the little 2 room mud house there, which is about as tired and ready to droop as the other house out of which we just moved. We are putting a brace pole to hold up one side of the wall for a few more weeks until the other house is ready (we hope!!)

As to the house, we are a good ways from getting done. The big chief here has tried his best to give us workmen, but there is a baby rebellion on; they all have so much cotton money that they are all ready to retire (as if they didn't always sleep on the job!!). The grass will be on the roof today. A carpenter at last arrived yesterday. Will start mudding tomorrow, then the drying process; and they are starting their cotton gardens already. So.....it might fall back on my ten regular workmen to finish. Thus it might be done before conference.

Did that thing eat up the grass! I never built a thing at home, and had no idea of how much of anything to get. I got five long racks full of grass, thinking I would use the rest to re-roof the Morrill house, which is done for now. But, all the grass has been tied on the roof, and I have taken all the grass off two other buildings, class rooms, and the good grass off the two buildings that fell in while at Benamkor; and, we might have to take the lid off another class room!!!

We are not needing but two class rooms with the present system of conducting our chaticumen school (vernacular). This time of year it is impossible to have classes because of garden and cotton plantation work. So, since we are planning an indigenous work here, we believe that the teaching as well as the evangelization should be done by every believer; in other words, what one fellow knows he passes on to someone that doesn't as yet know it well. Thus we are covering the 10 villages that used to send scholars here; and we go there once a week, hold a service, and also have a teachers' training class, teaching five or six that which they are to teach during the week's interval. Each one of these five or six gathers five to come to him or her. They are different ages, and both sexes. Thus we will have 10 teachers' training classes weekly and 50 village classes—all small, so that there can be thorough and definite work done. As these class members start to know a little, they will be encouraged to gather two to five of their own to teach. Thus, we don't see why, in a year's time, all shouldn't be reading the New Testament and really getting something for their souls. We plan to give each evangelist in his circuit a French School graduate to do the same thing in each circuit for about five villages in each circuit the first year, and others as opportunity and advancement allows.

The administrator sent us some mangoes today. He is coming to see us tomorrow. We wonder what he will think of the two families put up in the little house. Praise the Lord, we at least had a little house to go to!! We are starting to work up a headache about the annual reports! On top of that Minnie says I have to take over the treasurer's books to start the new year!! Then, all the bookkeeping, house building, waiting to see if I will be a daddy or a mamma, and trying to do missionary work.....

We are praying for you all. Pray for us.

CARRY ON

In the last great war many of us heard or used these words, "carry on," until they became a joke and the cause of many a jest. Now they are being used everywhere again, and once more they will often cause a smile, but often, as before, they will be obeyed with grim and costly determination.

We who are missionaries and supporters of the mission—Christian workers—soldiers of Jesus Christ—must "carry on." It is the obvious duty of the church and of the missionary societies not to take fright at the power of evil but to keep steadily on—whatever difficulties are encountered and whatever changes of method may be necessary—with the constructive and enduring work of conversion and reconciliation.

The ultimate hope for mankind lies not in war but in the kingdom of God. The relationship of men to God is more important than all else. If only men were "right with God" their relationships with their fellows and those between nation and nation would also be right.

Our calling in Christ Jesus is a high calling that must be courageously carried on at all costs. The challenge of the war is a call to renewed zeal and consecration.

Our missions are better prepared to face it than they were in 1914. We have beside us an immeasurably greater army of native leaders and co-workers. They too must obey the call to carry on.

Christ has called us all to share with Him the burden of the world's need, and the need of the world is to know Him. The hope of the world is in Him. To know Him is life eternal—goodwill and peace. The preaching of such a gospel must go on.

"MISSIONARIES' MISSIVES"

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old, he will not depart from it." If Solomon was right (and he was), then little Anne Kliever will surely be a full-fledged missionary some of these days, if our Lord shall tarry. In a letter just received from Brother Kliever (Africa), he says:

"Anne accompanies me quite often on my evening trips to the nearby villages to preach, and her presence is always a drawing card to get just a little larger group out to hear the message. She helps very heartily in the singing, singing in their language with her daddy. She has her dollies here at home, and they are her audience as she tells them the story of Jesus, how her heart that was black in sin was covered by the blood, and now in God's sight is white as snow, and that some day soon we will be in that golden city. We are praying that in another season of years she will be as earnestly telling the story to her live friends here in Africa."

May 16th—Bozoum Prayer and Praise Notes

By Mrs. O. D. Jobson

Psalm 100:5, "For the Lord is good: his mercy is everlasting; His truth endureth to all generations."

Our hearts are full of praise and thanksgiving for every blessing bestowed upon his servants daily.

We praise the Lord that a full time worker has been sent to Koung Nang to take charge of the work. Please remember Antoine and Leo in prayer.

For several weeks Alice Madai, the wife of Etienne, our evangelist at Bocarango, has been very sick in the hospital at Bassai. Praise the Lord for restoration. Alice was one of our girls who learned to read God's Word, and is now teaching others to read.

Praise the Lord for a safe trip to Bangui the last two weeks of April, and for the privilege of visiting Bouca and Bellevue stations.

The Bible reading classes, for which we asked your fellowship in prayer last month, are continuing with interest. The readers are making progress in the gospel of John. Remember them in prayer.

We desire to keep Baiboukoum before you as an object of prayer. Noel writes that the Spirit is working and that many are confessing their sins.

Pray that the Lord will raise up an evangelist to take charge of the work when Noel leaves for Bible School. A large number have been attending the Inquirers' Class here every morning. Won't you pray with us that as they hide the Word in their hearts they may truly be born again, and become new creatures in Christ Jesus? Pray for Jacob, who faithfully teaches this class.

Our need of workers is great, and unless the Lord opens the way for furloughed and new missionaries to come forth soon it may be necessary to have some of our stations in charge of native workers. But, after all, that is not our greatest need. Our real need is a visitation of the Holy Spirit, filling missionaries and native workers and convicting men and women of sin. Pray that a mighty revival may spread over Oubangui-Chari Mission, and that it may begin in us.

There is now before the French government a request that will authorize the coming to the Colony of six of our furloughed missionaries, and three of the new recruits. But, let us pray that God will move the ones in authority to speedily grant this necessary request. If granted before this reaches you, our prayer intercessors, then let us praise the Lord for it.

WHAT IS HOME WITHOUT A PREACHER?

By Edith Williams

What is home without a preacher
Who is welcome any day,
Be it washday, workday, Wednesday,
Noon or when you kneel to pray?

Can you bring him home on Sunday
Just as freely as you choose,
Or does some one in your family
His good name always abuse?

What is home without a preacher
Who can sympathize and cheer,
Who can point your soul to glory,
Teach you faith instead of fear?

Seems to me that home is empty
Of the presence of the Lord,
If His messengers are hated
And His teachings are ignored.

Yes, a home without a preacher
Is a house that's built on sand.
Don't you know you'll live with preachers
If you reach the better land?

On their respective birthdays, the names, favorite Scripture verses, and prayer requests of pastors, missionaries, and others in the brotherhood who are prominent in Christian work, will appear under this head. Please see that each member in your society is assigned one of the following names for daily prayer. Assign a different name to each member weekly. If you know of others whose names should have appeared this month, please notify your News Editor at once.

Aug. 25—Miss Elizabeth Tyson, missionary to Africa now on furlough. Requests prayer that the Oubangui-Chari shall be kept open to the gospel messengers; that God may speedily send forth the missionaries awaiting passage to the field; and that the native church, its pastors and teachers shall be a separated group through which the Holy Spirit can work.

Aug. 30—Mrs. Conard Sandy. Ps. 55:22. Requests definite prayer that the Lord may give strength from above to the tired bodies of the missionaries awaiting furloughs, and that they may be brought in due time to the homeland in safety.

* Arrival of the prayer requests from our missionaries in Africa is expected any day. Apparently war conditions are holding them up. Watch for the special prayer calendar which we will print when these requests arrive. In the meantime, we suggest that those praying for these missionaries substitute the requests found elsewhere in this issue under the head "Bozoum Prayer and Praise."

Late FLASH from Africa

An air mail letter from Mrs. Jobson, dated June 16, just arrived at the offices of The Brethren Missionary Herald Company. Mrs. Jobson states:

"We like the Herald very much. However we have not received the recent numbers, as well as many of our other magazines which have not arrived, due of course to the war condition and sinking of the different mail boats. We do praise the Lord for what mail does come through safely. Via air seems to be the safest way now, but do not know how long we shall have air service.

"Our times are in His hands. Pray that we may keep looking up.

"We praise the Lord that the door is still wide open in French Equatorial Africa to preach the gospel. May we grasp every opportunity to win the lost to Him. Our greatest need is an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon missionaries and native Christians. Pray that a mighty revival may spread throughout this land of darkness.

"Our Bible School opens July 1. Pray for us and the evangelists who shall come from the different stations."

ILLUSTRATIVE JOTTINGS

"NO, SIR; I'M A CHRISTIAN"

They are the sons of God. Read Rom. 8:12-17.

In a certain small town there was a revolt last November against the notorious political "boss" of the county. In getting up a town meeting of protest, a list of representative vice-chairmen was being compiled. It was thought that the sexton of the Presbyterian Church would best represent the colored people. So the chairman approached him, first saying, "May I ask if you are a McClure Republican?"

"No, sir; I'm a Christian," came back the instant answer.

That humble colored sexton put into a phrase the entire philosophy of political, social and business conduct by disciples of Christ. In all realms he would do only what he thought Christ, would have him do.

JUANITA—A Story from South America

By Mrs. Clarence Sickel

Juniata was a little girl who lived near the mission station in Huinca Renaco. She had been forbidden by her mother to go near there, for were not the Protestants devils and evil ones? Had not the priest told them that all who attended the services at that place, would forever lose all hope of going to heaven? Moreover, it was rumored that the missionary had the habit of ducking all children who came there in a huge tank of cold water, and that behind the door was an image of the Virgin which they must spit upon.

Juanita was afraid, but the singing did sound so inviting. Each Sunday she would come a little nearer to listen, until finally she stood one Sunday afternoon just outside the door. No amount of coaxing could persuade her to enter. But Sunday after Sunday found her there. It all seemed so harmless, and the missionary's smile was so friendly, that she finally ventured to come inside the door and sit on the very edge of the bench nearest the door. Surely there could be no harm in this, she thought, and she could easily escape if danger threatened. Time went on and Sunday after Sunday she was with us, becoming less and less afraid, learning the songs and learning to know and love the Lord Jesus. Then her mother discovered what she had been doing and threatened her with dire punishment if she were again to step foot inside of the hated 'Culto Evangelico.' But Juanita ran away again and again. Her mother was busy at home with sick ones and failed many times to notice the child's absence, but when she did, the child was whipped. Still she came to us, and how she loved the gospel songs and stories. Then death came into the home: first a sister, then the father, and one day word came to us that Juanita had also fallen ill of the dread disease — tuberculosis. The mother hated the missionaries more than ever now, for she was certain that somehow we had been the indirect cause of all the dreadful things that were happening to her. It was not possible for us to visit our little friend, but when word came of her death, we knew that she had gone on to be with her Lord, whom she had learned to love in the despised mission hall.

How we pitied the poor little mother that day, left all alone in the world, husband and little girls gone, with no hope of ever seeing them, and her ears closed to any word of help that we might have given her from God's Word. Instead she listened to others like herself, who were walking in darkness. Would she be rid of the misfortune that had come upon her? Oh yes! So they locked the doors to that home, carefully taking out the key after doing so, so that none other could open the door. Then opened the window which was small and high, and with great difficulty pushed the coffin, bearing little Juanita's body, out through it. Thus they hoped to chase misfortune from that little mother's home forever.

How much easier and better it would have been for her to heed the words of the Savior, "Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest." But little Juanita, in spite of living in a home where there was nothing but spiritual darkness, had come to know the Savior, because boys and girls and older ones in America had saved their coins and had sent the missionaries.

A LITTLE BOY'S POEM

A boy six years of age heard a missionary tell how the children in China worship dreadful, ugly idols because they do not know about the Lord Jesus. He wants to go and tell them about the Lord Jesus when he grows up. He wrote this poem without help except on the last two lines:

Great smoky steamers
Sailing o'er the sea,
Sailing off to foreign lands
Far away from me,
Some day to China I must go
To tell them Jesus loves them so.

Do you ever write poems about the Lord Jesus? If so, send us some, giving your age. Address: Children's Editor, 3326 S. Calhoun St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

ALL THINGS BRIGHT AND BEAUTIFUL

By C. F. Alexander

All things bright and beautiful,
All creatures great and small,
All things wise and wonderful—
The Lord God made them all
Each little flower that opens,
Each little bird that sings—
He made their glowing colors,
He made their tiny wings.

The rich man in his castle,
The poor man at his gate,
God made them, high or lowly,
And ordered their estate.

The purple-headed mountain,
The river running by,
The morning, and the sunset
That lighteth up the sky.

The cold wind in the winter,
The pleasant summer sun,
The ripe fruits in the garden,—
He made them every one.

The tall trees in the greenwood,
The meadows where we play,
The rushes by the water
We gather every day;—

He gave us eyes to see them,
And lips that we might tell
How great is God Almighty,
Who hath made all things well.

THE NARROW VISION

A man of great wealth lay upon his dying bed. His daughter was pleading with him to endow a chair in the college she was attending. The pledge was made out, and agreed upon by all the family. The sick man took the pen; then, torn with emotion he laid it down, saying: "I can't do it, I have had the money too long. I simply must keep it. I suppose I shall go into my grave with it. Oh, that I had had a different training and a different vision! I want to do it but my will will not let me."

We need a different vision—a vision from lifting up the eyes and looking on the fields—wide fields, white all ready to the harvest.

BIBLE BRIEFS

"Jesus wept" is the shortest verse in the English Bible, and it is a precious verse. In the original Greek this verse has three words and sixteen letters. There is another verse that has two words and fourteen letters, and this is the shortest verse: "Rejoice evermore" (I Thess. 5:16). It is remarkable that these two shortest verses should give us the picture of the sympathy of the heart of Christ in fellowship with all our sorrow, and should give us the key to a triumphant Christian life, rejoicing always, and in all circumstances, even while sorrowing (2 Cor. 6:10). Though it is the shortest verse, it never ends.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR AUGUST 18, 1940

Joseph as a Type of Christ

(Gen. 37)

Suggestions for the Leader

The life story of Joseph gives us the most perfect type of Christ in the Bible. Since all types break down some place, we stress the fact that Joseph excels in giving us a picture of Christ in suffering and in exaltation.

It ought to be easy to draw many interesting parallels between Joseph and Christ. Children are taught the story of Joseph early in life and can see how the life of Christ presents the same experiences. The type ought to help us understand things concerning the One to come in the future.

1. The Preference. Both Joseph and Christ were beloved of their fathers.

Jacob loved Joseph more than all his children. He was the firstborn of his favorite wife. He was selected as the next sheik of the tribe. He was given the royal coat of many colors (Gen. 37:3).

Jesus was the object of His Father's special love (Mt. 3:17, Jn. 3:35).

2. The Prejudice. Both Joseph and Christ were hated by their brethren.

The brethren hated Joseph because he was selected over them to be the next sheik and because he told them a dream indicating that they would fall to obey him (Gen. 37:4,5,8,11,18). Stephen said that the "Patriarchs, moved with envy, sold Joseph in Egypt" (Acts 7:9).

Jesus was hated by His own people (Jn. 1:5,11). His own people would not receive Him. They hated Christ without a cause (Jn. 15:25. See Ps. 69:4).

3. The Pit. Both Joseph and Jesus were betrayed and cast away.

Joseph was cast into a pit (Gen. 37:20). His brethren planned to slay him and get rid of him.

Jesus was betrayed by friends and foes (Mt. 26:15, 57). Notice the words, "And led Him away." Even the disciples ran away or denied Him.

4. The Prison. Both Joseph and Jesus were condemned as criminals.

Joseph was falsely accused and cast into prison (Gen. 39:11-18). The authorities believed the charge of infidelity.

Jesus was condemned and crucified. The people sought for false witness against Him and took council against Him (Mt. 27:23-35).

5. The Palace. Both Joseph and Jesus became a blessing to the Gentile people.

Pharaoh said to Joseph, "Thou shalt be over my house." He was appointed to a high position. He saved the grain during the years of plenty to help in time of famine. He married a Gentile bride.

Jesus came as a blessing to the people (Mt. 4:14). He offered the Bread of Life to a world of people. He visited the Gentiles to take out a people for His name (Acts 15:14). He calls out the Gentile bride or church during the time of rejection by His brethren (Jn. 19:15; Eph. 5:25).

6. Position. Both Joseph and Jesus were exalted. Joseph was reconciled to his brethren and Jesus will yet be reconciled.

Joseph's brethren came to him in a time of need, seeking help. They looked upon the one they betrayed into the hands of others. He proved to be their Savior (Gen. 42-50).

Jesus shall yet be exalted and reconciled to His brethren (Lk. 1:32, "He shall be great." Rom. 11:1, 15,26, "And so all Israel shall be saved" Zech. 12:10, "And they shall look upon Me whom they have pierced."

Questions

1. Summarize the various points that indicate that Joseph is the type of Christ in suffering and exaltation.
2. How do we see God's providence in the care of Joseph?
3. How did Joseph and Jesus show the right attitude toward those that harmed them?
4. In the story of the typology of Joseph, where are we today in reference to Christ?

A SHEPHERD BOY WHO BECAME KING

(1 Sam. 16:1-13)

Long ago when Saul was king over Israel, near the village of Bethlehem, there lived a man named Jesse.

His eight sons were big strong boys. Some of them were warriors for the king, but the youngest, David, tended the sheep. He was handsome, healthy and strong, and he loved to play the harp and make lovely music.

Once as he was out on the hills a bear came out of the woods, and carried away one of his lambs. David leaped to his feet, followed him and killed him. Another time a lion came into the flock and David killed him also. So you see he was brave as well as strong.

Now the king had disobeyed God, and God's Spirit was no longer with him, and an evil spirit came and troubled him. So the Lord told Samuel, the old prophet, that He would choose a new king. He sent Samuel to Bethlehem to visit Jesse, for it was one of Jesse's sons who was to be chosen. How proud the old man must have been when Samuel asked to see his sons. So seven of them passed before Samuel, but the old prophet shook his head. "No, it isn't any of these," he said, "Have you more sons?"

"Yes, David the youngest is out tending the sheep. We did not think you would want him." But when Samuel saw him, the Lord spoke to him and said, "Arise, anoint him, for this is he." So Samuel took the horn of oil and anointed him. God chose him because He knew that in spite of all the trouble that might come upon him, he would still be a man after God's own heart.

One day when King Saul was very much troubled, his servants said, "Why do you not send for young David to make music for you? Maybe that would help." So they sent for David. His father helped him get ready and sent presents to the king, for it was a great thing for a shepherd boy to be asked to the palace. No one knew yet that he had been anointed king. When David came, the king loved him, and as he played, the evil spirit departed for a time.

After a while the king became better and David went home. Soon war broke out with the Philistines, and three of David's brothers went to fight for the king. Then one day his father sent him to the camp with some parched corn and bread for his brothers, and their Captain. There he saw the giant of the Philistines, Goliath, who came out each day and dared the men of Israel to come and fight with him. But no one went out for they were all afraid, because he was over nine feet tall, and looked very fierce. David was troubled and said, "I will go and kill this enemy. The Lord Who delivered me out of the paw of the lion and the bear, will deliver me out of the hand of this Philistine."

Then they wanted him to put on all the heavy armor that the soldiers wore, but he refused to wear it. He went to the brook, took five smooth stones, put them in his shepherd's bag, and took his sling in his hand. Then he came near to the Philistine giant, who laughed at this little shepherd boy without armor or sword come out to meet him. Goliath said, "I will give thy flesh to the fowls of the air."

But David fitted a stone into his sling and slung it. The Lord guided that stone and it went into the giant's forehead and killed him. Then the army of Israel went after the astonished Philistines and really fought and won the battle.

Then the king of Israel honored David and gave him gifts and later gave him his daughter for his wife. David became a very dear friend of Jonathan, the king's son. The people too honored him and they shouted, "Soul hath slain his thousands but David his tens of thousands." This made the king jealous, and he made a great deal of trouble for David, but the Lord was with David and delivered him out of all his trouble.

Questions for discussion

1. Do we choose God or does He choose us? Jn. 15: 16; Eph. 1:4.
2. What kind of people are the best material for God's work? II Cor. 6:17; II Tim. 2:21; Jn. 15:3-5,8.
3. What kind of armor should the Christian wear? Eph. 6:11-17.

RESOLUTIONS PASSED BY THE BRETHREN CONFERENCE OF So. CALIF.

Convened in Regular Session at Long Beach, California

JULY 27, 1940

WHEREAS, the "National Conference of The Brethren Church," assembled at Winona Lake, Indiana, August 28 to September 2, 1939, departed from the principles of true congregational government adopted by the organizers of The Brethren Church in Dayton, Ohio, in the month of June, 1883; and,

WHEREAS, said "National Conference of The Brethren Church," in its organization, refused to abide by the rules within the Manual of Procedure that had been used for many years in the organization of said Conference; and,

WHEREAS, said "National Conference of The Brethren Church also departed from the principles, teaching, and practice of the New Testament itself, which New Testament was adopted by The Brethren Church in its beginning, as the only recognized and all-sufficient rule for the faith and practice of The Brethren Church, and has always been recognized as such; and,

WHEREAS, it is evident from the recent statements and actions of the leaders, who by illegal methods, seized control of the National Conference of The Brethren Church at Winona Lake, Indiana, on August 29, 1939, that the sovereign churches composing this Thirtieth Annual Bible Conference of the Brethren Churches of Southern California, and certain other duly organized Brethren Churches, are no longer recognized by them as true Brethren Churches, and therefore not entitled to representation in any Brethren Conference, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED:

That we, the Sovereign Churches composing this Thirtieth Annual Bible Conference of The Brethren Churches of Southern California, reaffirm that we are duly organized Brethren Churches, holding without deviation whatsoever, to the congregational form of government as established by our fathers in 1883; and, to the New Testament as our only rule of faith and practice; and, to the well-known Brethren interpretations of the New Testament teaching as are set forth in the "Message of the Brethren Ministry," and, that we propose to continue in that faith and practice as we have affirmed it, have taught it, and have propagated it, from the time of our organization as a Conference in 1910.

That we deny that we have ever seceded from The Brethren Church, or have ever thought of seceding from The Brethren Church, but that we expect to continue as sovereign Brethren Churches until Jesus comes; and

That we reaffirm our belief in the absolute sovereignty of every Brethren Church, working under our congregational form of government; and,

That we recognize all Brethren congregations that hold to the form of government as adopted by our fathers in 1883; and, who hold to the New Testament as their sole authority in all faith and practice; and, who hold to "The Message of the Brethren Ministry" as a correct interpretation of New Testament teaching—as true Brethren Churches—our sister Churches—without reference as to what colleges or schools or seminaries, or conferences, or so-called Boards, or other institutions that are not within the bounds of the local congregation, they, in their sovereign rights may support or not support; and,

That we go on record as refusing to recognize the so-called "National Conference of The Brethren Church" of 1939 as a legally organized Brethren Conference, because of reasons heretofore stated; and,

That we likewise go on record as being in favor of the reorganization of the National Conference of The Brethren Church, by all Brethren Churches that still hold to the congregational form of government adopted by our fathers in 1883; and, that still hold to the New Testament as their sole authority for all faith and practice; and that still believe in, and do accept "The Message of The Brethren Ministry" as a correct interpretation of the teachings of the New Testament; and,

That we shall give every assistance within our power to such a National Conference of The Brethren Church when it is once organized.

Unanimously adopted.

Signed,

ALAN S. PEARCE,

Conference Secretary

lution for all our differences and all our problems. Such an offer has been made many times, but the Ashland College Group has never been willing to grasp the hand held out to them. From our past experiences, we scarcely dare hope that they will do it in the matter of our foreign work. They will not do it if Eld. Yoder shall rule—that is evident.

Meantime, so long as there is even a threat held out against the Foreign Missionary Society, we shall not quarrel with the Churches that are making safe our funds in their own treasuries. And, the Foreign Missionary Society, with as fine a band of missionaries as any Foreign Missionary Society ever had, shall continue to live and carry forward its work under God's blessing. And the missionaries themselves need not be disturbed by Eld. Yoder's dire threat of "consequences" should they still pray for Grace Theological Seminary and for us! Missionaries, you are not responsible for the unhappy situation at home. You have troubles enough just now in this tempest-tossed world. Keep on with your great work. "Jehovah-jireh" (God will provide) is His name!

Important Notice—A Call to All Brethren Churches for a National Conference of the Brethren Church

1. WHEREAS, the New Testament Scriptures, which, with the Old Testament, constitute the creed of the Brethren Church, teach clearly the principle of congregational church government;

2. AND WHEREAS, the purpose clause of the original charter of the Brethren Church affirms this principle and specifically forbids any action which would interfere with congregational government;

3. AND WHEREAS, the Manual of Procedure adopted in 1915 by the National Conference recognizes the sovereign rights of all Brethren congregations;

4. AND WHEREAS, in the organization of the so-called "National Conference of the Brethren Church" in 1939, its controlling officers arrogantly and illegally excluded many properly accredited delegates sent by true Brethren Churches, doing this by setting up tests of fellowship arbitrarily which are utterly foreign to the New Testament, the denominational charter, and the conference Manual of Procedure, thus deliberately violating the Biblical rule of congregational government which, from the beginning, has been a well recognized fundamental principle of the Brethren Church;

5. AND WHEREAS, the leaders now in control of the so-called "National Conference of the Brethren Church," in 1939, in open violation of the Biblical and Brethren rule of non-litigation between its members, have encouraged and aided a recent lawsuit for the purpose of depriving the First Brethren Church of Dayton, Ohio, of its congregational rights and property, openly declaring in court their intention to prove, if possible, that the National Conference has the power over the local churches to change the government of the Brethren Church from its original congregational form to another form and thus bring all Brethren Churches and property under its control, causing the distinguished attorney for the defense to declare that "should a majority of the members of the Brethren Churches of America be willing to accept the thesis of the opposite counsel in this case, then Congregational Brethrenism is at an end";

6. AND WHEREAS, the 1939 so-called "National Conference of the Brethren Church" in countenancing as its leaders, the elders who have dragged their brethren into the courts, has deliberately departed from the Brethren Faith, as established in the New Testament and sanctioned by common usage, and has established a hierarchy which is utterly foreign to the Brethren Church and which will endanger the congregational liberties and property rights of those churches which participate in its organization;

7. AND WHEREAS, since the so-called "National Conference of the Brethren Church," which is soon to convene at Ashland, Ohio, August 26 to September 1st, 1940, will be controlled by the leaders of "The Indiana District Conference of the Brethren Church"; and, by "The South East District Conference of the Brethren Church"; and, by "The Ohio District Conference of the Brethren Church"—all three of which Conferences have declared in Resolutions adopted by them at their recent (1940) meets, that they do not "consider as members of the Brethren Church," those Brethren Churches, Ministers, and Laymen who fail to support Ashland College and Seminary; and, who fail to support the illegally organized (1939) "National Conference of the Brethren Church"; and, who fail to support certain Boards and District Conferences which said leaders autocratically choose to stamp as "loyal"—thus making loyalty to certain man-created organizations and institutions to be a test of continued membership in the Brethren Church—a test utterly without foundation in the Word of God;

8. THEREFORE, WE, THE UNDERSIGNED, issue this Call to Brethren Churches, elders, pastors, and laymen everywhere, who still hold to the congregational form of church government as adopted by our fathers in 1833; and, who still believe that loyalty to Christ and His Word rather than loyalty to some humanly organized board or school furnishes the only true test of that which constitutes a Brethren creed for all faith and practice; and, who still hold that "The Message of The Brethren Ministry" is a true, although partial, statement of the teachings of the infallible Word of God;—we invite all such to assemble at Winona Lake, Indiana, at 9:00 A. M., Central

Daylight Saving Time, on Tuesday, August 27, 1940, for the purpose of holding a National Conference which will recognize the sovereign congregational rights of all Brethren churches without discrimination as set forth in the New Testament and affirmed in the original Charter; and, which will conduct its deliberations in the Spirit of Christ and in harmony with the New Testament teaching and the rules laid down by the Brethren Manual of Procedure.

Under these rules, which were so flagrantly violated in said illegal 1939 "Conference," every Brethren Church without discrimination is invited to send one duly certified delegate for every fifty members, or fraction thereof over twenty-five; and to furnish a credential to every elder in good standing, which credential will entitle him to sit as a member ex officio of the National Conference.

This Call is sent out in humble obedience to that which we, the undersigned, believe to be the will of God; and with the hope that it will lead all Brethren Churches into the paths of Christian love, peace, and harmony. May the Spirit of God, in all things, be given His rightful place as The Administrator of the Church of God.

Signed,

Members of the 1938 Executive Committee of The National Conference of The Brethren Church.

SISTERHOOD GIRLS MEET AT WINONA LAKE AS USUAL

Full plans and programs for inspirational, business and recreational activities of the Sisterhood girls are already made for National Bible Conference week, Aug. 26-Sept. 2nd.

The Sisterhood girls will make Bethany Camp their headquarters. Reservations should be sent to Rev. Leo Polman, 3326 S. Calhoun Street, Fort Wayne, Ind. as soon as possible. Refer to The Brethren Missionary Herald of June 8, 1940, pages 7-10 for full description of camp, activities, and prices of board and room.

It has been arranged for the Sisterhood girls to attend the young people's conference each morning in a body. Dr. Harry Rimmer and Dr. V. C. Kelford will make these morning sessions never to be forgotten. Our business sessions and missionary addresses will be in the afternoons, from 1:30 to 2:30 each day. All societies should send delegates as usual and bring any dues or offerings which have not been sent in during the year.

A WARNING TO BRETHREN EVERYWHERE

Alva J. McClain

Reviewing in memory the events of the Dayton trial at which it was my privilege to bear testimony regarding the form of government held by The Brethren Church, I recall several things which were of deep interest.

First, the trial was marked by an almost complete absence of those who have been in the past the loudest talkers about "laws" and "courts," and, so far as I could observe, none of their "learned" discussions were employed by the lawyers for the plaintiffs who are suing their brethren. Doubtless, they were busy elsewhere. Or could this absence signify that they had no stomach for a possible call to the witness stand with its embarrassing cross-examination? At any rate, this only confirms what sensible people ought to know, namely, that mere boastful threats have no place or standing in courts of law.

Second, after the experiences of the late 1939 "General Conference," it was a pleasure to be in a place where personal rights and freedom of speech were properly protected from any interference on the part of the Ashland College group who have turned the "General Conference" into a kind of Hitlerian Reichstag where about the only right left to the delegates is the right to say "Yes" at the proper time. The presiding judge, whose soul must have been tried at times by the evasive tactics of certain witnesses, was nevertheless meticulously courteous to all concerned on both sides of the controversy.

Third, in spite of all the reckless charges made by the Ashland College group to the effect that the rest of us have "departed from historic Brethren faith," after all that has been said about "baptismal salvation" and "eternal security," there was not one serious attempt made to prove that the defending Brethren had so "departed" in any single doctrine of the Word of God. I, for one, regret that the attempt was not made, after all that the loud talkers have said. But, although the charge was incorporated in the original outline of the case as presented by counsel for the plaintiffs, there was no serious attempt made to sustain it with evidence. Quite evidently there was some wise counsel on the other side, and it prevailed in this particular matter.

Finally, and most important, the case presented by the attackers at Dayton boils down to just one point, having to do with the kind of government held by the Brethren Church as a denomination. They frankly admitted that the original form of church government adopted by the fathers was "congregational," but they argued, quite amazingly, that by the adoption of the Manual of Procedure of 1915 the General Conference had changed the Brethren form of government from purely congregational to another and wholly different form, giving the General and District Conferences ecclesiastical control over local congregations. Under this new form of government, they argued, the General Conference could, for any reason which seemed good to it, deny seats to the delegates from any local church, and such action would automatically excommunicate the church from the denomination. Then when this was done, if there should be left only one member in that local church acceptable to the conference authorities, the conference could recognize him as constituting truly that particular local church, and also support him in a lawsuit to take the property from all the other members. (To some Brethren all this may seem unbelievable, but the court records will show that this very point was argued seriously by counsel for the plaintiffs at Dayton).

Now there is almost no possibility that such an argument would be sustained by any court in the land, for several reasons: First, the Manual of Procedure of 1915 says absolutely nothing about a change of church government. Second, on the other hand, it contains certain provisions which clearly imply a recognition of congregational government. Third, in any event, the General Conference has no power to change The Brethren Church's form of government, even if every delegate present voted in favor of it. Since it is admitted on both sides that the original form was purely congregational, only the congregations voting as sovereign units could effect such a change. And if in any congregation to which the matter was submitted, there should be even one member in opposition, he would be able to enter the courts and take the property, for such a change of government would constitute a departure from the original Brethren position. In the fourth place, no witness on either side at Dayton was able to produce a single bona fide case where the alleged proposal to change the denominational form of government was ever submitted to any local church in the United States. And surely no group of churches can be deprived of their sovereign rights, not only without any chance to vote on the proposition, but also without their ever even knowing that such a loss was taking place. Fifth as all present at the 1915 General Conference know, the alleged change in government was not even discussed by the delegates in connection with the adoption of the Manual of Procedure.

Now there is a moral to the Dayton trial which should be a solemn warning to Brethren everywhere. While the General Conference up to and including 1938 had no ecclesiastical powers over the local congregation, that joined it, the Ashland group in control of the 1939 conference proceeded to change the organization in such a way that it would have authority over these local congregations which participate in its membership and business. Such a change represents a complete apostasy from the fundamental position of The Brethren Church, of course, and openly violates the purpose clause of its original legal charter. Therefore, it is very probable that, in case the matter should ever come into the courts, the so-called "General Conference" of 1939 would be ruled an alien organization with no right to the name of "The Brethren Church." But the important point is this: Since the controlling Ashland group have already argued in the Dayton case that the "General Conference" has authority over the local church, and they are making changes in its organization to conform with this viewpoint, any local church from now on which votes to send delegates to its meeting at Ashland, O., and participates in its membership, may thereby vote away its own congregational rights and pass under the control of this so-called "conference."

Regardless of which attitude may be held by churches with respect to the Ashland College controversy, no local church will send delegates to Ashland this year if it wants to remain in control of its own congregational affairs. Churches which send delegates will do so with their eyes open, for the Ashland group in control have served public notice as to the change in church government which they have embraced, and which they expect to apply to the local churches which enter the membership of their alien "conference." The important question here is not whether a local church favors Ashland College or Grace Seminary, the Home Board or the Home Council, but whether that church wants to keep its control from falling irrevocably into the hands of an outside organization. All local churches on both sides of the present controversy, which value their congregational liberties, will do well to stay away from Ashland, O. this year.

Churches should not permit themselves to be fooled with fair words and glib assurances as to the nature of this Ashland "General Conference." The court record in the Dayton trial is the proof of exactly what that "conference" proposes to do in the case of any church which tries to exercise its congregational liberties in harmony with the original charter of The Brethren Church. And while the Ashland group cannot change the safeguards in that charter, nor invade the rights of those congregations which adhere to the charter, they can organize a "conference" with a new and non-Brethren form of government which will be able to seize complete control over all local churches which are so foolish as to join it with delegate representation.

There is need this year, in my opinion, for the organization of a truly Brethren General Conference which will guarantee complete freedom to all participating churches in accordance with the original denominational charter. The 1939 "conference" has openly and frankly abandoned the congregational liberties guaranteed in that historic document.

"It is a day of trouble . . . and of perplexity"

A great deal has taken place since I left the east a few weeks ago. The map of Europe has been completely changed. The great empire of France has fallen a prey to German efficiency. As these lines are being written (July 27, at West Yellowstone, Mont.), England is preparing for the dreadful blow which, in the opinion of some military experts, will bring the doom of her far-flung dominion over sea and land. And the so-called statesmen of our own country, bewildered and badly frightened, are trying to prepare to live and protect our interests in this changing world which will never be the same again.

As for the modern preachers, who only yesterday were sure that they could save the world with social and educational schemes, they are reacting to the situation according to the measure of their intelligence. Some are like little boys whistling in the darkness, a little scared but quite sure that all will come out right in the end. Others, more intelligent, do not know what to do or to say. One of these, brilliant intellectually and full of ideas for the solution of the world's problems, was asked to speak in California early in July on "American Duty in the Present Crisis." When the hour arrived for his speech, he frankly admitted to the audience that he didn't know what to advise, and finally suggested three different lines of action from which they could choose according to the wisdom they might have. In a conversation with me at the dinner-table, he said rather dolefully that his latest book, which had just come from the press, was completely obsolete before a copy had been sold. He was not very happy, wondering what he would do with the 2500 copies of the first edition. The book, by the way, was on the subject of "World Peace!!" The trouble with this preacher was twofold: First, he had not been reading his Bible, especially the prophetic Word. And second, therefore, he had not known what to look for. He had, in fact, been looking for the wrong things. Or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that he had been looking for the right thing at the wrong time, to be brought about by impossible human means.

"Seeing that ye look for such things"

And this leads me to say that, among people of some intelligence, the only ones who have not lost their mental and spiritual poise are those who have been seriously reading and believing the prophetic Word. Such people, I have observed during the world shattering events of the past few weeks, are frankly facing the present situation, with no illusion as to its deadly dangers, yet they are not panic-stricken with fear. The reason is that, enlightened by the prophecies of the Bible, they have been looking "for such things" and therefore they are not taken by surprise.

"Full of . . . gold . . . chariots . . . idols"

In the second chapter of Isaiah there is given a striking picture of the end-time which might be applied fittingly to our own land. First, the prophet says, "Their land also is full of silver and gold" (7). For several years we have been buying both silver and gold at premium prices so that today we own most of these two metals in the world. Second, we are told, "Their land is also full of horses, neither is there any end of their chariots" (7). The "horses" and "chariots" of ancient days constituted the military armament of the nations. And certainly we are piling up the munitions of war today. The immediate goal is 50,000 war planes, with one manufacturer promising to turn out 1,000 planes a day if the government will only tell him just what is wanted and then leave him alone. We are planning a two-ocean navy, strong enough to beat off a coalition of all the other nations of the world. Every time we open the morning newspaper, we read of further billions appropriated for purposes of war. All this "gold" and all these munitions are being piled up for the purpose of protecting our country, our property, our liberties, and our lives.

But Isaiah saw something else besides the treasure and the military armaments, something which will destroy the value of all the gold and turn all the military strength into weakness. "Their land also is full of idols," he said, "They worship the work of their own hands, that which their own fingers have made" (8). Can this be true of America today? The answer is yes. Anything that man places above the true God is an idol. Any philosophy, any ideal, that man puts in the place which belongs alone to God is an idol. Any religion, any god, which man worships apart from Jesus Christ, is nothing but an idol, more subtle perhaps than certain forms of idolatry in pagan lands, but worse for that very reason in its final effects upon the human soul. A great deal of the religion so-called, which we are being urged to defend against the attacks of Hitler and Stalin, is nothing but idolatry.

What this nation needs first of all, in getting ready for the approaching peril, is to cleanse the land from idols and return to the true God Who is the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. In Him alone there is safety.

Casting Away The Idols is Not Enough

Of late there have been some remarkable admissions made by certain leaders in the field of modernistic religion. A few years ago they were sure that they had the infallible formula for solving the problems of the world. All we needed to do, they said, was to throw away the dogmas of historic Christianity, believe that God is the Father of all men, adopt the new "social gospel" of modern religion, and the millennium would be just around the corner. But today these modern prophets are not so sure. And some of them are actually advising their brethren to cast away the idol of modern "Liberalism" which they have been worshipping.

This movement among the modernists has been hailed by certain conservatives, who know little or nothing about Biblical prophecy, as an evidence that modernism is returning to the Word of God. Nothing could be farther from the truth. All it means is that the intelligent modernists are seeing that their schemes have not worked, and therefore they are casting away their former idols. But it does not mean necessarily that they are returning to the true God and His thoughts. Isaiah pictures a similar situation which will obtain at the end-time. "In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver, and his idols of gold, which they have made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats" (2:20). But do they cast away their idols in order that they may return to the true God? Not at all. They abandon the idols "To go into the clefts of the rocks, and into the tops of the ragged rocks, for fear of the Lord . . . when He ariseth to shake terribly the earth" (21). To borrow and speak in the language of modern philosophy, they abandon "religious idealism" and turn to "materialistic realism." And, looked at from the standpoint of worldly wisdom, this is a sensible move. For, after all, when a flock of enemy bombers sweeps over your head, a good strong cave in the rocks is a safer place for the body than to be worshipping at the shrine of modernism in Dr. Fosdick's church in New York. And this is exactly where the logic of modernism leads. Since, according to Dr. Fosdick's theology, the only way that God can answer prayer is through the ordinary operation of natural law, it is much more sensible to build caves in the rocks than to spend your money and time building cathedrals to be used as platforms for modernistic preachers to preach that kind of nonsense.

The True Refuge of the Soul

For all those, however, who are concerned about the welfare of the soul and the life to come, there is a better refuge. There is a God in heaven Who is not bound by the laws of mere nature, which He Himself ordained, but Who came down from heaven and became man by the miracle of virgin birth in order that He might at last die for our sins at Calvary. Thus He became "an hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land" (Isa. 32:2). "Blessed are all they which take refuge in Him" (Psa. 2:12 A.R.V.). If your eyes have been opened to His incomparable glory, if you have been led to take refuge in Him, if you have come to know His peace, then the blasts of adversity and catastrophe will leave you unafraid. Empires may fall and rise, but you are in the mighty hand of Him Who ordains and controls all these matters, and He is making all things work together for your final good. "He hideth my soul in the cleft of the Rock, and covers me there with His hand."

Propaganda and Prayer

"I have been reading the 36th and 37th chapters of Isaiah today, and some of the events seem quite modern. Sennacharib, absolute monarch of the totalitarian kingdom of Assyria, had come up against the fortified cities of Judah and took them with but little trouble. Then he sent a great army led by Rabshakeh against Jerusalem. This city, he well knew, would be a tougher nut to crack. So he planned to soften the defense by a little propaganda. Rabshakeh took his stand by the conduit of the upper pool in the highway of the fuller's field, and a sort of appeasement delegation of Jewish diplomats came out from the city to parley with the invaders. Tell your king Hezekiah, said Rabshakeh, that it will do him no good to trust in Egypt for help; neither will it save him to trust in the Lord, for none of the gods have been able to deliver the other nations from the armies of Assyria.

All this parleying took place just outside the walls of Jerusalem, and the Jewish diplomats became nervous for fear that the defending soldiers on the wall would hear. "Speak . . . in the Syrian language," they said, "for we understand it; and speak not to us in the Jews' language, in the ears of the people that are on the wall." But Rabshakeh, knowing a thing or two about the psychological effect of effective propaganda, began to shout with a loud voice what would happen to them if they attempted to defend the city, at the same time reminding them of the fate of other nations which had resisted. Then, very cleverly, he pictured in fair words the economic benefits they could secure by surrendering:—"Make an agreement with me," he said, "and eat ye every one his vine, and everyone of his fig tree . . . until I come and take you away to a land like your own land, a land of corn and wine, a land of bread and vineyards." (How like the threats and promises of Hitler today!)

Rabshakeh's propaganda must have had some effect, for when Hezekiah heard what had happened he rent his clothes and covered himself with sackcloth. Then he did a very wise thing. Instead of answering propaganda with propaganda, he went into the Lord's house and laid the whole matter before the Lord in prayer, and the Lord answered by destroying 185,000 men in the Assyrian army.

We should remember, in this day of loud words, that humble prayer is the best answer to the lying boasts of the dictators. The battle of the propagandists is always won by the cleverest liars, and the Christian is never very good at that sort of thing. We should take these matters and, like Hezekiah, spread them before the Lord. He is still able to defend His own interests and His people.

SEMINARY ANNOUNCEMENTS

- Brother Homer A. Kent, who was elected to the faculty of Grace Seminary in 1937, will begin full time teaching service this fall. The family will move from Washington D. C. to Winona Lake some time this month.

The annual meeting of the Ohio corporation of Grace Theological Seminary will be held in Winona Lake, Ind. at 10 A. M., Aug. 28, 1940; and the Indiana corporation will meet in the same place at 10:45 A. M. of the same day. At this meeting all members of the Ohio corporation will become members also of the Indiana corporation which has been formed to comply with the laws of the State of Indiana. All members and friends are urged to be present.

The 4th Annual Session of the Seminary will open on Monday, Sept. 2, with the registration of students, and classes will begin promptly the following day.

The Convocation Chapel Service will be held on Tuesday, 9:30 A. M., at which the public is cordially invited to be present. The opening prayer and fellowship meeting will be held on Wednesday evening at 7:30, and the faculty reception for students on the following Friday evening.

By advancing the opening day to Sept. 2, two desirable results have been secured. First, it will enable some students to come early and attend the Winona Bible Conference; and second, it will make possible the completion of the first semester and examinations before the Christmas vacation.

So far as we can learn, all Middler and Senior students will return, and at present the prospects for the new Junior class seem excellent.

Following attendance at the Dayton trial, President McClain with Mrs. McClain motored to the west coast where he conducted Bible conferences at the First Brethren Church of Whittier, the First Brethren Church at La Verne, the First Brethren Church at San Diego, the First Brethren Church at Long Beach, the First Brethren Church at Tracey, and lectured at an interdenominational missionary conference at Mt. Hermon. He also preached at two Sunday services in the First Brethren Church of Sunnyside, Wash.

THE MESSAGE OF THE PROPHET HABUKKUK

By Harold Dunning, Missionary Candidate to Africa

Let us return to the main theme again.

Upon receiving such an answer the prophet is more perplexed than ever. He does raise up his eyes, and he beholds the heathen invading hosts, but the sight only adds depth to his problem. Look at his second complaint, v. 12-17:

Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord, mine Holy One?
We shall not die.
O Lord thou hast ordained them for judgment;
And O mighty God, thou hast established them for correction.
Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil,
And canst not look upon iniquity:
Wherefore lookest thou upon them that deal treacherously,
And holdest thy tongue
When the wicked swalloweth up the man that is more righteous than he?" Etc.

He surveys this nation which God has raised up to be the instrument of bringing judgment to Israel, and he is aghast. Pointing at it, he asks if this can really be the people. Then he expresses the depth of his perplexity. He says, "You are holy, so holy that sin cannot remain unconsumed in your sight. How, then, can you use this wicked, idolatrous, iniquity-filled nation as an instrument of judgment against a nation, that while it is wicked, is better than this heathen nation?" Israel was wicked, but the Chaldeans were more so. Habakkuk was troubled, for he could not see how God could still remain just and holy while using so filthy a vessel to break a vessel that was cleaner.

Bowed down under this problem, he raises his cry; and with the fear of this coming devastating host now filling his heart, he throws himself before Jehovah for more light (2:1).

"I will stand upon my watch,
And set me upon the tower,
And will watch to see what he will say unto me,
And what I shall answer when I am reproved."

While he is there, God gives him the answer, and with it the admonition that changes his whole viewpoint and revamps his whole life. Let us now look at the Promise and Admonition of Jehovah (Hab. 2:2-20).

"And the Lord answered me and said,
Write the vision and make it plain upon the tables,
That he may run that readeth it."

First He explains something to him and gives him a word of admonition (v. 3,4).

"For the vision is yet for the appointed time,
And it pertaineth toward the end and shall not lie,
(Better: As the end it shall break forth as a blast)
Though it tarry, wait for it;
Because it will surely come, it will not delay.

Behold, his soul is puffed up,
It is not upright in him:
But the just shall live by his faith." (Or, in his faithfulness)

Jehovah said, "What I am about to reveal to you concerns an appointed time. Though it seem long, don't despair for it, but wait for it. It will surely come, and will not take as long as you think. Your job is to come in trust to me and live your life in trust to me."

Then He unfolds to him His purpose in judging Israel with the heathen and his purpose with the heathen. Time will not permit us to investigate these following verses, but a hasty glance at them will show us that he pronounces woe upon the heathen invaders five times. He pronounces woe upon them because of their insatiate ambition (v. 5-8), for their unscrupulous greed (v. 9-11), for their cruelty (v. 12-13), for their drunken debauchery (v. 15-17), and finally, for their gross idolatry (v. 18-19).

But what is to be the issue of all this judgment upon these heathen? V. 14 tells Habakkuk the message that delights his heart.

"For the earth shall be filled
With the knowledge of the glory of the Lord.
As the waters cover the sea."

God, seeing all the corruption of Israel and her rebelliousness, decides to purify her with the fire of chastisement. His instrument is a still more wicked nation, the reprobate nations of the earth. But these in their turn will be judged when God has used them for His purpose. When they have, in their own hatred of Israel, worked God's purpose with her, He will draw in their reins and then lead them to receive their own just reward for their sins. Then He says to Habakkuk, "When Israel has been purified by fire, and the nations have received their due from My holy hand, then and then only will My glory and holiness be recognized in all the earth. Then, and then only, will My name be revered properly by men and peace will be covering the earth."

Then in v. 20 He closes with a final word of admonition.

"But the Lord is in his holy temple:
Let all the earth keep silence before Him."

"Habakkuk," the Lord said, "I have thus revealed to you as much as you can understand of my great plan. I am going to punish Israel for her sins. And I will also punish the nations that move against her. And when this whole process is complete, My glory will be respected in all the world. Until then, remember, man of God, I am still in my holy temple. I still hold the reins of providence in my hands; I am still the God of all the universe. Now dry your tears, cast aside your puzzling problems, and wait before me in silent trust. Shall not the Judge of this world do right?" Thus the prophet, seeing, though dimly, the great purpose of God, seeing that He will bring peace to this old earth, seeing that He will vindicate His name and glorify Himself before men, falls down in prayer.

However, before we examine this prayer, there is something of importance prophetically that I believe we should note before passing on. When will this judgment which will usher in this time of blessing take place? Look carefully at v. 3, for that tells us clearly. Using a more literal translation, it reads:

"For the vision is yet for THE APPOINTED TIME,

At the END IT SHALL BREAK FORTH AS A BLAST, and shall not lie:

Though it tarry, wait for it,

Because it will surely come, it will not delay."

There are two suggestions as to when this judgment will be. Let us take the latter of them first.

The last portion of this verse is quoted by the writer of Hebrews in chap. 10:37, where he changes the "it" which refers to the vision itself to "Him" which refers to the One Who will make the vision real, the Lord Jesus Christ. The writer's use of this is very suggestive, for thus we have the testimony of the Holy Spirit as to the time in which this will take place. The writer is seeking to encourage some of the Jewish believers, who were being persecuted for their faith in Christ, to continue on and not give up and go back to Judaism. In order to do this, he tells them of the blessed hope that is the heritage of every true child of God. He says their greatest blessing and relief does not lie in recanting and returning to the temple, but rather, in the return of Christ for them. Thus the testimony of the Holy Spirit is to the effect that the time of this vision is around the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ.

The second suggestion is in the former phrase. The end generally always refers to the final end, the last days, the great Day of Jehovah; and in view of what we noted about the nature of the invading host referred to in chap. 1, this seems very probable. For the beast and his army will invade Israel in the last days, the time of Jacob's trouble; and the coming of Christ will destroy the beast and his armies. Then, and then only, will the "knowledge of the glory of the Lord cover the earth as the waters cover the sea." Therefore, I believe that this verse and this chapter refer primarily to the final judgment of the Gentile world during the tribulation period, and particularly at the coming of our blessed Savior.

Now let us resume the thread of our theme. God has answered the prophet's complaints. Israel shall be judged for her sins, and the vile nations that are the pawns used in her judgment will in turn be judged for their sins. Then God's name will be properly respected and revered in all the earth. Habakkuk, therefore, is to trust Him to perform His Word. While there is much that puzzles, he is to bow in silent faith and leave the rest to God. With this promise and admonition ringing in his ears, the prophet bows in prayer to confess his faith and trust in this gracious Sovereign.

The Prayer of the Enlightened Prophet

Space will not permit us to examine all of this prayer, but we can note that in the first three verses he prays that the Lord will perform His will in all the earth. It is a prayer of submission. In the next few verses, (4-16), he offers a prayer of reminiscence. He reviews the beauties and prowesses of the Lord Jehovah, and finally in v. 17-19 rings forth with that marvelous burst of praise and faith which we marked in the beginning. Let us examine that a little more closely.

"Although the fig tree shall not blossom,
Neither shall fruit be in the vines;
The labour of the olive shall fail,
And the fields shall yield no meat;
The flock shall be cut off from the fold,
And there shall be no herd in the stalls:
Yet I will rejoice in the Lord,
I will joy in the God of my salvation.
The Lord God is my strength,
And He will make my feet like hinds' feet,
And He will make me to walk upon mine high places."

Upon seeing a glimpse of the great purpose of Jehovah, and upon being assured that He is still at the

The swarms of locusts seen in the accompanying picture wrought desolation in many a field, but they could not impoverish those whose hope was fixed firmly in the Lord. Divested of every earthly possession, the believer still has "in heaven a better and enduring substance" (Heb. 10:34), and can still rejoice in the Lord from Whom no disaster can separate him (Rom. 8:35-39).

helm of the universe, the prophet bursts into this song, casts off his gloom and is clothed with light. He says, "Jehovah, let the invader come, let him strip this land of all its present glory and beauty, let him drain it of all its resources, let even the most necessary food supply be destroyed; none of these things move me. I have seen Your sovereign hand. I have caught a glimpse of You at the helm of the universe. I know that Your face toward me is love. Therefore, I will rejoice and joy with singing. Though all things fail, You will remain; though all calamity strike, I know that it is but one more shaft from the bow of Your great purpose, and You are my Strength and my Refuge in all things. I will joy in You, for I know that all things shall be done well."

What a lesson this book has for us! How many of us have been sitting in the seat of despair with this prophet of God! We also have seen iniquity abound and superabound. We see on every side of us the wicked prospering. The horizon is black with the clouds of war, and the streets are filled with the noise of rioting. Hitler and Mussolini crush the weak before them and drain the poor to build their great machines of destruction. The heavens above seem like brass. Nineteen centuries have passed since Jesus split the sky and returned to His Father's throne. Nineteen centuries the heavens have been silent. Is God asleep? Has He gone off some place and forgotten us altogether? No, a thousand times no. Look, He is still in His holy temple. He is still the Sovereign. He still holds the reins of events in His hands. He is still on the throne. He still speaks comfortingly to us: "Be still, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord;" "The just shall live by faith;" "Rejoice in the Lord, and again I say, rejoice."

O may we catch a glimpse of this vision. May we see that when all the smoke is cleared away, then all will be well. May we grasp the meaning of this wonderful clause, "The just shall live by faith;" and somehow by His grace embrace it to our souls, and glory in God, our Savior, though we be sorely beset by the foe. Though all be calamity tomorrow, may we say with the prophet:

"Yet I will rejoice in the Lord,
I will joy in the God of my salvation.
The Lord God is my strength,
And He will make my feet like hinds' feet,
And He will make me to walk upon mine high places."

RELIGIOUS RIP VAN WINKLES

By Paul Levin, Carlock, Ill.

"Let us not sleep" (1 Thess. 5:6)

Rip Van Winkle slept twenty years. Many Christians who are afflicted with spiritual sleeping sickness have been sleeping longer than that. God in His grace has saved us. We, who are "children of the light, and of the day" ought not to live as the unsaved, who are "children of the night, and of darkness" (1 Thess. 5:5). Let us not live as though we were still "of the night." Furthermore our Lord's return is imminent. The verses preceding and following our text (1 Thess. 4:13-18, 5:1-11) deal with this blessed truth. "It is high time to awake out of sleep: for now is our salvation nearer than we believed" (Rom. 13:11).

Spiritual sleep is Satanic—of the devil. Shame on the Christian, who by his lethargy helps to promote Satan's work. Sleep is also subtle, for one is asleep before he knows it, and one who is asleep doesn't know that he is. The sleeping Christian doesn't realize his condition, but seems perfectly satisfied with himself. A sleeping person does not see, his hearing is dull. He is not nourished with food. If he walks, he wanders. If he talks, it is only a meaningless jumble of words. And when it comes to work, a sleeping man does no more than a corpse.

If you are a sleeping Christian, you are not the follower of Christ you once were. You have lost the vision, and the burden for souls. The cry of the heathen, "Send missionaries" falls on deaf ears. Hence you do nothing for foreign or home missions. You no longer feed yourself on the Word. The preacher must feed you now. You have become weak and sickly. Your walk isn't right. Your feet take you to church on Sunday and to worldly pleasures on Monday. You have wandered out of fellowship with your Lord. You have no testimony; you have lost power in prayer; you are not witnessing as to the saving and keeping power of Christ nor doing aught else to spread the gospel. In fact you are a greater hindrance to the work of the Lord than those who are "dead in sins" from whom nothing is expected. While you sleep the enemy is busy, you are robbed of your strength (Samson lost his might while asleep), and multitudes rush on to hell. God knows how to awaken His sleeping children. If you do not heed His call, He may use methods that will be grievous to you. For your own sake, for lost loved one's sake, for a lost world's sake, for Jesus' sake, "let us not sleep, but let us watch and be sober."

THINK IT OVER

"Behold, now is the accepted time: behold now is the day of salvation"

—2 Cor. 6:2

THE KINGS OF THE EAST

By H. A. Ironside

There are certain aspects of prophetic truth which in the very nature of things could not be understood clearly until the time of the end drew near. This principle is indicated in the angel's instruction to Daniel when he says: "But thou, O Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end: many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased. . . . But go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days" (Dan. 12:4, 13). Many things were revealed to Daniel which it was not the mind of God for him to understand fully in his own days, nor could they be comprehended clearly in the early centuries of the Christian dispensation.

The Book of the Revelation, contrary to the Book of Daniel, was to be unsealed, and thus this unsealed book of New Testament prophecy has to a very large extent removed the seal from Daniel, the outstanding book of Old Testament prophecy. But even in Revelation there is much which it pleased God to conceal from general understanding now that the end has drawn nigh. Take, for instance, the prophecy relating to the kings of the East and their apparent onslaught upon the powers of the West. In Revelation 16:12-16 we read:

"And the sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared. And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet. For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty. Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame. And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon."

Identifying "The Kings of the East"

Who are "the kings of the east" here referred to? They are clearly distinguished from the powers of the West animated by the unclean spirits that proceeded out of the mouth of the dragon, the beast, and the false prophet. Armageddon is really the clashing of vast Eastern and Western armies contending for the possession of Palestine. This, I have no doubt, is all in the future and perhaps in the very near future, though not to take place until after the rapture of the church.

It has often been noticed that the trumpet and vial judgments (beginning in Rev. 8:6 and 16:1, respectively) run parallel, to a certain extent; that is, in each instance the same spheres of influence or groups of people are referred to under the respective numbers. The first trumpet and the first vial are similar in character, and so on down through the lists. Now if the prophecy of the sixth trumpet (Rev. 9:13 ff.)

be compared with that of the sixth vial (Rev. 16:12-16), we may see that the kings of the East are the leaders of a tremendous Oriental army which will come down upon Palestine in the last days. For the sake of convenience I quote the trumpet passage from Rev. 9:15-21, that it may be considered carefully in connection with what we have already read:

"And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to slay the third part of men. And the number of the army of the horsemen were two hundred thousand thousand: and I heard the number of them. And thus I saw the horses in the vision, and them that sat on them, having breastplates of fire, and of jacinth, and brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and out of their mouths issued fire and smoke and brimstone. By these three was the third part of men killed, by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths. For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt. And the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and of wood; which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk: Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornications, nor of their thefts."

Symbolism in the Revelation

In reading such a passage as this, we must recognize the fact that we have before us a very highly figurative vision. The angel made known the unveiling to John in symbols: "He sent and signified it by his angel" (Rev. 1:1). "Signified" is literally "signified"—that is, symbolized. If this key is kept in mind when one is reading the Apocalypse, it will save from many erroneous interpretations.

The symbolic picture, then, of the sixth trumpet judgment is that of a great army—on land and in air belching forth fire and smoke—coming down over the eastern steppes and plains of Asia, across the Euphrates into the land of Palestine, with the cry "Asia for the Asiatics."

Who will be the leaders of this horde? The definite explanation of the sixth vial makes this clear. The way of the kings of the East is to be prepared by the drying up of the great river that was once the eastern boundary of the Roman Empire. I am inclined to believe that this symbolizes the complete destruction of the Turkish power which has acted as a buffer between the East and West for so long. Others think it refers to the actual drying up of the river itself, that river which was one of the four that of old went forth from Eden.

In either case, as a result of some great cataclysm, the way is to be effectually opened up for the onslaught of the kings of the East.

Viewing the Empire of the Rising Sun

Who are these kings? It is not necessary to guess. The word for "East" is simply "sun-rising." The kings of the sun-rising! Japan has been known as the empire of the rising sun for a millennium.

The last three decades have brought this nation to the front in a marvelous way, but recent events have shown up her malignity, her ferocity, and her evident determination to dictate all the policies and dominate all the nations of the Far East. The puppet king of Manchukuo, possibly Japanese - controlled rulers in other northeastern Chinese territories, perhaps at last an alignment with China itself, and there you have the kings of the sun-rising—all in readiness for the great day of God Almighty—the Armageddon conflict.

The instructed believer in the inspired Word of God knows that the fierce winds of the great tribulation will not be let loose on the earth till the church is raptured and the remnant of Israel sealed, but "coming events cast their shadows before," and we may well look with bated breath upon the amazing and truly horrible developments in the territory of the coming kings of the East.

The tocsin of doom is sounding. The yellow peril becomes more and more ominous. The preparation of the day of the Lord goes on apace. Christian, lift up your head. Your redemption draweth nigh.

"KNOWING MEANS GOING"

We are often asked, "Well, how's The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. getting along?"

It gives us real joy to be able to answer, "Going along fine!"

Our company has been signally blessed of the Lord. We are certain that it has been of the Lord.

Though we have not yet reached our goal of 5000 subscribers, each week finds new ones being added to our subscription list. By National Bible Conference time we look forward to pass the half way mark in our goal—and then on to the goal of 5000 subscribers. Are you one of them? If not, you'll find a convenient subscription blank elsewhere in this magazine.

Sunday School literature sales have surprised us. We were anticipating some losses in this matter. On the whole, we have done a very commendable business. Some who did not order literature from us the first quarter tried other materials, and then came back to us and ordered their next quarter's supplies from us, and continue to do so.

Some perhaps do not know that The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. has one of the finest All Bible Series of Sunday School quarterlies that are published today—so good that other denominations are now using this material.

The wonderful support and cooperation given the company in churches and Sunday Schools ordering all their supplies through the company has brought a fine commission to us at no additional cost to the customer. Many more could avail themselves of this and thereby help your publishing company considerably.

So all in all, The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. has had a very fine beginning in its business. It has been good! It will be even better, we are sure, when our Brethren know how much is dependent upon them for the company's success.

CREATING EFFECTIVE MISSIONARY EMPHASIS

(Concluded from July 13th issue)

C. IN HIGH SCHOOL & COLLEGE DEPARTMENTS
—accompany the missionary challenge by definite service for Christ.

1. Home mission endeavors. Keep your young people active in Christian work, for many who have tasted its joys will rejoice at the greater opportunities of full-time service if God reveals that as His will for their lives. One of our missionaries said he did not feel the missionary urge until the joy of winning a soul spurred him on to seek others.

Every young person should be given opportunities—plenty of them—to express with definite purpose his devotion to Christ. Every talent of every individual should be put to use. Fields of service should be provided, and even hunted, if necessary. Needy places are to be found on every hand. Many an untouched district would welcome a cottage Sunday School (i. e. one held in a home), or a meeting in the old country schoolhouse. Hospitals, orphanages, poor sions (and for the older ones, jails, city rescue missions and girls rescue homes) throw out a real challenge to those burdened for the lost. Every one may engage in the fruitful ministry of distributing tracts. Gospel teams, quartettes, and carollers will find no end of opportunities to serve. One group of young people sponsored a summer Sunday School in an auto camp, which resulted in 50 conversions.

The value of actual service to both young people and the church has been demonstrated again and again. Some years ago volunteers from among the young people of one of our churches spent their Sunday afternoons visiting shut-ins. After meeting for prayer, they went to the homes where they participated in a program of songs, Scripture, prayer, testimonies, and an occasional devotional message. They marvelled that anxious faces could so soon glow with joy because they had come. They saw that heavy burdens were constantly being lifted and that yearning hearts were eagerly awaiting their return. They rejoiced that some were saved as the result of their efforts and prayers, and often remarked that they received even greater blessings from their ministry than those to whom they ministered. So great were the joys of such a service that a longing for greater usefulness possessed them. As a result, over half of their number have had Bible Institute or Seminary training, and several are now enjoying or contemplating full-time Christian service. All but one of that group is still active in Christian work.

2. Foreign missionary emphasis. Every phase of the world's mission field should have been so thoroughly presented, before one enters this golden period of youth, that the facts need not be mentioned so in detail. The needs should now be stressed so as to give the challenge and vision of a life of service, of prayer, and of giving, and to encourage a yielding to the will of God in any of these three channels as God may direct.

3. A round-the-world historical chart. The young people would enjoy making this, and it would provide an interesting background for missions as a whole, or for any country in which one is especially interested. It would be helpful to Sunday School teachers also, to know that was transpiring in Europe, Africa, India, or China during the lifetime of the Bible characters as they study them. A series of columns are drawn, one for each country or continent. Horizontal lines mark off each 500 years. Important events which occurred in each period, taken from both secular and religious history, are listed in the respective columns. The length of time some nations waited for the gospel is appalling.

4. Round-the-world missionary occasions. These are always interesting, and are especially adapted to C. E. groups. They may be promoted in any of the following ways:

a. A missionary decoration contest. The society is divided into several groups with a leader for each. The groups endeavor to outdo each other in the portrayal of the country of their choice. All available information is gathered and put into an attractive form. Decorations, posters, curios, interesting maps, and pictures, add to the impressiveness of the meeting. The countries may be presented in a single evening, or a series of services may be arranged. If the former plan is followed, each group may be assigned a corner of the room for its display, and a limited time for the program. The chairs are turned to face the proper corner as each group takes part. The contest may be followed by a missionary social in which games and refreshments characteristic of the country are furnished by the representative groups.

b. A missionary trip. The same idea as the contest is carried out in a different way. The society travels in a body to a number of homes which are decorated to represent different countries, each having a display of pictures, curios, costumes, flags and anything else of interest. At each place, a suitable program and refreshments are provided.

c. A round-the-world social. For this, different phases of the various countries (transportation, industry, religion, social life etc.) are assigned to all members of the society ahead of time. On the evening of the entertainment, those having the same topic but representing different countries exchange information between features of the program. Songs, skits, foreign games and refreshments will add zest to the occasion.

5. Adopted missionaries. A plan which was greeted with enthusiasm by California Christian Endeavors was for each society to adopt a missionary without financial obligation. The local organizations communicated with the state Union, stating their preference for a man, woman, or married couple with or without children, engaged in the evangelistic, medical or educational field. The societies took a very definite interest in the one who was carefully selected for them—he was their missionary. They wrote him and sent Christmas boxes and many other cheerful, helpful things. Societies desiring pictures from the field sent films, (these are so expensive in heathen lands) to fit their missionaries' kodaks. They also received news, requests for magazines, etc. This plan was especially valuable because it made an interest in missions personal.

6. Drafted information. Sometimes conditions and needs on the field can be most effectively presented by striking maps and posters. If new ones are posted frequently, several can be left up at a time. At a Christian Endeavor Conference, a black map of Africa was posted in a conspicuous place. The location of missionaries of all denominations were represented by white spots. The scarcity of white spots was so appalling that several volunteered to go to Africa. Much information can be attractively displayed in this way. The need for medical workers can be shown by locating each nurse on a map by a red circle and each doctor by a red cross. At the foot, note the number of people to each nurse and the number to each doctor.

7. A challenging appeal. The pictures of fifteen missionaries who were members of a certain congregation were hung on the walls of the church auditorium, but much to the pastor's dismay, new recruits had not been added for several years. His frequent appeals for additional workers were unheeded. Finally he arranged for a missionary program, one feature of which was another unveiling. When the hour arrived, the audience was tense with expectation. Who was to be their new representative on the field? The curtain was drawn aside. A frame similar to the others appeared, but instead of a picture, the word, "WHO?" was staring at them. This remained on the wall as a challenge to all until a new recruit was added to the mission field a short time later.

Prayer and planning under our Father's direction will suggest other methods more numerous and effective than these. The attractiveness of these plans will largely determine the missionary temperature of the church. Let us, therefore, seek God's guidance in studying the characteristics of our respective groups that we may effect an appealing and well-balanced missionary program. Then, ever guarding against over-confidence in methods rather than complete reliance upon God, we shall see missions exalted to the proper place in the prayers, gifts and lives of our people.—G. A.

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

SHARING THE BEST WITH OTHERS

By Jo L. Morris

When other children make fun of you, you may shun speaking of Jesus. I want to tell you what one little girl did to show her testimony.

Rachel had been given a New Testament which she cherished very dearly. She could read many verses in her little Bible. If she found words she couldn't say, she would remember and ask mother about them. However, when she was reading by herself, she could always find verses in which she knew every word. She enjoyed reading very much, and she even memorized some of the verses.

On library day in the city school. Rachel had invited a friend to go with her to the school library. Liesurely walking along, her little friend said, "I haven't read a book this year other than my books I have in school. Tell me of a good book to read and I shall read it."

Rachel's eyes gleamed with joy as she reached in her pocket and brought forth her Bible. As she handed it to her little friend, she said, "This little book is the very best. I carry it with me every day. In my idle time I read from it. It tells me all about Jesus, and by reading it I have learned to love everybody too."

Her little friend shamefully hung her head and said, "That book is the Bible. There is one at home, but I have never read a word of it. I shall keep my promise and read some from it."

Even little boys and girls are not too small to help spread the gospel of Jesus Christ.

WHAT OTHER BOYS AND GIRLS ARE DOING

Primary Sunbeams is the name of the Sunday School class of first graders at the First Brethren Church in Johnstown. The Lord Jesus must be pleased with the way these Sunbeams shine. Their teacher, Miss June Blough, found some little barrels at the church, and gave one to each member of her class. In these barrels they put pennies for Anne Kliever. After Christmas they collected over 1200 greeting cards from among their friends and spent their Saturday afternoons at the church cutting and pasting Scripture verses over the names on the cards. They saved pennies to pay for the postage and sent them to Brother Sewell Landrum for his missionary work in Kentucky.

Every Sunday Miss Blough takes a few minutes in class to tell her Sunbeams about one of the children of either our home or foreign missionaries. Although the Sunbeams are young they are learning how important missions are and how they can be missionaries for their Lord.

One of the Sunbeams, Thomas Arsen Hawks, whose father is blind, does not often have pennies to spend on candy as most children do. Since Tommy got his bank, he has not spent what few pennies he has received, but has put them in his little barrel-bank to help support our little missionary in Africa, Anne Kliever.

Wouldn't it be fine if every boy and girl would show his love for Jesus as Tommy has done?

THE PALACE OF PEACE CLOSED

The Palace of Peace in Geneva, Switzerland has been closed. Its rooms are deserted and the officials have departed. It is (or was) the embodiment in stone of the dreams of many statesmen for world peace. This League of Nations was formed 20 years ago, and at one time included 60 nations of the world. In its twentieth birthday last Jan. 10, 52 nations were still on the roll, though nearly a score had already resigned. Ineffective in the purpose of its founding, the League of Nations has now become entirely inactive. One writer referring to this says, "but the closing of the Palace does not mean the death of the great ideal. 'Truth though crushed to earth will rise again!'"

Oh, if men would only know that they cannot bring about world peace! This old world will have peace, only when the Prince of peace returns! Instead of trying to force peace upon nations, much more would be accomplished to make known the gospel unto them.

Greetings

FROM THE FIELD

KITTANNING, PA.

Though it has been so long since Kittanning has been heard from, our silence has not indicated inactivity, nor that the Lord has been withholding from us His blessings.

Among the outstanding events we have enjoyed have been; First, our Harvest Home Services, which closed Oct. 1, last. Bro. W. H. Shaffer, Jr., of Cone-maugh led us in this week of services. His messages were very well received, and his fellowship much enjoyed. Then, the latter part of November we were led in a Jewish Bible Conference by Rev. Herman B. Centz. This was but a three-day conference, which proved to be too short. However, Bro. Centz proved to be a very able and interesting speaker, and was much appreciated by our people.

Our evangelistic services in February were under the leadership of Bro. Frank Coleman, Jr., then of Allentown, Pa. We greatly enjoyed the very excellent messages brought by our brother, as well as his congeniality. The meeting continued for only a little more than two weeks—that was as long as Bro. Coleman could be with us—and here again, I am convinced that the meeting was entirely too short. The visible results of this effort were 19 decisions. Eight of these were first-time confessions, two came into the church by statement, and nine were definite rededications.

The Sunday following the close of the revival, the pastor had the privilege of receiving the confessions of two more young people. Much more recently another young man professed conversion. Ten of these have been baptized and received into the church, and one united with another church.

From time to time the pastor has been privileged to lead ten others to an acceptance of Christ in their homes within the past ten months. These range in age from 12 to 70 years. Thus in the three and one-half years of our labors together in Kittanning, the Lord has been pleased to bless our efforts, in a visible way, by baptism, letter and statement, a total of 73 souls; and 12 are yet to be baptized.

Our spring communion service was, I think, the most blessed and the most largely attended of any such service since our coming to this field. The attendance was 25 per cent larger than the average for the entire period previously. The attendance at the regular Sunday services has remained quite uniform, with the exception of the mid-week service, which has registered a higher average attendance than ever, the past quarter, with an average attendance of nearly 47.

During June we held our Daily Vacation Bible School, which was very successful in many ways. There were about 90 in attendance on the average. The cost was taken care of by free-will offerings, and when all bills were paid we had $4.90 in the treasury.

Also, while the Bible School was in progress, we had the happy privilege of having Rev. and Mrs. Harold Dunning with us for two services. We were greatly blessed by their presence and ministry.

Praying that the blessing of the Lord may continue to rest very definitely upon all God's faithful ones everywhere, we are,

Yours in Him,

G. W. KINZIE

RITTMAN, OHIO

Greetings to the brotherhood in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ from the Rittman brethren. God's people here have abundant and manifold reasons to lift their voices in paeons of praise to the blessed Lord of life.

During the last year our flock has shown a very appreciable growth in every way, spiritually, financially, numerically. The Savior has manifested His power in some mighty and striking transformations of hearts and lives. Many believers have taken rapid strides forward in the knowledge of the Word; likewise in ability to skillfully handle and present that Word. The attendance at services has been consistent and generally good. Of course, while all this has been taking place, Satan has not failed to "build his chapel close by." However, through prayer and the practical application of our Lord's power and wisdom we have been able to avoid generally those things which haunt the work of Christ. The devil never yet has won a battle in which Christ fought on the other side.

We wish especially to praise God for another successful Daily Vacation Bible School. With a registration of 120, the school was conducted for three weeks at the close of which time a commencement service and picnic were held. The decision day yielded a harvest of 13 souls for Christ. Attractive diplomas were presented to all those who had satisfactorily completed the work. Bible School buttons were given to each student and a small figure Bible to each one having perfect attendance through the term. Those who so efficiently assisted in this program of child evangelism were Miss Genevieve Walter and Mrs. Fred Blatter in the Beginner's Dept., Mrs. Virgil Armstrong and Mrs. Herl Brickel in the Primary Dept., Miss Mary Fritz and Mrs. L. L. Grubb in the Junior Dept., Mrs. Walter Schultz and Miss Bertha Kuhn in the Intermediate Dept. Mrs. Bud Walter acted as Secretary-Treasurer. The position of pianist was assumed by Mrs. Fred Blatter. All visitors attending the opening exercises of the school were inspired by the spirited singing of the children. Surely of all the varied ministry of our churches this is one of the most worthwhile.

So, with the psalmist we say, "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me, bless his holy name."

Pray for us!

LEW GRUBB, Pastor

MOTION PICTURES OF ALL OUR HOME MISSION FIELDS

The Home Missions Council has arranged to have the secretary cover the entire eastern portion of our brotherhood this fall with motion pictures of our swiftly expanding Home Mission fields. The pictures of Kentucky alone are worth it all. To see Russell Barnard, Roy Patterson, Leo Polman, Bill Schaffer and Bernard Schneider swinging hammers and saws will be something. There are also other characteristic pictures which will make these the most interesting and attractive Home Missions pictures ever seen. Several weeks ago every pastor was contacted for a date for these pictures to be shown in his church. They will be shown in every place where a reply card has been sent in. If there has been no card returned from any church, that date will be filled with another place. About 95% of the replies have been returned. A free will offering will be lifted at each service to aid in meeting the cost of this trip. These pictures will undoubtedly be of great value in stirring our people with a passion for Home Missions. It is planned that one of our western men will take the pictures to the Pacific Coast churches.

THE JUNE EMERGENCY OFFERING

During the month of July practically all of our churches sent in their emergency offerings. The amount now stands at approximately $1700.00. This leaves a balance needed of $1300.00 to meet our barest need for the added works we have taken on. However, there are still several churches to send in, and this may materially aid us toward reaching the amount we need. The Lord knows our need and knows where the supply will come from. The work is His. We look to Him. The work will never suffer on His account! We shall continue looking to Him.

THE BIG HOUR !!

From 10 to 11 o'clock Saturday morning of conference week you will hear the first hand story of the victories being won here in America in our new mission fields. John Squires, Henry Remple, Ralph Rambo, Frank Coleman, Jr., and Jack Simmons, will all be there to tell of the advances this last year in spite of opposition in Wooster, O.; Flora, Ind.; Hagerstown, Md.; Waterloo, Ia. and Fremont, O. We would like to call in several more of our men, but time forbids it. These men will each have six minutes in which to tell his story. The secretary will then review the year and tell of the plans outlined by the directors of the Council for the year ahead. If you want to know what is going on in The Brethren Church, don't miss this hour.

FELLOWSHIP PICNIC FOR MISSION PASTORS AND THEIR WIVES

The finest year of Home Missions in The Brethren Church is going to be celebrated with a real time of fellowship for our mission pastors and their wives and the directors of the Council and their wives. It will be in the form of a banquet or picnic, whichever the committee decides is best. One day during National Conference will be chosen for this get-together. The committee is arranging a splendid program and a delectable menu. The committee will send out notices to all mission pastors and directors regarding the day and hour shortly.

"A BALANCE IN HIS HAND"

"And I beheld, and lo, a black horse, and he that sat on him had a balance in his hand. And I heard a voice in the midst of the four beasts say, 'A measure of wheat for a penny, and three measures of barley for a penny, and see thou hurt not the oil and the wine'" (Rev. 6:5, 6).

It is true that "an army fights on its stomach." There is little doubt that Hitler's fighting forces will experience no lack of food for their stomachs that they may fight on and on. But they are leaving the conquered peoples in a sad state of hunger and destitution. He may find that there are worst enemies to fight than the Royal Air Force of Britain. Starvation may sweep away every advance that Hitler has made before another year has passed over. A man by the name of Napoleon found that while there were no legions in Russia that could withstand his military machine, that he was no match for the pangs of hunger.

Walter Davenport in a recent article in Colliers sets forth some most startling facts about Europe's economic situation. His information was obtained from the files of Herbert Hoover's relief commission. It is unquestioned that no man on earth has a better knowledge of the actual state of Europe's peoples than Mr. Hoover, who dispersed so many hundreds of millions of dollars worth of relief in food and clothing in Europe after the last world war.

From these files it is learned that when Hitler seized Belgium in May, they had food supplies for just 50 days. When Poland was crushed it was when she had the poorest crops in years. The farmers were just sowing their wheat when Hitler drove his blitzkrieg over their land and slew the sowers and stopped the sowing. Drought had withered the fields of Holland and the people were living on their herds and eating them up. Scandinavia was doing the same. Europe's wheat crop was reported by its economists as 25 to 50% below normal last winter.

The German army has but one objective and that is to win the war regardless. The soldiers are well fed. They seize everything in sight that they need. If there is anything left, the conquered people have that. When Hitler entered Belgium the nation had 2,000,000 hogs, but they were slaughtered for his army, leaving Belgium with nothing. King Leopold said he surrendered to save his people from starvation. As another has said, "He could have starved honorably with his flag flying instead of starving as a vassal of Hitler who despises a weakling."

Mr. Hoover's files show that in Poland are 7,000,000 people on the verge of starvation because Hitler has forced 15,000,000 to live in the industrial sections where but 10,000,000 can really exist. He wanted their factory products. Little he cares if they starve. They should be on their farms growing crops, but no, the insatiable appetite of the war machine must be fed. Of these people 1000 are dying daily from starvation right now. Normally, Poland raises 7,000,000 head of beef cattle. Today they have but 2,400,000. Famous for her enormous crop of peas, that nation has but one half crop now. Hitler seized Poland's beef cattle for his own people. What will happen to Poland?

Norway is already rationing to its people at the rate of 3 ounces a week per person. Hitler has forbidden grain to be fed to cattle. Denmark's cattle, robbed of grain, are being slaughtered and shipped to Germany. Milk and beef are but memories in that unhappy land. Military observers, the most reliable we have, report that the streets and roads of conquered countries are lined with children that are horrible caricatures of humanity, "birdlegged, reed-armed, fever-eyed, and balloon-bellied."

A child can be fed in Europe normally on 5 cents a day, and an adult on 7 cents. But they can't eat 7 cents! There is great plenty in the South and North Americas, but a solid war blockade keeps all ships of supply out of these countries. To feed these helpless millions he has seized, he must first crush the British navy, then he must either seize this hemisphere by force or invent something for money with which to buy food for Europe. Verily the joy of Hitler's recent victories may not last very long.

All this is true with winter yet several months away. By the time winter comes the conditions of Europe may well be described by the word of God as quoted above. The time may not be far away when a man may be willing to give a fortune for a loaf of bread. With wheat selling at $128.00 a bushel and barley at $43.00 a bushel, as this verse seems to indicate it will be when the antichrist rides, there are certainly unhappy days ahead of this Christ-rejecting world of men. That the ground work for this may now be in the course of laying is evidenced by the continuous stream of reports of our economists who know how much food there is in the world and how many mouths there are to feed.

We fear there are many unthankful hearts eating bread today who will live to remember how they wasted food for which they never thanked God in other days. The rider on the black horse seems getting ready to ride forth in the world. But we also know that it won't be long till there will ride forth One called 'Faithful and True' on a white horse, and following Him there will come the armies of heaven to the great day of victory at Armageddon. May we hasten the work of enrolling men in the army of the King of kings while there is yet time. The night cometh.

No matter how lonely you feel, you are not as bad off as poor Robinson Crusoe. He had only Friday for company. You have the whole week.

ARE WE HEADED TOWARD PROHIBITION AGAIN?

In a recent Gallup poll of public sentiment in 15 states it was found that 47% today advocate prohibition. 51% declared present laws inadequate. 39% said drunkenness was on the increase in their section. 42% said prohibition was better protection for our young people than the present laws.

Twenty-four years ago in a time of great national distress and danger the nation penalized the sale of liquor. There followed the greatest period of prosperity this people ever knew. Outside our large cities a drunk man became practically unknown. Young men knew nothing of the swinging doors of a saloon. Today liquor is being sold in gas stations, grocery and drug stores, restaurants and hotels on every side.

The tide was largely turned against liquor the first time by Billy Sunday, the famous evangelist. But now he has gone to glory and there has been found none to wear his mantle. Nevertheless it might surprise a lot of folks at the size of the vote for prohibition if it were taken today. The liquor interests are making a tremendous effort to make drinking genteel and harmless but it is like trying to make a rattlesnake harmless. They realized that the excesses of their dirty business are once more causing the rise of strong resentment against it.

Prohibition may come again. It may not. In any case it would not correct the evil liquor creates. Prohibition is an effort to make unwilling men to be sober by force. It has never worked. It never will. Nothing but a new creature in Christ Jesus can enjoy true victory.

THE CHRISTIAN AND LIQUOR

In a question box during a recent campaign the editor found this question:

"Is there anything wrong in a Christian taking a harmless glass of beer now and then?"

The Scriptures enjoin the Christian to abstain from even the appearance of evil. First of all liquor of any kind hurts the Christian himself. It is not the last glass that makes a drunkard. It is the first one that does it. It is like taking a serpent into the breast. It will finally sink its fangs into the heart and slay its protector.

Second, liquor will hurt others. "No man liveth to himself." Most drunkards have been led into such a life by the influence of others. The apostle Paul wrote in Rom. 14:21, "It is good neither to eat meat or drink wine, or do anything whereby thy brother stumbleth, or is offended or is made weak."

In the Jackson, Mich., State Prison are 5500 men. 68% of them had alcoholic fathers. 90.5% had used liquor to excess. 54% declared liquor was at the bottom of their life tragedy in crime. Most of them had started drinking at the age of 16 years. With such an appalling record before him, can the sincere Christian really ask, "Is there any harm in a harmless glass of liquor?" Never forget, "The best booze makes the worst of men."

SPIRIT OF ANTI-CHRIST ADVANCES

A recent report from Spain reveals the startling fact that only 15 Protestant preachers and 11 teachers remain in Spain. This is but one more example of the spirit of antichrist which is leading the spread of dictatorships over the world. The Roman Church will go along with the dictators as far as possible. In fact they will rise to power through her aid. The "scarlet woman" of Rev. 17 is now preparing to ride "the beast" or dominion of antichrist. These are great and terrible days: terrible in character, but great in opportunity for Christ.

THE BIBLE STILL HOLDS ITS PLACE

The Paris correspondent of "Newsweek" has just returned from England. He reports that English people are reading Daniel the 11th chapter with a new interest born of their war fears. In cafes, clubs, and homes, he says people ask interestedly, "Have you read Daniel 11? It is supposed to refer to the present war." While in his report he indicates that their comfort is being especially taken from the 45th verse of the chapter, which very evidently refers to antichrist, yet it is refreshing to observe how quickly people discover the fact that Daniel wrote a book in the Bible when they get into real trouble. It was not until Jonah was in the belly of the whale that he remembered the Lord. God grant that war, terrible as it is, may send Great Britain back to the Bible and to her knees and to Christ!

WHY CHRIST CAME INTO THE WORLD

Rev. W. H. Schweinfurth, Findlay, Ohio

1. To fulfill. "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill"—Mt. 5:17.
2. To do His Father's will. "Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me,) to do thy will O God"—Heb. 10:7.
3. To bear witness of the truth. "For this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness of the truth"—Jn. 18:37.
4. To call sinners to repentance. "I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance"—Mk. 2:17.
5. To preach. "And He said unto them, let us go into the next towns, that I may preach there also: for therefore came I forth"—Mk. 1:38.
6. To minister unto; and to give His life. "Even so the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and give his life a ransom for many"—Mt. 20:28; Jn. 10:10.
7. To seek and save the lost. "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save the lost"—Lk. 19:10; Mt. 18:11.
8. To save sinners. "This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners"—1 Tim. 1:15.
9. To give everlasting life. "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread, he shall live for ever"—Jn. 6:51; Rom. 6:23.

"What The Home Missions Council Is Doing"*ACROSS
NATIONwith our
secretaryKENTUCKY BUILDING NOT FINISHED

As much as we would like to report a finished structure, we cannot do so, but we can report a lot of work done. While we expected much more volunteer help than we got, and as a result the building is still unfinished, yet those who did help made a marvelous showing. The building is 60 ft. long and 40 ft. wide. It is built to stand and of course that takes more material and labor. It is sheathed and papered and then covered with drop siding. The roof is covered with heavy duty 4 in 1 asphalt shingles. These are a beautiful evergreen color, and with the outside walls painted white, they will make a most beautiful effect. It will be a building that will stand to the credit of any people. Mission workers of that section are enthused over the project. One successful business man in Hazard told the secretary that he thought it was the finest thing that could happen in Clayhole.

While there was plenty of money sent in to take care of the windows and the doors, yet we were about $750.00 short of enough to pay for the roof and the rest of the material. Mize Landrum, who has always been a true friend to our work in Kentucky, gave sufficient timber from his woods to provide practically all of the dimension lumber. At the low price of $35.00 a thousand his gifts amounts to about $310.00. French Combs, a brother-in-law of Mize, who is also much interested in the new church, gave about three fourths of this amount in timber. It is easy to see that these people have some mighty fine hearts for the Lord's work among them. Mrs. Maggie Noble has offered all of the cut stone for the foundation of the church and parsonage. Bro. Bernard Schneider of Covington,

Va. had charge of the construction work. He is a real workman and knows how to get things done. He brought with him Bro. Booz from his congregation and he stayed with us an entire week. We hated to give him up. The second week Bro. Schneider had the two Duncan brothers who helped us all week. The secretary and his son Paul contributed somewhat to the work. Bro. William Schaffer undertook to get out the lumber for the seats and get the first few seats assembled so that others could finish the job. He worked mighty hard to get as much done in four days as possible. He surely knows his way around with tools. On the 4th of July, Roy Patterson, president of our Home Missions Council, and Russell Barnard, pastor of our Dayton Church, spent a few hours with us. Things surely hummed while they were there. The walls went up right after they got there!!

Four of our Flora, Ind. brethren, Dalta Myers, his father, Melvin Fisher, and Wilbur Dyson, came and helped us for two mighty busy days. They were real workmen and accomplished a lot while they were there. Dalta Myers' father is a very good carpenter and he stayed several days more. Bro. Leo Polman, his son, Bryson Feters, and Glenn O'Neal came down for one day. They also gave a lot of help! We will need to send someone with them the next time they come down for they got lost on the way and wandered all over those hills. We didn't mind that, but they wasted half of a perfectly good day that they could have spent on the building!

Sewell Landrum, the hard working and faithful pastor, his father, Mize Landrum, his brother Clyde, and a number of other local men helped on the building regularly.

During the two weeks that Bro. Schneider and the secretary remained on the job, the walls were raised, the roof was finished and the window frames placed. Two weeks was all the time that either of us could give at one period. The secretary is still trying to crawl out from under the pile of work that accumulated while he was in Kentucky.

a number of his men down from the Dayton church. They accomplished a lot for the few days they were there, and now the siding is mostly on, the finished floor is half laid and the doors and windows are hung. We still have this work to finish besides the electric wiring, the placing of the celotex and the painting of the entire building. There is still plenty to do.

We need an electrician to do the wiring and several groups to spend a week this summer to finish the building before cold weather comes. There is a local man, a good carpenter, who is there right along, and he can direct the work of all who come.

Most of the material was shipped down from the north. It is hard to buy such material in Kentucky. Stocks are low and the prices are usually high. We got the sash and doors made in Berne, Ind. where we have a good manufacturing mill. When we explained our need for haste they laid aside other work to give us our material on short notice.

We tried to get good pictures of the various stages of the building work. We trust that the cuts will give some idea of what is going on.

Not all of the hard work was done on the building. Down at Bro. Landrum's home was Hazel, his wife, doing the work of three ordinary women in cooking for these suddenly coming and going groups. One week she had 15 men to feed three times a day. The next week she had more for several days. Besides cooking she provided sleeping accommodations for all, but harrassed as she was she always wore a smile and had a cheerful word for everyone. She is glad to see the work of the Lord in that community go forward at last. During this time she was ably assisted by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Clyde Landrum. Realizing Mrs. Landrum's need, Mrs. Bryson Fetters of Berne, Ind. laid aside her own home and spent two weeks helping Mrs. Landrum. I fear that at times Mrs. Landrum would have about given up but for

Caney School Building

Mrs. Fetters' timely and efficient help. She was a blessing with her cheery disposition. We found that she especially likes to cross rivers in boats and walk logs across streams in the hills!

We took motion pictures of everything, and we believe they will be mighty interesting when we show them to the churches this fall. It would be a revelation to all of our Brethren to have the chance to see young and old crowd into the truck and into the bus on Sunday mornings to be whisked away to church. It is a sight to see. 181 crowded the school room where they meet until the church is finished, on the second Sunday morning we were there. And how these people sing their favorite songs! One outstanding feature of their meetings is the order and discipline observed. The children march out and in and know their places. This is a new thing for Kentucky audiences. Clyde Landrum, principal of the Caney School, largest in this section, is Sunday School superintendent and has brought this about. We will be glad when our people will learn the habit of driving to Kentucky when they have a few days to spend for recreation. It will be an eye opener to them for missions.

Another need that has presented itself is a parsonage. There is no house within four miles of Clayhol for our pastor to live in. He should live near the church for many reasons. He should have a true Christian home as an example to others and he is needed right where the church stands. We are praying that the W.M.C. will feel led of the Lord to provide a parsonage as their home mission project for next year. This is an imperative need. One other need that we are now facing is for a first class Delco plant to provide water and lights for the church and the parsonage. We have an idea that the Sisterhood girls may desire to provide this unit. It will cost about $650.00.

But by every indication we have made mighty fine progress in our new field this summer and we hope to have sufficient additional help that will enable us to get these people into their new building by conference time. Whatever we do must be done promptly, for this summer is swiftly passing.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS AT FLORA

On Thursday night, July 25, the Flora congregation took final action to start the erection of their new church building. They passed all necessary resolutions for obtaining funds, signing contracts, and for cooperation with the Council. The secretary to date has never worked with a finer group of men than those in this Flora congregation. They are the kind of men that God uses to glorify Himself. On Thurs., Aug. 1, the dirt began to move and in just 45 working days the contracts require that the structure be completed. Dedication of the building will be about Oct. 15. It is going to be a great day for that whole community. It will also be a great day for the testimony for Christ which these people purpose to bear.

MIDDLETOWN, OHIO, IS PROMISING FIELD

On Fri., July 26, the secretary went to Middletown to teach the Bible class that Rev. Arthur Cashman and Rev. Russell Barnard have been teaching for months. It meets at the Y.M.C.A. once a week. It has had as high as 158 in attendance.

Middletown is a fine growing city with a big steel works and other industrial institutions to make it prosperous. We hope soon to start an actual mission in the city. Let those who pray ask God for the man and the means for this field.

PERU UNION MEETING

We were privileged to accept the invitation from the Peru Brethren to address the Sunday night union meeting in that city on July 21st. There is a good spirit present in this group of churches, for they meet together in fine harmony. Several hundred people were in attendance and the Lord blessed us all. Bro. Ashman's people are a strong influence for the fundamentals of the gospel in this city.

IN HIS LIKENESS

A little lad was sick unto death.

"Daddy," he said, "is God as nice as you?"

After the silence during which the father's throat was too full of sobs to answer, the little fellow said, "Then, daddy, I am going, I am not afraid."

This beautiful statement needs no comment. Comment would spoil God's lilies with man's mean paint. But a question is not out of order. This: How many get such an impression about God from us who are preachers, leaders, parents, teachers, church officers? How many? And—how constantly?

—Church Administration.

THIS IS MINISTRY

Amos R. Wells was quoted in The Sunday School Times some time ago, as follows:

"Not to sit on a lifted throne, not to rule superbly alone; not to be ranked on the left or right in the kingdom's glory, the kingdom's might; not to be great and first of all, nor to hold others in humble thrall; not to lord it over the world, a sceptre high and a flag unfurled; not with authority, not with pride, vain dominion, mastery wide,—nothing to wish for, nothing to do,—not, in short, to be ministered to!

"Ah, but to minister! Lowly to sup with the servant's bread and the servant's cup; down where the waters of sorrow flow, full-baptized in the stream of woe; out where the people of sorrow are, walking brotherly, walking far; known to bitterness, known to sin, to the poor and the wretched comrade and kin; so to be helper, the last and least, serf in the kingdom, slave at the feast, so to obey, and so to defer, and so, my Saviour, to minister."

"Yes, for never am I alone: this is thy glory and this is thy throne. Infinite servant, well may I be bondman and vassal and toiler—with thee!"

The Sin of Prayerlessness

By Homer A. Kent, Pastor, Washington, D. C.

"God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you" (1 Sam. 12:23).

It was a critical time in the history of the nation of Israel. They had sinned in asking for a king in order to be like the nations round about them. God had frowned upon their sin by sending thunder and rain. The people confessed their sin and earnestly asked Samuel to pray for them. The response of Samuel to this request is our text: "God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you." Note the exact statement. He does not say, "God forbid that I should sin against you" but rather, "God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you."

Prayerlessness is not a sin, first of all, against needy men, or unaved men, or the church, or the servants of the Lord but "against the Lord" Himself.

Why Prayerlessness a Sin?

Let us consider in the first place why prayerlessness is a sin against the Lord. We shall present four reasons. First, it takes lightly the promises of God respecting prayer. The Scriptures teem with promises to those who will pray. For instance, Jn. 14:13, 14 says, "Whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in My name, that I will do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye ask anything in My name, I will do it." When the child of God comes before the Father in the name of Christ, "enfolded in His name," he is promised answer to his prayer to the end that the Father may be glorified. To fail to embrace this promise is to keep back glory from the Father and is sin.

Again, Jn. 15:7 says, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will and it shall be done unto you." To fail to meet these conditions and pray as herein suggested is to keep back our lives from being fruitful and is sin.

James 1:5 says, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." To those who pray for it, God here promises wisdom for living the Christian life. To fail to live unwisely and to be less than we ought to be for God and is sin.

One further promise in 1 Jn. 5:14, 15, says, "And this is the confidence that we have in Him, that, if we ask anything according to His will, He heareth us: and if we know that He hear us, whatsoever we ask, we know that we have the petitions that we have desired of Him." According to this, prayer imparts blessing. It brings forth healing virtue. To fail to heed such a promise is to go forth unbled and is sin. Dr. A. T. Pierson has said, "God has no greater controversy with His people today than this, that with boundless promises to believing prayer there are so few who actually give themselves unto intercession."

Prayerlessness Robs God

Secondly, prayerlessness is sin because it robs God of fellowship with His children. Our Lord's first lesson in the school of prayer was, and still is, "Enter into thy closet" (Mt. 6:6). The closet is the closed place close by God, where the human spirit waits upon the divine presence and cultivates His acquaintance, fellowship and friendship. We are His children. What earthly parent does not like to talk with his children? So our Father in heaven wants the fellowship of His children. Elijah was bidden first to "Go hide thyself" before he was told to "Go show thyself." To rob God of the fellowship that is His due from His own children is sin.

Thirdly, prayerlessness is sin against the Lord because it is plain disobedience. "Pray without ceasing," says the great apostle writing under inspiration. We cannot make up for the lack of praying by an excess of working. "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" (Lk. 11:9). To refuse God's way of receiving His blessings is disobedience and is sin.

Prayerlessness Withholds Blessing

Finally, on this point, prayerlessness is sin against the Lord because it keeps the blessing of God from being witnessed in His work. It was when the early church prayed that the place was shaken and things began to happen. It was as Jesus was praying that He was transfigured. If the history of all true spiritual advance could be written and read it would be seen that the cause of God advanced as men felt the burden of prayer. Prayer is the greatest privilege of the Christian life, the privilege of audience with God, of commanding His blessing upon ourselves and others, of taking our stand upon His precious promises. To fail to do this is sin in the sight of God.

For Whom Is It a Sin To Cease Praying?

As a second consideration in this matter of the sin of prayerlessness, let us ask the question, for whom is it a sin to cease praying? From our text we gain the idea that it is the duty of the child of God to pray for others. That is certainly true. But it is also true that we should pray for ourselves. It is not selfish to do so, nor is it presumption. One of the most beautiful prayers of the Old Testament is that of Jabez found in 1 Chron. 4. It is a prayer for himself. He says, "Oh that Thou wouldest bless me indeed, and enlarge my coast, and that Thine hand might be upon me, and that Thou wouldest keep me from evil, and that it may not grieve me." And so we need to pray for ourselves, to be blessed, to be forgiven, to have a sense of His presence, for purity of heart, for loyalty, that He might enlarge our usefulness. Let each one of us pray: "Oh that thou wouldst bless me." It is a sin not to pray for ourselves.

Again, it is sinful to cease to pray for the church. Paul in Rom. 1:9 says, "God is my witness, Whom I serve with my spirit in the gospel of His Son, that without ceasing I make mention of you always in my prayers." Samuel said, "God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you." More than the church needs your money, it needs your prayers. More than it needs a fine organization it needs the prayers of its membership. The church only moves forward toward God as it moves forward upon its knees. The Lord is a great deal more concerned about how many real intercessors there are in the church than about how many committees and organizations there are. The latter are a burden unless bathed in the heavenly atmosphere of prayer. To fail to pray for the church, its ministry, its membership, its preaching, its teaching, and its organization is sin and we ought to be less and less guilty of it.

Prayerlessness a Sin Against the Unsaved

It is also a sin to cease praying for the unsaved about us. Dr. R. A. Torrey used to say that every minister and Christian worker should have a prayer list with the heading at the top of the page, "God helping me, I will pray earnestly and work persistently for the conversion of the following persons." Then there should be careful consideration as to the names included on the list. There should be prayer each day without ceasing for the names of those upon the list. You say, "I have been praying for certain persons but my prayer is not answered." Keep on praying. Leave the result with God. George Mueller prayed for two persons for 60 years. At the time of his death they had not yet turned to God. But Mueller said in words of sublime faith, "I have not a doubt that I shall meet them both in heaven; for my heavenly Father would not lay upon my heart a burden of prayer for over three score years, if He had not concerning them purposes of mercy." Let us pray for the unsaved while we may, lest the Lord come to us in our neglect to fail to pray for the unsaved about us. "Lord, lay some soul upon my heart and love that soul through me; and may I nobly do my part to win that soul for thee."

Furthermore, it is sinful to cease praying for the missionaries of the cross and their work. You and I had a part in sending some of them to the field. We are morally bound to uphold them in prayer. We have no right to forsake them thus. Those who have visited foreign mission fields say that it seems as though the very atmosphere is taken possession of by "the prince of the power of the air." We must not let these missionaries battle alone. James Gil-mour, whose rare and radiant spirit so impressed the rude Mongolians, said that, unprayed for, he would feel like a diver in the river bottom with no air to breathe, or like a fireman on a blazing building with no water in his empty hose." Pray for the missionaries of the cross. Pray for the new converts on the fields. Pray for the boards that have the responsibility of guiding missionary work.

Prayer Pays Rich Dividends

We are called to a ministry of prayer. Let us as individuals and churches give ourselves more earnestly to this ministry. It will pay rich dividends. God summons His people to prayer. Who knows? You may meet someone on the streets of glory who will grasp your hand and say, "Thank God, you prayed for me. That's why I am here." The first converts on a certain mission field in Africa were very earnest and regular in their devotions. Each one had a separate spot in the bush to which he went to pray. The paths to these "Bethels" were distinctly marked. When any one began to decline in his prayer habit, it was soon manifest to his fellows. They would remind him of his duty by saying, "Brother, the grass grows on your path yonder."

Let us beware lest, in these busy days, we let the grass grow on the path that leads to our "Bethel" of prayer. "God forbid that I should sin against the Lord in ceasing to pray for you."

AROUND THE COUNCIL TABLE

WOOSTER

John Squires family

Wooster, O., is a town of approximately 14,000 population and is the seat of Wayne County, the third richest agricultural county in the United States. Wooster is located on the Lincoln Highway (No. 30), 56 miles south of Cleveland and 30 miles west of Canton. The First Brethren Church is just five blocks above the square on the main street of Wooster running north and south.

History

In order that our Herald readers may be informed about the Wooster Church we will present a brief history of our work. For a period of about two years preceding the organization of a Brethren Church here, Brethren Mayes, Beal and other pastors in the Ohio district helped conduct a Bible class in the city. The demand for a Brethren Church in Wooster became so great that finally a group of Brethren petitioned the Brethren Home Missions Council for aid in starting the church. After Bro. R. Paul Miller, secretary of the Council, had investigated the field with the district mission board, an agreement was entered into by the Wooster brethren and the Council. On Oct. 1, 1939 the First Brethren Church of Wooster was organized. Officers were elected and Elder Squires was called as pastor. Elder Squires did not come to Wooster until Jan. 1st, when his term as pastor of the Sterling Brethren Church expired.

Building

As soon as the church was organized, the people, with the expert help and guidance of Bro. Miller, began looking for a place to locate the church. After having scoured the town, a piece of property with a large brick residence on it was finally chosen. In December the people of the church started to go to work on the building in an effort to make it available for church and Sunday School services at the earliest possible date. And how they did work! The readers would have to see the house as it was in order to appreciate fully the transformation that has taken place. The house is a huge brick structure which was built back in the Civil War days. It was necessary to remove two great brick walls on the interior which ran from the basement to the attic. This was done in order to make way for an auditorium that will comfortably seat 125 people. The upstairs has been partitioned off into five large Sunday School rooms. Rest rooms have been installed in the basement beneath the auditorium. The parsonage consists of four spacious rooms with bath which adjoin the rear of the church and are separated from the auditorium by a steel fire-door and a twelve inch brick wall. The building was ready for occupation the last of February and our people were glad to move in, having tired of sharing a town hall with Seventh Day Adventists and Jehovah's Witnesses! On March 3 we had our dedication service with Elder C. W. Mayes as speaker. Our small auditorium was taxed far beyond its capacity but we managed to make out by squeezing people into the nooks and alcoves that are found in the auditorium. Just recently the exterior of the building was given a coat of white paint which has improved its appearance 100%. It may be added that we have never seen a residence, the exterior architecture of which lent itself so beautifully to the purpose for which the building is now being used. The exterior is also made more churchy by the presence of a large and beautiful bulletin board which was presented to the church by Bro. Paul Arnold, one of our faithful workers.

Membership

The membership situation here at Wooster is somewhat different than found in the average church, and could be a real handicap to our work were it not for the fact that we have a group of people who are faithful and willing to work. At present the Wooster church has 25 members and most of them live in the country from 12 to 14 miles from the church. It is not easy for farmers, especially in the busy summer months, to go home from the morning service, get their chores done, and then drive back into town for the evening service. Then, too, with only three families in Wooster it means that our work will be somewhat slower than if our entire membership were in immediate contact with the people of the city. But it is in the midst of conditions such as these that our people show that their hearts are in the Lord's work and that they want to see a work to His glory built in Wooster. The faithfulness of these people is something that would make the heart of any pastor rejoice.

Another outstanding indication of the determination of the people to establish a church with a testimony in this city is the manner in which they respond to the financial program of the church. When one realizes that just a few families with modest incomes support a budget that runs well over $100 a month, then it is possible to understand that we have a charter membership that forms a solid foundation for a great work to come.

The growth of our Sunday School has not been phenomenal but the Lord has blessed us with a steady increase. We rejoice in seeing the attendance number in the fifties instead of in the thirties as when we first started. Our Sunday School has been departmentalized and is using the quarterlies published by The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

A constant source of blessing and also a real encouragement is the way our evening services are beginning to get hold of the people in Wooster. Our Sunday evening services have opened up a real field of service for us and will undoubtedly play a large part in the growth of our work.

Two prayer meetings are held each week. One is held on Wednesday night at the church and the other on Thursday night in the various homes of our country membership.

Prospects

Although at present our work is small, we are not the least bit discouraged, because we believe that we have a great field in Wooster and constant cultivation of it will eventually bring a rich reward. Recently we completed a census of a large portion of the city and through this census discovered that our field of activity is an extensive one. Constant contacts are beginning to produce fruit and we expect to see great results in the near future. Several special services of late which have packed our church reveal the fact that many people are taking interest in our work.

The Wooster People—1940

We would be most ungrateful if we should close this article without expressing our thanks to The Brethren Home Missions Council and its secretary for the most gracious way in which they have come to the aid of the Wooster work. The Wooster Brethren have a warm spot in their hearts for the Council and appreciate everything that they are doing to help our work along.

We desire the prayers of the entire brotherhood on our behalf. "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you."

HOME MISSION STORY NO. 2

A LITTLE GIRL'S MISSIONARY OFFERING

By Mrs. Herman Koontz

"This morning," said Miss Brice, as she faced the children's happy Sunday School faces, "I am going to tell you how a little girl helped to earn her own missionary money.

"She is a real little girl with curly hair and big gray eyes and a true love for her Sunday School and for the Lord Jesus.

"She has a father and mother who love the Lord and who hope some day, if it is the Lord's will, to have the care of a church of their own. She has a baby sister, too, who can already sing choruses with her.

"One Sunday morning her Sunday School teacher told her about the boys and girls who needed churches near their homes, where they could learn of the Lord Jesus Christ Who died to save them from their sins. She wanted to help in some way too, just as you children do.

"All through Sunday dinner she thought about the children who did not know about Jesus, and even the excellent fried pies her mother had for desert didn't seem quite so good as usual.

"Perhaps northern children do not know about fried pies, those delicious little pies filled with apple sauce, or raisins, or dried peaches, and fried in a skillet, but I assure you that any southerner will tell you they are delightful pastries.

"Maybe it was because they were so good that our little Joyce had such a good idea about them.

"Mother," she said, "If you would make me some of these good fried pies, I could sell them to our neighbors and get some money for my missionary offering."

"Her mother thought a moment and then she said, "Surely I will, if you will find out how many want them, and if you will take care of baby sister while I make them."

"Joyce was a very busy girl for a few weeks, you may be sure. People liked the fried pies very much, and so Joyce sold a number of them. Her father helped too, by selling them through his business connections. So, when the Sunday came to receive the offering, Joyce was ready with hers. She not only had an offering for the Lord, but best of all, it was an offering she had made because she herself worked and sacrificed for it.

"Look about you, children," said Miss Brice, "perhaps there are many ways in which you could serve the Lord right before your eyes. Perhaps you will find some of them this week and tell us about them next Sunday."

"TIME FOR PRAYER"

By Louise Ingle Hyde

"How can I stop to pray?"

"How fail to stop?"

"How drop my work today?"

"Tis gain to drop!"

"How lose this precious hour?"

"Thou shalt gain power."

"But, undone work's a cross;"

"Without Me—loss!"

"Thy fellowship I choose."

"Child, thou'lt not lose."

Two will be sleeping,
Two making bread,
Two will be reaping,

Will it be me, brother?
Will it be you?

A GREAT LESSON

Live, while you live, the Epicure would say,
And seize the pleasures of the present day.

Live, while you live, the Sacred preacher cries,
And give to God each moment as it flies.

Lord in my view let both united be,

I live in pleasure, when I live to Thee.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR AUG. 25, 1940

An Outdoor Meeting

Entered in C. E. Topic Contest by Fort Wayne Young People.

At this time of year, an outside C. E. meeting can be most profitable. We of the Fort Wayne group found that we had a most enjoyable service, meeting along a river in one of our city parks, and that we attracted many onlookers who also joined in our fellowship. It is a wonderful privilege to be in an open air meeting which affords real opportunity to testify for our Lord before interested spectators as well as before one's usual group.

Our general theme centers around God's Word and the illustrations it gives us about natural things such as rocks, trees, water, flowers, fountains and springs. It is the specific purpose of the speaker to show how these things of nature are illustrative of spiritual facts.

1. Rocks.

Chorus by group: I Shall Not Be Moved.

A. God as the Strength of His people. Ps. 18:1-2; 62:7; Isa. 17:10.

C. God as Refuge of His people. Ps. 94:22.

D. God as Salvation of His people. Ps. 89:26; 95:1.

E. Christ as Foundation of His church. Mt. 16:18 with 1 Pet. 2:6.

F. Christ as Source of spiritual gifts. 1 Cor. 10:4.

2. Trees.

Vocal solo or poem: Trees, by Joyce Kilmer.

A. Of Christ. Rom. 11:24; Rev. 2:7; 22:2, 14.

TOPIC FOR SEPT. 1, 1940

Moses as a Type of Christ

(Acts 3)

Suggestions for the Leader

Moses first made the prediction that God would raise up a Prophet like himself (Deut. 18:15). There are many ways in which Moses is a type of Christ, but the outstanding thing is that he is the Deliverer. At a time when the people were crushed under oppression and bondage, Moses came to rescue them. That is what Christ did for us. In our discussion to-night, it is really wonderful that the greatest figure in the O. T. should stand for even a greater yet to come.

1. The Unnatural Birth.

Moses was born into an unwelcome world. His life was in danger from the start. He was a promising child but unwanted by the authorities. He was reared under the best conditions. Legally he was an heir to a great throne and had a right to lay claim to the greatest treasure of the world.

Jesus was born under supernatural conditions. He came into a world that was cold and cruel. In spite of the fact that some tried to kill him, he was reared under the best conditions. Legally, He was an heir to the throne in His Father's kingdom.

2. Moses and Christ identify themselves with their people (Heb. 11:25).

Moses counted the cost. He choose to suffer affliction with the people of God rather than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. Once he struck an Egyptian while he was oppressing one of the Hebrews.

Jesus came here from heaven. The conditions there were far better for Him. Nevertheless He choose to suffer for His people. He counted the cost of the cross. He dealt a death blow to those enemies of righteousness.

3. Moses and Jesus were rejected by their own people.

Moses was rejected when he interfered with personal affairs. It was a good thing for him to fight for his people, but they resented his leadership and authority. Once they plotted his death.

Jesus came to His own but His own received Him not. They would have been glad to have been released from the bondage of Rome, but they were not willing to follow His leadership. There were adjustments to be made in the lives of the people. Jesus dared to mention them and insist upon right living. Because of this many took offence. One of the great sins of the Jewish people was the betrayal of the Lord Jesus Christ.

4. Both Moses and Christ turn to the Gentiles for a bride.

The greatest favor a man can show to another race of people is to identify himself with them by taking a wife from their midst. When Moses was expelled from the land and away from his own people, he took a bride from among the Gentiles.

Jesus intended that the Jews would honor Him and be witnesses. They failed to stand for these things and now Jesus is taking out of the world a bride. This bride is the church (Eph. 5:25-32). Even though it is neither Jew nor Gentile, still many come from the Gentiles.

5. Moses and Christ return at the critical time to save their people.

When the punishment and hardship increased in the land of Goshen, Moses was called to return to be their savior. He returned with new power and authority. The Lord gave him ability to deal with Pharaoh and to plague him until he was willing to release the Jews.

The day is coming when the Jewish people will cry toward heaven for their Messiah to come. The anti-christ will persecute them and make living almost impossible for them. Then Jesus will come and destroy the antichrist and save His people. This is the time all Israel shall be saved according to Rom. 11:26.

6. Both Moses and Jesus deal in an unusual way with an unbelieving world.

Moses answered Pharaoh's challenge by sending plagues. Pharaoh had implied that Moses was wrong about the Lord, and even asked, "Who is the Lord, that I should follow Him?" He claimed that he was the incarnation of the god of the Nile and that his son would be the next in line. However, the son died.

During the tribulation there will be many severe plagues sent to punish the people who have rejected Christ. Some have even taken counsel against Christ to do Him harm. The unbelieving world must give up as Jesus takes possession.

Questions

1. How was Moses like Jesus in the work of the prophet? Acts 3:22.

2. How were Moses and Jesus similar in the work of the Advocate?

3. Give an illustration of the intercessory work of Moses and Jesus.

4. What is the relation between Moses and Jesus in regard to making laws?

WHAT THE BIBLE TEACHES ABOUT SATAN

Although we cannot see him, Satan is real. He is always very busy, but he is always doing the wrong things. In these last days, he is especially busy doing all the damage he can do because he realizes he does not have much time left (Rev. 12:12).

Those who are not saved are his children (Jn. 8:44). He controls them (Eph. 2:2) and keeps them in his power (Acts 26:18). He blinds their eyes so they cannot see how wonderful it is to know Jesus (2 Cor. 4:3-4). When the seed of the gospel is sown in their hearts, he quickly snatches it away (Mt. 13:19).

Satan hinders God's people (1 Thess. 2:18). He tempts them to do wrong (Gen. 3:4-5; Mt. 4:3-11), and makes the Christian life a constant struggle for them (Eph. 6:12).

He is always on the lookout for those whom he can destroy (1 Pet. 5:8).

He even brings sickness and disease upon people (Job 2:7; Lk. 13:11,16).

Satan cannot touch God's children without God's permission (Job 1:12); and if God allows him to do this it is always for a purpose (2 Cor. 12:7), and God more than makes up for it (Job 42:10,12a).

Satan is so much more powerful than we are that we would have no chance to stand against him if God did not help us. There isn't a boy in your neighborhood who can "lick" you if you are close to your daddy, and we need not be afraid of Satan if we stay close to Jesus (1 Jn. 4:4b). God always has a way out of every one of Satan's temptations (1 Cor. 10:13).

Someone asked a negro convert if he was not afraid the devil would get him since the devil was so much stronger than he. He said, "No, because as soon as the devil gets after me, I look to the Lord and say, 'Lord, look after your property.'" Satan is not afraid of us, but he is afraid of our God. That is why he flees from us if we yield ourselves to God when we resist him (Jas. 4:7; 1 Pet. 5:9).

OUR HEAVENLY FATHER AND OUR LORD JESUS CHRIST

(Adapted from Young People's Witness)

When Philip asked Jesus, "Lord, shew us the Father," Jesus answered, "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (Jn. 14:8-9). Another time Jesus said, "I and My Father are one" (Jn. 10:30). Tonight we will see how the things that can be said of our heavenly Father can also be said of our Lord Jesus Christ.

God the Father is full of mercy (Ps. 103:17; Ps. 108:4; Joel 2:13). He showed mercy to Lot when He sent

His angels to take Lot and his family out of the wicked city of Sodom, before it was destroyed (Gen. 19:16). Since Jesus Christ and the Father are one, we can expect to find Jesus merciful also. And how merciful He was throughout His life! One day some scribes and Pharisees brought a sinful woman to Him. They wanted to stone her to death for her sin, but Jesus was merciful to her. See what He said to her in Jn. 8:11.

God the Father is full of forgiveness (Ps. 103:3; Mt. 6:14; Ps. 85:2). In the Old Testament when David confessed his great sin, see what God's prophet, Nathan, told David (2 Sam. 12:13). Since God is full of forgiveness, we can expect to find Jesus Christ, His Son, Who came to earth to reveal God to us, full of forgiveness also. How forgiving He was (Mk. 2:5)! See what 1 Jn. 1:9 says about Jesus' forgiveness.

God the Father is full of compassion (Ps. 86:15). How did He show His compassion when the children of Israel were in bondage in Egypt (Ex. 3:7-8)? Later when they wandered away into sin, He had compassion on them and sent messengers to call them back to Himself (2 Chron. 36:15). Jesus, Who revealed God the Father to the world, was likewise filled with compassionate tenderness for all mankind (Mt. 9:36; 20:31-34). He was so full of compassion for Jerusalem that He wept over the city (Mt. 23:37).

The love of both God the Father and of Jesus the Son for this lost world was shown on the cross. Jesus died on the cross because God the Father loved the world (Jn. 3:16; 1 Jn. 4:9-10). Jesus showed His own love also by dying on the cross (Jn. 15:13; Eph. 5:2). Parents sometimes ask their child, "How much do you love me?" The child's answer is usually a hug and a kiss. If you want to know how much God loves you, Rom. 5:6-9 gives the answer. How great His love for us! Have you shown your love for Him, first by taking Him as your Savior (Jn. 1:12) and then by keeping His commandments (Jn. 14:15)?

THE THIRD BRETHREN CHURCH OF LOS ANGELES, CALIF. APPRECIATES GIFT

National Christian Endeavor of The Brethren Church
3326 South Calhoun Street,
Fort Wayne, Indiana

Attention Rev. Leo Polman, Executive Secretary.
Dear Brother Polman:

We, the members of the Third Brethren Church in Los Angeles, in special business session, herewith express our vote of thanks to the National Christian Endeavor organization of The Brethren Church for the communion set recently presented to us.

This is but another fine example of the work that is being done by your organization. Our prayer shall continually follow your work, and may God grant that through the ministry of National Christian Endeavor in our church scores of young people shall find Christ as their Savior.

Yours in that precious hope,

ARNOLD R. KRIEGBAUM, Pastor
MARY A. SHIPLEY, Clerk

Center Chapel Christian Endeavor, Peru, Ind.

Greetings: It has been about a year since you have heard from our society. During this time we have been striving to reach our goals and to further the Lord's work.

In checking over our records, we find that as to membership we have not grown as much as we might have, but we have had a wonderful experience in serving the Lord.

We are a small country church and our average attendance is not so high, but we are happy to report that nearly every person present takes part in our lessons, and leads in prayer.

We are very fortunate in having a very able sponsor, Mrs. Vaughn Neff. She has charge of our closing five minutes. She has been a great help and has given us many good thoughts to keep in mind throughout our lives.

Our C. E. has sent two delegates to camps and we hope to have a representative at Camp Bethany.

In closing, we pray that the Lord will bless all societies and that He will be with the National C. E. work throughout the coming year.

Yours in the Master's work,

EDNA ZIMMERMAN, Cor. Secy.

In last month's Home Mission Number of The Brethren Missionary Herald in the report from Flora, Ind., under the heading "Around The Council Table," the enrollment on the first day of the Daily Vacation Bible School is printed as 2. This was a typographical error and should have read, "the first day 32 enrolled." We are sorry for this error, but are glad to correct it here.

THIS WEEK'S POEM

REAL CHURCHES

If you want to work in the kind of a church
Like the kind of a church you like,
You needn't slip your clothes in a grip
And start on a long, long hike.

You'll only find what you left behind.
For there's nothing that's really new;
It's a knock at yourself when you knock your church;
It isn't your church, it's you.

Real churches aren't made by men afraid
Lest somebody else goes ahead;
When everyone works and nobody shirks,
You can raise a church from the dead.

And if while you make your personal stake,
Your neighbor can make one, too,
Your church will be what you want to see—
It isn't your church, it's you.

PELLETS FOR PREACHERS

SPEAKERS WHO MUMBLE

PEEVE LISTENERS MOST

Professor Sylvester Toussaint of Colorado State Teachers College of Education asked 500 persons in 59 occupations to name their "pet peaves" against public speakers.

Topping the list of 999 grievances, he told the convention of the National Association of Teachers of Speech, were the following:

- 1—Mumbling.
- 2—Long-windedness.
- 3—Obvious lack of preparation.
- 4—"In closing" remarks running on and on.
- 5—Hesitant ahs, uhs, and ers.
- 6—Folksy remarks addressed to someone in the audience.
- 7—A show of temper over a disturbance in the room.
- 8—Vagueness about facts.
- 9—Mispronunciation of common words.

Professors Walter H. Wilke and Joseph Snyder of New York University said their study of American dialects disclosed that neither the Boston nor southern accents ranked first in public favor. The accent produced in Lancaster, Pa., they reported, was most pleasing to the average American.

JESUS, THE WAY

"Jesus said unto him, I am the way"—Jn. 15:6.

President McKinley in his dying moments said, "It is God's way." The terms "path," "road," and "way" are used in all Oriental religions for doing God's will. The words of the text were spoken to doubting Thomas. In the New Testament we have five "ways" mentioned:

1. The way of God (Acts 18:3).
2. The way of peace (Rom. 3:16).
3. The more excellent way (1 Cor. 12:31).
4. The new and living way (Heb. 10:20).
5. The way of truth (2 Pet. 2:2).

ILLUSTRATIVE JOTTINGS

A TWO-ROOM MILLIONAIRE

Condescend to Things of Low Estate. Read Rom. 12:9-12

Recently I was the guest of Mr. Milton S. Hershey, in the Pennsylvania town which bears his name. I had spoken on Sunday morning to the eight hundred orphan boys, to whom Mr. Hershey has given homes and training. All of the vast fortune which he has made has already been turned over to a trust fund for the carrying on of this industrial farm school.

Two facts impressed me. As Mr. Hershey showed us over the place, there was no sign of awe or fear among the teachers, nurses or boys. They received him naturally, as one of themselves—a plain man, full of friendly interest. The other fact is that Mr. Hershey himself lives in two rooms of his former home; the rest of the house having been turned into a community country club.

Wise is the person, who, having possessions, is not possessed by them.

FROM THE FIELD

Second Brethren Church, Hagerstown, Md.

In spite of the wind and rain, we had the greatest day in the history of this church on July 28th, when our all day meeting was held.

A tent was pitched on the sight of the new church building soon to be erected, and all sessions were held in this tent. The attendance in the Bible School was 129, 95 being the previous record attendance. All other services were well attended, and the interest and spirit were marvelous.

One of the reasons for the success of the day was the presence of our beloved Prof. Herman Hoyt of Grace Theological Seminary, who brought us three stirring heart-searching messages. Ernest Baeringer, a young man from our Waynesboro church spoke to the three Christian Endeavor groups in a combined service at 6:30. The ladies of the church served a delightful luncheon on the grounds, and moving pictures were taken of the activities of the day.

We were so glad to have with us delegations from our churches at Washington, D. C., Waynesboro, Pa., Winchester, Va., Roanoke, Va., and Vinco, Pa. Words cannot express our appreciation for the assistance and the interest manifested by our sister churches.

We covet the prayers of our entire brotherhood for the work here. The Lord is wonderfully blessing our group in many ways. Our praise is ever to Him, and may He have all the glory.

The efforts put forth for this all day meeting were climaxed by one young lady accepting Christ as her own personal Savior, and this was by far the greatest event of the day—a life saved for eternity.

RALPH RAMBO, acting pastor.

Young People's Camp of the Southern California District

The camp of 1940, meeting at Camp Seeley, Crestline, in the heart of the San Bernardino mountains, from July 6 to 13, was by far the largest camp ever held in this district and the largest group of persons at one time meeting at this particular camp. There were 296 people in the camp. Of these 240 were students, and the remaining 56 were composed of adult campers, faculty members and small children.

Instead of having two weeks at camp with separate groups, both groups ranging in ages from 12 to 25 met together at the one time in one week. However, recreational activities and classes were conducted separately. Both groups combined for the time of fellowship each evening, at what was known as Victory Circle.

The courses offered at this camp were: Bible Doctrine, Missions, Prophecy, Soul Winning, Brethren Practices, Christian Endeavor, Personal Evangelism, Sacred Music, Science and the Bible, How We Got our Bible, Archeology, Present-day Isms, and Sunday School Methods.

There were 87 definite decisions for Christ. Of this number, 8 were first confessions, 69 were renewals, and ten were decisions for full-time service.

At both camps note books were kept by the students and turned in at the close of the week, graded and the grades recorded. Diplomas are to be awarded at the close of three years' attendance at camp. Students attending beyond the three years for post graduate work will receive a special post graduate diploma.

Athletics included baseball, badminton, volley ball, horseshoes, swimming, horseback riding, tennis, croquet, and tin can golf.

The teachers this year were Grant McDonald, Geo. Richardson, Clarence Sickel, C. H. Ashman, Jesse Hall, Paul Bauman, Walter Lepp, Arnold Kriegbaum, Donald Carter and C. E. Reuter. Dean of Women, Mrs. C. E. Reuter; Dean of Men, Mr. C. E. Reuter; Athletic Director, Mr. R. Fischer.

We truly praise the Lord for our young people's camp and while it means much work and giving of time by many who are very busy, we feel it is time and energy well spent in the Lord's work.

RUTH McCLAIN, Secretary.

Why a Thank Offering?

Do we take a thank offering each year just because it has always been done and thus has become a habit? Perhaps there is a danger of its becoming a mere matter of routine like that, so let's think about it a little.

In the first place, each of us has so much for which to be thankful, and it is a good idea to have something to keep us in remembrance to be fittingly grateful to our heavenly Father for all His goodness unto us. It is so easy to forget.

Then comes the next fact: we are commanded to be thankful in Col. 3:15, and in the 17th verse of that same chapter we are told to accompany all that we do or say with the giving of thanks. The same thought occurs in 1 Thess. 5:18 and in Eph. 5:20. In fact, the New Testament Epistles abound in examples of thankfulness, as well as exhortations to be thankful. Two powerful incentives for thanksgiving are mentioned by Paul in the second letter to the Corinthians: in 2:14 the possibility of our continuous victory in Christ is held out to us as a reason for giving thanks; and in 9:15 it is the unspeakable gift of God which appears as our motive. And what a motive! When we have a God who gives us a gift so great that it leaves us speechless, can we fail to give Him thanks?

Not only do we have so much for which to thank God, and have also His direct commands to be thankful, but in the third place to cultivate the habit of thankfulness is to grow in grace. Years ago we were led to make it a rule of our prayer life to always begin our prayer with giving of thanks and follow that with our petitions; thus each time we pray we take time to think of some of the things for which we should render thanks, and we can recommend this habit as good spiritual exercise. It accomplishes a seeming paradox; for while it makes us humble to think of our utter dependence upon God, it also makes us bold to ask Him who loves us and is so able for the things we desire of Him. The cultivation of a spirit of thankfulness day by day will also help to keep the believer from that awful sin of spiritual pride. While he is thanking his Lord for what He has done through him, he avoids the danger of thinking of anything as his own achievement.

Christian, is your faith sometimes weak? Would you like to have an abounding faith? Then listen to Paul in Col. 2:7, "Rooted and built up in Him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving." Be properly thankful, and your faith will grow by leaps and bounds. Do you feel that your prayer life is not what it ought to be? Is it a burden instead of a joy? Let Paul reveal another secret in Col. 4:2, "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving."
As we wrote those words, that word watch stood out in a new way: a watchman's job is a lonely and tedious business. He must keep alert in the time of darkness.
He must fight the enemy of sleep within himself, and be ready for the enemy without. What a picture of the Christian's life today! Living in the night of man's age, watchmen awaiting the coming of the Day-Star, we must keep alert. Within we have to fight against the Laodicean lukewarmness of this age, and without are all the forces of the devil ready to attack at any moment if they can catch us unaware. But the secret of keeping alert and of continuance in prayer is thanksgiving.

God's chosen people, Israel, were commanded to bring sacrifices unto God. Are we exempt from this command? Yes, as far as animal sacrifices are concerned, but if we as believer-priests would be well-pleasing unto our God, we do well to heed Heb. 13:
15, 16. In v. 15 the exercise of our priesthood Godward is outlined. We are to offer sacrifice continually, the sacrifice of praise, and the Holy Spirit is careful to define just what this sacrifice is, "the fruit of our lips giving thanks to His name." But our priesthood is not complete until we have exercised it manward as well, v. 16 makes that clear, "But to do good and to communicate (share what you have with others, marg.) forget not." And not until that feature of priesthood is added does the Word say, "for with such sacrifice God is well pleased."

And so we have our thank offering as an exercise of our Christian priesthood—Godward we render the fruit of our lips in thanksgiving, and manward we give of our substance to do good by sending forth the gospel through our Home Missions Council.

This is the last call for your thank offering. It is not yet too late to rush it in. You will want a part in this service at Winona Lake, we are sure.

Concerning the Devotional Topics

With the September series we will have concluded 12 months of these studies on "Christ Our Sufficiency." For October there will be no topics issued, as we feel that the October meetings should be given over to consideration of the National Conference reports. Our work is so new that we are only just hitting our stride, as it were, and thus we are certain that many things of great interest and of surpassing importance will be developed at our national get-together which should be given immediate attention in our local councils.

We shall endeavor to have a full report in our Sept. 28th number of The Brethren Missionary Herald for you to use in your October meeting, and we shall try to supplement that with mimeographed copies of plans and materials from the new national officers as elected at Winona Lake.

May we suggest that you plan your October meetings as a sort of fall rally and make use of the material mentioned above as inspiration and direction for your work in the coming year.

A Word of Personal Thanks

Your editor has been too busy this last year to write personal messages to all to whom we feel under God we owe the measure of success which has crowned our labors.

So, to all those who so graciously have responded to our appeals: in writing devotional topics, in sending reports of your work and names and addresses for our mailing list, in furnishing questions for the Question and Answer Dept., in gathering missionary material, or in any other services rendered, it is our desire to thank you one and all, and to say that we simply could not have carried on without your help.

There is one service you have rendered us which is beyond value and beyond any thanks of ours. That is the service of remembering us in your prayers. Scores of you have written that you were praying and we know many hundreds have been praying from whom we have had no word. How do we know this? When a seemingly insurmountable task resolves itself into a joy and blessing, and when God uses our poor efforts in any way to His glory—we know that much prayer has gone up.

Thank you and keep praying.

NEWS FROM THE FOREIGN FIELD

With the Bible Coach Workers in the Argentine

Our life during the gospel tour is full of varied experiences through our contacts in the different towns. We would tell you something of these.

Just as in other years, we have again been richly blessed of our heavenly Father. His protection has been our continuous experience. Praise to Him be given.

In the town of Lavalle there is an active priest who has the favor of a goodly portion of the people, many of whom are, of course, women. Having pretensions of dominating the town, the poor man has had uncomfortable nights as a result of our work. He even attended one of our meetings from afar off. "They are poisoning the world," he said to one who questioned him regarding our work. He has warned the children that the true Bible is in the Catholic Church and that ours is false.

One of our workers heard him preaching on the unimportance and at the same time the detriment caused by our work. He said, "You have your churches, your Bibles. What need have you to read their papers? They are wolves in sheep's clothing that come to do harm." He called the attention of his audience to the fact that in the United States there exists the determination to dominate Central and South America and naturally pointed us out as agents sent to work towards such a goal. He was very elo-

Disobedience always leads us into troubled waters.

quent but his resentment led to a bitter and abusive harangue of us and our work.

Truly in this town there is great need for the gospel message and the work is not easy due to the hostility of the clergy.

In that same town a gentleman exclaimed thus, as he was offered the Bible. "One cannot be at ease. Everywhere these gospel workers are offering the Bible. I went to Buenos Aires and I heard them speaking in the public square about the Bible. In the shop where I worked they came offering the Bible. Later I moved to San Nicolas and the same thing happened. From there I went to Rosario where they again talked to me about the Bible. Now, after having returned recently to Lavalle I again hear about this Bible." The worker responded, "This shows that you had better get a Bible, read it and follow its teachings. It is not well that you resist the call of God." He was able thus to speak to him about the condition of his soul and the plan of salvation.

Here as in other places we were able to do personal work with many souls. We found some who were already acquainted with the gospel truths. It was a special cause of joy to us to hear the testimony of a dear old lady, whose Bible is her constant companion, to know how she is faithfully witnessing for her Lord.

Adella Maria is another town that has aroused our interest. There an enormous church is being built by private donation. Nevertheless we found much interest in the gospel message. The meetings had a surprisingly large attendance and the amount of literature placed was pleasing to us.

We were able to deal with many souls. We received special blessing from conversations we had with two young girls who had been educated in Catholic institutions. They were not satisfied with the spiritual training they had received there. We were able to testify of the One Who truly satisfies.

We had a very curious thing happen in Bucharado, another town on our route. We held two open air meetings there. The first from every point of view seemed to be a complete failure. It was not possible to maintain order and the police were not on the job as they had promised to be. Young men and girls ran in and out among the crowd throwing grass and weeds at one another. One girl who had no part in this was hit in the forehead by a bone someone had thrown into the crowd. It was impossible to accomplish anything.

The next morning the leader of the disorderly group was struck by an automobile, hurting him and damaging his bicycle. That night the meeting was carried on in perfect order, the police being on the job and some school teachers taking it on themselves to keep their children quiet. One of them told us how displeased she had been when she had heard of the disorder caused by her students.

Rio Bamba is a small town on the main line of the Pacific Railway. Hardly had we reached it when we met an old man who offered his services to us. His was a prepared heart and when we talked to him of the Lord and his need of a Savior he received the message with great joy, taking our Savior as his own. When we left this dear one, the only born again one in this town so far as we know, he said to us, "God sent you to me. Now I have peace in my heart in spite of my loneliness and my old age."

In Lequizamon we found a colony of Hungarians, all Christians.

This year we have even greater difficulty than usual with our sleeping quarters. We found it necessary to share this with drunkards, lice, bedbugs and mice. Some of these rooms had such a bad odor from dirt and dampness, that had it not been for the cold and the bad weather we would have preferred the open fields. The interesting thing was the price that we were asked for some of these with their inhabitants of bats and rats. It was impossible to stay more than one day in one town because we were unable to find sleeping quarters at a price we could pay. But though we have had inconveniences we thank God that we have been privileged to have a part in the great work of spreading the gospel. A great region has been covered and brought under the hearing of the Word. Thousands of tracts and Bible portions have been scattered over these same regions. A great many have listened to the gospel, many have been touched personally, some have been saved. The open doors are many. Help us by prayer to occupy them for God's glory.

Translated by Mrs. Loree Sickel.

LIFE

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly."

To do God's will from day to day,
To follow Christ and not to stray,
To have the Spirit's power alway,
This is abundant life!

SIN HAS THE STING OF DEATH IN IT

One day a gentleman in India went into his library and took down a book. As he did so he felt a slight pain in his finger like the prick of a pin. Soon his finger began to swell, then his arm, and then his whole body. It was not a pin on the book cover, but a deadly serpent hid away back of the books. He died in a few hours. The serpent of sin lurks in books, pleasures, companions, business, politics and even in some churches. Look out for it! It even hides in our own natures.

A young girl grasped a wire hanging from a post. Instantly she was fastened to a burning current. Her mother tried to help her but was knocked down by a shock. A man near by, chopped the wire with an axe and saved the girl. So with sin. It burns into the soul until Christ is received and looses us from it. "He was made sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him."

A Men's Magnify Meeting

By Gene Farrell

Last night the "Men's Magnify" organization of Long Beach, Calif. held its monthly meeting. As the walls of Dr. Bauman's famous church at Fifth and Cherry rang with song and prayer and testimony, it seemed a strange paradox to the world without, where nation was rising against nation and men's hearts were failing them for fear. From the time of our initial prayer, where God's blessing was asked upon the food, until the closing benediction, it was one delightful evening of spiritual feasting and fellowship.

Our meeting last night was one of our best. Out of a group of 60, only two or three were on the thither side of 50. The average man was in his late thirties.

After the evening meal was over the men adjourned to an upper room of the church where a lusty song service prepared the way for the prayer and devotions (always given by a member of the Magnify) to follow. Incidentally, our song leader journeyed from a town some 60 miles distant to attend the meeting!

Though there were a dozen or more unsaved men in the meeting (invited by members), the message this time was directed to Christians. At the close, we were challenged by the one who lead, to take our place on the platform with him if we could dedicate our lives wholly to the will of God. The men needed no provocation. They went forward, almost en masse, to the platform. A few, heretofore reluctant in the vital matter of absolute surrender, held their seats for a moment—then, as they listened to the voice of the Spirit and viewed the abandon of their fellows, they, too, came forward. And as they took their place among the others there were many hearts that rejoiced in the visible deed which the appropriation of the visible mission had made possible. Yes, there were many eyes whose "floodgates" were opened wide as they experienced, in a very real way, the fulfillment of that word from Isaiah, "They shall not labor in vain . . ."

Immediately following this, our president asked for volunteer prayer captains, who took charge of the individual prayer groups. There were seven in our room. Each man had in his possession the prayer requests of some other man in the Magnify. These had been made out just before we left the supper table.

Would that you might have been there as we sat in a little circle, voicing our needs and "confessing our faults one to another." There were two backsliders in our group, three consecrated Christians and two more who had never, until tonight, decided to go all of the way. We talked, as only brothers can, of the things that were closest to our hearts. We praised God for answered prayer. And finally, just before we went to our knees, we set the candle of faith burning brightly with many promises from the Word of God.

The last feature of our meeting is the time of testimony and praise. We usually begin this portion with another rousing song service until all of the prayer rooms are emptied and the men are once again in the auditorium.

Then the corn begins to pop! Our president has barely time to say, "And now we will hear your testimonies," when several men are on their feet. A young man, well known to us all, is the first to speak and he tells of deliverance during the past month from a habit which has enslaved him for years. With the passing of the habit he acknowledges, too, the passing of a bondage to fear which formerly overtook him every time he arose to his feet to testify.

A man who recently rededicated his life to the Lord is next. It is a different person who stands before us now than the fear-ridden, shifty-eyed, habit-possessed man who came to our meetings seven or eight months ago. He was away from us for about six months. Alcohol drove him from us, finally separated him from his wife and the little girl whom he so dearly loves, and left him a poor, penniless, despairing derelict out on the highways of California.

He wandered into a mission one night. "After that," he tells us, "I hit the home trail as fast as I could go. Somebody told me just before I left Long Beach," he continues, "that if I wanted to go on with God I'd have to start again just where I left off—at Fifth and Cherry. I'm here to stay this time, fellows. You won't have to drag me to the meetings anymore. I've learned my lesson, and what's more, I've learned how to get the victory. 'For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death.'"

Yes, he is back with us again, a new man, with a new look in his face and in his eyes. It looks as though the devil has gone a bit too far with him and another candle has been lit for the Lord.

And so the testimonies go on and on, running the gamut of Christian experience. A man tells here of winning a soul for Christ. Another unfolds his own experience in coming to the Savior. Another testifies to the renunciation of a worldly amusement because he could not give thanks for it. "And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by Him." Another thanks God for a paralytic condition which came to his little girl, for it brought them all to Christ as Savior and Lord. Seldom is a testimony heard which does not ring true as every barrier is removed by the power of the Holy Spirit. And fortunate indeed is the unsaved or unsundered man who finds himself in this hot bed of reality. Certainly it is an experience which he will never be able to forget—neither will he truly rest until he has a similar testimony.

At the close of this last meeting we had an altar call. While the third verse of "I've wandered far away from God, now I'm coming home," was being sung, a man, backslidden for 14 years, took his stand once again for Christ. It was a fitting climax for our meeting as he testified on the verge of tears to wasted years and the desire to go on now with God.

Everyone then stood as we repeated our "Magnify" verse: "O magnify the Lord with me and let us exalt His name together" (Ps. 34:3).

There were many who, for the first time, could consciously sign the "Men's Magnify Covenant" last night. About 55 had already done so in the past. Our covenant was first forged by the founder of our group, Mr. Sterling Smith, now promoted to glory. It reads as follows:

Ejection

The process of ejection of the Jews from Palestine began with Titus the Roman, 70 A.D. The historian, Josephus, was considered in part responsible for the Jewish capitulation. A final insurrection arose in 131 A.D. under Bar Kokeba with 400,000 men. The Romans under Severus, conqueror of Britain, consumed over four years in vanquishing Bar Kokeba with a final massacre of over half a million. Streams of fugitives then left the country until Judea especially was almost entirely depopulated. Galilean Jews were unmolested for the next 200 years, during which time was produced the Mishna, an encyclopedic collection of Jewish materials, traditions and decisions. From then till 638 A.D. the Roman church suppressed Judaism in Palestine.

Babylonian Diaspora

Meanwhile in Babylonia had grown up the real center of influence for the Jews. These centers served to keep up the vitality of the Jewish dispersion. Out of the Mishna and the Gemara, an interpretation of the Mishna, was produced the Babylonian Talmud, a gigantic work representing 100 years of intellectual effort. It is a collection of laws, decisions, practices, customs, academic discussions, religious rules and regulations, concepts of God, and superstitions of men, covering the Jewish people from the end of the Pentateuch to the beginning of the 6th century. When on their wanderings, their actual home was bit by bit taken from them, the Jews replaced it little by little with fragments of their fictitious home, taken from the world of the Talmud, until the place where they settled was merely a habitation, the Talmud their home.

Under Islam, Judaism again scattered. Jewish Babylonian farmers, due to a terrific land tax, turned to commerce. Many migrated to all parts of Europe. But a growing desire to end the dispersion manifested itself in a number of Messianic movements, the greatest, to be referred to later, occurring in the 17th century. Abu Isa, about 700 A.D., proclaimed himself the forerunner of the Messiah, and revolted against the Caliphate. Zonarias then announced himself as the Messiah and preached the reconquest of Jerusalem. The movement died out in a few years (Mt. 24:5,11, 23-24).

Karaites

This Jewish group would not be mentioned at all in this article were it not for the fact that they illustrated Paul's discussion of the law and its effects (Rom. and Gal.) beyond all equivocation. Anan Ben David, 750 A.D., openly opposed the Talmud. As the leader of the "back to the Bible" movement, he rejected all oral traditions as spurious. His followers, called Ananites, of Karaites, or "Bible Loyalists" by self-terminology, rejected the Talmud and accepted only the O. T. Scriptures. They searched them carefully. Result: ritualistic changes, severe laws. Sabbath day almost a day of torture, increase of fast days, stringent ritualistic cleanliness. This drove them to a new Talmudism and a formalism which became the death of the sect later. This return to the law was to be the first step towards a return to Jerusalem and a preparation for the Messiah. One Jewish historian says, "It seems impossible that so radically sound a movement, animated by such lofty aims, should not have had the power to succeed. . ." But the answer is that the real Messiah had already come, and that Judaism thus makes a startling confession of its inherent weakness of being unable to keep the law, finally being driven to a Talmud (Rom. 3:19-20,31).

Catholic Persecution

The seeds of animosity had already been laid. But from 800-1200 A.D. the Jews were allowed a certain amount of freedom for development, in which the language became a science, the poetry an art, the Talmud a disciplinary system, the philosophy a creative expression of life, but metaphysics hopelessly divided into two irreconcilable camps. Charemagne and Louis the Pious enforced special protection for them. Against this, Pope Stephen III and later the Bishop of Lyons made complaints. As early as 1007 A. D. under the French Capet dynasty, Jews were being murdered and forcibly baptized.

Meanwhile the church had made a universal framework and everything had to fit into it. There was one church, the Holy Catholic Church; one emperor, the one crowned by the pope; one law, Roman law; one science, theology; one form of expression, the Gothic style. From under this restraint the crusades offered means of emancipation: the peasant to relief from his drudgery, the knight to fame and fortune, the criminal to murder and rapine, the pious to promised complete and final forgiveness of sins, the priest to increasing political power. Local crusades led by knights, monks, and adventurers turned upon the Jews in the Rhine provinces, burning, pillaging, and murdering them. Between May and July of 1096, 12,000 Jews were massacred, other thousands committing suicide.

The Talmud had said that rather than commit idolatry, unchastity, and murder, the Jew should die a martyr's death. In his eyes, Catholic worship was idolatry. He regarded the worship of images, the reverence paid to inanimate relics, as heathen superstition, and even prayers addressed to saints as no better than the worship of pagan heroes and demigods. How could he feel any impulse to respect the ignorant, greedy, and extremely dissipated clergy, or accept ecclesiastical teaching which allowed murder in the name of a religion of love?

More blows fell during the second crusade. The monk Rudolph spread such violent propaganda and heinousness against the Jews that even the church feebly protested. Nevertheless, massacres and compulsory baptisms took place in Wurzburg 1147 A.D. But the evil harvest began to ripen between the second and third crusade. Now emerged the charge of ritual murder against the Jews. A Jew was charged with throwing the body of a Christian boy into a river. The blood of the boy was supposed to have been used in their feast of the Passover. The judge put the man who made the charge in a boat and filled it with holy water. As the boat did not sink, a verdict of guilty was returned against the Jew. Since the Jews refused baptism, 38 of them were shut up in a wooden tower and burned alive, May 26, 1171. This case was typical of many others that followed, and this hatred pursued the Jews wherever they went (Lev. 26:17,33,38).

THE REFINER AT WORK

'Tis sweet to feel that He who tries
The silver, takes His seat
Beside the fire that purifies,
Lest too intense a heat—
Raised to consume the base alloy,
The precious metals, too, destroy.

'Tis good to think how well He knows
The silver's power to bear
The ordeal through which it goes;
And that with skill and care
He'll take it from the fire, when fit,
With His own hand to polish it.

STUDIES IN THE HEBREW EPISTLE

"Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have Eternal Life; and they are they which testify of me"—John 5:39.

By Ord Gehman

STUDY No. V

CHAPTER IV

Proceeding from the third chapter, the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews begins the chapter before us with a warning: "Let us therefore fear, lest, a promise being left us of entering into His rest, any of you should seem to come short of it." There is a great difference between hearing the gospel and hearing it with faith. Two sinners attend an evangelistic meeting where Christ's name is exalted and proclaimed with power from on high. One individual goes away gloriously saved from a life of sin and shame. The other goes away with a harder heart and sin more fully enthroned in his life. What makes the difference? One heard the Word proclaimed and expressed faith in the Christ Who was presented. The other heard the Word but refused to yield in faith to the precious Christ Whose name was preached. One man goes forth to begin his heaven-bound journey by the aid of and in the companionship of the Son of God. The other goes forth to continue alone in a life of debauchery and degradation, or perhaps he goes out in his own strength, and proceeds along the path of self-righteousness and moral perfection, yet both paths lead at last to the same place of eternal destruction. The Word preached did not profit the one man because it was not "mixed with faith" when he heard it. The one who believed entered into God's rest; the one who did not believe did not enter into God's rest. What a great difference the exercise of faith makes!

We are reminded that there is such a rest for the people of God (v. 9). With this thought in mind, let us look at the next verse. The force of this verse fixed itself upon me some time ago when we were studying this chapter in our Bible study. When we have entered into this rest of God, we have ceased from our own works as God did from His. V. 4 alludes to God's Sabbath day rest from His labors. But this does not necessitate complete inactivity. Some men strive to attain eternal life, as did the young ruler who questioned the Master (Lk. 18:18ff). But hear the Word: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God: not of works; lest any man should boast. For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them" (Eph. 2:7-9). Salvation does not suggest inactivity and loose living, but the real works of faith in the Son of God. The Christian's admonition is, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do His good pleasure" (Phil. 2:12b-13). Therefore, as God's children, we no longer engage in our own works, but in God's works, and to Him be the praise and glory eternally!

There is a vital reason why we should abide by the Word of God, that is, for the child of God. The world cares not what the Word of God says. Their interests are centered in matters of life somewhere also. We as Christians many times seem to feel the judging ministry of the Word and the Holy Spirit applies only to the world of the unsaved. But not so. Here is a message from God's Word for His children. The Word of God is quick and active. It is powerful and effective. It is sharper than any twoedged sword. God's Word is the "Sword of the Spirit" (Eph. 6:17). It is keener in its operative power than any instrument known to man. Darts of truth of the Word pierce the erring hearts of men. It is so keen that it divides between soul and spirit; and even to the dividing of joints and marrow. Even the thoughts and intents of the heart are discerned by His Word. The Psalmist must have caught the significance of this great Biblical truth when he prayed: "Cleanse Thou me from secret faults" (Psa. 19:12b).

The Word is the cleansing factor in the hearts of God's children. "That He might sanctify and cleanse it (the church) with the washing of water by the Word" (Eph. 5:26). Only the yielded heart can fully realize the complete discerning power of the Word of God. Oh that our poor, blundering human wills would be more submissive to the Word's working power! How many times we would be spared the painful experiences resulting from erring judgments if we but more closely adhered to His divine Word.

Not only do God's children feel the effect of the cleansing power of the Word, but every creature is made manifest in His sight. There is nothing hidden before Him. There are no dark corners into which conniving men can go where they will escape Him. Our God keeps records, and the settlement does not always come as quickly as we think it should. But all things will be made manifest before Him when His time comes.

Therefore, realizing that we have a great High Priest, the Lord Jesus Christ, we are admonished to hold fast our profession before Him. Again we note God's readiness through His Son to hear our feeblest plea. He knows our heartaches and feels our faintest pain. He is interested in the very heart-throbs of His humblest saint. His great heart of love is "touched with the feeling of our infirmities" because He passed through the things which will never be ours to bear. His earthly ministry permitted Him to drink to the bitterest dregs the disappointments of life. He was tempted, without sin in His life. We are tempted, with

An Exposition of Revelation Eight

By R. I. Humbert

The Trumpet Judgments

"And when he had opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven about the space of half an hour" (v. 1).

There is the usual life and buzz in the school room. The teacher turns to the blackboard to explain a problem. There is a "smack" as a paper wad splatters about his head. As he turns to face the culprit the room goes suddenly dead. Not a finger moves; not an eyelid twitches. Nothing but breathless silence, a silence of awe, of fear and expectancy.

As the first six seals were broken, the heavens rang with voices. There were the shouts of angels, the thunders of the living creatures, the voices of the elders, the harping of the harpers, and the song of the palm bearers. But when the seventh seal is broken there is dead silence in heaven.

What deep sympathy the heavenly host have in the closing hours of human history; what great interest they have; and how they sense the greatness of the occasion! When the other seals were broken, judgments went forth. Now the last seal is broken, the book is open; swift and more awful judgments must quickly fall upon mankind.

These judgments are tempered to give place to repentance. The seventh seal is broken, but not all at once does our Lord close up the age. The seven trumpets must bring more sufferings upon earth dwellers, and the seven vials still more sorrows; and then, when the last soul is in, the end will come.

The Seven Angels

"And I saw the seven angels which stood before God; and to them were given seven trumpets" (v. 2).

There were "seven princes of Persia and Media, which saw the king's face, and which sat the first in the kingdom" (Esther 1:14).

And so in heaven. It is a place of order. There are angels and archangels; principalities and powers; sin in our lives, for "if we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us" (1 Jn. 1:8). Therefore "He is able to succor them that are tempted" (Heb. 2:18b).

On the basis of this great manifestation of the Son of God in our lives we are entreated and permitted to come boldly before His throne of grace in order that we may obtain from Him the things which we need in the times of stress and strain. Graciously blessed is that heart which can truly sing:

"I've found a Friend in Jesus. He's everything to me;
In temptation He's my strong and mighty tower."

Because the redeemed heart is made more gracious because of the marvelous working of God's abundant grace.

principedoms upon principedoms until we reach the highest and most honored order—the seven angels that stand in the presence of God.

Only two of these angels are named in the Bible. Michael is "one of the chief princes" (Dan. 10:13), and Gabriel is another that stands "in the presence of God" (Lk. 1:19).

Answered Prayers

"And another angel came and stood at the altar, having a golden censer; and there was given unto him much incense, that he should offer it with the prayers of all saints upon the golden altar which was before the throne" (v. 3).

In chap. 5:8, there were "golden vials full of odors, which are the prayers of saints." Here we see these prayers brought forth to meet their answer.

Many are the prayers of God's true children that are not yet answered. God has a program and events must await their turn. Zacharias, "thy prayer is heard," announced the angel Gabriel as Zacharias stood before the golden altar.

His prayer was heard; but which prayer? Had not Zacharias prayed all his life?

But Zacharias, don't you remember when, in your younger days, you and Elisabeth prayed so earnestly for a baby boy? The time has come, that prayer is heard and soon Elisabeth will bare a son.

And so here. For ages God's children have been praying and longing for "Thy kingdom come." But events must take their course. "When the fulness of the time was come, God sent for His Son" (Gal. 4:4); and when the fulness of the time has come, that Son will bring redemption to the earth.

In the meantime, all the heart-cries of "all" the saints are kept in heavenly vessels of gold awaiting the time when they will be brought forth and be presented on the highest altar in the universe.

The Incense

But these prayers must be made savory before they can be accepted by a holy God. "Much incense" was given unto him to offer with the prayers. Incense speaks of the merits of Christ. No prayer may reach high heaven unless approved and endorsed by Him. It is in His name that we are to pray, and it is His name that perfumes our prayers and renders them savory before God.

"And the smoke of the incense, that came with the prayers of the saints, ascended up before God out of the angel's hand" (v. 4).

The time has come to answer the prayers of the saints of all ages, who have so long prayed, "Thy kingdom come." The golden vessels are opened; the merits of Christ are added and the smoke arises "up before God." They are accepted and will speedily be answered.

Cornelius had been praying. An angel was sent to inform him that his prayers "are come up for a memorial before God" (Acts 10:4), and an immediate answer came.

So Enoch, who spake of the time when the Lord would come with ten thousands of His saints; Abraham, who looked for a city which hath foundations; David, whose throne will yet be occupied by the Lord of glory; Paul, as he labored to fulfil his commission—all of these and multiplied others have looked and longed and prayed for the kingdoms of this world to "become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Christ."

Prayers Bring Judgment

"And the angel took the censer and filled it with fire of the altar, and cast it into the earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, lightnings, and an earthquake" (v. 5).

The same fire that wafted the prayers of the saints into the presence of God, when turned earthward, brings judgment and the very fire of hell upon unbelievers. All of this is in answer to the prayers of the saints. They may pray, "Thy kingdom come," but that will mean judgments, fierce and terrible; for the men that offend must first be gathered out. So here, the prayer of the humble saints will set God and the angels to work to oust the devil and his followers and bring sore trouble upon blaspheming humanity.

This is the same fire that wafted the prayers into the presence of God, only now it is turned earthward. And so with every true and sincere child of God. They are "unto God a sweet savour of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish. To the one we are a savour of death unto death; and to the other a savour of life unto life" (2 Cor. 2:15).

The same child of God, as he walks the street of his home town, may cast a savour or odor of death to the ungodly but an odor of life to those who love the Lord. He is a killjoy to a group of filthy pesters and silence reigns until he passes by; while to another Christian, he is an odor of life and encouragement.

Some people even spoil a name and cause it to have an odor of death. A young girl in my congregation, realizing the foul odor of Hollywood and not wishing to be connected with even the name of "Shirley" Temple, changed her name to "Loraine."

So here the same fire turned upward means answered prayer, while turned earthward it means judgment, fearful and sore.

ONE OF D. L. MOODY'S STORIES

A Scotch minister went to labor with one of his members who was in the habit of going to sleep during the sermon every Sunday. "Don't you think" said he, "you had better stay at home if you can't keep awake?" But she said she had been brought up to go to church and she would go.

"Then don't you think you had better take a little more snuff to keep you awake?" She replied, "Don't you think you'd better put a little more snuff in your sermons, Mon?"

THE MIDNIGHT CRY

By A. B. Horst

"Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!"
It is the midnight cry!
O, shall we heed it, brother,
While mercy still is nigh?

The pearly gates are open
To all who heed the call.
The gospel sound is ringing
To all, both great and small.

This is the day of mercy,
The day of hope and grace.
O, shall we heed God's message
And meet Him face to face?

The moments now are precious;
The day is drawing near,
And happy saints are waiting
Till Jesus shall appear.

The angels wait in heaven
To greet the raptured bride,
And glorious are the nuptials
With Christ the crucified.

Yes, crowns and thrones await us
In the millennial reign
When saints and ransomed nations
Shall dwell on earth again,

When Christ the throne of David
Shall come to occupy,
And Israel and the nations
In Christ are all brought nigh.

This is the age the golden
For which mankind has sighed
And by God's holy prophets
Was duly prophesied.

Then in the golden city,
The New Jerusalem,
We'll live with all the ransomed
And wear a diadem.

And in the heavenly mansions
With Christ our Lord we'll be,
And with the saints in glory
Through all eternity.

A HUNT IN AFRICA The True Story of a Brave Dog

By Roger Jobson

"Bang! bang!" go the village drums, and everyone is aware that tomorrow there will be a big hunt. All the men that can walk are going, and taking their dogs with them.

Roger Jobson

Next morning all are ready, and among them is a tall brown and white dog, just as much excited as the men, if not more so. His real name is Spot, but the natives cannot pronounce "sp" so they just call him Pot.

All are off for the bush, and as they disappear around the bend of the road, they see another group of hunters going the same direction. After walking two or three miles they see in the distance a mountain on fire. That is where their hunting ground is.

When the natives hunt, they don't start off with a gun on their shoulder, and cartridges in their pockets, but with a large net into which the animals run when the fire chases them from their hiding places. Then the men have bows and arrows to spear them with.

The hunt has begun. Dogs are running wild. Their owners are having a hard time keeping them together. Spot appears to be running after a large rabbit. His owner who is chief Saka, shouts at him to stop and not waste his strength on such a small animal, but to watch for an antelope or buffalo.

The fire is now getting headway. There goes a ground hog! All the dogs run for it, and soon it is spared. There is a big shout, and they try to agree on which dog killed the ground hog.

Soon some shouts—they see a buffalo coming toward the net. The dogs are off. He has escaped—no, there he is at a distance. Soon the buffalo comes running toward the net. He runs into the net, but tears it and is off again. The dogs are after him. Spot is in the lead. Some of the dogs have lost sight of him, but Spot is still on his trail. Now the men again see the animal, and are getting close enough to spear it. They throw their spears, but the buffalo does not fall. Off again in the bush near the river! Spot has hold of his leg now. Into the river they both go, faithful Spot still holding on to him. They spear the buffalo again, as the big monster makes slow headway in the water; and as he plows on a little bit farther, the animal falls over dead.

You ask about Spot? The poor dog was found lying on the ground beside the buffalo, suffering from a broken back. Great was the sorrow of chief Saka. They carried him home and put splints on his back and are taking the best care of him so that he may get well.

A week later I came to see him. True, his back quarters had been badly cracked, but he did not seem to be in pain as I thought he would be. He was overjoyed to see me again, and did not want me to leave him.

... Spot is my dog. He was given to me by a French man—a friend of mine. Now Spot is going to get well. However, I don't believe he will be able to run as fast as he did before, but he is still my faithful old pal.

WHAT OTHER BOYS AND GIRLS ARE DOING

As you may have heard, we only have two kinds of weather in California: good, and unusual. In other words, if we should happen to have some disagreeable weather, we never dream of calling it bad. It is unusual!

It is so in the Primary-Junior C. E. of the First Brethren Church in Long Beach, Calif. Our weekly meetings are such a blessing that we never dream of calling an "off" Sunday a bad Sunday. Ah, no, it is unusual!

Picture, if you can, a happy group of about 20, from five to eight years of age, seated in a room on the southeast corner of the church. Outside the evening shadows are beginning to fall. Inside the sunlight of God's love still shines.

After standing and repeating Hab. 2:20, different members choose songs and lead them. Eager hands, those of visitors included, fly in hope of being called upon for this honor. The collection is taken, and each one wants the honor of carrying it into the office. Memory work follows. Then each one stands and thanks God for some gift. A lad of six thanks God for the gift of His Son. Another boy of seven recites a verse of Scripture. A blue eyed girl, who has never testified publicly before, rises to her feet, "I thank God for my mother," she says. We thank God too, for it was a start for her and she will have more to say the next time.

Our watch reminds us that it is time for prayer. Everyone kneels and prays as the leader goes from one to the other to help them as they pray. Sometimes the leader calls them by name. Anyone who has been missed quickly makes it known by raising a tiny hand or speaking to the leader.

One evening a little four year old was there for the first time. When the leader knelt beside her for prayer she whispered, "I don't know what to say." The reply was, "Tell the Lord Jesus that you love Him." She paused for a second and then said, "But I don't know Him."

There was a sermon tucked away in that child's words. Before we can talk to the Lord Jesus we must truly know Him. Thank God that Jesus said, "If ye continue in my word . . . ye shall know the truth"—"I am the truth." O, that we all might come to truly know Him, and be able to say truthfully, "I love you, Lord Jesus."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

A THRIVING C. E. IN FREMONT

It was about the first Sunday in February when our C. E. began its historical career. Just two weeks before, our young pastor had arrived to take the helm in our new yet unorganized church. As he saw the enthusiasm of us young people he immediately called a meeting for us to organize a young people's work.

There were about 20 at the first meeting. To many of us it was all new, but the Lord led in our choice of officers. Our president has proven to be one whom it would be hard to excel. His keen interest and sincere devotion has been a real testimony to each of us. He has excellent ability as a Christian leader.

The C. E. lessons in the Herald have been used from the very beginning. We find them interesting and inspiring. Our services are one hour in length. They are always begun with our pre-prayer period. Then we have a rousing song service led by one of our group. The singing could be improved upon, but it is heart sprung and we enjoy it. The Lord, as one of His many blessings, has blessed us by giving us three young people who can accompany at the instrument. The fact that 10 of our group were at Camp Buckeye has brought renewed interest in choruses. All this paves the way for our topic.

Our C. E. is not content with just ordinary services, but we are constantly seeking ways of improving them. At this writing we are expecting to have Miss Cook, a missionary to India, as a speaker one Sunday evening. She is a member of the Moody Memorial Church, and is out in an inter-denominational work. Her original home is near Fremont, and she was baptized in the Brethren Church here several years ago.

We are sponsoring the B.S.L.V. rally to be lead by Brother and Sister Dunning. Thorough plans are being made, and we look for a wonderful service. These plans include definite prayer for the Lord's blessing. We are expecting near 50 young people to attend.

Aug. 25th, we are going to the Old Folks Home to hold our C. E. service. The time will be moved forward enough to allow for getting back to evening worship. A committee is already in charge of this service.

Last Sunday we enjoyed our record attendance. Forty-one young people crowded one half of our small auditorium. This included several young married people. We are longing for the time when we can be in our new church where facilities will enable us to have a departmentalized C. E. Twenty some of our group have been awarded C. E. pins for perfect attendance for 12 consecutive Sundays. Some of these have neared the halfway mark for a gold pin which will be awarded for perfect attendance for one year.

As the future is faced, should our Lord delay His coming, we look earnestly for God's continued richest blessings, and we pray that He will make us worthy of them. Will you join us in prayer for our young folks over the nation? They as we need your prayer.

EDNA TEETS, Secretary.

ABRAHAM and ISAAC (Heb. 11:8-10).

"Mother," cried Marie as she tossed her books on the table. "There's a Jewish family in the next block, and they have children in our school."

"Well, what's so exciting about that?"

"Why mother, we've never had any Jews before. Geraldine says they're dirty and they work on Sunday and they cheat people."

Just then Paul came in and listened in astonishment. "Aw shucks, sis, I think they're swell. Solly is in our room and he let us play with his new ball. What's the matter with them?"

Mother spoke reprovingly. "Darling, you surely have a very wrong idea about things. These people are Americans, and they are God's people."

"God's people!" cried Marie. "Why they don't even go to church and they don't keep Sunday. I thought they were heathen."

"My dear child, a great many Gentiles don't go to church or keep Sunday or worship God. You surely have forgotten that the Bible was written by Hebrews. Almost all the characters in it are Hebrews. Christ Jesus was a Jew. I will tell you why God chose Abraham out of all the people on earth to be the head of a race of people who should represent Him on the earth.

"Abram lived in Ur of the Chaldees, a rich prosperous city. The people there were wicked and began to serve heathen gods. So God told Abram to leave his country and people and go to a land God would show him. God wanted a people who would love and serve Him through whom He could send His Son when the time came to redeem humanity. God knew just what kind of a man Abram was and what was in his heart. It must have been hard for Abram and his wife to leave all their friends and relatives, but Abram believed and obeyed God.

"Abram became very rich and powerful in the new country. God had promised that his children should be a great nation and as the sands of the sea, and that in him all the nations should be blessed; but Abram did not even have a son. God changed his name to Abraham, which means father of many nations, and tho he and his wife were old, God sent them a son, Isaac.

(Supply the story of how God told Abraham to offer Isaac and how God provided a ram instead, just as Abraham was ready to sacrifice his son.)

"So you see why Abraham was chosen to be the father of the Hebrew nation and father of the faithful. Because of unbelief the Jews are scattered today—no country, no government, no Savior. But God has promised to restore them and they will again have a home in Palestine. God has promised to bless us if we are good to the Jews, but to curse us if we mistreat them."

"But it is true that they are dirty and don't go to church and cheat people, isn't it?" insisted Marie.

"Don't you know others who are not Jews who are not clean and are dishonest? Of course you do. There are very cultured Jews too. They have their synagogues in which to worship and keep the Sabbath. A great many wonderful doctors, scientists, musicians and educators have been Jews. This anti-Semitic movement is of Satan. He hates the Jews because Jesus was a Jew and will some day destroy him and all his work."

"I'm sorry mother," said Marie, "I just didn't understand. I certainly will tell Geraldine and I will be as nice as I can to Anna who is in our class."

SAMUEL (1 Sam. 1:27-28; 2:18-19)

"Mother, mother," called Carol. "Isn't Dick going to Juniors? It's almost time."

Mother looked at the clock. "O you've almost a half hour. Where is he?"

"He said he wasn't going tonight, and went over to Bill's."

"Whatever has come over him? He used to like to go when he was a Junior. Now that he's with the Intermediates I thought he'd like it better."

"I think it's because he's about the youngest in the class and thinks he isn't wanted."

Mother phoned Bill's home and soon both boys came in the door looking rather sheepish.

"Better hurry, son, and get ready for the meeting."

"Aw, mom," he growled, "I'm not old enough to do anything anyhow, and besides Bill don't have to go."

Mother looked a little anxious. Bill's parents weren't very regular in church attendance, and allowed Bill to make his own choices pretty often.

"Wash your hands, boys, and I'll fix you some sandwiches, milk and cookies."

While the boys were eating she said quietly, "I want to remind you of a story before you go, but first look at this little plant. See the two shoots, both of them nice and green and both on the same plant. Can you tell me the difference between them?"

Dick examined them curiously and said, "One's nice and straight and the other is bent way over. Can't you straighten it up?"

"No, Dick. The one grew straight and tall because there was nothing between it and the sunlight. The other caught by this little low branch, and grew crooked to get around it. If you try to straighten it up now it might break."

There was a questioning look in the eyes of both boys.

"You see sometimes boys are like that. If they have the right training when they are young, and nothing is allowed to come between them and their Savior, they grow straight and tall both mentally and spiritually. But if they allow things to bar their growth, they sometimes become crooked too."

"But my mother says I'm too young to go to church and Juniors," said Bill.

"Let me tell you about a little boy who began to serve the Lord when he was little more than a baby."

"A baby," cried both boys at once.

"Well just a little more maybe." (Supply the story of how Hannah asked the Lord to send her a son, how she took him to the Lord's house when he was still very young, how God called him, and what God said when he answered.)

"Well, I'm not quite a baby," said Bill, "Maybe I'm too old to start now."

"O no you aren't," said Dick. "I'm going to Juniors and you're going with me."

Mother added, "When God sent other children to Hannah, I think there was still a very special place in her heart for the little son who was away serving the Lord."

"He grew straight, didn't he," asked Bill thoughtfully, "because he had a good start. Guess I'd better get started."

"Well come on then," shouted Dick as he grabbed another cookie and started for the door.

C. E. TOPIC FOR SEPT. 8, 1940

Jonah, the First Foreign Missionary

Mat. 12:38-45

Suggestions for the Leader

The Book of Jonah is as important as any Scripture, and has a message for us today. Jesus believed it and put His approval upon it. He used it as an illustration. Jonah became a sign of the resurrection of Christ which was, in many ways, the most important miracle in the Bible. The Book also teaches the true purpose of the Jews as a witness to the Gentiles. It points out that God was not partial in dealing with men.

1. The Man Who Ran Away From God. Jonah 1:1-3.

Jonah actually went in the opposite direction from God's commission. Perhaps he did not want to see the people of Ninevah receive God's mercy because he disliked them. Perhaps he was frightened at the thought of working among these cruel people who were his enemies. Jonah fled from fellowship with God, but it was impossible for him to flee from God's presence.

2. The Burial of Jonah. Jonah 1:17, 2:1-3, 10.

Unbelievers say that a whale could not swallow a man like Jonah but we know that whales have swallowed barrels. Remember this was a prepared fish to take Jonah back to shore. God was able to take charge of the fish and Jonah. He kept him for the great task of preaching to the sinful people of Nineveh. Our Lord's own resurrection was based upon the truth of Jonah's experience inside the great fish. Nothing is impossible with God. He was able to bring Jonah back to work safely as well as to free the Lord Jesus from the bonds of death.

3. The World's Greatest Evangelist. Jonah 3:1-5.

It was a painful experience for Jonah to learn that he could not run away from God. His success came when he did exactly what God told him to do. He was great because of the marvelous results that followed his preaching. It is a rare thing to hear of an entire city being converted to God. Conversion of Nineveh was real. The wicked people forsook their ways. The fact that a Jew was able to stop a Gentile city on its downward course is the great miracle of the Book. Some day Nineveh will rise up to judge those who disbelieve the story of Jonah.

4. The Man Who Argued with God. Jonah 4:1-11.

It is easy for us to run ahead of God and begin to tell Him what to do. Jonah was not willing that the city of Nineveh should be saved. He had preached that it would be destroyed. He did not want mercy shown to the people. The lesson of the gourd convicted Jonah of selfishness. It proved that God had the right to control things about him. We need to learn that God does not delight in judgment. He will give every opportunity for confession and adjustment.

Questions

1. Why did Jonah refuse to go to Nineveh at the first call?
2. Why is it important for us to insist upon the truth of the story of Jonah?
3. Do you think that people who do not believe in the miracle of the Book of Jonah will also deny other things in the Scriptures?
4. How was Jonah a sign to Nineveh? Luke 11:30.

A Man, Named Matthew

Matthew 9:9

Chas. H. Spurgeon (Reprinted from Young People's Witness)

Matthew is here writing about himself. Note his modesty in the expression—"a man, named Matthew," and his omission of the fact that the feast mentioned was held in his house. The story is placed immediately after a miracle, as if to hint that Matthew's conversion was also a miracle. There may be points of likeness also between Matthew's personal story and our own. These may be profitably considered.

1. His Call Seemed Accidental and Unlikely.

Jesus had often been to Capernaum, which he had selected as "His own city;" and yet Matthew remained unsaved. Was it likely that he would now be called? Had not his day of grace closed?

Jesus left many other persons uncalled; was it not highly probable that the taxgatherer would be passed by? Yet Jesus called to Himself this "man, named Matthew," while many another man had no such special call. "He saw a man, named Matthew," for He foresaw him. He knew him, for He foreknew him.

In all of which there is a parallel between Matthew and ourselves.

2. His Call Was Altogether Unthought of and Unsought.

He was in a degrading business. None but the lowest of the Jews would care to be tax-gatherers for the Romans. He was in an ensnaring business. The publicans usually made a personal profit by extorting more than was due. He would not have dared to follow Jesus, even if he had wished to do so. He felt himself to be too unworthy. He would have been repulsed by the other disciples had he proposed to come without the Lord's open invitation. The call was of pure grace.

3. His Call Was Given by the Lord, with full knowledge of him.

He saw all the evil that had been in him and was there yet. He saw his adaption for holy service, as a recorder and penman. He saw all that He meant to make of him. The Lord calls as He pleases, but He sees what He is doing. Sovereignty is not blind: but acts with boundless wisdom.

4. His Call Was Graciously Condescending.

The Lord called "a man, named Matthew"—that was his best. He was a publican—that may not have been his worst.

He allowed such a sinner to be His personal attendant; yea, called him to that honor, saying, "Follow Me." He allowed him to do this immediately, without putting him into quarantine.

5. His Call Was Sublimely Simple.

Few were the words: "Follow Me." Clear was the direction: "Follow Me." Personal was the address: "He saith unto him." Royal was the command: "He saith."

6. His Call Was Immediately Effectual.

Matthew followed at once. He followed spiritually as well as literally. He followed wholly. He followed growingly, more and more. He followed ever after. What a call was this! None could have given it but the Lord.

7. His Call Was a Door of Hope for Others.

His salvation encouraged other publicans to come to Jesus. His open house gave opportunity for his friends to hear Jesus. His personal ministry brought others to Jesus. His written gospel has convinced many, and will always do so.

Bible Questions

Where is God's habitation on earth today? (1 Jn. 4:12, 13).

What does God require of members of Christ's Church? (Eph. 4:17-32).

What will enable us to fulfill God's will? (1 Cor. 13:1-13).

THE CULTURED PIG

When Henry Moorehouse was a boy, on a certain occasion he was walking with his father through the streets of Manchester, England. His attention was suddenly called to a man standing before the door of a building, and crying aloud, "Walk in, ladies and gentlemen, and see the great American pig." Having his curiosity aroused, he paid his penny, and entered the building. There sure enough was a wonderful pig, performing feats and giving evidence of an intelligence probably never a pig exhibited before.

At the command of his master he would pick out from the alphabet lying upon the floor, the letters, "G-o-o-d P-i-g." He would also walk about upon his hind legs and shake hands with those who paid him a visit. Moreover he had been washed and scrubbed until he was perfectly clean, and he was dressed in a beautiful garment. Of course he excited the highest admiration, and no one could deny that he was well educated, and well-behaved in every respect. But notwithstanding his remarkable culture, and his attractive appearance, he was still a pig; better off perhaps than most other pigs, and yet after all, only a pig, and a pig he would remain however advanced his learning.

There is no error, amid the perils of these last days, more dangerous, as there is none more shallow and silly, than the notion taught by many, that culture is the way of salvation. Multitudes, by the perusal of the magazines, or of a few books, acquire a smattering of science, and then, like the pig walking on his hind legs, strut around in the conceit of their superior intelligence, that has placed them, they fancy, beyond the need of regeneration by the Holy Ghost, and of the cleansing blood of Christ. Multitudes of others imagine that courtesy, gentility, acquaintance with the fine arts, or regard for the rules of good breeding, will put them on a different footing before God from the position of the uneducated and the vulgar.

The Cultivated Mind at Enmity

But a moment's observation might convince them that the deep-seated enmity against him of the mind of the flesh, and the desperate wickedness of the heart, are often most fully manifested by those who are most highly cultivated. The history of the race since the death and resurrection of his Son proves that a far more bitter opposition, or a far more contemptuous indifference, to the gospel of his grace has generally been shown by the wealthy and educated, than by the poor and ignorant; because the former are more prone to be puffed up with a pride that refuses to humble itself beneath the mighty hand of God.

BIGGER AND BETTER MALE CHORUS at Conference this year. Our Brother Henry Rempel is hereby reminding all the members of the Conference Male Chorus to meet at the Christian Temple on Monday, August 26th at 5 p.m. for a "Warm-Up" rehearsal. Bring your music and be prompt!!!

A moment's observation should also convince them that any degree of culture, mental or moral, must utterly fail to change the nature. An educated pig is still a pig; a conquered tiger is still a tiger. "Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles?" (Matt. 7:16). No; the diligent cultivation of thorns and thistles for a life-time, or for a thousand years, or for eternity, could not produce grapes and figs; and whatever may be done with human nature, it will remain human nature, whether in the palace of a king, or in the cell of a convict; whether amid the retreats of philosophy, or the huts of untutored savages.

It was to a cultivated, refined, moral and even a religious inquirer, Jesus said, "Except a man be born of water (the Word) and of the Spirit, he can not enter into the kingdom of God. That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit. Marvel not that I said unto thee, Ye must be born again" (Jn. 3:5-7). It was to those no less accomplished than the society of the present day the inspired apostle wrote, "You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins; wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience: among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others" (Eph. 2:1-3). The desires of the mind may be as offensive to God as the coarser desires of the flesh, and the most cultivated are by nature the object of his displeasure, even as others.

No Human Remedies

What the nature is in his sight may be inferred from the fact that the Lord Jesus, speaking of the unregenerate, says to his disciples, "Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine" (Matt. 7:6). So the Holy Ghost, describing some who had received culture, but not the new nature, tells us, "The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and the sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire" (2 Pet. 2:22). The sow may be washed, but unless a lamb nature is imparted to it, that shall gain the ascendancy, it will still be a sow, and at the first convenient opportunity will go back to its old ways. "Though thou wash thee with nitre, and take thee much sope, yet thine iniquity is marked before me, saith the Lord God" (Jer. 2:22).

The Voice of One Who Wept

By MARTHA SNELL NICHOLSON

Today I heard the voice of one
Who wept in foreign lands
Because of sin and misery,
And begged with outstretched hands

For one small lamp to light his dark.
Now fain I would have slept,
So stopped ears, but in my heart
That sobbing voice still wept.

And then I heard the voice of One
Who counted not the cost,
But left His ivory palaces
To seek and save the lost.

He said, "The voice of one who weeps
Is coming up to Me;
Hast thou forgot that last command
Which I gave unto thee

To preach My Word to all the world?" . .
O, bitter be our shame!
Still hopeless millions walk the earth
Who never heard His name!

And still the world spends lavishly
In every crowded amrt,
And still the voice of one who weeps
Is sobbing in my heart!

The 51st General Conference of The Brethren Church

By Louis S. Bauman, Editor

The 51st General Conference of The Brethren Church has now become history. Had our conference last year been legally organized under the rules of its Manual of Procedure, this would have been our 52nd General Conference.

The conference met at Winona Lake for reorganization on the morning of August 27th, 1940. Elder Chas. H. Ashman of Whittier was elected as its Moderator. Homer A. Kent, of Washington, D. C. was elected Vice Moderator, and Joseph L. Gingrich of Allentown, Pa. was chosen as our Secretary.

It proved to be one of the best conferences that the writer has ever attended, and we have been attending National Conferences for forty-three years. Looking at it from its spiritual side, its financial returns, its sweetness of fellowship, its enjoyable weather, its largeness of attendance, its unity of thought, its importance of accomplishment, its enthusiasm of spirit, its plans for the future—looking at it any way you will, and all were agreed that the Lord did for us exceedingly abundantly above all we asked or thought—and all this in spite of the fact that it was preceded by so much of uncertainty.

The conference certainly was a happy foreshadow of conferences ahead, if our Lord shall tarry. Due to much of confusion, uncertainty, lateness of the Call, and various misunderstandings which preceded this conference, for reasons that are well understood, a number of churches failed to have their delegates there, which will have them on hand for the opening of our Conference in the year 1941.

We believe that the Conference of 1941 will prove even greater yet, in its spiritual blessing and definite results for the advancement of the Brethren Church.

The general attendance of Brethren and friends of the Church was one of the largest in all our history. Naturally, the delegated body was not as large as it has been for the last several conferences. However, we would much prefer a smaller conference in which the spirit of mere rivalry is absent.

One of the outstanding features of the Conference was the Grace Seminary rally. Over $4500 in cash and pledges were raised for the support of the Seminary during the coming year. This again was "exceedingly above!" Rev. Homer A. Kent and family arrived on the Conference ground this year, bag and baggage, where they will remain, inasmuch as he has resigned his work in Washington, D. C. and is now a permanent member of the seminary staff. This means that the staff of the Seminary is greatly strengthened, and assures a most successful year ahead. The large offering given to Grace Seminary has caused some of its strong and able supporters—men of real vision—to insist that the time has come for even adding another strong man to the faculty staff. We predict that Grace Theological Seminary, although widely known over the United States, is destined for a great future and to do a great work if our Lord shall tarry.

The Women's Missionary Council was most enthusiastic in all of its meetings, due to the most successful year they have had. They wrote a check for the Foreign Board alone amounting to $794.48, and this comes in addition to all that they have previously contributed for the year. Just what their total will be is a matter for later report. We do not have the exact figures, and they were far from confining their good work to foreign missions alone. They reported the organization of seventy societies during the first year of their existence. There will be many more during the coming year.

One of the highlights of the conference was the report of the Home Missions Council. The best year in the work of Home Missions in the Brethren Church, barring none, and, we might say even "away and beyond," was reported. The offerings for the year exceeding their asking, the Council is planning greatly to extend its work. Everywhere groups of Brethren in cities and towns, where Brethren Churches have never before existed, are applying for financial and ministerial help, so that Brethren Churches may be established in said cities and towns.

R. Paul Miller, our efficient Home Missions Secretary, reported that the need for men who can build churches is greater even than our need for funds. It almost makes one weep to think that a few years ago some of our leading brethren suggested that the organization of Grace Seminary might prove to be a producer of more Brethren ministers than could possibly find "jobs." After all, a real Brethren preacher never thinks of his work as a "job." It is a calling, under God, to labor in His vineyard; and there never, in all the history of the Christian Church, has been a surplus of workmen in the vineyard of our Lord.

The Foreign Missionary Society will later publish the Treasurer's Report, and, it will likewise prove to be one of the best reports in the history of the Foreign Missionary Society, in spite of war conditions that vitally effect our African work, and denominational troubles that have greatly hindered our progress in the Argentine field. When the foreign missionary money (that has been held, for reasons that are well understood, in the treasuries of the local churches) is all turned into the Foreign Missionary Society treasury, we feel assured that our offering will go beyond the $40,000 mark, which assures the continued progress of our foreign work. Only a few years ago, $40,000 was a goal beyond our dreams. The treasurer's report, when published later, will be placed before all the members of the society, as heretofore.

A New Name

An agreement between the "Ashland College Group" of Brethren Churches, and the "Grace Seminary" Group of Brethren Churches, was effected during conference week, whereby confusion of name in our general conference work will be avoided in the future.

"The Ashland Group" will continue its national conference work under the title—"The National (or, General) Conference of Brethren Church." The Grace Seminary Group" will continue its work under the name of "The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches." The latter "Group," in taking this change of name, acted within the legal right of any organization to change its name. In other words, "The 51st National (or, General) Conference of The Brethren Church," without forfeiting any rights it may have had under said title, and considering itself duly organized for the proper authorization of said action, changed its title, and will assemble next year as "The 52nd Fellowship of Brethren Churches."

Upon the agreement of our Conference to use this new name to designate our "Grace Seminary Group" of Brethren Churches, the "Ashland College Group" of Brethren Churches assembled at Ashland, O. agreed to surrender all claim to the name, the assets, and the control of "The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church," over which there has been contention, fears, and doubts.

"The Ashland College Group" of Brethren Churches will do their foreign missionary work under the direction of "The General Missionary Board of The Brethren Church," better known in years gone by as "The National Home Missionary Board of The Brethren Church." By this action, Elder Claude Studebaker becomes the President, and Elder Dyoil Belote becomes the "Office Secretary," who will presumably directly have charge of the foreign missionary activities of the "College Group" of Churches. We pray God's blessing to rest upon them in making Christ and His salvation known to all the children of men.

In a later issue, the full story of this important matter, together with the resolutions passed by both conferences, will be published for the information of all Brethren people.

One other matter is worthy of mention here. The committee appointed to care for the publishing of the Brethren Missionary Herald this past year, made its report, and once again it was "exceedingly above!" The thanks of the Brotherhood must be extended to Elder Leo Polman, of Ft. Wayne, for the success of our publishing work. This work was in the state of flux that precedes organization; and yet, in spite of that, it came through with flying colors. 2200 paid subscriptions are upon its mailing lists. Debts have been liquidated. The Brethren Missionary Herald has been popularized among our people. The financial report of the committee was more than satisfactory. The organization of the work was effected at the conference, and another very successful year for this work is predicted. There will be more publicity concerning this work later.

All Sunday School work, the Christian Endeavor work—everything went forward with an enthusiasm that knew no bounds. The greatest year in the history of the Brethren Church is ahead of us. A fuller and more detailed report we will be expecting soon from those in charge. This report has gotten into this early issue of the Brethren Missionary Herald, because of the patience and willingness of our good Brother Foye B. Miller, who has the printing and publishing of this paper in charge, to work day and night. We thank you, Brother Miller.

The Treasurer's Annual Report

We regret that we are unable as yet to publish our Annual Report. We had an Annual Report made out, and presented it to the Foreign Board at its meeting at Winona Lake on August 24th. However, the report was so incomplete, due to the fact that so many have not yet sent in their Easter offerings, that we felt it would be very unfair, not only to the churches, but to our Society, to publish the same at this time. However, we are assured that our denominational troubles will be ironed out so that we can gather all the outstanding funds into our treasuries, at which time a full and complete report will be printed and sent to all the members of the Society.

Thus, the fiscal year will be extended at least three months, if not a bit longer, by order of the Board of Trustees.

THE STORY OF "LOROR"

By MRS. FLORENCE N. GRIBBLE, M. D., Yalohe, O. C., F. E. A.

(On April 24, 1940 an epileptic woman was brought to the hospital at Yalohe. Abandoned by her family, carried from village to village by a "banda," a native fishing net, doubtless scantily fed, she arrived exhausted and emaciated from her hundred mile journey. In her semi-maniacal state, she had but few lucid intervals. But on April 25, the Lord Jesus spoke to her through Louis Tiouane, a native nurse in training; and in that very hour she accepted the Lord. On April 26, she died suddenly, her death being the culmination of the neglect and abuse of years—snatched as a brand from the burning, she is with her Lord. In order to portray vividly her actual story we are endeavoring to fictionalize it, as so many of the details of her life, only the last few days of which she was under our care, must be imagined . . . . Author's note.)

Loror's Birth and Early Childhood

Night had fallen upon the village of Gomoloungou near to Boali. Many of the villagers were asleep in their thatched huts, with doors fast closed to guard against leopards or human marauders. But there was a stir in the center of the village. Some of the older women were gathered to gether, officiating at the birth of a child.

Dr. Gribble

The mother was one of the many wives of Lembe. The child was the third she was bringing to Lembe. Already he had a stalwart son, and a buxom daughter. Then Delihona, the little mother had "left bearing." And now there was joy in the midst of pain, for a child was being born. Either a boy or girl would be welcome—the boy because of hoped-for future prowess, the girl because of the dowry she would bring. The mother's arms no longer empty, the mother heart no longer grieved because of that natural depreciation of a husband's esteem which comes when children are few—or none.

But the child of her old age was small and puny, not fair to look upon as the elder children had been. It cried incessantly and would not be satisfied, even at its mother's breast.

"Call it 'Loror,' or 'Losso,' said the midwife scornfully. 'Loror,' 'Mud!' 'Losso,' 'Rubbish!'

"Surely mud is better than rubbish," thought the disappointed mother, and "Loror" she became.

She grew slowly. She learned to walk awkwardly. She was unsought by lovers, for wooing takes place early in Banou land, and none were willing to give the "bride price" for just mud. She who had brought disappointment at birth and unhappiness during her childhood, not only to her parents, but to the village and herself, was to bring upon them another calamity.

All the world fears that dread disease epilepsy—the first "falling"—how it brings consternation to family and village alike! As in Bible times, so in Africa, it is "ofttimes into the fire" that the poor epileptic falls, and one series of burns and contractures succeeds another, until trunk and limbs are drawn into hideous contortions.

Girlhood

Ushered in so inauspiciously, Loror's girlhood was even sadder than that of other girls in Banou land. Unloved, unsought, worse than that, feared and hated because of her great suffering, her loneliness and fear aggravated her malady. The demoniacal cries which so often accompany her disease were frequently heard in her village. For her sake it seemed the whole village was cursed. African flesh and blood cannot long endure such a condition. In the old days she would have been discarded to die in the brush.

But into the village of Gomoloungou the gospel's light is shining dimly. It is the dim gray light of early dawn, when the villages "see men as trees walking." At Yalohe, a hospital! There she would not be turned away. The family determined to send her there. Only a mother's love demurred, but who in Africa listens to a mother's plaintive voice? Small wonder that she demurred, for father and brother would not think of carrying her one hundred miles! Only to the next village!

And so they carried her, father and son, the fishing net swung upon a pole like a hammock. In the dim twilight they started; in full darkness they arrived, and well knowing that the villagers would not receive her, placed the hammock on the ground and fled, leaving her to announce her arrival by her own cries.

Turn between fears, she cried aloud. The chief ordered an investigation, and being himself touched by the gospel—had not his son been healed at Yalohe?—ordered two of his own villagers to carry her to the next village. So, travelling practically day and night, with little food and scant rest, sent forth with a new relay of porters as soon as her arrival in a village was made known, she finally arrived at the hospital. What a joy it must have been to be received, bathed, fed, given a room and bed!

Yalohe

Only 48 hours to live! But there was something different about these last 48 hours of her life. Even to her imprisoned spirit there crept the gentle message of love! Why did these people care for her?

The morning after her arrival she was able to comprehend the gospel message. So that Savior of her village home, that Savior died for her, an epileptic, a woman, an outcast! To understand was to receive; to receive was to love; and her darkened soul was born again, for—"every one that loveth is born of God and knoweth God!" By a miracle her clouded mind had been enlightened just to receive Him!

Soon she lapsed into a semi-stupor, quickly followed by unconsciousness and—death! Death, did we say? No, life, life everlasting. Shall we not praise God for the dawn of a brighter day for Oubangui Chari? Shall we not pray for the mission in all its departments, not forgetting the hospital and dispensary?

OUT OF DARKNESS INTO THE LIGHT

By JUAN B. PISANI, Pastor Brethren Missions Tancacha and Hernando, Argentina

By means of these lines, I desire to present to my readers a personal and intimate experience, which, 20 years ago, was wrought in me by the grace of God. Naturally, to relate it now will be somewhat different from what it would have been if told at that time.

It is helpful to cast a retrospective glance, when the object of such a look is to make us think on the merciful divine providence, and to bring us to the comprehension and realization of His purposes in our lives. Therefore, it is with great satisfaction and joy that, after 20 years, I tell how I came to know the Lord.

Some 22 years ago, for the first time, I heard something of the gospel. Now I think and say, when I observe persons being converted: "What varied and distinct experiences and different ways worked together in the divine providence to bring us to one single point, to know the great love of God to have sent His beloved Son 'to seek and to save that which was lost.'" Therefore, when I look backward, I am unable to do anything else but praise the precious name of my blessed Savior who died on the cross, finishing the work of salvation and redemption of our souls.

In the year 1910 my parents, who were farmers, settled in the Province of Cordoba some nine miles from Cabrera. Nothing of importance, at least that I remember, happened in that lapse of time until Christmas of the year 1918. During those months of the winter of that year I had attended a school on a neighboring farm. I had made friends with several children there and we visited each other regularly. As Christmas drew near, the Sunday School in Cabrera organized a social outing (Christmas comes in summer down here). The outing was under the direction of Mr. Cayetano Spring, and the place chosen was the very farm where I had gone to school. When the other children heard about it, they communicated the news to me. As it had to do with a holiday and a good time, I anxiously awaited the appointed date, although at that time I knew nothing of what it was to be like since the gospel was for me something entirely new. I was, at that time, 14 years of age, and what I saw and heard remained engraved on my mind in such a way that now, after more than 20 years, it seems to me that I can hear and see all the numbers of the program, which, in the main, had as its purpose the presentation of the gospel. At the close of the program, Mr. Spring, mentioned above, talked with my father who had accompanied me, recommending to him the reading of the Bible. He told him that if he had no Bible and wanted one, he would gladly sell him one. My father asked me if I would like to read it. As I enjoyed reading, I told him yes. In this way I came to possess my first Bible without knowing at that time the valuable content of the Book.

As I went on reading it, and at the same time attended Sunday School and some other meetings, the truth slowly penetrated my heart. I came to understand that I was a lost sinner, and that the Lord Jesus had come to seek and to save that which was lost. Some two years later I passed from death to life. Thanks to the Lord! At the beginning of the year 1921 I publicly gave my testimony, passing through the waters of baptism. Through these years the grace of God has not been in vain in my life. As He has led me through the varied experiences of the Christian life, one desire has possessed me, which is, has to be, the desire and purpose of every believer in Christ: to announce the virtues of that One who has called us "out of darkness into His marvelous light."

A meeting at Tancacha where Bro. Pisani is now pastor.

I close, taking as mine, the vision and desire of the Christian poet who wrote:

"I will serve Jesus preaching the light,
And joyful with Him I will live.

He gives me protection and free salvation,
In the conflict firm I shall stand."

The Christian Answer to Communism and Fascism

By MORRIS GORDIN

Former Press-Commissar of the Communist Internationale, in Russia
(Author of "Utopia in Chains," and "Power of Evil," etc.)

Beasts and Ideals

Somebody has said that in evaluating social movements, it is essential to take them out of their theoretical cages, out of the books, and observe how they work in life, because all beasts behave nicely and are lots of fun, so long as they are kept locked inside their barred cages. But just permit those wild creatures to escape into the open, and what happens is no more fun but stark tragedy. So it is, also, with ideals. Kept safely in cages of bound volumes, they are worlds of fun to speculate about, but just release them into mass-movements in social action, and they turn into beasts of prey devouring and destroying mankind.

Two Great Mass-Movements

We shall, therefore, study the two great mass-movements of our time, Communism and Fascism, not so much in theory, but much more in their practical manifestations and actual fulfilment.

First we shall discuss Communism, in its most important phases, as a philosophy, in its general view on the universe, also as a system of politics and a structure of economics.

Communist Philosophy

The philosophy of Communism, that is its view on the ultimate reality of the universe and the underlying nature of society, is grounded in dogmatic materialism. It assumes that the core and essence of the world as a whole is purely material, consisting of nothing but sheer matter; soulless, impersonal physico-chemical particles or elements. Also, man, in himself, or in his relationship with his fellows, is no more than a material entity. As such he is motivated above all by sheer biological instincts and drives, and socially by the determinants of economic interests.

It is obvious, however, to anyone who thinks beneath the surface that materialism is utterly untenable as an explanation and interpretation of reality. For how can material forces, or themselves, without the capacities of mind or spirit, having nothing in them of direction of purpose, how can they produce an order of coherent (universal) unity? How can that which is blind give birth to sight? How can a dark force, sprung from blind chaos, set the sun and stars shining with glorious splendor? How can wandering, stumbling chance become the immovable pillar upon which is grounded the sovereignty of casual law? And coming closer to humanity—how can the aimless drive of evolution rise from instinctive animalism to the self-determined will of a classless society of perfect freedom (which is the final stage of Communism)? Can you imagine animals establishing a free, self-determined, society? Sheer matter knows nothing of freedom. And man and society, motivated only materially or materialistically, that is, selfishly or animalistically, can never attain a society of freedom, an ideal society of righteousness and justice!

Communist Terror Politics

Yet how does Communism attempt to bring about an ideal society of freedom? How does it go about it? It resorts to the hyper-potent magic of a newly-devised political apparatus, a supreme monopoly of power, the most ruthless machinery of repression and suppression welded into the mightiest organization of concentrated force and violence. Yes, violence, not sporadic and individual, but continuous and persistent as a mass expression controlled from above: organized force and violence as the prime mover of historic progress. A class machine of power—the Soviet Super-State — the Dictatorship of the Proletariat. What is that? You establish a regime that can be compared only with the bondage of Egypt, and thus you pave the way for the ultimate classless society of perfect freedom. Is it not precisely like attempting to produce a race of high order geniuses by means of intensive breeding of very low rate imbeciles?

What is the dictatorship of the Proletariat? It is, supposedly, the exclusive rulership of the working class,—which should mean the overlordship over society of the under-dogs,—the submerged emerging to the top. But what do we see, in actuality, in the Soviet Union? Is the working class in control? Absolutely not! Instead of a dictatorship of the Proletariat, they have a dictatorship of the Commissariat

A HYMN FOR OUR DAY

By D. P. McGeachy

Out of the loathsome ways of war,
Out of the hate's increase
Out of the lusts Thy saints abhor,
Lead us, O Prince of Peace!

Out of the scorn of race for race,
Out of the pride of clan,
Out of all limitations of grace,
Lead us, O Son of Man!

Out of the grasping and the greed,
Out of the selfish strife,
Out to the help our brothers need,
Lead us, O Bread of Life!

Out of the ways the brute may know,
Out of the yoke and rod,
Out to the roads where God would go.
Lead us, O Son of God!

over the Proletariat. A red bureaucracy runs the country. A small portion of the working class, the aristocracy of labor, is dragged into the ranks of the ruling Communist party which is the power behind the long moribund Soviet facade of the state apparatus. The Central Committee, self-perpetuated, bosses the party. The Political Bureau dictates to the Central Committee. At the head of the Political Bureau, controlling it with an iron hand, stands the "Man of Steel," Joseph Stalin—the super under-top dog!

Thus, a system of terror politics is supposedly the means for ushering in the ultimate perfect classless society. What a paradox! The actual outworking of this paradox is a merry-go-round of perpetual purges, climaxing in the purging of the purgers and the even Herod-like purging of children who are not yielding the requisite quota of spying upon their parents . . .

Communist Economics

Let us now pass to the sphere of Communist economics. This is best expressed in one term—collectivism. All wealth has been collectivized or nationalized; and private property in the means of production and distribution has been abolished. Has the Soviet established a basis for economic equality? Not at all! In the Soviet today we find a mammoth pyramid (like under old-time Capitalism) of successive social categories in respect to wages, and salaries, piecework and bonuses. The average worker gets 150 rubles a month, while the professional specialist gets four thousand rubles a month. So where is the equality? Whatever equality there be, it is an equality in poverty, but certainly not in riches.

And how could it be otherwise, when the ideal of economic democracy is being realized by means of a political autocracy?

Actually, Soviet Collectivism, regimented from the top, is just another tyrannical economic machine, running parallel with, and under control of the political machine, of the Slave State.

Thus, over against the so-called jungle of unrestricted capitalist individualism stands the even more odious prison camp of regimented Collectivism. The question arises whether Collectivism, in its form of bureaucratic regimentation, may not turn out to be a sort of universal tribalism, bringing about the utter subjugation of man to the clan, on a world-wide scale?

Fascism a Copy of Communism in a Different Color

We now turn to Fascism. There is not much to be said about it in the way of originality. It is essentially a copy of Communism, in a different color. Instead of Communism's class struggle, Fascism pushes to the fore the race struggle. Different races, different colors. Different nations, different shades of color. But what is the heart of Fascism?

In their ideals, or ideology, in their theoretical aims, the Fascists also aim very high. For there never was a mass-movement that did not professedly aim high. The core of the Fascist idea is that nations should become self-sufficient (those unable to be self-sufficient are sub-nations to be ruled by the over-nations). What Communism would achieve by internationalism, by creating a mankind united or a World Soviet, the Fascists would achieve by Autarchyism (national or racial self-sufficiency), climaxing in a racial world empire . . . They, also, at times proclaim the ideal of peace, in words. But meantime they are possessed by a mania of militarism. The Fascists, in this respect also, are like the Communists, who the more they speak of peace, the more they dream of war. (Has not the last great war produced Bolshevism? and will not the next great war produce the world revolution?)

And the strange mystery of the thing is that, with all their seeming irreconcilable hatred to one another, they have a great core of identity, both in their politics and economics, increasingly so in their economics.

Fascism Is Communism From the Top

Is it possible that, in essence, Fascism is Communism from the top, while Communism is Fascism from the bottom?

The world is beginning to wonder whether Hitler is not the champion of a Brown Bolshevism? And whether Mussolini is not aiming to achieve a black Bolshevism? They are both already on a rampage of confiscation of private property. The capitalists in Germany today find (to their great sorrow) that they are no longer owners, but merely agents working in technical positions for the Absolute State. It is so also in Italy. And so it is also beginning to be, even in Japan. It is military necessity which is bolshevizing Fascism. On the other hand, Stalin is beginning to produce a Fascist Bolshevism!

Now let us state the further deduction. If Fascism is Communism from the top, and Communism is Fascism from the bottom then Communism is but International Fascism, and Fascism is but National Communism . . .

Satanic Incarnations

It is amazing to see how much they have in common. They both are fanatical believers in organized force and violence as the lever of progress. The Fascist party is only a copy of the Communist party. In both cases what we observe is a militarization of politics. In practice, the distatorship of the Fascist party is only a disguised dictatorship of the leader, the Duce, the Fuehrer, which means the dictatorship of the all-highest-top-dog—a perfect parallel to the Communist rule in the form of the Caucasian dagger made flesh, in the person of Joseph Stalin, the Red Fuehrer.

As to their ideologies, they have plenty in common. They both hate God. They are both Satanic incarnations, only in different colors: red, black and brown. Fascist philosophy is brazenly pagan. Communist philosophy is brazenly atheistic, God-denying and God-hating. They both hold in common the principle of the near-deification of the leader, of the superman, which must needs mean man against God—Man independent of and opposed to God. . .

Thus, we see the three systems of our day arrayed against one another: Capitalism, Communism and Fascism—Capitalism covertly pagan, Fascism covertly pagan, Communism militantly atheistic—But all three based on the recognition of the paramount value of force, of success—the worship of go-getterism, of survivalism. Darwinism uber alles . . . "The survival of the fittest," which is very often the survival of the slickest, of the most unscrupulously ruthless. Basically, as systems, they worship power—and glorify envy, jealousy and rivalry.

"Drive your competitor out of existence! Undersell him and starve him!" roars the ambitious Capitalist.

"Shoot, imprison and exile!" yelp the Communists and Fascists.

But what does Christianity say?

The Christian Answer

Christianity speaks the words of Jesus, saying:

"Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you."

For true Christianity is diametrically opposed to both Communism and Fascism. It is opposed to Fascism's doctrine of racism rooted in blood and soil. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever (of any race or nation) believeth on Him shall not perish but have everlasting life." It is also opposed to Communism, not so much to its avowed aims, but to its abominable method of force and violence. For Christianity finds the panacea to all human ills in only one thing—in love, the miracle of Christ's love resurrected in the hearts of men. God's miracle of love for a fallen humanity, bringing Him down from heaven to incarnate in flesh and bear the sins of all—to be crucified and be resurrected. The answer of Christianity is the power of love, operative through our faith in the Son of God Who "loved us and gave Himself for us."

The blood of Christ shed on the Cross of Calvary is the universal solvent of all our problems. He was "the Way, the Truth and the Life." Yea, Christ's blood is the genuine alchemy for the transmuting of man, the captive of Satan, into the loving and loved child of God.

For only as children of God, and not as a species of animality, can we truly love one another and expel all the hatred from our hearts.

I was a man of hate, and by the grace of Christ I am become a man of love. I was a man of curses, and through the grace of Christ I am become a man of prayer.

Just imagine if, instead of Karl Marx's Communist "Manifesto" preaching class hatred, and Adolph Hitler's "Mein Kampf" inciting race hatred, St. Paul's I Cor. 13 would be read every day in all the public schools of Russia, Italy and Germany! How different things would be!

What is the gist of the Christian answer?

It is: "In the beginning God." All our strivings must have God motivating them, to bring about a true realization of any worth while ideal. "For unless the Lord build the house, they labor in vain who build it." And that means that if there is ever to be achieved on earth an ideal society of the brother-

"In the Light of the Promises"

(Psalms 2:8)

Gene Farrell, 2216 E. 8th St., Long Beach, Calif.

He entered his closet and shut the door.
God entered a city and saved a score!

He went to his knees and "stood" on the Word.
God went among rulers! Great kingdoms were stirred!

He lifted his voice, just pleading the blood.
God lifted a standard on high from the flood!

He spoke to the Father, refusing to fret.
God spoke, and the needs of a thousand were met!

He entered his closet. He quietly spoke.
But lo! who can tell what his prayers did provoke!

A brief, little season—a wee, little hour—
And God, with His wisdom and mercy and power,

Was able to move in such marvellous ways,
That ages eternal shall ring with His praise!

hood of men, it will not be brought about otherwise than under the Fatherhood of God! Only as children of One Father can we become united in a true brotherhood.

God's Law of Love

And if under God, it must be under God's law of love, and not under the lawlessness of hatred, which is the rule of Satan who is the power of evil!

God's law of love, applied with utmost earnestness, gave victory to original Christianity. The Christians of the first centuries overcame all opposition and won the world to their cause, "not by might nor by power but by the spirit of Christ." The Christians were thrown into the mouths of lions; they were sewn into the skins of snakes and were cast into the stormy sea to be drowned. Yet they conquered Rome and Athens, the mighty kingdoms and empires of the time. How? Certainly not with forceful weapons which, beside all else, they were too poor to have among their very meager possessions. Indeed, they had no weapons other than their prayers. They converted their persecutors by loving them. They went to their doom with hymns and songs, without a murmur of hate but with a sincere prayer of forgiveness for their executioners. And love, feeble at first, finally conquered the very worst enemies of Christianity. And paganism surrendered, not to force, but to Christ's divine law of love.

Christian Politics

Christian politics must be based on the law of love and self-sacrifice. Said Paul: "Bear ye one another's burdens and thus fulfil the Law of Christ (Gal. 6:2). Again Paul said: "Remember them that are in bonds as bound with them" (Heb. 13:3). This means that Christians are to consider themselves in bonds when they see others held in bonds, in slavery, in any form of oppression. Such is the core of real Christian politics.

Christian Economics

What about Christian economics?

It can neither endorse the jungle of unrestrained capitalist individualism (in both its chaotic competitive and despotic monopolistic forms), nor can it approve of the prison camps of Soviet regimented Collectivism, nor can it at all countenance the concentration camps of the Fascist racial community of blood and soil (the blood of the battlefields and the soil of the cemeteries . . .). We as Christians may, however, recognize a definite measure of good in competitive individualism, as well as in Collectivism-Totalitarianism. But these principles have to be redefined, as such individualism and Collectivism represent the operation of the cosmic forces of repulsion and attraction, of atomism and massism. In the physical cosmos they are held in a perfect balance directly by the all-controlling hand of the Creator. In society, which is a social cosmos, these apparently irreconcilable opposites must be brought into a unity, under God, by the sweet influence of Christian love.

In fact, individualism and Collectivism contain each an invaluable attribute of life. Personality is the flower of individualism, and sociality is the healthy

THINK IT OVER

Every man has a better right to hear the gospel once than any man has to hear it twice.

kernel of Collectivism. God deals with each individual soul separately, ("the soul that sinneth it shall die"); but also in its group relationship, "for we are members one of another" (Eph. 4:25). Foremost, Christianity has its axis and center, it moves, lives and has its being, in a Supreme Personality—the divine-human Person of Jesus Christ, the God-Man. On the other hand, "We, being many, are one body in Christ, and every one members one of another" (Rom. 12:5); and again Paul says, "Ye are called in one body" (Col. 3:15). Hence individuality and communality, combined through the miracle of love, only will give reality to a Christian economics and will make possible the achievement of a Christian social order.

But can the Christian social order ever be attained? It would require infinitely more than all the great social changes heretofore observed in history. All those so-called "revolutions" were fundamentally only exterior rearrangements or only external transformations, effecting human relationships on the outside, in the matter of ownership of things which are external, etc.; producing in most cases only a mechanical shift of power from one class to another; but not involving an utter change in character motivation, in the inner soul of man, in the inner drives and impulses of the heart. All things have been changing round about men, and even a sort of plastic surgery has been applied to him by the sciences, changing and refining his looks and manners. But has the heart of man changed to any basis degree? Not at all! Science cannot change the human heart, for at best science is unmoral; and at its worst it is immoral, and even anti-moral, and often it becomes a truly Satanic tool in alienating man, through pride, from God and equipping him with monstrous engines of destruction, which are about to turn the earth into an annex to hell in the imminent slaughter of nations, the suicidal mania of the race about to vent itself in a bloody spectacle for "Satan in his glory"!

Science Will Not Avail

No, science will not avail; not the science we know of, which is boasting of its independence from God and even turning into a self-worship—an egotology or sociolatry, at any rate—an idolatry of reason. But alas! the "age of reason," ushered in by the enlightenment of the guillotine and the red terror of the French Revolution and perfected by the Cheka enlightenment of the Soviet, and by the Gestapo propaganda and enlightenment of the Third Reich; yea, the "age of reason" is rapidly turning into an age of madness!

A New-Birth Society

No science as we know it, will not avail. When Nicodemus, the highly intellectual member of the Supreme Court of Jerusalem (the Sanhedrin) came to Jesus, he was told nothing about the beatitudes of his refined intellect nor how many more books he is supposed to read; "But Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God" (Jno. 3:3). A man must be born again. This is the real revolution—the new birth revolution! If man has to be born again, society also has to be born again, through faith in the Son of God. Only new-birth men will make up a new-birth society; that is, the real kingdom of God.

The Kingdom of God Necessitates a King

But the real crucial question is: "How can there be a kingdom without a King?" The kingdom of God presupposes at the head of it the actual presence of Jesus Christ, the Lord of lords and the King of kings.

Prophetic Preparation

We have to prepare for the coming of the King, and there is no better preparation than evangelization, especially Jewish evangelization . . . And we have also the signs of the times, which in a multitude of ways, point to the nearing of the end of this age. But the preparation is manifold; and no doubt it also demands of us greater consecration in service toward our fellow men, by advocating more ardently the principles of the Kingdom and giving them already some limited try-out.

Did not the prophets of Israel, in their day, know for a surety that the society of their people and their country is doomed, and that the Messiah is coming? They certainly foreknew the fate of their nation, and that the Messiah is to come. Yet they fought most fearlessly and untiringly for righteousness and justice and against unrighteousness and injustice. And so must we! Christ is coming! And this is all the more of a reason why we should be doing what He would want us to do, as He did when "He went about doing good."

The pattern is before us in the words of the Lord Jesus, Who said:

"I am the good Shepherd: the good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep . . . Therefore doth My Father love me, because I lay down My life that I might take it again. No man taketh it from Me, but I lay it down of Myself" (Jno. 10:11,17,18).

The first Christians took the words of the Lord Jesus as a rule to live by, and as a sacred cause to die for. They remembered His words which He spoke, saying: "This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (Jno. 15:12,13). And they also remembered His password to the kingdom, namely that "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another" (Jno. 13:35). Pliny the Younger, being governor of a distant province, wrote to the Roman Emperor, complaining about the spread of the Christians despite all persecution; and the strangest feature about them he could point out was that "they so love one another." That really was the secret of the contagion which conquered the world.

Victory of Christianity Over Communism and Fascism

Communism and Fascism, the atheism and neopaganism of our era, can be conquered by Christianity, if it again will use against them not their weapons of hatred and revenge, but the blessed instrumentality of divine love stemming from Christ's miracle of love, all-redeeming, all-resurrecting!

"For God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love" (2 Tim. 1:17).

Communism and Fascism are possessed by a love for power. True Christianity stands for the power of love. And "love never faileth" (1 Cor. 13:8).

INTO HIS MARVELOUS LIGHT

SAYLOR, Edward Lowell, was born on Sept. 18, 1900 at McPherson, Ky. He spent his childhood and early years at Ramona, Kan., where he received his elementary and high school training. He then attended McPherson College, Kan., where he graduated with an A.B. degree, and subsequently graduated from the Medical school at Kansas University in 1925. He spent his internship at Western Pennsylvania Hospital at Pittsburg, Pa. He was asked by Dr. Wahl, dean of the Kansas University Medical School and head of the department of Pathology, to become an assistant in that department at Bell Memorial Hospital of Kansas University in Kansas City.

Following his work in Kansas City Dr. Saylor served as pathologist at Missouri Methodist Hospital in St. Joseph, Mo.; Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit, Mich.; Kilmer Pathological Laboratories in Binghamton, N. Y.; the State Department of Health, Albany, N. Y.; and since 1931 has been Director of Laboratories and Pathologist in charge of City Hospital in Akron, Ohio.

At the time of his death Dr. Saylor was a member of the American Pathological Society, the American Society of Clinical Pathologists, the American Medical Association and state and local societies. On June 6, 1940, as a result of the radio ministry of the undersigned over station WJW in Akron, Dr. Saylor united with the First Brethren Church of the Ellet District of Akron, Ohio. While our relationship was brief in time it was sweet and rich in fellowship and love. Severe indeed is the pain caused by the untimely decease of our beloved brother in Christ, but heaven has been made more real and precious with the passing of this loved one into the presence of our Savior.

Dr. Saylor was married to Leta Mae Jewell, daughter of Mrs. W. A. Jewell of St. Joseph, Mo., on Nov. 16, 1930. They made their home first in Albany, N. Y. and then in Akron, Ohio.

He is survived by his wife of 313 Castle Blvd., Akron; his mother, Mrs. J. H. Saylor of Marion, Kan., one brother, Dr. L. L. Saylor of Topeka, Kan.; and one sister, Mrs. Glen Relford of Iola, Kan. A brother, Harold Wesley Saylor, died in 1908 at the age of four years, and his father, Dr. J. H. Saylor, also preceded him in death at Marion, Kan. in 1938.

A brief service was conducted in Akron by the undersigned, at which service a large number of the physicians and surgeons from the city were present, attesting to the high respect in which Dr. Saylor was held in his profession in the city. The body was then taken to St. Joseph, Mo. for interment, following suitable service in his wife's home city.

GLEANINGS FROM MISSIONARIES' LETTERS

Mrs. Ricardo Larson Wagner writes us from Almaguete, Argentina, and her letter indicates that, even as in all other mission lands in these unhappy days missionaries are not finding their tasks growing easier. The whole world is entering into the "gross darkness (Isa. 60:2) that is to precede the return of our Lord. In the night, we must continue our testimony until He come. And, it shall not be in vain.—L.S.B.

Mrs. Wagner

I would like to write you glowing accounts of great progress, but I can't. I sometimes wonder if the trouble is with us, and I plead with the Lord for more wisdom and yieldedness to Him. I am inclined to believe, however, that the condition we have here is pretty general. When Murillo was here, he told us that the apostate condition of churches in general makes him tremble. The indifference of the great majority of people to things spiritual is appalling. Even those who understand that we are offering them the truth, reject it because of business or social obligations, or anything else in which they happen to be interested. So Argentina, right along with the rest of the world, is getting ripe for final judgment.

Nevertheless, we have reason to rejoice and praise the Lord. There are still more doors open than we can possibly occupy. The family of believers in Corralito is asking for meetings there. The two girls who have had mental attacks are both home again. The one is completely restored, and the other is so much improved that she suffers no ill effects from being in even large gatherings. The three members of the family who have not been baptized have been touched by the trials through which they have passed and have, on informal occasions, expressed their faith in the Lord as Savior.

We had the Bible Coach with us a week here in Almaguete. There were fairly good crowds, in spite of the special features on in the Catholic Church at the same time (they were getting ready to celebrate the day of the patron saint of the town). Two young men accepted Christ in the closing service. The Bible Coach workers held meetings three nights in each of the other two towns, and also reached out to three other points while there. The attendance was reported as fair—not all that could be desired. At the close of the campaign, we observed the Lord's supper and communion in Berrotaran. We were 24 at the table, representing our four preaching points, and also Rio Cuarto; for Brother Dowdy and the two Coach workers were present. While we were sorry that a number of our faithful members were obliged to be absent, we did have a blessed time in this meeting."

THE CHRISTIAN AND THE OATH

Report of special committee on "The Oath," adopted by the conference of Brethren Churches of Southern California convened in regular session, July 20-28, 1940 at Long Beach, Calif.

It is common in the Old Testament to find the use of the oath associated with the assertion of truth in the presence of God and involving an appeal to the penal justice of God if the truth has not been spoken or the promise kept. The most common Hebrew word for "swearing" and for "oath" is "shebah" meaning "seven." Not only is this recognized as the sacred perfect number, but it is possible the earliest ritual accompanying swearing may be involved in the word. The sworn covenant between Abraham and Abimelech, concerning the well at Beer-sheba, (well of seven), recorded in Gen. 21:22-31, appears to confirm this interpretation.

During the patriarchal days the oath was specially emphasized by placing the hand under the thigh (Gen. 24:2) to signify that if the oath were violated, the children issued, or those that might issue, from the thigh, would avenge the act of disloyalty.

The laws of Moses concerning the oath had three purposes:

1. To stress the sacredness of the oath.
2. To warn against false swearing.
3. To preclude swearing by false gods.

At times the person taking the oath responded by "Amen" (Num. 5:22), but generally he raised his right hand to heaven and thereby called Him Whose throne was there to witness to the truth and penalize the falsehood. See Gen. 14:22 and Deut. 32:40. The literal Hebrew of Ex. 6:8, reflected in the R.V. footnote, indicates "to lift the hand" had become synonymous with "swearing."

Peter in denying his Lord passes through the three stages of asseveration. (Mt. 26:69-74).

1. He simply denies his Lord.
2. He denies his Lord with an oath; i.e. he calls upon God to witness he is telling the truth.
3. He invokes a curse upon himself, to be visited upon him by God if he is not telling the truth.

The oath and curse of Peter were in direct contradiction to the words of the Lord, recorded in Mt. 5:34-37. "But I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne; nor by earth; for it is His footstool; neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King. Neither shalt thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black. But let your communication be Yea, yea; Nay; nay; for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil." This passage of Scripture is confirmed by Jas. 5:12, "But above all things, my brethren, swear not, neither by heaven, neither by earth, neither by any other oath; but let your yea be yea; and your nay, nay; lest ye fall into condemnation."

We believe that the taking of an oath in any form by a Christian in this age of grace and New Testament dispensation is contrary to these Scriptures and should be avoided.

The civil authorities do not require an oath, but permit an affirmation. Even in the taking of this there should be no raising of the hand for that is part of an oath (pointing to heaven, calling upon God to witness as in an oath, or invoking a penalty if we violate our word).

Heb. 6:13-17 indicates that the taking of an oath does not always involve the invoking of a penalty, but the appealing to a higher authority and power to witness to the veracity of a statement. Our Lord prohibited all types of oaths, even the simple ones in which a penalty may not necessarily be involved.

Therefore: a Christian should never become a member of any organization, entrance into which demands more than the simple affirmation of the truth.

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

The Wagner Family

WHY

By Mrs. Ricardo Wagner

One bright, summer morning the Wagner family started out to make their weekly visits to the towns of Berrotaran and Elena. The Chevrolet had been giving some trouble, but usually could be made to run with a little coaxing. However, as we look back on that trip, we realize that it was the Lord who made it possible for us to meet all of our obligations on time.

We arrived in Berrotaran in time to make a number of visits before having our Bible School and preaching service as usual. The next day we were scheduled to have a meeting in the hill country about six miles from the town of Elena. The auto not only took us there, but also made the trip much further back into the hills and over a long winding road to visit a family which is interested in learning about the Lord. Back in Elena, other homes were visited and finally we found ourselves in the mission hall, ready to have a light lunch and then to conduct the evening services. Thus far all had gone well.

The meeting was over, our various pieces of baggage had been packed into the back of the car to make a bed for Elena, Mildred, and Victor during the home-ward trip, and we finally pulled away from the mission hall at about 11 p. m. with a storm coming up from the south. It was then that real trouble began. The motor started sputtering and then stopped altogether. Friendly travellers helped us get started and another stretch of road was covered. Again and again this happened, but finally it was so late that no more autos were on the road so we had to struggle by ourselves. We thought the gas pump was causing our trouble as it had failed us on another occasion, so tried to get gas to the motor by other means, but all to no avail. Soon the battery was so run down that it would not turn the starter and the car had to be cranked each time it stopped, which was very, very often.

It was now 3:30 A. M. but we were not half way home yet. Mr. Wagner was so exhausted by this time that he could not give the crank another turn. We were in a hollow with hills all around and the lightning playing rhythmically overhead. The children began moving restlessly, wanting to stretch themselves a bit to rest from their cramped position, so I took Victor on my lap to leave more room for the girls. Then we rolled up the windows to keep the rain out and settled down to sleep, if possible, until morning.

The new day dawned wet and gray and it was quite a while before there were any autos on the road. A new effort to start the car convinced us that it could not be done, so Mr. Wagner set out for Almafuerte to get help. But what about breakfast? I was so thankful that a little butter and a few slices of bread (a little dry to be sure) had been left over from the night before. Like the loaves and the fishes, the Lord blessed this meagre meal so that the children ate and were satisfied and there was enough left for mother too. Then, after what seemed like a long wait, help arrived and we were towed to Almafuerte, arriving home at noon.

As you may guess, the auto was placed in the hands of a mechanic immediately. It was cleaned, tightened, and had new pieces put in, and then we thought surely it would run. But, alas, it seemed to be suffering from the very same ailment as before. Other mechanics looked at it but could offer no effective remedy. But why wouldn't it run? Everything looked all right and still it could not be made to go more than a few blocks at a time. Finally it became clear that the gas tank was dirty, and once that was cleaned the troubles stopped. Then we remembered of having seen two tiny boys playing at the back of the car one day when we were visiting in a certain home. The little boys had been called away when they were discovered, but the next day we found that the cap of the gas tank was missing. What a lot of fun they must have had throwing fistful of dirt into the gas, but what a lot of trouble it caused.

When I saw the muddy gasoline and pebbles that came out of the tank, I thought: "Isn't that just like our Christian lives? If we keep sin in our lives, no matter how pleasant nor how innocent they may seem, we will never make much progress in spiritual things." The dirt that wouldn't let our auto run is just like sin in our lives. Sin, boys and girls, will make our lives a failure.

Quick is the succession of human events. The cares of today are scarcely the cares of tomorrow, and when we lie down at night we may safely say to most of our troubles, "Ye have done your worst and we shall meet no more."—Cowper.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR SEPT. 22, 1940

Amos, The Herdsman-Seer

(Amos 7:10-17)

Suggestions for the Leader

Amos was a plain herdsman with little education, yet God used him to bear a message to sinful people. Neither ignorance nor the number of academic degrees can be used as an argument in favor of usefulness for God. He used unlearned men like Peter and John and also educated men like Moses and Paul.

Amos was sincere and courageous in declaring the judgment of God that would follow unfaithfulness. He demanded social justice and equality. He admonished and urged faithfulness to the Lord.

1 Amos a Fearless Preacher. Amos 5:21-27.

Amos condemned sin and evil at the cost of worldly popularity. No fearless preacher is popular with the world. Liberal preachers and teachers have not been true to God. They have hesitated in demanding a real break from sin. False teachers try to please the crowd rather than God. We ought to obey God rather than man in these things.

2 The Message to Those at Ease. Amos 6:1-6.

A list of the sins of the people:

1. They put their trust in the godless kingdom of Israel and in alliances which they hoped to make

"Bouca News Flashes"

By MRS. JOS. H. FOSTER, French Equatorial Africa

"Let us rise up and build. So they strengthened their hands for this good work. The Lord-God of heaven He will prosper us."

Israel in the above verses were thinking of their home town, Jerusalem and the walls thereof. Though few in number, when they had made the decision; they set to, to accomplish the task. They did not depend upon their own strength, but upon "The God of heaven."

We are not nearly as much interested in the buildings that are made of brick and mortar; as we are in the buildings that will be "Eternal in the heavens." Building with brick and mortar is comparatively easy compared to preparing the "Eternal building." In the building of the earthly there is no unseen opposition; but, oh, when it comes to the "Building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens," there is such opposition at times that one must daily cry to the Lord to "Prosper" the work.

Several weeks ago we had a very interesting church meeting. A goodly number of the church membership rather than in God. They forgot God and refused His word.

2. They did not heed the warnings of the prophet.
3. They lived at ease and in luxury.
4. They drank strong drink.
5. They did not care about the spiritual famine in the land.

3 The Strange Judgments of God. Amos 4:6-12.

Amos called the people to repentance. Hardships were sent to bring the people to repentance. God is still on his throne and is able to bless or punish people. Righteousness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people.

4 The Final Glory. Amos 9:11-15

Amos saw a future day to come that would be filled with blessings from God. It was the golden age promised by the other prophets. While we present a message of warning to sinners, we can present God's love and blessing to the redeemed. God's great love story of the ages will end well for His own.

Questions to be Answered

1. How was Amos faithful to his calling?
2. What was Amos' teaching concerning separation? Amos 3:3.
3. How does Amos' teaching remind us of the N. T.? Amos 5:15 and 1 Thess. 5:15.
4. What was the promise of final glory for God's people? Amos 9:13-15.
5. What was Amos' remedy for unfaithfulness? Amos 5:6-8.
6. How does sin become a reproach to any people? How does righteousness exalt a nation?

were present; even some who had to be eliminated from the church roll for their inconsistent living. Some deliberately choose the way of sin, even after they have been baptized and taken into the church. If only they would make their decision before, how much better it would be. We were happy that there were not more than three who had to be dismissed. One was the wife of a big chief, who was making and drinking beer. One was a man, who had taken a second wife; and the other one was bargaining for a second wife. None of them showed nor expressed any desire to repent and return to the Lord. However prayer can change their hearts.

We greatly rejoice because one was restored to the full fellowship of the church, who had been convicted of stealing and had served his time. Many say, that he had been accused falsely; because the box that he was supposed to have stolen was found in another man's house. But in the meantime he had rejected his wife, very much against her will: however later she took another husband. When he was released from prison, he insisted on taking a good looking young "lady," who dressed in gay clothes, earrings, high heeled shoes, etc. But when he proposed it to the church, they said, "No, if you take that woman you cannot return to the church fellowship. Go get your own wife." He thought about it for months, all the while the young lady kept hanging around. But when he saw that the church would not relent, he asked them to pray for him, while he went to try to persuade his wife to return. After much persuasion he was successful in winning her back, and thus both of them were returned to full fellowship in the church. The young "lady" left for Bangui.

Another one of our members, who was among the first eleven to be baptized at Bantangafo had a similar experience. In his case the wife was unfaithful; so he was more than willing to put her away, and she was more than willing to go.

One day after she had sinned, she and her affinity met in the village. They called a number of people together, then they took an oath. Of course it was an African oath. They put a ten centime piece in a bowl of water, then she took a drink and said, "If my heart does not stay with you always, I will die." Then he took a drink and said, "If my heart does not stay with you all the time, I will die." Thus after shaking hands with each other the oath was sealed, and if broken by either one, the one to break it would die. The husband witnessed all of this, and naturally his heart was sick.

Several weeks later the man left Bouca and the woman followed him. The husband found them both and tried to persuade his wife to return, but she would not. Then he had the man arrested, and the wife went to the home of her parents. The husband waited a reasonable time for her to return, but she remained with her parents. By this time he decided to go and demand the money that he had paid for her, and let her go wherever she desired. He told us he was expecting to bring her back. But when he arrived at her home, the money was returned to him

He returned to Bouca in jubilant spirits. But when Saturday came and he wanted to go out preaching as he had been doing, the church said, "No, a divorced man cannot go out and preach, for we know that you will soon be looking for another wife." When he learned that he could not do the Lord's work under existing circumstances, he went and without further difficulty brought back his wife. The truth of the affair was that he did not want to forgive her and give back all her clothes that he had taken from her, when he learned of her sin. He testified to this fact later on.

Perhaps the churches procedure does not seem quite right to those at home. But any leniency in the African church brings about all kinds of complications. Many times when they see that it means something to belong to the body of Christ, and their difficulties are unravelled; they live happy ever after. At least as happiness goes in Africa.

Another interesting item was the choosing of two deacons. We do not ordain them, simply choose them to function as such. Two of the former deacons are now out at chapel points giving forth the "Good News." We trust all of them will be called into a like service, for there are three villages that are "crying" for some one to come and stay with them, "To expound to them the way of God more perfectly."

PRAYER REQUESTS:

1. Pray for the five Christians who are serving at chapel points. One of them is a Sleeping sickness patient, but not in a serious stage. The wife of one has leprosy in its worst form.
2. Pray that speedily more will be trained in the Word, and will answer the call to go and serve.
3. Pray that the people may be free to attend the Church Services Sunday mornings.
4. Pray that God will grant us wisdom daily to meet the problems that come before us.
5. Pray that God will direct in preparing to build up and occupy the new concession.

Nothing discourages the pessimist like the refusal of things to go wrong.

We Should Have Expected It.

During the last fifteen or twenty years many in the Brethren Church have been observing with deep interest the drift of the times religiously. We have seen denomination after denomination let slip the beliefs and practices of centuries, and be swept into the muddy tide of modern thought. Regrettable as these tendencies have been, most of our Brethren ministers were not taken by surprise, for we had the explanation of divine prophecy which declares plainly that the trend of the present age is not up but down. Therefore we expected to see "perilous times" in the last days. It did not unduly surprise us to see many professing Christians and great denominations "depart from the faith." We knew that such things must needs come to pass, according to the word of our Lord Himself. He had warned us in advance.

But while we were watching the unmistakable drift of Christendom, and pointing in our sermons and teachings to the prophetic Word which declared these very things, most of us seem to have been curiously asleep to the possibility of our own church being caught by the same drift. We somehow got the notion that nothing like this could happen to us. Yet we should have known better. For the prophetic Word nowhere even suggests that the end-time apostasy will be confined to the Methodist or Baptist or Presbyterian churches. On the contrary, it was to be world-wide and affect the whole professing church sooner or later. Nor will it help us in any wise to thank God piously that we are not as other denominations! Far better to say, "God be merciful to us sinners", if we expect divine help in the time of need. But there will be no help until we see our need.

Why Modernism Wins Battles

Another thing we have seemingly forgotten is the fact that the invasion of modern apostasy is always subtle, never open, but easily overlooked. If it came otherwise, openly, it would never get a foothold. Good men would be on their guard against an open assault. But the first drift is imperceptible. And it has often been true that when a few men, perhaps with a keener gift of discernment, begin to warn the church of the danger, they are shouted down by sincere and well-intentioned leaders. Let us have no "heresy hunting," they cry, let us preserve the peace and unity of the church! And thus the battle is eventually lost. For the victories of modern unbelief have never been won by unbelievers fighting alone. Modern unbelief has always succeeded only because it had the aid of churchmen who either lacked spiritual discernment or else who valued external church unity above the things of faith.

Over and over, as modernism has oozed into the larger denominations, it has been seen clearly at first only by a minority, never by the majority until it was too late to resist successfully. With all the examples of history before our eyes, why is it that we do not learn that the first entrance of apostasy is always surreptitious, hard to see and recognize? Perhaps this is why one of the gifts bestowed upon the church was "discerning of spirits" (I Cor. 12:10), in order that the church might have a few watchmen on the wall to warn of the enemy's approach.

Praying and Fighting

Another thing we have sometimes overlooked is that there is a time to pray, and also a time to fight. The Christian life is indeed a life of prayer, but it is also a battle. No man will know how to meet and resist the enemy unless he has spent much time in prayer; but even prayer cannot be substituted for action. If we have neglected prayer at the time of prayer, then so much the worse for us. For when we meet the foe it will be time for action. "Wherefore criest thou unto Me," said the Lord to Moses, "Speak to the children of Israel, that they go forward" (Ex. 14:15). Even so today, when the enemy comes in like a flood, there are good men who propose that we should lay down our arms and pray. Which, of course, is exactly what the enemy would like to have us do. It would be far more sensible, if we have neglected prayer, to put on the whole armor of God and launch out into the battle praying while we fight. But to surrender the battle to the enemy in the name of prayer is nothing but the devil's own folly. For if prayer has any meaning at all, or any value to the church, it should make us strong and ready for the conflict. Any other kind of prayer is not genuine prayer at all. I have no doubt that Paul prayed unceasingly for the Galatian Judaizers, but he also fought them unceasingly with the Sword of the Spirit. There is nothing in the Bible more severe than the book of the Galatians.

The program of the modernists is as clear as daylight here: They speak much of the value of prayer, but denounce unsparingly all those who battle for the Faith. Now it is not to be forgotten that even the pagans believe in "prayer," but they do not believe in the God who answers prayer. Let us beware, therefore, lest we fall into the error of the unbeliever. Before we can teach men to pray, we must bring them into the presence of the True God. But without the Christian Faith no man can be brought into His presence. Hence, if we are to institute any comparison, it should be perfectly clear that the things of Faith are most important and must come first. To put prayer above the Faith is to turn things up-side down, and introduce chaos and confusion into the church. The conclusion of the whole matter is:—Let us keep on praying, but let us not give up "the good fight" while we pray.

Do You Have a Creed?

In various articles and addresses, certain ministers who call themselves "Brethren" have almost exhausted their vocabularies in denouncing the use of creeds, the latest example being the utterance of one at the recent Ashland Conference where he is quoted in the newspaper as follows: "The more mature religious people become the less they rest on creeds and the more they seek personal contact with God." This statement might be taken as the muddled utterance of a confused man, and thus to be dealt with kindly, were it not for the fact that the same man is in the habit of saying such things. Recently he wrote: "The person that hugs a dogma to his breast and says, 'This is my conviction and no one can fellowship with me unless he too shares this same conviction,' misses the heart of the Christian faith." This is a shocking statement.

"Christ died for our sins"—This is part of my creed, and upon this one brief statement of fact many of us are resting our hopes for time and eternity. Furthermore, it is a dogma which I expect to hug to my breast forever, and I can have no fellowship with any man who rejects it. It is the man who rejects it or regards it with indifference, not the man who accepts it, who has missed the heart of the Christian faith. One cannot help but wonder whether men who make such statements as quoted above have ever read the New Testament seriously and carefully.

Regardless of what they may believe, men who speak thus are speaking the language of modernism and Unitarianism. A Unitarian preacher, advertising his church in the daily newspapers some time ago, said in heavy bold-faced type, "A creed is a religious fossil. It represents the dead faith of the past . . . The Unitarian Church has no creed."

The Unitarian church has gone to startling lengths in order to make good this boast; so far, indeed, that old time Unitarian leaders like Channing would shudder if they could be here. Not long ago, a modern Unitarian preacher declared that one need not believe even in the existence of God to be a member of his denomination. He is right, if the Unitarian church has no creed. For if you affirm your belief in God, you have a creed, with one article in it.

But even the Unitarian Church, in spite of its frantic denials, has a creed. It says, We believe creeds are bad. And that is a creed, shorter perhaps than the Westminster Confession, but a creed nevertheless. Look out for the man who is always crying out against creeds. He is not really against creeds, as such, but is probably trying to substitute his own little creed for the great historic creeds of the Bible and the Church.

What you believe religiously is your creed. If you believe the Bible, you have the most perfect, the most complete, and the most dogmatic creed in the world. The first commandment of Christianity is "believe." And you cannot believe without believing something. No man can believe the Bible, preach the Bible, or teach the Bible, without believing and preaching and teaching a creed. Hold fast your creed, if you are a Christian. Be dogmatic about it. It is no crime to be dogmatic. Don't be afraid to say, I Believe. The creed-haters are not afraid to say it.

"If I Were Dictator."

Sometime ago two Jewish Rabbis of Cleveland spoke to their congregations on what they would do if they were dictators. One of them, Rabbi Brickner, after outlining his program of social and economic remedies, added, "There are a few small things I would regulate, too. I would eliminate competing churches, and would compel ministers to preach about problems that affect the people's welfare, instead of quibbling over texts and indulging in hair-splitting theological sermons."

Rabbi Brickner poses as "liberal thinker," but if he had the power it would be just too bad for those of us who still believe in Jesus Christ as the only Hope of a lost world. For the Deity of Christ and His atonement for sin and His resurrection from the dead would all be regarded by Brickner as "hair-splitting theological sermons," wholly unessential for people's welfare.

Fortunately for the Christian people of this country, Mr. Brickner is not "dictator." But his utterances constitute an ominous prophecy of the future. It is one of the strange paradoxes of human history that "liberalism" at last becomes so sure of its "liberal principles" that it proposes to force them upon the world and silence all dissenters. This is precisely the movement which, according to Biblical prophecy, will finally consummate itself in the Anti-Christ of the end who for a brief time will dictate the politics, economics and religion of the world. "And all that dwell upon the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the Book of Life of the Lamb" (Rev. 13:8).

In all the Universe there is but one Jew to whose hands can be safely entrusted the power of dictatorship. That Person is Jesus Christ the Son of God. Some day, and it may be soon, Christ will become the Dictator of the world. Rabbi Brickner and all the other so-called "liberals" should read the second Psalm, and "Kiss the Son, lest He be angry, and ye perish from the way, when His wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in Him."

The "Malady of Self-Delusion."

"It is difficult for men in high office to avoid the malady of self-delusion. They are always surrounded by worshippers. They are constantly, and for the most part sincerely, assured of their greatness. They live in an artificial atmosphere of adulation and exaltation which sooner or later impairs their judgment. They are in grave danger of becoming careless and arrogant."

I have forgotten who is the author of the above sentences, but they are an accurate analysis of one of the deadliest snares into which any successful leader of men can fall. The admirers of a "great preacher" can sometimes actually destroy him with compliments and constant agreement. The people who think he is a "great man" will always tell him about his greatness. But the sincere friends who see his faults seldom have the courage to tell him. And so after a while, living in an "artificial atmosphere of adulation," he becomes convinced that he has no faults, that he is always right in his judgments, and that to disagree with him is the unpardonable sin. Finally, thoughtful men decide to let him alone, and after that he ceases to grow, being gradually smothered in the sickly air of "admiration."

Patchers, Wreckers and Constructionists.

In the last analysis there are but three attitudes toward the desperate plight of the world today.

First, there are the Patchers, men who are still in love with the present world-system, and who are working frantically to patch it up with various expedients. But the patches do not work well, and the ship is sinking in spite of all they can do.

Second, there are the Wreckers, who are convinced that the old ship is no good. The quicker it is scuttled, they argue, the better off we shall be. Let it sink and build a new one.

Third, there are the Constructionists. They do not love the old system and are perfectly willing to see it pass away. But they know no new world can be built permanently without material which is enduring. Therefore, they have been at work preaching the gospel of Christ for the regeneration of men, and in the meantime they wait for the coming of Christ who will construct a new social order out of the "living stones" of newborn men. You cannot build anything lasting out of "wood, hay and stubble." You cannot build an eternal kingdom out of ideals and principles. Such things are worthwhile only as they become incarnated in twice-born men.

REPORT OF GIFTS TO THE SEMINARY

The report which follows includes contributions during the period from May 15 to August 15, and is the final report for the fiscal year ending on the latter date. In a later issue of the Herald a complete financial report for the year will be given, including a statement of assets, income and expenditures.

At the recent annual meeting of the Seminary Board of Trustees, there seemed to be a general feeling that the method of reporting contributions should be changed. Up to the present only numbers have been given for the purpose of identifying gifts. All reports in the coming year will include both the numbers and the names of donors, except in the case of those who may request their names to be withheld. This is the method used by the Foreign Missionary Society and the Home Missions Council and other departments of the church's work. People seem to prefer it because it makes reports more interesting, enables them to identify their gifts more easily, and makes for confidence in their administration. Also it enables pastors and churches to know exactly what is being done. The Seminary appreciates deeply the confidence of

LATE NEWS FROM THE SEMINARY

The many friends of Grace Seminary, who gathered here at Winona Lake during the recent Conference, surely gave the school a hearty start on the new year. On Friday evening, following a great Seminary Rally at Bethany Camp, the people filled the conference building to hear Dr. Louis S. Bauman's address on "The Rainbow Around The Throne." At the close of the message, members of the faculty and board of trustees came to the platform and in an impressive ceremony signed the "Covenant of Faith." Then Dr. Bauman spoke briefly of the Seminary work and needs, and in a few minutes the audience gave an offering of 4500 dollars in cash and pledges. It was a wonderful testimony to the faithfulness of God.

Friends of the Seminary will be interested to know that student registrations on the first day indicated a larger entering class than we have had during the last ten years of Seminary teaching. Last year the Seminary graduated ten. This year the entering class of new students will be at least double that figure. The total student body will probably be around thirty-five. Exact figures will be given later.

This morning (first day of classes) at the annual Convocation Chapel service the students and faculty had the pleasure of hearing Dr. Harold Mason who delivered a very thoughtful and impressive address urging the dedication of the little that we have to Christ. Among the guests present were Pastor Robert Crees of Waynesboro, Pa., and Pastor John Aeby of Middlebranch, Ohio.

Let yourself and not your words speak for you.
Things turn up for the man who digs.
Don't give anyone a piece of your mind—you need it all yourself.

"Such a Time as This"

Esther 4:14

These war days are throwing missionaries back upon God in a new way. Mails are dislocated and delayed, and in so many ways there is upheaval. Preparations are being made for a prolonged struggle, for grim realities, and we face a period when workers will need to know increasingly "the true and living God," learn to trust Him implicitly, and be prepared to "launch out into the deep" at His behest.

The challenge confronting the Christian church as a whole is a tremendous one. All the forces of evil appear to be let loose against the Lord and His Christ. There is therefore a clarion call to every believer to face the issue, to recognize the foe; to hear afresh the voice of the Master, to gain fresh vision, inspiration and courage from His Leadership; to render Him wholehearted, loyal and self-sacrificing devotion; to steadily pursue the appointed task and co-operate with Him in His saving task among men. He still desires to "preach deliverance to the captives, the recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised" (Lk. 4.). The workers at the front line in India are loyally standing up, against great odds, joyfully declaring what they know and demonstrating by lives of devotion to Christ, that He is a present, powerful Savior. To those at home the call is for increasing intercession, that we may constantly prove that "the effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much" (Jas. 5:16). As someone recently rendered the passage, "Prayer is a factor of tremendous power when set in motion."

Truly the age is fast approaching its close—"the night cometh when no man can work." Every effort consecrated to Him will count now and in eternity. India needs nothing so much as the message of the liberating power of Jesus Christ and the strengthening of the Indian church. Much has been accomplished, but "there is still very much land to be possessed." May these trying and increasingly difficult days result in fresh trophies for the Savior.

New Testament Baptism—Its Mode and Message

By Russell D. Barnard

Christian Baptism is given a very prominent place in the New Testament writings. In the history of the early church as recorded in the Book of Acts there are no less than 11 distinct records of the practice. Wherever the completed story is told of a person coming into the fellowship of believers, baptism is a part of that story. Notice especially Acts 2:38, 41; 8:12-16; 8:36; 9:18; 10:47, 48; 16:15; 16:33; 18:8; 19:3-5; and 22:16. From these and other Scriptures there are a few very evident conclusions. Baptism is—

For Believers

"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned" (Mark 16: 16).

"See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?—If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest" (Acts 8:36, 37).

Note: Belief precedes baptism, and one must believe with sincere and whole-hearted belief before he is a candidate for Christian baptism. It is—

For Believers Only

"If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest" (Acts 8:37).

Note: If you do not believe you are not a candidate for Christian baptism. Baptisms are recorded of believers and believers only in the Book of Acts. Infants cannot believe, therefore, baptism is not for infants. Infants are saved not because of their innocence, or by the application of a few drops of water, but because of the finished work of Christ. See 1 Cor. 15:22. Children are saved and safe in Christ until they consciously choose sin. Christian baptism is—

For All Believers

"Then they that gladly received His Word were baptized" (Acts 2:41).

"When they believed—they were baptized, both men and women" (Acts 8:12).

Note: Three thousand were baptized in the first baptizing according to the record in the Book of Acts. Both men and women, any and all, who believed received this sacred rite. But little, if any, confidence can be put in the profession of faith on the part of any person who refuses Christian baptism. It is to be administered

In Water

"Here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" (Acts 8:36).

"Down into the water—come up out of the water . . ." (Acts 8:38-39).

Note: Water symbolizes cleansing, becoming, "an outward sign of the inner fitness to join the family of the redeemed in the house of God on earth" — James Smith. Baptism is to be—

In Much Water

"And John also was baptizing in Aenon near to Salim, because there was much water there . . ." (John 3:23).

Note: "Much" water would not be needed in many modes of baptism extant in the world today. It took the Jordan River and not a few ounces of water from the Jordan River for this baptism, because it was—

By Immersion

"Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them" (Mt. 28:19).

"They went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch, and he baptized him . . ." (Acts 8:38).

Note: The word "baptize" means to "dip in or under the water"—Liddell and Scott, page 146; "to dip or submerge"—Thayer, page 94. When the account of Naaman dipping himself in the River Jordan was translated into the Greek from the Hebrew, the Hebrew word for "dip" was translated by the Greek word "Baptidzo," from which we get our English word "baptize." Baptism pictures a "death," "burial," and "resurrection"—yours and mine, when we were identified with Christ. See Rom. 6:1-6 and Col. 2:12. Only an immersion can picture these great truths. Baptism is—

By Trine Immersion.

"Baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit" (Mt. 28:19).

Note: I have a piece of wood to finish. I say to my assistant, "Finish this piece of wood by dipping it in the can of stain, and of shellac, and of varnish." How many times would he dip it? "Three," you say. Certainly, and that is what our text teaches with respect to the number of dips in Christian baptism. Also, the Greek word "baptidzo" means "to dip repeatedly" (see Thayer, page 94), and is the frequentative form of the verb. The regular form of the verb in the Greek is "bapto" which means only "to dip." The character of the verb "baptidzo" is such that one might dip times without number, if the frequentative usage was not limited to "three" in the triple nature of the formula, "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

God is a Trinity in a Unity. Christian baptism illustrates this great truth and is likewise a trinity in a unity—three dips, but in one unit of baptism.

There is "one baptism" (Eph. 4:5), really "baptizing" from the viewpoint that I need not be baptized anew every time I sin. There is another ordinance that pictures that continual or daily cleansing of the believer. You can read about it in John 13:1-17. Baptism is—

By Forward Immersion.

"If we have been planted together in the likeness of His death, (underscoring added) we shall be also in the likeness of His resurrection" (Rom. 6:5).

"When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished: and he bowed his head and gave up the ghost" (John 19:30).

Note: "Buried" in this Scripture (Rom. 6:1-6) indicates only immersion. When my grandmother planted (buried) seeds she put them under the ground. But the burial position of the seed might be in a variety of ways. So immersion might be in a variety of ways, if it were not made clear by the statement, "in the likeness of His death." Jesus only died once, and in one way. St. John is very careful to tell us just how that was. He "bowed" His head. Bowing in immersion naturally indicates only one mode—forward immersion. Forward immersion indicates direction in the Christian life. We are to "grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ" (1 Pet. 3:18). Baptism is the—

Symbol of My Justification.

"And now why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord" (Acts 22:16).

"Repent, and be baptized everyone of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost" (Acts 2:38).

"Unto Him that loved us and washed us (loosed us) from our sins in His own blood" (Rev. 1:5).

Note: Only the blood of Jesus Christ can wash away sins, but the baptism in water is the Spirit-inspired symbol of that washing in the blood of Christ. Baptism, therefore, becomes the symbol of my justification; that is, my being made "just-as-if-I'd" never sinned. Shall we not praise God for the salvation from His Son, and shall we not willingly and obediently as His children witness to an unbelieving world by this God-given symbol? But you say, "I have been baptized, need I be—

Baptized Again?"

"When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus" (Acts 19:5).

Note: These people had all been baptized before, and immersed, too, as the word indicates. What was wrong? They had been without the full teaching with respect to baptism. They had followed as far as they knew. They had been baptized—we are not sure just how, but certainly not according to the trine immersion of Mt. 28:19. Then Paul taught them more fully and immediately they were baptized again according to the full New Testament teaching. That you, if you have not thus been baptized, should be baptized again, is nothing more than that for which there is Bible precedent. Full obedience means full joy. If the Bible is the rule for faith and practice in my Christian life, I'll want to follow fully and completely.

So, my friend, these are the Scriptures that teach us of Christian baptism. They're in your Bible as in mine. Read them! Believe them! Obey them! In the words of Acts 22:16, "And now, why tarriest thou?

ARISE, AND BE BAPTIZED."

THE UNVEILING of JESUS CHRIST

THE SEVEN TRUMPETS

AN EXPOSITION OF REV. 8

By R. I. Humberd

"And the seven angels which had the seven trumpets prepared themselves to sound" (v. 6).

If the mighty sons of God are interested in the events of this book; if the seven highest angels are called into action; if all heaven stands mute and spellbound; if our Lord promises blessings to those who will read and keep this book, then certainly it stands us in hand to read and study its pages and draw comfort and admonition from its message.

"The first angel sounded, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were cast upon the earth: and the third part of the trees was burnt up, and all green grass was burnt up" (v. 7).

Fearful Storms

The storms were held up until the 144,000 were sealed. But that done, the heavens gather blackness; the wind twists and breaks the trees, while hail and fierce lightnings destroy and char one-third of the trees and all the grass.

How this will effect the food supply! Wheat and barley are already at a premium, but now one-third of all the fruit is gone; large portions of earth's surfaces are charred; towns and cities are in ashes; farms, fields and meadows are stripped of shade; crops are ruined; grass and hay are burnt, while milk and beef become almost a thing of the past.

This is the third and last time that God is bringing Israel to the homeland. Palestine belongs to the Jew—the deed is written in heaven. Under Moses and Joshua a few million returned; under Ezra and Nehemiah a few thousand returned; but now He is bringing them home from every nation under heaven, where they have been strangers for so many long and weary centuries.

When He brought them out of Egypt, "the Lord sent thunder and hail, and fire ran along upon the ground—and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field" (Ex. 9). God visited some of the same judgments upon the nation that then held His people as He is so soon to visit upon the nations of the entire world as He thus brings His people to their homeland.

A Burning Mountain

"And the second angel sounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was cast into the sea; and the third part of the sea became blood. And the third part of the creatures which were in the sea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ships were destroyed" (v. 8, 9).

Some judgments seem to be world-wide and some are local upon the revived Roman empire. Here a great volcano may burst with such force as to cast a burning molten mountain into the sea. "The" sea may have special reference to the sea about which all prophecy centers, namely the Mediterranean. Some of the Egyptian plagues did not fall upon Goshen.

Or it may indeed mean that one-third of all whales, fish and sea life and shipping equipment will be destroyed. As we walk along the ocean and see the sea gulls darting about, we little realize their worth; but one time I visited a portion of the shore of Lake Erie where there were no gulls, and the stench of dead and decaying fish was bad indeed. But here one-third of all sea life is destroyed and washed ashore to rot and decay and fill the land with such a stench that only those who experience it can know.

The Burning Star

"And the third angel sounded, and there fell a great star from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters. And the name of the star is called Wormwood. And the third part of the waters became wormwood; and many men died of the waters, because they were made bitter" (v. 10, 11).

Here a great comet blazes through the heavens, bringing a stifling bitter gas to be absorbed by one-third of the water supply. If this judgment is local to the kingdom of the antichrist, this meteor or comet may fall upon the Alps mountains where so many springs and rivers receive their supply of water.

This flashing flaming mass will turn the waters into Wormwood. The rivers are still flowing; the springs are still bubbling, but the water has turned yellow and bitter. Thirst is a terrible thing. Men on the battle field even drink from pools of water that are covered with blood of their fellowmen. So here, the terrible thirst will drive men to drink of the bitter nauseating waters even though they well know it will produce convulsions, paralysis and death.

The Sun and Moon Smitten

"And the fourth angel sounded, and the third part of the sun was smitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the stars; so as a third part of them was darkened, and the day shone not for a third part of it, and the night likewise" (v. 12).

In Egypt there fell a darkness so dense it could be felt. God is now putting on His judgments with mercy; there is a rainbow about that throne. He is giving men every opportunity to repent and turn from sin.

Here only one-third of the sun and moon are smitten. Christ said, "The sun shall be darkened, and the moon shall not give her light" (Mt. 24:29). Truly, if He who made that sun has kept it shining since that far-off day of creation, He is able to stretch forth His hand again and reduce its power at will.

Our sun is a marvelous ball of fire and light. It is so tempered and so stationed that a slight change will affect the seasons of earth. When one-third of the light is cut off, it will hinder the rainfall, change the currents of the air, slow up the ripening of the fruit and grain, fill the world with a coolness, a chilliness and a sickening gloom.

Announcing The Woes

"And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midst of heaven, saying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe, to the inhabitants of the earth by reason of the other voices of the trumpet of the angels, which are yet to sound" (v. 13).

In our present age things are stable. The sun shines and the wind blows; the seasons come and go and angels are only beings to be thought about. But during the time of judgment, angels will be everywhere; bringing judgment, giving warning, and helping in the administration of the closing scenes of earth.

Condition of the Times

We might think the first four trumpets might fill up all the possibilities of frightfulness. The food supply has been greatly affected; fruit trees have been struck with lightning; hail has battered the earth flat; all grass and hay have been destroyed; milk and beef are almost a thing of the past; the source of drinking water has been corrupted; the ripening of what grain there is has been hindered by the darkening sun; the earth is cool, dusk and chilly. But alas, the worst is yet to come—Woe, woe, woe.

God is putting on judgments with mercy and is giving mankind an opportunity to repent. A warning now goes out to all men everywhere that three more fearful and horrifying judgments are to follow. Surely mankind everywhere will repent and escape these sorrows; but alas, the heart of fallen man is "deceitful above all things" and his imaginations are only evil continually!

SONGS ABOUT JESUS

By Chas. F. Weigle Zondervan Publishing House
25c or $15.00 per hundred.

The compiler of these beautiful gospel songs about Jesus has sought to exalt the Christ as Redeemer, Savior and King. All 70 songs in this song book are singable. Twenty-five are entirely new gospel songs that are arranged for solo, duet, quartette or group singing. The book contains a good number of new choruses. Another feature of this song book is the arrangement of many songs written in the same key that are placed on opposite pages, thus one can change from one song to another without a break. A good song book, paper cover, for Christian Endeavor groups or Sunday School and Prayer Meeting services.—L. P.

RESOLUTIONS

WHEREAS, God in His infinite grace and mercy has seen fit to preserve us as a district conference, and as several churches therein, for this another year of service in the fields already grown white unto harvest, and

WHEREAS, we wish as a conference to go on record as acknowledging certain blessings with thanksgiving, and to set forth to the world at large certain principles and convictions which are pertinent at such a time;

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED:

1. That we are deeply grateful to God for His manifold blessing on our churches during this past year.

2. That we reaffirm the importance of our stand upon a true Bible doctrine, declaring as of old our creed to be only the Bible, but believing it to teach, in part: (a) the verbal inspiration of the original manuscripts of the Scriptures as the infallible Word of God; (b) the pre-existence, Deity, incarnation by virgin birth, substitutionary death and resurrection of Jesus Christ, the Son of God; (c) salvation as the gift of God, only procured by man by simple faith in the shed blood of Christ on Calvary; (d) His present work as High Priest for the believer; (e) the imminent, personal, visible, bodily return of our Lord; (f) a godly life, obedient unto the Holy Spirit, and filled with good works, the sure fruit of saving faith (Rom. 6:1, 2; 11-18; 8:1-14; 1 Tim. 5:8; Jas. 1:25-27; 2:14-16; 1 Jn. 2:3-6).

3. That we humbly acknowledge God as the Giver of all blessings, being particularly thankful to Him for the reign of peace in our own land, for the continued right of unhindered worship to God, and for the abundant grace of God manifested to us as a nation. And be it further resolved that we as a conference shall continue in prayer to Almighty God that our nation shall continue on under God as a democracy, in which these blessings are guaranteed to us. We do heartily oppose any policy whereby the time-honored principles of freedom and justice of our beloved country, for which our forefathers sacrificed, shall be undermined; but rather we praise the Almighty for our godly heritage, and call upon the nation to return to the faith of her founders and a sincere honoring of God in civic and private life.

4. We hereby declare and wish to go on record again as unutterably opposed to war as a method to be used by Christians for the settlement of their difficulties with any human beings upon the earth. It is plainly written in the Word of God that 'the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds' (11 Cor. 10:4).

We have no criticism of the governmental authorities of a nation in a world that is far from being as yet regenerated, if they shall deem the use of the sword a necessity in the defense of a free people. The criticism of a nation of this world for bearing the sword would be contrary to the teaching of St. Paul, who declared that the unregenerate "beareth not the sword in vain, but is a minister of God, an avenger for wrath to him that doeth evil" (Rom. 13:4 A.R.V.). But, as we conceive, those who have been born again, while in the world, are not of it. They do not belong to this world system. It is written: "For our citizenship is in heaven: whence also we wait for a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ" (Phil. 3:20 A.R.V.).

We are compelled to go on record as holding to the conviction that it would be impossible for us, as citizens of the Kingdom of God, unless we would act in direct disobedience to the Lord Jesus Christ and violate our own consciences, to carry arms or to engage in any conflict where we would be compelled to take human life.

But, we also wish to go on record that in case these United States should at any time be engaged in war, we would gladly offer our services as non-combatants, and fearlessly serve in any manner that would help to mitigate the horror and suffering that inevitably must accompany mortal combat.

5. That we again go on record as utterly opposed to the anti-Semitic movements in the world today; declaring ourselves to be friends of the Jew, "praying for the peace of Jerusalem," and desiring with St. Paul that they may as individuals receive the Lord Jesus

Thirtieth Annual Conference of the Southern California District of Brethren Churches (July 20-27, 1940)

Christ as personal Savior. We further urge the continuance in earnest prayer for the efforts of true gospel missionaries in all parts of a war-torn world; offering sympathetic prayer for individual Christians of all nations now in the throes of carnal strife.

6. That we commend The Brethren Home Missions Council, Grace Theological Seminary, and The Foreign Mission Society of The Brethren Church for their splendid work in their respective fields, and that we do pledge to each of them our hearty support and continued prayers.

7. That we commend the moderator for his splendid address in which he pointed the way forward for another year of service for our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. We especially commend his suggestion of a program for the establishment of a Brethren Church in each city of sufficient size in Southern California, and urge our churches to be diligent in the carrying out of this purpose. We further commend his suggestion for a program for the evangelization and growth in Christian character of our youth.

8. That we commend the work of the District Ministerial Examining Board, and pledge to them our hearty and grateful support.

9. That we express our appreciation to the Executive Committee for their splendid work of organization and execution of this conference program.

10. That we express our gratitude to each person who had a part in the musical program of this conference.

11. That we express our hearty appreciation to our host church for their entertainment of the conference, and for the use of their facilities; and that we especially thank each person who had a part in the lodging provisions for the out-of-town delegates.

12. That we voice our appreciation to the pastors of our own local churches who have brought messages of blessing and inspiration, and to the following visiting speakers: A. H. Ackley, Wallace LeRoy Emerson, Roy L. Laurin, R. G. LeTourneau, Kenneth M. Monroe, V. C. Oltrage, Louis T. Talbot, and Ralph E. Underwood.

13. That we appreciate the cooperation of the local press in bringing this conference to the attention of the public.

There is hope for the fellow who knows that he does not know much, especially if he is the only one who knows it.

Misery dumps a lot of stones on the road to success.

Keeping up on your toes will prevent your getting down at the heel.

"To spend and be spent in what is called the Lord's work when the life is prayerless is one of the devil's pet delusions."

The Editor Nails Another Falsehood

By Dr. Louis S. Bauman

Upon the missionary editor's arrival in the East, from an absolutely authoritative source he learns that the report is going the rounds in the neighborhood of Ashland College and in the other places in the East, to the effect that he should have said, in effect: "I am going to smash Ashland College if it is the last thing I ever do in this world."

Upon inquiring where we might find the man or woman who heard us make that statement, we were told that the words had been traced to a certain party, but that those who heard him were under obligation not to reveal his name.

We simply wish to state here that nothing could be more false. Such a thing never even entered the mind of the writer of these editorials, and we doubt that any man or woman can be found who will face us and say that he heard us say this, or anything like it.

While we have been unable to give our endorsement to Ashland College, under existing circumstances, yet we have nothing but good will for the institution. There has been entirely too much of genuine sacrifice on the part of the people of God within the Brethren Church during the years that have passed and gone, for us to do anything else but to pray that Ashland College may yet fulfil her mission under God, and do the work that those expected her to do who for nearly sixty years gave her their prayers, their money, and often their very life's blood.

HAVE YOU A LITTLE CONSCIENCE IN YOUR HOME?

The little fellow who tries to persuade you to take him to Bible school with all the other little boys and girls is your conscience.

And instead of breaking out in a cold sweat, how much easier it is to say, "All right, son; coming," and go to it with enthusiasm!

And, speaking of children, please observe all the little folks that trudge regularly and cheerfully to church—regardless of weather conditions and distance, too.

While some of us grown-ups—!

Your conscience—is it restless?

THE BIBLE SCHOOL BEATITUDES

Henry A. Dowling

1. Blessed is the school that is organized into divisions, departments, grades and classes; for the time has come when educational methods must be applied to religious instruction.

2. Blessed is the school that has a Cradle Roll; for the time has come when the youngest child in the home must have proper recognition.

3. Blessed is the school that has a Beginner's Department; for the very little children must be given the Bible in story form, and pictured truth.

4. Blessed is the school that has a Primary Department; for the six, seven and eight year old children should have the adapted lessons.

5. Blessed is the school that has a separate Junior Department; for both boys and girls have caught the "gang" spirit, and must have special supervision.

6. Blessed is the school that has an Intermediate Department, for this is the place to stop the leaks, and to organize them for service.

7. Blessed is the school that has a Senior Department; for both young men and maidens are beginning to make life's choices, and choosing life's vocations.

8. Blessed is the school that has a well organized Young People's Division; for this is the time when educational, social and spiritual activities must be recognized.

9. Blessed is the school that has its Adult Division thoroughly organized in keeping with international standards; for service is the key word in this division.

10. Blessed is the school that has a well equipped Home Department; for the "shut in's" and "shut out's" are to be included in the Bible School enrollment.

11. Blessed is the school that has a Parents' Department; for the time is fully ripe for definite instruction in sex hygiene, and the law of parenthood.

12. Blessed is the school that has an Educational Department; for officers and teachers must be instructed in principles and methods as well as in the Word.

13. Blessed is the school that has a Missionary Department and superintendency; for the missionary propaganda is looming large in the activity of the church.

14. Blessed is the school that has a Temperance Department; for the time is ripe when all Christians should wage war against liquors, tobacco, and narcotics.

15. Blessed is the school that heartily cooperates with other schools; in making a house visitation; for the outsiders should become insiders.

16. Blessed is the school that sends its officers and teachers to the conventions and institutes; for in so doing they obtain a larger and better perspective.

17. Blessed is the school that gives to its student body an opportunity to do expressional work; for we remember ten per cent of what we hear, fifty per cent of what we see, seventy per cent of what we say, and ninety per cent of what we do.

18. Blessed is the school that has as its great objective the salvation of its entire membership, the building of Christian character and the enlistment in Christian service; for these are vital and fundamental.

Last Sunday a man stood on the sidewalk outside of the Church at the close of the Sunday School, and what he saw made his heart ache. He saw men and women, boys and girls, leave the church in a body as if there were no more services for the morning, and he wondered if the majority of the members listed on the membership of the church had joined the church, or the Sunday School?

He wondered how many of these people had tried to bring others to the church, seeing they had no interest in it themselves.

He wondered what they did the rest of the morning. Did they go home to pray, to study the Word, or to waste the few precious hours belonging to the service of our blessed Savior in the one day in seven.

He wondered what the impression on the stranger who saw the whole Sunday School en masse leaving, no interest in the preached Word, no interest in their spiritual welfare beyond one hour in Sunday School.

And that man on the sidewalk went into the pulpit with a heavy heart feeling that the church, for which Jesus Christ shed His precious blood, had but one hour for Him, in the whole Sabbath morning.

ROANOKE, VA.

Greetings to all the C. E. societies from the Senior-Intermediate C. E. of the Ghent Brethren Church in Roanoke, Va.

The society has been endeavoring to meet the goals set by the National organization and has kept all but a few. We have held devotional meetings on every Sunday of the year. During several of these meetings Rev. H. W. Koontz, our pastor, gave a series of talks on "Stewardship." At another time Rev. Hoyt addressed the young people. Miss Tyson, our missionary from Africa, took charge of one meeting, and at another time Rev. R. Paul Miller held a "dedication service" for us, in which several young people gave their lives for full time service. The other services during the year were conducted by young people.

Some activities of our C.E. during the year were as follows: we held two prayer meetings for a shut-in; we went Christmas caroling and sang for the people at the city home; we sent baskets to the needy at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

One social was held during the year, and another is being planned in the near future.

The C.E. appreciated very much the book which was awarded to them for the goals that were met last year.

Our society sent several delegates to Bethany Camp this year.

Yours in His service,

Senior-Intermediate C. E., Ghent Brethren Church.

NOTICE ALL CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS!

Since so many of our C. E. Societies were not using regularly all the C. E. lessons that have been appearing in these columns, our Brethren National Christian Endeavor Board has voted to discontinue these lessons in these columns, with this issue, and recommends that all C. E. Societies order from our C. E. Union The Christian Service Quarterly. This is a quarterly with topics and helps that are new and original for Senior, Intermediate and Junior societies. These topics are Biblical and practical. The aim is to give young and old spiritual lessons for Christian Endeavor meetings.

For Seniors there are given suggestions for the main "leader" and for a number of sub-leaders who take up the theme in keeping with the Scripture bearing on the lesson appointed for the meeting.

The Intermediates are supplied with helpful suggestions on themes corresponding with those of the Senior section.

The Junior section gives "Thoughts for the Captain" and helpful comments and illustrations for several "speakers."

The quarterly has 64 pages, size 6¾x9 inches, and is full of interesting, instructive, simple and helpful material that can be used in every society. Single copies 12c; to C. E. societies where two or more copies go to one address 10c.

Order all your quarterly and C. E. supplies through our Brethren National C. E. Union—3326 S. Calhoun St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S TOPIC

FOR SEPT. 29, 1940

Joash, The Protected of God

(2 Kings 11:1-12)

Suggestions for the Leader

Joash was a man who started well and did many good works for the Lord. He did not end well because he forgot God and followed the princes. How different from Elijah who started well and ended well!

Manasseh was different too. He lived a wicked life for many years but turned to honor God at the last.

The life of Joash should teach us the importance of remaining true to early Christian training. We would have fewer leave the Sunday School and Christian instruction if we could stress the importance of loyalty.

The crisis comes to every person when a choice must be made to serve the devil or to serve God.

1 The Secret of His Preservation. 2 Kgs. 11:2; 2 Sam. 7:16.

Joash was protected when the wicked Athaliah tried to destroy all those who had a claim to the throne. He was hidden in the house of the Lord. Here is a safe hiding place from the wicked. Our lives are hid with Christ in God. Joash was kept alive that David's covenant might not be broken.

2 The Reason for His Righteousness. 2 Kgs. 12:2.

He followed the instruction of the priest because he was under his supervision. We cannot believe that he ever had a change of heart for God.

Children may go to church or Bible School because they must. However the real blessing for those comes when they willingly surrender to the Lord. Many a young "Joash" has attended church week after week to go through with the activities without giving God a chance at their lives. Christianity must be more than an outward form. It must work in one's heart if it is to endure.

3 Joash's Chest. 2 Chron. 24:4-10.

Here is a bright spot in the life of Joash. It looked as though he did decide for the Lord and put forth an honest attempt to raise money for His work.

Remember a man may be busy about church work and fail to do the real work of the church. It is possible for men to take great pride in the house of God and keep it in condition for worship and yet not know God.

We do know that the people responded favorably to the suggestion to repair the house of God. He always has some who will carry on the work.

4 Evil Influences. 2 Chron. 24:15-22.

The king turned to evil counsellors. He plundered the house of God to buy peace from Syria. He gave command to stone Zechariah, Jehoida's son. Influences for evil will ruin us. The only safe decision is to let Christ have control.

5 Retribution. 2 Chron. 24:24,25.

1. Joash was brought to defeat and death. 2. God gave him over to his enemies. 3. He was killed by his own servants. The world betrays its own in time of need. 4. We must not yield to the voice of people who would take us into sin. 5. Sin is not a safe road to security.

Questions

1. What was the good influence of Jehoida, the priest? 2 Kgs. 11:17; 12:2.
2. Why was Joash saved from the purge of Athaliah? 2 Kgs. 11:1-2; 2 Sam. 7:16.
3. Why did Joash fail God at the last? 2 Chron. 24:17-18.
4. What do we mean by a change of heart for God? 2 Cor. 5:17.
5. How do evil companions corrupt good manners?
6. How far can good companions help unsaved people to do what is right?

Junior-Intermediate C. E. Topic for Sept. 22

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

(Acts 2:41-47)

Acts 2 gives the story of the first Christian church. The outstanding facts which the Bible gives us about this church are:

1. They gladly received the Word (Acts 2:41). Many who on the day of Pentecost heard Peter's sermon concerning Jesus Christ, the Savior of the world, believed the Word and gladly received it. These formed the first Christian church. Have you "gladly received the Word" and trusted in Christ as your Savior? See Jn. 1:12.

2. The believers were baptized (Acts 2:41). Having gladly received the Word, they were baptized as Jesus had commanded (Mt. 28:19). Baptism gives us a picture of the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus. It shows to the world that we are trusting in the death of Jesus to save us; that we are dead to sin; and have risen to walk in new life with Him (Rom. 6:3-4). 3000 People gladly received the Word and were baptized on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2:41).

Those who later received Christ in Samaria were baptized (Acts 8:12); so was the Ethiopian eunuch (Acts 8:38), Saul of Tarsus (Acts 9:18), Lydia of Thyatira (Acts 16:15), the Philippian jailer (Acts 16:33), the believers in Corinth (Acts 18:8) and the Ephesian disciples (Acts 19:5). If you have been saved you too should be baptized and show the world that you believe in the death, burial and resurrection of Jesus, and that you are now dead to sin and are walking in a new life in Him.

3. They continued steadfast (Acts 2:42). How we do need steadfast Christians today—those who are true to God, His Word and His house no matter what the cost may be. The three Hebrew captives were steadfast in serving the Lord God only (Dan. 3:18), even though it meant they would be cast into a burning fiery furnace. Peter and John were steadfast in serving God and in preaching the gospel (Acts 4:19-20) even though it meant they would be cast into prison. Paul was steadfast to the finishing of his course and earthly work (Acts 20:24). "Be ye steadfast, unmoveable" (I Cor. 15:58).

4. They had great power (Acts 2:43). Jesus had promised that they would have power after the Holy Ghost came upon them (Acts 1:8). How the church today needs to be filled with the power of the Holy Spirit. Let us pray for God's power in our lives.

5. They shared with the poor (Acts 2:44-45). God wants us to share what we have with other believers who are needy (Rom. 12:13; I Jn. 3:17). See also Acts 20:35; Prov. 19:17.

6. They continued daily with one accord in the temple (Acts 2:46). How strong the church is whose members continue regularly with one accord in the place of worship! It was Jesus' custom to go to the synagogue on the Sabbath, and it should be our custom to be in God's house each Lord's day. See Heb. 10:25.

7. They were filled with gladness (Acts 2:46-47). God wants His people to be happy (Is. 12:3); Ps. 132:16; Ps. 16:11; Jn. 16:24). If you receive God's Word, are baptized, continue steadfast, are filled with the power of the Holy Spirit, share with the poor, and continue regularly in God's house, your heart will be filled with joy and you will continually praise God.

Junior-Intermediate C. E. Topic for Sept. 29

HOW OUR SOCIETY CAN BE THE BEST POSSIBLE

1. By learning more about the Bible. If we want to improve our C. E. we should all try to learn more about the Bible. God wants us to study His Word (Jn. 5:39a; II Tim. 2:15; Deut. 17:19). God's Word is a mirror to show us what we are and what we may become (Jas. 1:25); a laver where we may wash away sin (Eph. 5:26); a lamp and a light to guide us in the right way (Ps. 119:105); the food necessary to our spiritual growth (I Pet. 2:2-3; Ps. 19:10); fine gold to enrich us with heavenly treasure (Ps. 19:10); fire, hammer and sword to use in the work and warfare of life (Jer. 23:29; Heb. 4:12; Eph. 6:17); and seed to be planted in God's harvest field (I Pet. 1:23; Lk. 8:4-15).

2. By willing service for God. There is a place of service you alone can fill. Are you faithfully performing the work God has committed to you? If you do so willingly you will be rewarded and your life will be greatly enriched (Ex. 23:25; Ps. 126:6. Let us serve God more faithfully.

3. By ready willing service for others. Jesus wants His followers to live lives of helpful service for others (Mk. 10:43-44). Jesus Himself set the example of humble service. Dorcas spent her life in loving service for others. Her life meant so much to others that God raised her from the dead that she might continue her good works (Acts 9:36-41). Is your life so filled with loving service for others that you would be greatly missed if you left this world? See Gal. 6:2, 10).

4. By being more earnest in our efforts to win the lost to Christ. How greatly our C. E. would be improved if each one of us would be more earnest in our efforts to win the lost to Christ. An old lady in Korea who has been saved only a few years determined to win 1,000 souls to Christ before her death. Already she has won over 500 of her neighbors and friends to Christ. How many have you won? How many have you tried to win? Like Peter (Jn. 1:41-42) and Philip (Jn. 1:45) we should bring others to Jesus. See Jas. 5:20; Prov. 11:30; Dan. 12:3.

Greetings

FROM THE FIELD

DALLAS CENTER, IA.

It has been quite some time since the Dallas Center Brethren Church has been heard from, but we do have a few items of news that may be of interest to our Brethren in other churches.

The Iowa Brethren Bible Conference which was held in Dallas Center was blessed of the Lord, and proved to be a blessing to many who attended. The opening session was on Friday evening, Nov. 24, 1939, and the conference lasted through Sunday evening. The main speaker during the conference was Prof. Herman Hoyt of Grace Theological Seminary. Other speakers during the conference included Rev. Kettell, pastor of the Methodist Church in Williamsburg, Ia.; Rev. Miles Taber, pastor of the Brethren Church in Leon, Ia.; and Rev. Harold Parks, pastor of the Carleton Brethren Church at Garvin, Ia. The Grace Bible Church of Waterloo was well represented.

Brother Cook, who has ministered faithfully while in Dallas Center, held two weeks of revival meetings immediately following the Bible conference.

There have been eight taken into the church by baptism since Sept. 1939. During this time there has been a number of reconcations.

We have been studying from the book of Revelation at our Sunday morning services. To make the studies interesting, and to make them easier to understand, Brother Cook has prepared and hung at the front of the church a great chart 16 feet long and eight feet wide, covering the entire book of Revelation.

The past few Sunday nights we have been studying on the Holy Spirit. Prior to this the Sunday evening studies were taken from the book of Genesis.

Yours in Christ
Madge Wineland, Church Cor.

BUENA VISTA, VA.

The First Brethren Church of Buena Vista, Va., has just concluded a "victory revival" under the splendid leadership and labor of Rev. R. Paul Miller. The meetings were conducted during the two weeks of July 30 through Aug. 11.

The Spirit of God used Bro. Miller's untiring and unselfish efforts in a wonderful way in this church. Without counting the members who came forward on the first Sunday morning, there were 101 public decisions for Christ in the two weeks. Many of these are young husbands and wives who came to Christ from lives of sin. Some are former members of the church who became discouraged and dropped out during the years of inactivity here. We baptized 29 yesterday, mostly all adults, one man 69 years old. Have more to baptize in two weeks. Received 37 new members yesterday also.

The revival spread among the members in such a way that family altars have been set up, families have been united in Christ and many have given up tobacco and liquor for Christ.

Months before the meeting the faithful men of the church were busy beautifying the building. The entire interior received a new coat of paint, new lights were hung, some new pews and hymnals were purchased and new drapes were purchased and hung by the ladies. The members of the church have done a commendable piece of work on their building.

This church wishes publicly to thank Bro. Miller for the countless spiritual and material blessings his Spirit-filled ministry has brought to us.

Rev. Edward D. Bowman, at present pastor of the First Brethren Church at Beaver City, Nebr., has been called as pastor of this church beginning Sept. 9, 1940. The present pastor will begin his labors at Covington, Va., at that same time. We earnestly covet the prayers of the brotherhood for the work of our Lord here at Buena Vista.

Pastor, Arthur N. Malles.

LA VERNE, CALIF.

Greetings to our beloved brotherhood from La Verne, Cal.

Despite summer vacations on which seven of our number have been gone the entire school vacation, and others part of the summer, our services have continued with fair attendance and good interest. Our much loved young pastor, Bro. Carter, has given us the Word with power, in love and admonition. We thank the Lord for sending him to us.

We did not close our doors on Sunday evenings to unite with the other four denominations in summer union services, but had good attendance each Sunday evening. Our prayer meetings on Wednesday evening and Tuesday morning have continued with interest.

Bro. Shearer, a Baptist minister, substituted for Bro. Carter while he was at our national Bible and church conference at Winona. Bro. Shearer, who is an interesting and able Bible speaker, and who does not shun to declare God's Word, also preached for us during our pastor's absence at summer camp, at which about 20 of our members were in attendance.

We were glad to have Bro. McClain in our Bible conference in June, which was well attended by our own people and those of other denominations.

Two weeks ago we had the Pomona Division of Los Angeles County C.E. meet with us in a "singspiration" after our regular church service. There were over 100 in attendance. Bro. Carter is pastor-counselor, and two others of our C.E. are officers of our division.

Two more have been baptized lately.

We are glad to have one of our young men ordained to the full ministry at our national conference, and we pray God's blessing upon him in his work.

During our district conference when our pastors exchanged pulpits, we had Bro. McDonald of Compton and Bro. Ogden of Los Angeles, both of whom gave us inspiring messages; and we enjoyed their fellowship and that of their wives and some of the children. Fellowship of God's children means much to us as believers in Him.

Yours in that blessed fellowship,

Mrs. Lydia H. Frantz.

MODESTO, CALIF.

A word of praise is due from Modesto Brethren, and we are happy to give testimony that the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ is unfailing, and always of sufficient supply for every need. Whatever has been accomplished for His glory in Modesto is on account of His faithfulness to His own Word—"He abideth faithful."

In the first week of May, we were blessed by the faithful ministry of Bro. Paul R. Bauman. On Sun., May 5, we held public installation of the first officers of the church (Bro. Bauman officiated). At the same time an ordination service was given, in which Bro. Alva Bowman and his wife, Str. Elizabeth Bowman, were set apart as first deacon and deaconess of the church. These were very sacred and blessed moments, in which God seemed especially near. Bro. Bauman's clear Bible messages were greatly appreciated by all the members and friends of our Modesto church.

On May 14 Dr. J. C. Beal, beloved to many of The Missionary Herald family, came to minister the Word to us. The meetings continued nightly except Monday, until May 26. Truly the Lord gave us a time of great refreshing. There were eight consecrations and one confession. Dr. Beal gave his last message to us at communion service, on the evening of May 29. God gave us a real feast of fellowship.

On Sun., June 9 our Bro. Elias Zimmerman, Supt. of the Los Angeles Jewish Mission, held a one service Jewish Missions Conference, and on Friday and Saturday evenings of the same week, Bro. Ralph E. Underwood, converted atheist, preached for us the Word which he at one time tried to destroy. These Brethren present living proof that the gospel that the apostle Paul preached is still "the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believes" the Jew as well as the Gentile.

July 7-10, it was our privilege to have a small part in the Central California Brethren Bible Conference, sponsored jointly by Tracy and Modesto, churches. The conference meetings were held in the Tracy Brethren Church and Dr. Alva J. McClain presented the Word with unusual clarity and power. It was our very great pleasure to present Dr. McClain in Modesto for one service. Truly our Brother's ministry is pronounced blessed by those who love the WORD.

Verily God has been gracious to the Modesto Brethren. We are still few in number but we love the WORD, and God honors His WORD. During the period reviewed 11 have confessed faith in Christ, and nine have been baptized by trine immersion.

We thank God for those who have helped us by faithful ministry of the WORD and we thank God for those who share the labors in Modesto by the ministry of prayer. Our labors are only for His glory. May we be "good stewards of the manifold grace of God."

May Jesus Christ be praised.

Yours in His marvelous grace,

Earl B. Studebaker.

SPOKANE, WASH.

Even though it has been many months since Spokane has been heard from is not an indication of death nor inactivity. Neither does it mean that the good Lord has been withholding from us His manifold blessings. Truly, God's people in this church have many reasons to lift their voices in adoration and praise to their blessed Redeemer and Savior Jesus Christ.

During the years several changes have taken place, resulting in a deeper spiritual walk with God in the lives of the faithful, tried, and true. The general outlook for growth is better today than it has been over a period of many years. Of course, while these things have developed, Satan has not been on a "sit down strike"; rather, he has been working overtime trying to overthrow the message and work of The Brethren Church in Spokane. Wherever the Word is preached you will find the devil at work.

The various auxiliaries of the church are doing splendid work. The Holy Spirit is keenly felt at the Wednesday night prayer meeting. In the past 27 months we have been able to reduce the church's mortgage and interest nearly $1,000. Six have been received into church fellowship this year by conversion and baptism, for which we give God all the glory.

During the month of May Rev. Simon E. Forsberg, Dean of the Multnomah School of the Bible, Portland, Ore., conducted a very helpful Bible Conference for us. Any church looking for an outstanding fundamental Bible teacher will do well to secure the services of Dean Forsberg.

We wish to praise God for a very splendid Daily Vacation Bible School. With a registration of 70, the school was conducted for two weeks with the boys and girls asking to have it continued another week, at the close of which time a picnic, and on Sunday night a special Vacation School program was given. Attractive diplomas were presented for efficient work completed. Various awards were given for perfect attendance and good behavior which were excellent. Through the vacation school several new members were added to the Sunday School.

Spiritually real progress has been made. Strangers are seen at almost every service. They speak very highly of the service, the Christian fellowship, and blessings received.

Considering all things in the light of Holy Writ, and knowing that Spokane is not church minded, we wonder that the door of God's mercy has not been closed, and the door of His wrath opened.

Brethren in Christ, we need your prayers that the blessing of God the Father may continue to rest upon the First Brethren Church at Spokane, Wash.

By His Grace

Alberi Lantz, pastor.

LONG BEACH, CALIF.

Greetings from the Second Brethren Church of Long Beach, Cal. The year 1940 so far is proving to be a blessed one for the work here. Bro. Clarence L. Sickel was called to the pastorate here in April. The work at that time had gone without a pastor for more than three months. We believe the Lord sent Bro. Sickel to this field. There has been some very definite things done since his coming. The Bible School attendance in January averaged 238; so far in August it has averaged 312. July and August are usually low months here because of vacation time.

Bills had accumulated, and on June 25 the people "got together" and raised nearly $450.00 with which to pay back obligations that had accumulated over many months. Just before that time, more than $200.00 had been raised for building repairs. Our Easter offering was $536.20 for the Klievers.

The W.M.C. of this church has done some very fine work recently for the needy ones at home, for a certain school for girls, and for our missionaries on the field. Their display of needwork during our recent District Conference brought many very fine comments. Their average attendance is above 20 at regular meetings, with much interest shown.

The Men's Brotherhood was reorganized July 2. At our August meeting 55 attended, with interest and enthusiasm being very marked; but best of all, one man accepted Christ as his personal Savior. The Brotherhood is sponsoring a definite club work for boys. They are sponsoring the 50-passenger bus that has recently been added to the transportation department of the church work. Their theme Scripture verse is Col.3:17.

Our Daily Vacation Bible School, ending July 3, was a successful one with an average daily attendance of 146 and an enrollment of nearly 200, represented by more than 15 denominations.

Our 3rd quarterly communion was well attended and a very blessed time of fellowship was evident among those attending.

A very definite program for the Young People is being worked out which is keeping the young people busy, thereby eliminating at least in part the desire of some to search for outside entertainment. The spiritual aspect is being presented to them in a way that gets their attention and support.

The Wednesday night prayer meeting is being attended by 50 or more each meeting. There are two other prayer meetings during the week—Tuesday and Friday 10:00 a. m. Brother Sickel is giving very excellent messages direct from the Word of God, and the attendance and interest in the regular worship program of the church is growing.

The Pastor and Deacon Board are working out a plan to have home Bible classes for adults, using several teachers, and a uniform lesson study course. They hope to extend these classes into nearby suburban sections.

Our prospects for the coming fall and winter months are very encouraging. We covet the prayers of God's people that we may occupy "till He comes."

Our New Publication Organization

By Russell D. Barnard, Pastor First Brethren Church, Dayton Ohio and President of the new Publication Board

Announcing . . . . .

The new organization of The Brethren Missionary Herald Company!

The committee of three, Prof. Herman Hoyt, Rev. Leo Polman, and Bro. R. E. Donaldson, appointed by The National Brethren Bible Conference in 1939, did a noble piece of work. They were chosen to serve in an emergency, the emergency came, they served; and our thanks is to them for a job well done. THE BRETHREN MISSIONARY HERALD, as you now have it, is the crowning result of their labors.

In announcing this new plan of operation, we are not unmindful of the two Brethren with whom we were associated in the production of Brethren literature at a former time, and who have given most valuable service in the new plan of operation. I refer to Dr. J. C. Beal and Rev. Chas. W. Mayes. It was under their guidance that most of our present supply of literature was produced, and through their kindly interest and generosity that it became available to our new company. We desire, therefore, to extend our sincere thanks to them.

This committee recommended to the conference which appointed them a permanent form of organization, where six members of a Board of Directors would be elected by the shareholders of the corporation and four would be appointed by the four major co-operating boards, namely, The Foreign Missionary Society Board, The Brethren Home Missions Council Board, the Grace Theological Seminary Board, and The Woman's Missionary Council Board. This plan of organization was approved, and the board was constituted as follows: Brethren Ray Gingrich, George Richardson, L. L. Grubb, Bernard Schneider, Tom Hammers (secretary), and R. D. Crees representing the shareholders, Bro. Ralph Rambo representing the B.H.M.C., Bro. Homer A. Kent representing the F.M.B., Sister Ivah Patterson representing the W.M.C., and the undersigned representing the Grace Seminary Board.

The shareholders are to be those who annually give $5.00 or more to The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. You will notice that the shareholders will always have the voice of control since they elect six out of the 10 Directors. The plan of ownership and control is almost identical with the Foreign Mission, Home Mission, and Grace Seminary Corporations. We believe that the principle is sound, that those who actively support have the voice of control.

Bro. Leo Polman, who has been so largely responsible for the success of the company thus far, has been chosen as the managerial head of the company, probably under the title of "Secretary of Publications." He will be giving his full time to this responsibility and to the evangelistic and Bible conference work associated with it. It is his purpose and ours, that his work for this year at least shall be largely promotional. He will seek to visit every section of the brotherhood during the year, and he and we ask for the privilege of his meeting with every church and Sunday School Board in every congregation. Write him for a date.

Our purpose is to supply you, all of you, with the best Brethren literature you have ever had the privilege of using. In places where we do not publish a desired item, we shall attempt to supply you with the very best material available in that particular field.

Co-operation is needed. This company is a venture of faith. We humbly ask your help, as we implore the Holy Spirit's guidance. You can help us several ways.

- (a) Pray for us.
- (b) Permit Bro. Polman to meet with your leaders.
- (c) Try to have a 100% congregation in Brethren Missionary Herald subscriptions.
- (d) Use all the types of Brethren Sunday School literature we publish, if you believe it is worthwhile.
- (e) Where we do not publish what you desire, or where you prefer another literature to our own, please buy your supplies through us. It will cost you no more, and we will receive a commission.
- (f) Buy all your church and Sunday School supplies—Bibles etc. through The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

We can get you anything you want, and at the same price it will cost you elsewhere, and the company will receive a commission.

We welcome your suggestions. This is your company; we want it to operate just as you may desire it. Send your suggestions to any member of the board or to Bro. Polman.

Finally, Brethren, pray for us. We feel so unequal to the task, but we worship a God Who is able. We are inspired by the possibilities, challenges, and prospects.

THE NATIONAL WOMEN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL PROVIDES PARSONAGE FOR CLAYHOLE, KENTUCKY

For months many of us have been praying that in some way the Lord would provide a parsonage for the new field there. At present Bro. and Sister Landrum are compelled to live four miles away from the new church. This is not only unhandy for them but it is not wise to leave such property without someone near at hand to care for it. Then also, it is practically impossible to obtain other houses that would be fitting for a pastor of a church. The last time the secretary was there in August, there had been a rain; as a result the house was practically soaked inside from the leaking roof.

The secretary was privileged at conference to speak to the national women and lay the plans for the new house before them. We understand that after the meeting that day they undertook the project unanimously. The Home Missions Council will finance the project and the women will pay it off in five years.

We think that this women's organization is a most remarkable institution already. To be able to undertake such things when but one year old is something at which to marvel.

THANKSGIVING OFFERING DIME COLLECTORS

These splendid aids in making up the thank offering for Home Missions should be at work in every church today. Thanksgiving now is but eight weeks away. There is no time to lose if we are to give an offering that will be sufficient to carry on the work that our Father God has given us for this coming year. We urge all pastors to send promptly for as many as you will need. Last year we had great results with these little collectors. Here is the slogan:

"All my dimes for Home Missions from now till Thanksgiving."

Get started today.

BACK TO YOUR KNEES, UNCLE SAM

The cover cartoon was taken from the Fort Wayne News-Sentinel. Cartoonist Ralph H. Smith has truly pictured the only way out of the troubles that Uncle Sam has gotten himself into because of his sin of forgetting God. This sad country can cover the seas with battleships; we can darken the skies of this continent with air fleets of the fiercest kinds; we can build our motorized land forces till they can sweep anything before them, and still America will sink down to hell. America does not need more education, legislation, evolution, nor reformation. America needs regeneration! America must get back to God, back to her knees in confession and repentance, for her sins have reached to high heaven. She doesn't need the heavy hand of a dictator nor of a super-man. She needs the hand of God resting upon her because she has put away her sins and knelt at Calvary in faith in the Son of God.

As the editor has so fitly stated,

"The world's people today—all of them—have need to fall upon their knees and implore the mercy and forgiveness and guidance of the Almighty.

"Without that, they must needs succumb to despair; for they can, of their poor mortal selves, do nothing—even in collective human action. They must seek first the kingdom of God and His righteousness.

"What is the first thing for which we ought to pray? Forgiveness! and after that, humility."

God give us more editorial writers who will tell America the truth in this dark hour.

One Thing Mr. Hitler Cannot Do

Dictators and tyrants of all kinds have periods during which their power seems invincible. They sweep on from victory to victory. Sooner or later, however, they invariably attempt the thing that is beyond their reach. Then they crash as spectacularly as they arose.

Pharaoh had the then known world for his empire. He had enslaved Israel. Jehovah said through Moses, "Let my people go." In his boastful pride he shouted at Moses and Aaron, "Who is Jehovah that I should hearken unto Him?" When the waters of the Red Sea closed over him and his army, Pharaoh found out who Jehovah was. He got along fine till he bucked up against God.

Nebuchadnezzar was a great soldier. He subdued all nations. He got pretty big in his own eyes. He stood in his palace one day and shouted, "Is this not the great Babylon that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty?" (Dan. 4:30). Seven years later, Nebuchadnezzar, after spending those years in the fields as an animal debased and driven from men, stood again in his palace and gave glory to the God who had permitted his rise to power. Then he knew that "the Most High ruleth in the kingdom of men."

Now we read an Associated Press despatch today quoting Hitler's newspaper, "Das Schwaige Korps," to the effect that as soon as Hitler wins the war he will clear the European continent entirely of Jews. Now Palestine happens to be claimed as a part of Europe as well as of Asia. This particular part of Europe God promised to the descendants of Abraham 3500 years ago. "The Lord made a covenant with Abraham, saying, 'Unto thy seed have I given this land from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates'" (Gen. 15:18). Though they have been driven from the land because of their sin, yet they are to return, which they are now doing for the first time in nearly 2,000 years. And when they return they shall not leave it again even though Antichrist brings all the nations of the world against them. "And I will bring again the captivity of my people of Israel, and they shall build the waste cities and inhabit them; and they shall plant vineyards, and drink the wine thereof; they shall also make gardens, and eat the fruit of them. And I will plant them upon their land, and they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord thy God" (Amos 9:14, 15). Hitler may conquer and transplant the nations of Europe, but the day he attempts to remove Israel from the land God has given them, he will come face to face with One Who can fold up Hitler as a jackknife. Hitler's hatred of Israel is the stone that will crush him at last.

Mussolini In Palestine In 1941

While writing the above editorial a news flash comes in, stating that J. W. T. Mason, United Press War Correspondent, reports that Mussolini plans to invade Palestine in 1941. We don't wonder at Mussolini's plan to take Palestine. It is undoubtedly the most strategic section of all Europe and Asia. It is likewise the richest and handiest "gold mine" in the world. Chemical engineers of Great Britain and France have estimated the buried wealth in the Dead Sea at $240,000,000,000. Mussolini is not the only one who knows this. All other dictators know it. Nor is he the only one who needs finances badly. They all need it. They all want it. And they all plan to get it for themselves to finance their military ambitions. If Mussolini gets it first he will have to defend it against every other dictator in the world to keep it. Antichrist will "divide the land for gain" (Dan. 11:39). The great wars that precede the battle of the Armageddon will be fought over the possession of Palestine. Are our eyes about to see the first move? If so, it won't be long till the true church of Christ will hear her "up-call," for her work on earth will be over.

"The Kings of the East" Prepare Their Way

Konoye, new Premier of Japan, has just issued a new and already formulated program for that nation's future. It is titled, "The new order for greater East Asia." The first part of this program is to seize French Indo-China. Then follows the Dutch East Indies. Then follows Singapore and Hong Kong, those rich British prizes. In this way Japan hopes to pay for her tremendous losses in the Chinese campaigns and at the same time extend her sway over all Asia.

Vladimir Soloviev, the great Russian seer foresaw present Japanese expansion 50 years ago. He wrote, "About the middle of the 20th century the nations of Europe will be weakened by internal wars. At that time China, convinced that she can no longer withstand Japan, will make an alliance with her former foe. 12,000,000 armed and equipped Orientals will march to the gate of the Caspian Sea. There they will divide into three ramrods of 4,000,000 each and trample Europe under foot."

All that Soloviev forecast may not come to pass, but that he was a most keen and intuitive student of the trends of the affairs of the nations of Europe and Asia is remarkably evident.

A few short months ago the Japanese minister of war in an interview to the press declared that the white race had dominated the world long enough, and had proven their unfitness for supremacy. Now, he declared, was the opportunity of the brown race and they were going to take advantage of it.

The "sixth angel" of the Book of Revelation seems to have a peculiar relationship to the Asiatic nations in the wind-up of the age. In Rev. 16:12 we read that the angel pours out his vial and the River Euphrates is dried up to make way for the kings of the East. In Rev. 9:13-16, the sixth angel is again seen and there he looses the "four angels which are bound in the River Euphrates." The results are that 200,000,000 horsemen from the "east" evidently on their way to Palestine, cross over the Euphrates River on dry land—likely the first time in all history that that river will be dry. Two hundred million horsemen are a lot of men; a greater host than any military organization today; greater than Soloviev saw. Evidently they represent the third part of the world's men of military age. They shall all be destroyed after their great rise to power. But today we see them forming their organization without doubt. This is a thrilling day for the Christian who knows his Bible. Never was there a time when the "Old Book" was being confirmed in its prophecies as today. The unbeliever still scoffs, but the Christian rejoices, knowing that his Lord's return is very near.

Why Haven't We Heard This Before?

In a recent evangelistic campaign where God was glorifying Himself in the salvation of many men, we were talking to a long-time member of the church. Quite a number of men were giving up their habits of liquor and tobacco when they accepted Christ. There were numbers of men who had been members

The True Principle of Non-Resistance in War and Peace

By Professor Herman A. Hoyt

For 19 centuries believers have been living in the world, even though they were separated from the world and not of the world. And during these 19 centuries they have faced every conceivable test known to human flesh, and generally speaking have been gloriously victorious, for greater was He that was in them than he that was in the world (1 Jn. 4:4). And not the least of the problems which they faced was the oft-recurring problem of non-resistance, which, by the way, faces every believer anew today. For so long as believers must live in a world of sin where selfish hearts are employing every conceivable method to achieve their selfish ends, for that long will believers be facing this tremendous problem.

Now the occasion for a fresh discussion of this problem, as anyone can well see, is the moral and spiritual darkness which is overwhelming the entire world, creating international strife and internal disorder, and contributing to individual degeneration. This means that the present generation of believers will be called upon afresh to determine the course of action they will pursue in the case of war and litigation. And this further means that nothing short of a clear understanding of the true principle of non-resistance as taught in the Bible will enable the believer to pursue the proper course of action.

1. It is therefore necessary at this point in our discussion that a careful statement of the principle be given. But it should be remarked that the principle of that church for years, yet who had still continued their former habits. Then some of these church members began to clean up. It was in the midst of this process that this particular member spoke to us. He said, "How is it that nothing has ever been said to us about these habits being wrong before? It is the first time we have been made to see this!" We could hardly believe it, but the testimony of several confirmed it.

What kind of preaching is it that fails to teach Christian men that their bodies are temples of the Holy Ghost and they defile them only at the cost of their fellowship with God? God pity the preacher who fails to teach his men that they must be clean from these things for fear they will resent it. To allow such a condition without protest is to fail God and to be a party to the spiritual deadness that follows. "Be ye holy, for I, the Lord your God am holy."

of non-resistance is only one aspect of the larger principle of non-conformity to or separation from the world, which is clearly stated in Rom. 12:2, "And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Since going to war and going to law belong definitely to this world (Jn. 18:36; 1 Cor. 6:1-5), it therefore follows that the principle of non-conformity includes the principle of non-resistance in matters of war and law.

It should also be noted that the principle of non-conformity is not wholly negative as one might be led to think. For though Rom. 12:2 clearly states that there should be separation from the world on the one hand, that is not all; for on the other hand it states that there should be transformation, and that by the renewing of the mind with the Word of God, that God's will might be experienced, tested and approved. And as both the negative and the positive elements of this principle apply to everything included within this principle, so both elements apply to the matter of non-resistance. Thus we conclude that the true principle of non-resistance not only forbids recourse to law and war for the redress of wrong, but also provides that believers shall become like Christ in seeking the good of all men (Rom. 13:8; Gal. 6:10).

2. We are now ready for discussion of certain very precise limitations relating to this principle.

In the first place, the principle of non-resistance is strictly limited to the sphere of believers. Since the epistle to the Romans is addressed to believers, the larger principle of non-conformity cannot be laid upon unbelievers (Cf. Rom. 12:1). And the context of the passage of Scripture in which specific reference is made to war (Jn. 18:36) and law (1 Cor. 6:1-11; cf. 1:2) is careful to explain that only believers are in mind.

In the second place, the principle of non-resistance is strictly limited to the sphere of individuals. No commands like this are delivered to the church as a whole, for that would reduce the possibility. But this does not mean that the church as an organization of individuals shall not legislate and discharge certain responsibilities pertaining to this very question. But any such action on the part of a body of believers will only mean that believers are individually responsible. If a church wilfully commits an act of aggression at law or war, the individuals who are guilty will God hold responsible.

In the third place, the principle of non-resistance is strictly limited to the sphere of Christ's kingdom. This means that governments of this world are not only permitted but also are ordained of God to use the force of sword or law against evil doers, whether it be nations or individuals. And this is only right, for this is one method by which God has provided for rectifying wrong in this world (Jn. 18:36; Rom. 13:1-5). Then too, it must be remembered that the interests of the world are bound up with the world and the present order. Hence it is necessary that, at least in some small way, wrong be rectified here and now. However, even in the sphere of the world, unjust acts of aggression in war or at law are not permitted of God, and are punishable both here and hereafter (Rom. 13:2; Rev. 20:15).

3. Having come this far, it is now time to present a number of reasons for the principle of non-resistance.

In the first place, the express purpose for non-conformity to the world, which likewise covers non-resistance, is to "prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God" (Rom. 12:2). By this Paul means that through personal obedience to the command for separation from the world the believer will enter into personal experience and approval of the will of God as being altogether good, decidedly pleasing, and lacking in nothing which it ought to possess.

In the second place, the divine prerogative for vengeance forbids that believers shall usurp it (Rom. 12:19). Of course, the specific reason for going to law or to war will invariably be stated as redress for wrong. And there is a sense in which wrongs can be punished in this world, although not fully punished, for every wrong is against God and therefore assumes infinite dimensions. But for the believer, even temporal justice must be set aside, for he has a new standard. Having entered into a sublime relationship with the Lord Jesus, and having committed everything to Him, it is inconsistent with that profession to seek to avenge when God says: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay."

In the third place, the divine methods for obtaining justice are different from those of the world (Jn. 18:36). While the kingdoms of this world must be defended from enemies, be delivered from aggressors, and be perpetuated by methods employing physical force, this is not true of Christ's kingdom, for it is not of this world. Being a kingdom which was decreed of God, and therefore has the blessing and stamp of eternity upon it, nothing can destroy it. And especially is it unnecessary to defend it with physical force, since physical force cannot touch it.

In the fourth place, the spiritual nature of Christ's subjects dictates a new policy toward offenders (Lk. 9:52-56). The sons of thunder, stirred with indignation at the disgraceful reception of their Lord, would have readily called down fire to consume a certain village of Samaritans, but the Lord Jesus rebuked them with the reminder of their spiritual origin. He declared that His very spirit was being demonstrated in that He was now on the way to the cross to save men, not to destroy them. Therefore it may be concluded that the very nature of God which is imparted to the believer by the operation of the Holy Spirit dictates the policy of non-resistance.

4. Finally, let us note that transgression of the principle of non-resistance in the realm of law called forth six inescapable charges against the Corinthian church (1 Cor. 6:1-11).

The first charge of insolence was leveled at them because they dared to drag their brethren into the low courts of the land, and that before the unjust world (1). Nor was the second charge of ignorance any less stinging in its reproach, for they were charged with ignorance of the position the saints were to occupy some day as the judges of the world and of angels (2-4). And to level at the Corinthians, who loved to boast of wisdom and power, the third charge of inability to settle their own disputes must have been extremely humiliating to them. But it was true, and true because they were in a very low spiritual state (5-6). The fourth charge of immorality was made because there was "utterly a fault" among them in that inordinate greed drove them to rob their brethren at law (7-8). Such conduct was evidence that they were under an illusion as to the personnel of the kingdom, thinking that those who practice unrighteousness are now members of the kingdom and would some day inherit it (9-10). And this charge prepared the way for the final charge of indifference toward the great facts in their salvation: indifference toward baptism which is the great symbol of regeneration, and toward sanctification and justification (11).

It should therefore be said in closing that the principle of non-resistance is inextricably bound up with Christianity, and constitutes one aspect of the great principle of non-conformity to the world. True Christians will obey the command to love not the world, neither the things that are in the world, knowing that if any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him (1 Jn. 2:15). So professed believers who transgress the principle of non-resistance either by practice or approval will do well to examine themselves to see whether they be in the faith.

Can't Pray Over It. A mother said she wanted her son to go to a dancing school because he was so awkward: she wanted him to be more graceful; wanted him to get grace in his heels, you see, instead of his heart. After six weeks he had made such poor progress she took him out in disgust, and chided him. Said he, "I'm sorry, mother I'm so stupid about it; but I can't seem to do any better. You see, its one of the things I can't pray over."

RALLY DAY PROGRAM FOR HOME MISSIONS

This program has been prepared by Mrs. Herman W. Koontz and Mrs. Chas. W. Mayes at the request of the Secretary of the Home Missions Council. It is designed to fill a real need for superintendents and pastors who have for a long time desired help in emphasizing home missions on this day. This is the first program of its kind yet prepared. Others will be supplied each year for Rally Day from now on. This program is easy to put on, it is easily learned, and will be very effective. Do not fail to use this program, for it will stir up your entire church to our home missions need as nothing else will do.—R.P.M.

"HOME MISSIONS ON THE MARCH"

Characters: Young man, pastor, young people from home missions churches, a primary class from the Sunday School, a young person who impersonates the local church.

Platform decorations: A large map of the U. S. with mission points marked with stars, placed across the back of the platform. A Christian flag on a long standard floating at each end of the platform. A bench at one side.

Young man and the pastor enter from opposite directions and meet in the center of the platform.

Pastor (shaking hands): Good morning, Jack. We're glad to see you here at Sunday School this morning. We've been missing you.

Young man: Thank you, pastor. Of course I couldn't miss on Rally Day. I HAVE been growing a bit careless lately about church attendance. I guess I'll have to admit that I'm a little discouraged.

Pastor: Discouraged? I am sorry to hear you say that. Perhaps if you tell me about it I can help you.

Young Man: Well, it is only that so little seems to be accomplished. So many people are indifferent to the church; even church members themselves are indifferent. Even where the gospel is preached, as it is here, the results are few and slow.

Pastor: I believe you are looking at this problem in the wrong light, my boy. Perhaps you do not know what has been done and is being done in our churches today. I believe that if you will sit here with me a little while and watch as the accomplishments of the year pass before us, that you will change your mind. Here comes someone who can help us.

(Young person representing the local church enters.)

Local Church: I represent your local church. The Lord has been very gracious to us this past year. He has added to this church _____ saved souls; _____ young people have volunteered for life service. Our people have given _____ for home missions; _____ for foreign missions; _____ for Jewish missions; (other offerings, and items of interest may be added).

Our hope for the church lies in the children who form its growing Sunday School. Here come the little ones to sing for you.

(The children come to the platform and sing, "This Little Light of Mine.")

Local Church: We are doing our bit to reach out into needy fields, and we joyfully welcome representatives from many new churches into our ranks today. First, let me introduce one from our mission church at Los Angeles. Have you a testimony for us Los Angeles III?

Los Angeles III: I was a sinner who longed to find the way of salvation, but without hope of finding it. One day, as I passed down the street I saw that a place which had been a beer garden had become a church. Interested, I went in, and soon afterward I accepted Christ as my Savior. Now we are reaching out to others who need Him too.

(When Los Angeles has finished Local Church takes a red crayon with a wide point and draws a line on the map from the church where the program is given to the mission point. This is done after each testimony.)

Local Church: We rejoice with you in His salvation. We have someone with us from San Diego, Calif., too.

San Diego: I was a young person who was interested in worldly things. But down in my heart I knew that my life was empty. Then I was invited to join the Christian Endeavor in San Diego. There my new friends soon led me to Christ. Now my life has purpose and joy, and I glory in the progress our church is making.

Local Church: Thank you, San Diego. I see a representative from Waterloo coming forward.

Waterloo: A small band of us have stepped out on the Lord's promises and have formed a church where, like the pilgrims of old, we can worship as our consciences dictate. Already the Lord has blessed us with a church building and a growing testimony.

Local Church: Our prayers and support are with you, Waterloo. Let us hear from Peru, Ind., also.

Peru: I was saved because you and other local churches sent a messenger of the gospel to our community. Now I live to bring others to the Christ Who did so much for me.

Local Church: Thank you, Peru. What have you to tell us, Cleveland?

Cleveland: I searched through our city for a church which honors the whole truth of the Bible. At last I found a school building where the Lord Jesus Christ was preached and where people lived according to His Word. I joined their ranks and have seen their circle of witness widen as they entered their new building.

Local Church: We welcome you to our circle of churches. And now we have a representative from our work at Clayhole.

Clayhole: Many miles I have travelled that I might hear the gospel in your mission church at Clayhole. Now a bus picks me up at the highway and takes me to a new church. How grateful we are for all these blessings, and for the new parsonage which will soon stand beside the church. How glad we are that now we have heard and accepted the gospel and received salvation.

Pastor (turning to young man): These are only a few of the home mission churches that are testifying of Christ over our land. 20 points are either receiving help or waiting for it. Do you not see how the prayers and offerings of the local churches together reach out and gather new churches who in turn join in helping still other churches into being? You do not see indifference in these churches, but a joyful service rendered to the Lord. Thus the work grows and God is glorified.

Young Man: Yes, I do see that the work is far broader and deeper than I realized. It is my own indifference that has blinded me to the glorious work of the church. I know now how untrue I have been to my Lord because I have not placed myself under His guidance. (He stands) Just now I want to rededicate my life to Him, to be used wherever He leads.

Pastor: Your declaration makes my heart glad. If you are so led, there is work for you to do right now. Willow Grove needs the gospel, and I am sure that if you would take the leadership we could get the old schoolhouse there for services.

Young Man: Fine. I'll get the Christian Endeavorers to help me, and by God's grace and in His strength we will give a real testimony here..

(Young man and pastor each take a flag and with standards crossed make an arch through which all on the platform pass as they sing Onward Christian Soldiers.)

(Each church may add more exercises from the local church or more testimonies from mission churches as they desire.)

Actions of the "National Conference" at Ashland, O. Involving The Foreign Mission

In order that a very clear understanding may be had as to the various actions taken at the "National Conference of The Brethren Church" (Ashland College Group) assembled at Ashland, O.; and the National Conference of Brethren Churches (Grace Theological Seminary Group), assembled at Winona Lake, Ind., we are giving here a detailed report of said actions.

We note that in The Brethren Evangelist, dated Aug. 31, 1940, Willis E. Ronk, president of the Brethren Publishing Co., printed their "Resolution Regarding the Foreign Missionary Board." Doubtless, Bro. Ronk presumed that this would be a final action, and rushed it into The Brethren Evangelist, which was evidently printed and in the mails before the two conferences closed on Sept. 1, 1940, and thought that the "Resolution" he printed would be the final action of their conference. However, it did not prove so to be.

The first "Resolution," which was passed by the conference in Ashland and which was printed in the Evangelist on Aug. 31, 1940, was anything but satisfactory to the conference assembled at Winona Lake when they received the same. That everything may be put before us here, we print in full this "Resolution" which was first passed by the conference at Ashland:

"WHEREAS, Section two (2), Article six (6), B of Manual of Procedure provides for the creation or discontinuance of cooperating agencies by the General Conference and amongst those heretofore created is The Foreign Missionary Board, and

"WHEREAS, this board is no longer cooperating with the General Conference, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED that the Foreign Board be discontinued as a cooperating agency of The General Conference.

"BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that The Missionary Board of The Brethren Church be charged with the responsibility of and the carrying on of the Foreign Missionary work of the General Conference and that said Missionary Board of The Brethren Church be continuing our work in South America.

Section 2—Article 6—Manual of Procedure The conference has the power to create additional cooperating organizations or to discontinue any now in existence or hereafter created at any time by a two-thirds vote. P. S. The above resolution was unanimously passed by The General Conference of The Brethren Church assembled at Ashland, O., on Wednesday, Aug. 28, 1940.

O.K.

W. S. BELL"

The above "Resolution" was not satisfactory to the Winona Lake Conference, inasmuch as it dealt only with the Foreign Board and likewise merely declared that the "Foreign Board be discontinued as a cooperating agency of The General Conference."

Those of us at Winona Lake wished to have a resolution passed distinctly stating that we not only were to be released from any and all alleged control "The National Conference of The Brethren Church" as it was assembled at Ashland, O., but that said conference was to release all claim to any of the assets of our Society.

Brother W. S. Bell was the agent through whom we contacted the conference at Ashland, while the undersigned, Secretary-Treasurer of the Foreign Missionary Society, was the agent through whom the Ashland College Group contacted the Winona Lake conference.

Upon the receipt of the first, and, to us, unsatisfactory resolution passed at Ashland, the following message was telegraphed to Ashland:

"August 29, 1940

W. S. Bell

% Brethren Conference

Ashland College, Ashland, Ohio:

Appreciate action of your conference and believe in your good intentions, but the wording of resolutions as received not wholly clear in relation to my understanding of telephone conversation and former discussions. Does your conference unconditionally release the Foreign Missionary Society as now constituted of any and all claims which your conference has or may have against assets and control of said Society? Since time is short, please confirm by amended conference resolution embodying above suggested action. If your conference will do this, we are sure that name of conference can be settled satisfactorily as per our conversations. Otherwise, impossible for us to surrender our right to be called The National Conference of The Brethren Church. Any continued threat of possible litigation against Society is certain to affect seriously support and situation of missionaries working under present critical world conditions. Reply by Western Union.

LOUIS S. BAUMAN."

In reply to this telegram, we received the following wire from Brother Bell:

"August 29, 1940

Louis S. Bauman

Winona Lake, Indiana

Message received. Resolution of conference means no control or claim by conference on Society. Don't want to interfere or injure work. Business in morning. Will present resolution as suggested and will wire you.

and the "National Conference" at Winona Lake, Ind. Society of The Brethren Church

And then, the next day, after the business session Ashland on Friday morning, we received the following wire from Dr. Bell, informing us of the additional action of the conference at Ashland, which was entirely satisfactory to us at Winona Lake:

"August 30, 1940

L. S. Bauman

Winona Lake, Indiana

"Be it resolved that in dismissing the Foreign Missionary Board as a cooperating Board of General Conference, that we dismiss any and all obligation, financial or otherwise, to said board—that we unconditionally release the Foreign Missionary Board as now constituted of any and all claims the General Conference has or may have against assets and control of said Board and Society." Unanimously passed this morning by General Conference.

W. S. BELL."

It should be said here that our brethren at Ashland probably felt that the burden of taking over the Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, even if by any legal action such a thing would have been possible, would have been too great for them. It costs from $40,000 to $50,000 a year to care for the work of The Foreign Missionary Society. It is only reasonable that they should be willing to release all claim to it if the Grace Seminary Group of Churches were willing to undertake its support for the future and carry on the splendid work that it has been doing these many years.

It should be said, however, that the Ashland College Group of Brethren Churches, and we ourselves, felt that we should come to an agreement as to the use of the name "The General Conference of Brethren Churches" inasmuch as that name is involved in so many of the legal documents of the "Ashland College Group" in connection with their various conference organizations. The use of this name for the two conferences from year to year would indeed have been confusing, not only to ourselves but to the general public. To avoid this confusion, somebody must be willing to forego that particular title for their conference. Inasmuch as any organization can change its name, without in any wise relinquishing the material rights which belong to the organization under its former name, the brethren assembled at Winona Lake felt they were willing to change the name. In turn for the willingness of the brethren at Ashland to release any and all claim to the assets and control of the Foreign Missionary Society. Therefore, keeping with our promise to them that we would make a change of name if they would release any and all claim that they had, or may have had, to our society, our conference at Winona Lake passed the following resolution, which speaks for itself.:

"August 31, 1940

"Inasmuch as confusion has been created in the minds of the public concerning the title, 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches,' because of certain unfortunate events and conditions which have arisen, for which we feel we are not responsible; and to remove this confusion:

"We hereby recommend that this 51st General Conference of Brethren Churches amend the Manual of Procedure by substituting the title, 'The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches,' for the title, 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches' wherever found in said Manual of Procedure.

"In this action we do not in any manner or degree yield our claim to being the regularly and legally organized 51st General Conference of Brethren Churches, nor do we make any change in the status thereof.

"We further hold that The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches is the continuation of the same organization as that previously known as 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches,' under the new name 'The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches,' as that referred to in the Articles of that Ohio Corporation known as The Brethren Church, which was incorporated in the year 1883."

Let it be distinctly understood, as it should be understood by anyone carefully studying the above "Resolution," that the action taken does not in any way disavow the legality of "The General Conference of Brethren Churches" that was called to assemble at Winona Lake on Tuesday morning, Aug. 27th, 1940. Neither did the passage of this "Resolution" indicate the organization of a new denomination, in any sense. We, the churches usually known as the Grace Seminary Group of Brethren Churches, are still of "The Brethren Church." Moreover, we hold to our claim that our conference was a regularly organized conference of The Brethren Church, organized as a successor to the last regular organized conference of The Brethren Church which was held at Winona Lake in Aug. 1938.

Moreover, in the passage of this "Resolution" we in no wise yielded any rights that were ours prior to the change of name—any rights that we held and do hold under the name of the General Conference of The Brethren Church. We believe that the actions above taken will contribute very much to a better understanding between the two groups, and that each group can now continue to do its work for the Lord Jesus Christ without undue threats of litigation, so far as its national organizations are concerned.

It is to be hoped that if the Ashland College Group shall choose to do their foreign mission work in South America, that we can arrive at an understanding with each other that will enable us to go down into Argentina and fight Satan and his hosts, winning men and secretaryWe Missed the Bus!

The Southeastern churches held their conference at Winchester, Va. during the fourth week of July. The secretary was scheduled to speak several times at this meeting. Just before we were to leave for this engagement, we had to take Mary Catherine to the hospital for an appendicitis operation at about midnight. The little lady wanted her "papa" to hold her hand during the ordeal, so the contemplated fellowship in this conference was called off. Suffice it to say that the operation was a decided success, due largely of course to the presence of "papa." You see it took the "pain" out of her side, and put it in "pops" pocketbook. So much for that.

Souls Saved at Canton

On our way to an evangelistic campaign at Buena Vista, Va. a week later we stopped on Sunday night and preached for the Canton people. We had a good time, and five souls, two men, two women and a boy, accepted Christ that night. There are some of God's finest of the wheat in this congregation. The largest number of decisions we have had in any one meeting during these many years of evangelism, was had in this field. We have held three meetings there. This was a bright spot on the way.

Fourteen Preachers at Mundy's Corner

From Canton we drove to Mundy's Corner for a meeting with the Pennsylvania preachers. The preachers of this district are beginning to get their feet on the ground again after the confusion brought about by conditions prevailing in that district during the last couple of years. There was a fine spirit of optimism prevailing since they learned of the secure position in which all our work stands. There is a new day ahead for the Brethren Churches in Pennsylvania.

Happy Days at Buena Vista

After many invitations, we were able for the first time to arrange an evangelistic campaign for this field. It is a field that had been sadly neglected for most of its life. Until a short time ago when new and aggressive preachers began to labor there things looked pretty bad for Buena Vista. Bro. Frank Coleman, Jr. started things going a few years ago, but he did not remain to see the awakening. After he left, Bro. Bernard Schneider managed to leave his wonderful work at Covington once a week so as to drive to Buena Vista to preach and conduct the Sunday School. It was a most self-sacrificing work for him. But all real achievements for Christ are the results of someone's personal sacrifice. A year and a half ago Bro. Schneider held a revival there and that was the turning point in the life of this church. The results of that meeting were large in numbers and in effect on the lives of the congregation. The community awoke to the fact that The Brethren Church had the real gospel.

Not many months after the revival by Bro. Schneider, the congregation was most fortunate in obtaining Bro. Arthur Malles, a recent graduate of Grace Seminary, as pastor. Since then he has continued to lead this people to a greater work for Christ. Many changes were brought about for good.

Then came this revival in which God mightily glorified Himself. The interest in these meetings was good from the start. The attendance increased steadily until the house was filled to capacity. On the first Sunday morning the spirit of the congregation was broken and the real revival started. God surely did business with this people that day. From then on the prayer rooms were filled with men, women and young people praying for themselves and their friends who were unsaved. There was a prayer meeting for each group.

It was when the people's hearts got burdened in intercessory prayer for others that things began to happen, and how they did happen from then on! The way men of the congregation, who had used tobacco all their lives, threw away their pipes, plug cut, and cigarettes, was great. Their testimonies stirred the hearts of all. Said one man, "I've tried all my life to quit and failed; now God has given me the victory, praise His Name." Then followed the salvation of men who had been overcome of drink for years. One dear man met the preacher on the next Saturday night down town. His face was beaming. He had an ice cream cone in one hand and his little girl by the other. Said he, "This is the first Saturday night in my life I haven't gone down the street with a bottle of beer in my hand. Wife and I have bought a lot and have gotten plans to build a new house right away. The greatest day of my life was when Jesus Christ came into my heart." Happy home!

At one service, among many others, three men, all near the "three score and ten" mark made decisions. That was a sight to see. The unusual number of men who came to Christ in this meeting was remarkable. Family altars were started in scores of homes to the great joy of all. By popular request we took 15 minutes one evening to explain what a family altar was and how to conduct it. Family altars will not only save the homes, but the churches as well. Never fear for the future of a church that has a lot of family altars in it.

Arthur Malles, the pastor, has already proven himself to be a strong preacher, a hard worker, and a lover of souls. It is with regret that the people are letting him go to Covington where he succeeds Bro. Schneider. However, Edward Bowman, who was graduated from Grace Seminary in May, is to take up this work the first of September. The people are looking forward to his coming with real confidence and are ready to work with him loyally.

Our home while in Buena Vista was with Bro. and Sister Malles. They are delightful folks to live and fellowship with. Mrs. Malles is a real hostess indeed. We hope to return to Buena Vista again before our Lord returns and win more for Christ. The time is so short any more.

Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Malles

Through Floods in the South

Leaving Buena Vista, we headed for Berne, via Clayhole, Ky. We needed to see just what yet had to be done to finish that building and to get a better idea of the needs for a parsonage. So we had to pass through southern Virginia to do so. The floods at that time were raging through the south. We drove body deep through rushing water in many places. We took some motion pictures which we hope will be good. Cars and trucks were stalled in deep water all around. We had to change our course finally, but we praise God that we got through safely, which many did not succeed in doing.

We found the Clayhole church completed except for concrete steps, walks, the electric wiring and the celotex. Bro. Earl Key of our Covington church is in the electrical business and is going to wire it at cost during conference week. We have need of a good carpenter, experienced in putting on celotex, and we also need half a dozen men to help him for about three days to put it on. Then the Clayhole church will be finished! The secretary hopes to receive the offer of the volunteers we need at once.

A Parsonage Needed Badly

Brother and Sister Sewell Landrum have done a marvelous work in Clayhole during the past 18 months. They have now an attendance of 150 to 185 in Sunday School and church! Everybody stays for church. They have accomplished it all with nothing but a school room to meet in. Now they have a church building to meet in. We are sure this building will soon prove too small.

But, while these unselfish workers think first of the Lord's work, we are now thinking of them. There are no proper houses for them to live in down there. They are now compelled to live four miles from the church. This is not good. The building needs close care for many reasons. The house they now live in has a bad roof. Most Indiana farm sheds have better roofs. The night before we arrived there two weeks ago, the rain had leaked through and soaked two beds through, left a half inch of water on the dining room floor and ruined much of the furniture they have.

So we are praying for a parsonage for them this fall. We are praying God will lay this need as a project on the hearts of our National W.M.C. women. We believe they will supply this need. (Ed. note: The response of the W.M.C. in this matter is found on another page in this issue)

Home Missions in Films

By the time this column is being read, the secretary will be starting on his tour of the churches showing actual motion pictures of our home mission fields. If we do not reach any certain church, it will be because no reply was had to the letter we sent out. Do not miss these pictures. They make home missions real.

New Church Rising at Vinco

Not long ago, the secretary was privileged to pass through Vinco and see the new church building that is now in course of construction there.

Under the aggressive leadership of Brother Ord Gehman these people are going ahead in a fine way. A friend of the congregation deeded their ground to them right on the highway and now they are in course of constructing their building.

The men of the church are doing practically all of the building work free of charge. Men of the community who are friendly to the church are also giving valuable assistance. Two weeks ago they had their first meeting in the basement. Their attendance has greatly increased and souls are being saved right along.

We are glad to show some pictures of the building as it stands today. By the time the readers get this, the upper part will likely be completed. They are not completely finishing the structure but are putting in the basement with the roof a few feet above the first floor, so as to allow for Sunday School rooms. The main services will be held in the basement until the upper auditorium is completed.

AROUND THE COUNCIL TABLE

THE GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH, FLORA, INDIANA

Background

The Grace Brethren Church of Flora, Ind. had its inception during a two week's Bible conference held in the month of December of 1939. Bro. Vernon Stuber in conjunction with several other pastors of Brethren churches of Ind. scheduled this conference. The sessions of these Bible messages were held in the Flora Public Library Auditorium, where a group of faithful Brethren met nightly. Faculty members of the Grace Seminary besides district Brethren pastors were the speakers, and a wonderful spiritual feast was enjoyed during the two weeks.

Rev. and Mrs.
Henry Rempel

This conference was the impelling motive for the organization of another Brethren Church in Flora. Beginning with the 1st Sunday of January of 1940 this same group of Brethren, about 80 in number, commenced meeting regularly in the local library building for Lord's Day worship services. Bro. Henry Rempel of Grace Seminary was called to do the preaching. A temporary Bible School organization was effected, and a few weeks later three C. E. societies were formed.

Organization

On Sunday, Feb. 25th, with the help of Bro. R. Paul Miller, the Grace Brethren Church of Flora was organized. Bro. Lester Fife was elected moderator, and under his able leadership the rest of the business was transacted. Regular officers were elected, including Bible School teachers and superintendents. Constitution and building committees were appointed and put to work promptly. At a later business meeting a constitution was presented to the church and with a few changes it was adopted. Thus this group of loyal Brethren organized into a fine church in which the officers are working and the machinery is running smoothly. The church voted from its early beginning to come under the Home Missions Council for guidance and advice.

Call of Pastor

At a specially called business meeting in April, the congregation voted to call Bro. Henry Rempel as full time pastor. Bro. Rempel had been serving as student pastor since January. After his graduation from Grace Seminary in May, brother Rempel moved into the field and commenced his full time duties.

Membership

On the day of the organization of the church a time limit was set for charter members to sign the roll. At the appointed time the charter roll was closed with a membership of 81. Out of these 79 came in by relationship, 1 by baptism and 1 by letter from our Brethren Church of Burlington, Ind. The membership represents a fine cross-cut section of the average church membership in that it includes a number of children, a fine group of young people, and a balanced group of adults, with a few elderly people.

Building Program

After much work and deliberation on part of the building committee, the Henry C. Wolf Construction Co. of Logansport, Ind. was employed to erect the church building for the Grace group. Mr. Wolfe is widely known as an excellent contractor and builder. The church is being built out of glazed tile with trimmings in red brick. The structure will consist of an auditorium with a seating capacity of 160 with full basement under it. The Bible School department is built on in the rear supplying ample room for expansion. The main rooms of the Bible School department can be opened to make additional seating room for another 80 people. All praise be to God for His marvelous working in reference to our building program. Already some $1800.00 has come in in cash, with pledges above that of about $1500.00. This shows real cooperation on the part of our membership, and to God be all the glory. Both church and pastor are grateful to the Home Missions Council and to its secretary for their splendid cooperation in helping us to get started.

Brethren Dyson and Rinehart

According to contract the church is to be ready for occupancy at about the middle of October. The church is planning a great dedication day service. Watch for the date, which will come during the latter part of October, and if possible, drive to Flora to see the new church and to witness its dedication.

High Lights

On the 27th day of May this church held its first communion service. It was a real joy to both pastor and congregation to see the young with the old gather about the Lord's table to observe the holy sacraments. About 60 were present, and each heart was strengthened as we "did these things in remembrance of Him."

During the month of May a splendid Daily Vacation Bible School was conducted by pastor and Bible School teachers. It was very inspiring, to say the least, to see children coming in from all directions, ready and willing to learn more about the Friend and Savior of children. The enrollment reached a peak of 106 children, representing some 12 different churches of the surrounding community.

The Ambassador Bible Class (the young married people's class) is receiving instructions from the pastor on 'How to Win Souls for Christ.' The entire class takes notes on these studies and already some are going out in definite work to win the lost for Christ. The class is showing marked growth, both spiritually and numerically.

On Aug. 22 Bro. and Sister Dunning, who have been traveling in the interest of our National B. S. L. V., were with us and conducted a very profitable and edifying service. We had 107 present of which 59 were young people. Again we praise the Lord for His working among us, for 16 fine young people signed up for membership in the B. S. L. V. May God grant that these 16 will all find their way into a full time ministry for our blessed Christ.

The Outlook

Our future looks as bright as the promises of God, which are 'yea and amen' in Christ. We have a splendid group of genuine Brethren here. They are people who love the Lord and are devout and faithful to Him.

Our attendance has been steadily increasing during the so called, 'summer slump.' Morning and evening attendance run about alike ranging from 70 to 85. There is never a service that we don't have some few visitors present with us from some other church. We seek to 'preach the Word' and people come eagerly and gladly to hear it.

Our group is looking forward with great anticipation to the coming of Dr. J. C. Beal who will lead us in a 2 week's Bible conference. The dates have not been set, but plans are under way to have this conference during the latter part of October. May God grant that His children shall be revived in a special way during that time.

Early in 1941 Bro. R. Paul Miller is coming in to serve us in a series of evangelistic meetings. We are praying for a real awakening in the community so that many shall find Christ as their Savior. The need is great in this town and vicinity. Most of the local churches are apostate, and only 2 of the 8 have a weekly prayer meeting. Therefore it behooves us to give out the gospel message, to win the lost before He appears. Brethren won't you pray for us here at Flora that this new church shall sound forth the Word of truth in no uncertain terms?

women for Christ and for life eternal, instead of fighting each other. Moreover, there is no reason why any Brethren Church desiring to continue to support any one of our splendid missionaries in Africa may not continue to render such support through our board. We will welcome such support, and will continue to issue our membership cards to any member of any Brethren church, without regard to "groups," who may send the regular membership fee of $5.00 or more per year, which fee goes to the support of any mission or missionary that the donor may designate.

May the Spirit of Christ so possess us that, at least in this work involving our foreign missionaries which we sent forth when we were a united body, they may continue to carry on until Jesus comes.

LOUIS S. BAUMAN.

HAGERSTOWN, MARYLAND

After the commencement at Grace Seminary, Mrs. Rambo and I took a flying trip (in our auto) to California. We left Long Beach May 26, and after another trip across the continent, arrived in Hagerstown, Md. the afternoon of May 31. On Saturday, June 1 we located a very pleasant apartment, seven blocks from the church. Sunday June 2, was our first Sunday in the 2nd Brethren Church of Hagerstown. We found a very attractive little bungalow church and an enthusiastic group of people. A beautiful installation service had been arranged and a paper promising loyalty and cooperation signed by Elder Roy S. Long who had been serving the church as pastor. Every member of the local congregation was presented to the new pastor. The ladies of the church presented to both Mrs. Long and Mrs. Rambo a beautiful bouquet of roses. This program was very impressive and was appreciated by the pastor and his wife.

Rev. & Mrs. Rambo

On Sunday evening June 2nd we took over the pulpit and entered into the activities of our first pastorate. We praise God for the privilege of serving Him and preaching the gospel of His marvelous grace.

The church here has a membership of about 80, all being more or less active. The average attendance for the past year prior to June 1 was 39 in the Bible School, 25 in the morning worship service and 23 in the evening. The Lord has wonderfully blessed us with an increased attendance in both Bible School and church service. The average attendance in the Bible School for June was 87 and July 96. In fact our school has outgrown our building. Two classes are meeting across the street in the home of Bro. and Sis. Charles Barnhart, who have graciously opened their home for the Master's use.

July 28 was a great day in the history of this church. Four lots adjoining the church have been purchased on which a new modern up-to-date church building will be erected in the near future. On this Sunday a tent was pitched on these lots and an all day meeting held. Prof. Herman Hoyt of Grace Seminary was with us and gave us three great messages. The attendance at each service was the largest in the history of the church.

While it is true we have been here only two months, the advances that have been made would lead us to believe that this work has a great future. The people have a mind to work and they are faithful to His Word. We know that God will bless a group with these two qualifications. We have had only three decisions for Christ and one rededication during these two months, but we know there have been many decisions made in the hearts of the members. We have observed a strong healthy growth in the spiritual life of many. We predict for this church, if the Lord tarries, in the next few years one of the strongest Brethren Churches in the district. We covet the prayers of the entire brotherhood for this work.

Yours in the Master's service,

Ralph Rambo.

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA

"Oh Worship the King All Glorious Above" had resounded through the building as the congregation of 300 people had raised their voices in praise. The chords of the great hymn, "My Hope Is Built on Nothing Less than Jesus Blood and Righteousness" had likewise been heard. J. R. Dunn, president of the District Mission Board of Southern California Brethren Churches, had given his words of congratulation and encouragement. Dr. Kenneth M. Monroe of the Los Angeles Bible Institute had brought everything in readiness with a masterful presentation of a message from God's Word, entitled, "After the Cross — the Crown." The moment for the actual dedication of the new building had come. This building for which many had labored and prayed so long, was now a reality; a service was being held in it; and it was ready to be formally dedicated to the worship of Him Who gave it. It was the voice of Paul R. Bauman that was heard in this all important dedicatory prayer as he offered to God the building to be used in the great business of reaching men for Christ. It was fitting that Paul should be chosen to lead in that prayer. He had started the first Bible class in San Diego; he had made weekly trips to the city for over a year and a half, driving never less than 250 miles for the round trip and often times many more during the stay in the city; he had organized and directed that first tent meeting which resulted in the organization of the church under the direction of the present pastor three months later; he was the representative of the Home Missions Council for Southern California. It was no haphazard selection that brought him to the pulpit at that great moment on Saturday afternoon, June 15, when he presented our new building to the Lord and thus brought our dedication service to a close.

It was a great day in the lives of these San Diego Brethren. Many of the men, and women alike, in the congregation that day had not had more than two or three hours sleep. Many had been working from early until late for weeks in order to get the building in readiness for this occasion. What joy filled our hearts when we were able to see the culmination of a prayer of several years and the labors of many months. In the minds of those people that day was the fact that God was doing for us what we had not been able to do for ourselves. When we had come to the end of our plans, God had intervened and graciously supplied for us. How well we remember the many nights in our prayer meetings when our people had prayed that the Lord would make possible the beginning of a building. This went on for months and months and the possibilities seemed to grow darker and darker as the days came and went. Because of the delay, many had commenced to feel that the prayers were not getting through. Just when all of our planning and resources failed, our Lord stepped in and made possible the breaking of ground on Feb. 22 of this year.

Our men gave regularly of their time and strength and actually put part of their lives into the building. Our Brethren from other churches in the district sent delegations Saturday after Saturday. These men would get up at 3 or 4 in the morning, drive the distance of over 100 miles, work all day, then drive back again to arrive home late at night. The following churches of the district sent delegations of men:

Third Church, Los Angeles of which A. R. Kriegbaum is pastor; First Church, Long Beach of which Dr. L. S. Bauman is pastor (four delegations); Second Church, Los Angeles of which P. R. Bauman is pastor; First Church, Los Angeles of which W. A. Ogden is pastor; Southgate Church of which Elias D. White is pastor; Bellflower Church of which Jesse Hall is pastor; Whittier Church of which C. H. Ashman is pastor.

Interior at San Diego, Calif.

This fine response on the part of these Brethren, not only gave us a lift when it was so greatly needed but formed a bond of fellowship between our church and the other churches of the district which could be formed in no other way. Our women worked faithfully to feed the men on these occasions. As the day for dedication approached, many of the women likewise plunged into the work on the building; varnishing, cleaning, washing windows, fixing curtains, and the like.

The day following our dedication service we launched into a Bible conference with Alva J. McClain as our conference speaker. He drew splendid crowds and our church received a most favorable hearing in the city through his messages. This conference proved a splendid way to start the work on our new building.

This was not all. The Lord graciously directed to our building the 20th Annual Bible Conference of the Southwestern Bible Conference Association without any solicitation on our part, and we were privileged to have Dr. Lewis Sperry Chafer in our church for the week July 7-14. His hearing through the association was about the same as that accorded Bro. McClain with the exception of a Monday night service when Dr. Chafer spoke on prophecy and a Sunday afternoon service when it was necessary to bring in chairs to seat all who came. This conference likewise gave our church a hearing in the city, and its blessings will continue to pour in.

Our building is most favorably located at the crossroads of the main routes of transportation for the northeastern part of the city and easily accessible from all parts of the city by street-car or bus. The building itself is in reality two stories with the first floor only partially underground. The Sunday School is planning to divide this ground floor with partitions of a moveable type so that we can have more suitable Sunday School facilities. The ground floor is airy and light and even now several classes are held there without any partitions.

The main auditorium is beautiful with its light walls, mahogany pews, circle-head windows, altar rails with green curtains, totally indirect lighting, baptistry with beautiful picture, mahogany pulpit, and ceiling of acoustical board. We can now seat 290 without bring in additional chairs. By bringing in additional chairs, we can seat over 300. To the one side of the platform is the pastor's study which is now nicely furnished, to the other side is the choir assembly room with a connecting hall in between, off of which is located the dressing rooms for the baptistry.

The building is so constructed that when we build the Sunday School unit at a later date, it will be possible to add it without tearing off a bit of plaster or destroying the present building in any way. A huge 18 inch "I" beam is now concealed in the wall at the rear of the auditorium to make it possible to open into an overflow auditorium. The opening for this overflow auditorium is now a panel of acoustical board and can readily be opened up without disturbing the present auditorium in the least. The heating ducts are of sufficient size so that when the other unit is added, it will be possible to heat everything from a central heating unit. Everything was planned with a view to completing the second unit of the building as soon as growth demands it.

We have a civil engineer in our church who drew the plans. We have a man in the church who is a paint supervisor over at North Island (government air base) who took several weeks leave and directed all of the painting including the sanding and finishing of the church pews, the floors, and glazing all of the windows. We have a tile setter in our church who set the tile around the baptistry and even furnished the tile for a small rest room where we had planned to place linoleum. We have a woman in our church who painted the picture for the baptistry and many have been the compliments concerning it. Only one member of our church, a man who makes his living as a carpenter, received pay, and even he worked overtime night after night and on Saturday. A man in our church who does landscape gardening is planning the landscaping around the church. One of our members works at a lumber yard where we were able to secure many courtesies including help in the securing of a loan. We employed George N. Kriegbaum, a member of the First Church in Long Beach, as our building superintendent, who gave us careful planning and supervision. With these various channels of help along with the time and effort of the men of our congregation and the district, we were enabled to have a much better building than would have been possible otherwise.

We now have a membership of 82 and the Lord has been blessing abundantly since our entrance into the new building. We have appreciated the prayers and assistance of the brotherhood at large in our work, and we will keep them informed of the progress. One of our young men leaves next week for Westmont College preparatory to entering our seminary, which will eventually mean a minister in The Brethren Church from our young San Diego work. We have cause for rejoicing.

FOLLOWING CHRIST

By John Oxenham

Lord, I would follow, but—
First, I would see what means that wondrous call
That peals so sweetly through life's rainbow hall,
That thrills my heart with quivering golden chords,
And fills my soul with joys seraphical.

Lord, I would follow, but—
First, I would leave things straight before I go—Collect my dues, and pay the debts I owe;
Lest when I'm gone, and none is here to tend,
Time's ruthless hand my garnering o'erthrow.

Lord, I would follow, but—
First, I would see the end of this high road
That stretches straight before me, fair and broad;
So clear the way I cannot go astray,
It surely leads me equally to God.

Lord, I would follow—yea,
Follow I will—but first so much there is
That claims me in life's vast emergencies—
Wrongs to be righted, great things to be done;
Shall I neglect these vital urgencies?

Who answers Christ's insistent call
Must give himself, his life, his all,
Without one backward look.
Who sets his hand unto the plow,
And glances back with anxious brow,
His calling hath mistook.
Christ claims him wholly for His own;
He must be Christ's and Christ's alone.

—Anthology of Jesus.

—Living Messages of the Books of the Bible.

We find this advertisement in the New York Observer: "Lost—An old fashioned sermon; somewhat worn but of great value as it contained 'the Pearl of great price,' and was illumined by the Sun of righteousness. When found it can be delivered at the Sabbath service, and a proper reward will be given by many."

BE CAUTIOUS IN CRITICISM

A woodcarver in the Tyrol named the price of one of his articles of beautiful handiwork. Said the customer, "Do you think I have come to the Tyrol to be asked fancy prices for carving like this?" The woodcarver was vastly indignant and brought the matter up in the courts, insisting that his honor had been insulted. The customer won the case, but the woodcarver carried the matter up to the court of appeals, where the decision was reversed. The customer was required to pay a fine of $5.00 and all the cost of the lawsuit, the judge deciding that mere suggestion that the woodcarver had been trying to overcharge was really an insult.

Be cautious in your criticisms. What you may call a trifling matter may be almost a matter of lifelong grief and shame to the person you are berating. You need not buy the article. If you do not like the price, your best criticism is to leave it alone. Allow others to maintain their self-respect.

WANTED—A WORKER

God never goes to the lazy or the idle when He needs men for His service. When God wants a worker, He calls a worker. When He has work to be done, He goes to those who are already at work. When God wants a great servant He calls a busy man. Scripture and history attest this truth.

Moses was busy with his flock at Horeb.

Gideon was busy threshing wheat by the wine-press.

Saul was busy searching for his father's lost beasts.

David was busy caring for his father's sheep.

Elisha was busy plowing with twelve yoke of oxen.

Nehemiah was busy bearing the king's wine cup.

Amos was busy following the flock.

Peter and Andrew were busy casting a net into the sea.

James and John were busy mending their nets.

Matthew was busy collecting customs.

Saul was busy persecuting the friends of Jesus.

William Carey was busy mending and making shoes.

CHRIST IN THE HOME

One of the gravest dangers of present day life is the fact that with the passing of the family altar from the majority of homes religion has ceased to have a place in them. At least, it is given no regular recognition in the corporate life of the family. As a recent writer has said: "We seldom think of our religion in the home, and practice it only in church, if at all."

The full fruits of this modern trend have not yet become apparent. We realize something of the loss that it means to the family as a whole, and older members of the household who were reared under the influence of the family altar experience a feeling of personal loss, but it is probable that the most far-reaching effects will be manifested in coming years in the lives of those who are now small boys and girls and who are missing one of the steady influences possessed by their parents in their own childhood.

In a recent address Dr. Robert E. Speer said: "The foundation of the Christian religion is the home, and there never is one so small that there is not any room for Jesus."—Christian Observer.

A STRIKING CONTRAST

Man calls sin an accident; God calls it an abomination.

Man calls sin a blunder; God calls it blindness.

Man calls sin a chance; God calls it a choice.

Man calls sin a defect; God calls it a disease.

Man calls sin an error; God calls it enmity.

Man calls sin fascination; God calls it fatality.

Man calls sin an infirmity; God calls it iniquity.

Man calls sin a luxury; God calls it leprosy.

Man calls sin a liberty; God calls it lawlessness.

Man calls sin a trifle; God calls it a tragedy.

Man calls sin a mistake; God calls it madness.

Man calls sin a weakness; God calls it willfulness.

LOVERS OF PLEASURE

That excellent English weekly, The London (England) Christian, on the cover page of a recent issue carries the following information:

"Five Hundred More Sunday Cinemas (Movies). The 'Sunday cinemas in war-time' plea is so much seductive reasoning. Already it has enabled the rich cinema trade to boast in the News Chronicle that during the war Sunday cinemas have increased from 1,300 to 1,800, that is to say, an increase of 500 cinemas! It is a wartime blot on Britain. It is a national dishonor. It is a national sin. What is being done?"

And so it is in Germany, in France, and in Italy. So it is in the United States. The desecration of the Lord's Day is appalling. It is a day of pleasure, merry-making, the day on which more automobile accidents occur than on any other day, many charged to drunken drivers. When the whole world is approaching the supremest crisis of all history, the great unchristian and nominal Christian masses have plunged into the whirlpools of worldly pleasures. The inspired pen of Paul predicted that it would be so in the last days of our age, "Lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God." But there is a day approaching when laughter will be changed into weeping and gnashing of teeth, when shrieks of despair will take the place of songs and jazz. The "Judge standeth before the door."

A group from the Sunday School

DELIVERED FROM THE POWER OF DRINK AND TRANSFORMED

By C. E. Castor, Rittman, O.

At the request of Bro. Grubb, pastor of the First Brethren Church of Rittman, of which I am now a member, I am setting down here in a sort of story form some of the things in my life before and after my confession of sin to my pastor and my joining the church after that.

My whole life since boyhood had been spent outside church circles. I had worked at various jobs which kept me busy on Sunday and often at nights. Thus my separation from church had been almost the span of a full lifetime. Added to this I came frequently in touch with rough and ready men in my work. This had its influence in roughening me, and at the time this experience starts I was hard and had few attractive qualities to draw people to me.

I am now 72 years old and can find no work to do, so I started attending Bro. Grubb's church and Sunday school. I went to church regularly, but finally dropped out as I had no connection with the church. It was then that two of my sons, Paul and Charles, felt the call to a Christian life, and they became members of Bro. Grubb's church. The change in their lives was so great that I thought surely God could do the same thing for me if I would just ask for forgiveness and be guided by Him. So one day I went to the pastor's home and told him the story of my life. He gave me the greatest consideration, and a week later I walked to the altar in the church and publicly confessed my sinful life. Later I was immersed.

I was in ill health. The illness was of such a nature that it submerged me in despair. I just sat around and thought of my ills. In the meantime the brothers and sisters were praying for my restoration to health and I was asking God for freedom from ill health. Suddenly about July 15 I seemed to go through a great change almost overnight. My mind freed and became active almost in a day. I roused to the fact that a miracle was taking place in my soul. Two days later another son beside the two mentioned here died, and I had recovered so remarkably that I could take full charge of everything pertaining to his funeral and also a thousand details to be attended to in settling up his affairs later. A month earlier I would have been utterly incapable of doing anything in the matter.

That has been the first great miracle performed by God in my life. Since that I have experienced many others. I have formed the habit, since I always waken early, about 4:00 A. M., of relaxing and talking over with God some decisions I have to make for the day. I ask myself, "What would Christ do about this?" After thinking it over something tells me Christ would do it this way. I make that my decision and I have had a wonderful time just working out these instructions of our Lord.

I am not well yet, but I am Oh so much better, thank God! I feel free as the air. Nothing disturbs me. Where I was formerly burdened with troubles I now have none. These have all been taken away by the Lord Jesus Christ. I call myself just a happy, smiling, laughing, fighting Christian. I fear no one. I am afraid of nothing. I have no troubles. I ask God to help me in certain things daily, and I am finding that most of them that seemed little difficulties disappear like mist before the sun. I have learned to smile always, even laugh heartily. I have learned to bring some happiness to someone every day. I bring some sunshine into dark corners every day. I talk to people on any subject they wish to talk about, but I always work into the conversation something about the saving grace of God.

This is my story, shortened for saving of space. I could write a book about it, but I will end with just this. I said some place back in this story I was 72 years old. That is all changed. I am not 72 years old. I am not old at all. I am 72 years young and getting younger every day. Praise the Lord!

Use Your Scissors

We wish we could write an editorial which would carry to every woman who was not present the spirit and inspiration of our splendid fellowship at Winona Lake. But should we speak with the tongues of men and of angels we could not convey to you the marvels of God's grace which we there were privileged to behold.

Praise the Lord!

What we have then tried to do is to set before you the practical working material which shall be the background of your work for the coming year.

In this number of The Brethren Missionary Herald there is much valuable material. We are hoping that it will not be necessary to repeat the publication of our information so much this year, as we hope to have more new material; and also the Sisterhood girls are to share our pages.

Therefore, will you not get out that trusty woman's weapon, a pair of scissors, and clip from these pages the names and addresses of our officers, the objectives for the year, and in fact any of the material which should be at your service when needed? A scrap book for the president has been suggested for this purpose, but a portfolio will do. Just keep your information at hand.

Report of ## NATIONAL W. M. C. CONFERENCE

Aug. 27-Sept. 1, 1940 at Winona Lake, Ind.

The First National Conference of the Women's Missionary Council opened Tuesday morning with the president, Mrs. Homer A. Kent, presiding.

A committee on credentials was appointed with the vice-president, Mrs. W. A. Ogden as chairman. The committee consisted of Mrs. Orville A. Lorenz and Mrs. Henry Rempel.

The auditing committee was also appointed: Mrs. Roy Patterson and Mrs. J. L. Gingrich.

Greetings were given to the Council by the national officers. The first report of the number of delegates was 96.

The following committee on committees was appointed: Mrs. R. E. Gingrich, Mrs. A. V. Kimmell, Mrs. L. S. Bauman, Mrs. J. S. Cook.

The thank-offering for Home Missions Council was received at a "Count Your Blessings" service. This offering amounted to $550.07, and there may be more to come as many Councils have not yet been heard from.

The report of the financial secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. A combined report appears elsewhere in these columns.

Special messages during the week were given by students of Grace Seminary; Miss Elizabeth Tyson on the African work; and Mr. Clarence Sichel on the South American work. Rev. E. Paul Miller gave a very stirring talk on the present work and needs of our home mission in Clayhole, Ky. He urged that the W.M.C. take over the responsibility of a parsonage which will cost about $2550 and make it a five year project. Rev. and Mrs. Sewell Landrum also spoke on their work in that field.

The following officers were elected for the coming year:

Pres.: Mrs. Homer A. Kent, Winona Lake, Ind.
Vice-Pres.: Mrs. W. A. Ogden, 3941 Virginia St., Lynwood, Calif.

Sec'y: Mrs. C. E. Andlauer, 27 E. Norman St., Dayton, Ohio.

Financial Sec'y: Mrs. Herman Koontz, 105 Otterview Ave., Ghent, Roanoke, Va.

Treas.: Mrs. Orville A. Lorenz, Meyersdale, Pa.
Literature Sec.: Mrs. Lilly A. Monroe, 1234 E. 60th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

The following recommendations were presented and adopted:

I. The W.M.C. to delay the adoption of a constitution and follow the present By-Laws as our guide for another year.

II. A committee of three be appointed by the committee on committees to confer with three members of the Executive Board, to form a constitution during the coming year, seeking expert advice from well qualified persons.

III. That we undertake the erection of the Clayhole parsonage as our Home Missions project for this coming year.

IV. That we use representative banks for the four major offerings during the year.

V. Our W.M.C. adopt as our colors silver and blue; the silver for redemption and the blue for consecration; with the Scripture: Eph.2:8-10.

VI. Our slogan for the year:

WALKING W. WORKING MORE M. MORE CLOSELY C. CONSISTENTLY

VII. Program committee shall consist of the vice-president as chairman and two other members chosen by the Executive Board.

VIII. Mrs. A. B. Kidder shall be retained as editor for the ensuing year. Our main topic for the coming year is "Glorifying God."

Mrs. Roy A. Patterson was elected to represent the W.M.C. on the Brethren Missionary Herald Board of Directors.

The W.M.C. is happy to announce 119 delegates present and a free will offering of $63.23. This is some $25.00 more than a fee of 25 cents would have realized.

May we say that the Lord has certainly showered His blessings upon us, full and overflowing this past year. May we continue to work and pray that we will be found worthy to ask and receive and to glorify Him.

Mrs. Carl Andlauer, Sec'y.

OBJECTIVES FOR 1940-41

I. Four major offerings:

- September—Our National Expense Fund.
- October Need $920
- November
- December—Bozoum Seminary for Native Evangelists.
- January Need $800
- February
- March—Grace Theological Seminary.
- April Need $500
- May
- June—Home Missions
- July Need $500
- August

II. Scrap books made for mission study.

III. Daily prayer cards for home and foreign Missionaries.

IV. That we encourage daily Bible reading with number of chapters reported at each council meeting.

V. That we encourage definite witnessing to the unsaved on the part of every Council.

VI. That we urge our women to aid in getting The Brethren Missionary Herald into every home in the church.

Explanation of Objectives

Let us first explain our offerings. The plan is changed somewhat; instead of scattering the offerings about as heretofore, they have been spread over the year in an orderly arrangement. For the first three months we shall be concentrating on our National Expense Fund, which replaces the January and July Administrative Offerings. It has been found necessary to pay more to The Brethren Missionary Herald if we are to continue having a church paper, so instead of $35.00 per month we have agreed to pay $60.00. This is not in any sense a payment for space; but is rather a matter of getting behind our Publishing Board just as we do the other boards. So $720.00 will be needed for this purpose and we have added only $200.00 for our mimeograph expense, postage, and other needs.

Then in December, January and February we will make an effort to raise our Foreign Mission Fund of $800.00 for support of the school which trains native workers. Last year we supported the Bouca work, but it was deemed wise to vary the objectives; and because of war conditions we felt the work chosen for our support to be of great importance.

We placed the need of Grace Seminary at $500.00 before we knew that was the amount really raised last year by our women. Some funds were sent direct to the seminary and of course we do not get credit as a W.M.C. for such payments. Please send your offerings through your Council treasury. Do not give them to the visiting speaker to turn in.

The home mission project is fully explained elsewhere; but again we set the amount before our thank offering came in; we must do better than we have named or fall behind this year.

The scrap books for mission study are to be made by each local council; gathering information from any source available—both pictures and reading matter; using your own plan of arrangement, and making use of the material as a mission study; then bringing or sending your book to National Conference, where we will have an exhibit.

The prayer cards may be made as attractive as your ladies see fit—one or more given to each member, and exchanged monthly.

We do urge our women to read the Bible each day; but we realize that many are teachers who do much reading and study of God's Word along the line of their work, so we have not set up a definite portion of Scripture for reading, but ask that you keep a record of chapters read through the year, reporting the total for your Council, so that recognition may be made at National Conference.

The witnessing to the unsaved may be made by word of mouth, by tract distribution, or whatever method best suits the individual case; but surely we who are sending the good news to Africa and South America must not fail to spread it at home.

Getting subscriptions to The Brethren Missionary

Herald this year will possibly enable us to cut down our contribution to this cause, and release our money for other purposes.

Some Things to Remember

1. Each of the Major offerings should be sent in as soon as the period expires and your money is gathered in. The Home Missions money, period for which includes your August meeting, may be sent to National Conference. Our Financial Sec'y. and Treas. must have all money in hand by July 31st which goes into their yearly reports. These officers have a real job on their hands, and only our co-operation will make it possible for them to have a full report.
2. Send all money lifted in your Council to Mrs. H. W. Koontz. It will always go to the proper place.
3. Send the list of your new officers immediately to Mrs. Mrs. A. B. Kidder after your elections.
4. Send to Mrs. Kidder all names of sisters of W.M.C who have been promoted to glory during the year.
5. Our Prayer Chairman for the year will be Mrs. Arthur Carey, Freeport, Mich.

W. M. C. PRAYER REQUESTS

Song—Jesus Calls Us.

President to read the Scripture—Rom.12:1,2.

Remarks by the President:

We come at this time to renew our membership in the W.M.C. for another year. Realizing the gracious privilege that is ours in being able to serve our blessed Lord in this capacity, we humbly bow in His presence. Our prayer is that He may cleanse our lives and use us to His glory.

Have all members read in unison the pledge on the membership card; lay their membership cards on table in front of the cross, and kneel for prayer and dedication.

Instructions: Use a cross (one of crepe paper and cardboard will do); place it upright on the table. The cross should be the dominating feature of the meeting.

After the prayer of dedication by the president, all the members will join in singing the song. Have Thine Own Way, Lord.

The secretary should sit at the table by the cross, placing the gold star on each individual card presented.

The Growing Christian

"Grow in Grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior
Jesus Christ—2 Peter 3:18

LETTERS TO A COUSIN By A. D. Cashman

Dear Cousin Bert:

You certainly have raised a timely question in your recent letter when you asked about nations going to war and what the Christian's attitude should be about bearing arms. I am often asked these days if I believe that our nation should prepare against invasion and I must answer in the affirmative. It is the only way unregenerate people have of protecting themselves against their enemies. The command of the Bible to nations who know nothing of depending on God's supernatural wall of protection by faith, is to "prepare war, * * * beat your plowshares into swords, and your pruninghooks into spears" (Joel 3:9-10). But while the Christian is in the world, he is not of the world. He must not participate in the tactics used by this world system. In fact, there are a number of definite passages so strong that the members of several denominations refuse to bear arms and are known as conscientious objectors. I was greatly pleased the other day when I read that the government will still recognize the rights of these conscientious objectors.

I am sorry to say that there are many members of these religious bodies who have no business objecting to the bearing of arms on Biblical grounds. I say this because they ignore the Word of God on other matters and are no different than worldlings, so why not bear arms? They do not pray nor read their Bibles. They attend church only occasionally when other affairs do not interfere. They are seldom, if ever, at the communion service, and give nothing to the church budget or for missions. They revel in the ungodly pleasures of this world, have their companionships with the unregenerate, and practice sinful habits all out of harmony with God's will. So they do not claim exemption from bearing arms on spiritual grounds, but rather because they are cowards and would seek exemption on any excuse. This has brought considerable criticism upon our stand, and rightly so. Many church officials will not sign exemption papers for church members who have proven that their lives are only an empty profession.

I will do my best to explain to you the Scriptural basis for our stand against carnal warfare. A very strong passage is recorded in 2 Cor. 10:2-4. It reads as follows: "For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war according to the flesh (for the weapons of our warfare are not after the flesh, but mighty before God to the casting down of strongholds)". But notice also Eph. 6:12 "For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against the powers, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual hosts of heavenly places." When Christians spend their efforts and time in this sort of warfare, they have their hands full, and they have no desire to join the unregenerate world in carnal strife.

Recall also the rebuke the Lord gave Peter when Peter thought he had real grounds to resort to carnal methods of defense for his Lord. Jesus said to him, "Put up again thy sword into his place; for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword" (Jn. 18:11). If a Christian wants to use a sword, there is but one permissible, and that is the one spoken of in Eph. 6:17, "the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God." As the old colored preacher said, "there is only one kind of pistol for the child of God to use and that is the pistol of the 'postles.'" At another time Jesus said, "The Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them" (Lk. 9:56). In the preceding verse, Jesus implies that His disciples should be of the same spirit.

There are those who will quote Mt. 10:34 as proof that Jesus taught that resistance with armament is permissible, because He said "Think not that I am come to send peace on the earth; I am come not to send peace but a sword." Anyone reading the context would know that Jesus was not thinking of a literal sword but the division that would come in homes where some would be Christian and some would not. And no one should be misled about the two swords in the Lk. 22:35-38 section because Jesus refused to allow Peter to use one of them when there seemed to have been just cause to do so.

No doubt you will be interested in knowing that our denomination has passed several resolutions concerning our position on war and that they have been filed with the President of the United States, Secretary of War and with the Department of Justice at Washington, D. C. Among other things incorporated in those resolutions, the following closing part manifests a Christian attitude that ought to be properly respected everywhere: "We recognize and appreciate the protection of the flag of the United States. To the nation that God has ordained (Rom. 13:1-7) to afford us protection we gladly offer our service, time, money, and life itself if necessary, to bind up its wounds, or to heal its sorrows, by any means or methods our Lord Jesus Christ has approved for the use of those who follow Him." I like that spirit, don't you Bert? There is no reason why we should not give our services in a program of construction even though we have religious scruples against participating in the world's program of destruction.

I hope I have answered your questions and have satisfied your mind on this important matter. If there are other things about which you would like to write me, do not hesitate to do so, because it is a pleasure for me to help you.

As ever, your cousin ART.

"My concern is not whether God is on our side, my great concern is to be on God's side, for God is always right.

It was written of Jesus, "He went about doing good." The trouble with most of us is that it can only be written of us, "He went about."

Let each of us turn the searchlight upon our own lives. Let us consider our own mistakes and faults. Let us be critical of ourselves. When we get through that job we will have no time left to be critical of the faults of others.

PERSECUTION, THE RECORD— ECCLESIASTICAL AND POLITICAL

After the Norman conquest, Jews flocked to England, attracted by its economic possibilities. The Norman kings extorted large sums from them, who in turn were made to charge high rates of interest, and thus came to be viewed as hated money lenders. No doubt this laid the foundation for the present mounting disfavor of the Jews amongst the English speaking peoples. Even here, charges of ritual murder (see last month) were made. These ecclesiastical charges culminated in systematic massacres at the crowning of Richard I, 1189, and at his departure for the third crusade. King John Lackland raised funds by imprisoning and torturing Jews. Henry III taxed them to the extent of one third of their property. Thus England today, though reputedly a friend of the Jew, suffers under the curse of God (Gen.12:3) and often has the sword been found in her hand.

In the German provinces, Frederick Barbarossa shut up the Jews and made them his wards, thus saving them from the crazed, crusading rabble. For this, the Jews were made to pay a high price. They became known as "Exchequer Jews." Frederick II completed the process by making them his chattels—mere objects. In Spain, too, they were the property of the king.

The Fourth Lateran Synod, 1215, established the rule for the application of "salutary force" to all Jews who, converted to Catholicism on pain of death, later renounced it. All heretics, Waldenses, Albigenses, etc., were to feel the power of this weapon. It was vested in the Dominican Order, or friar preachers called "the barking dogs of the Lord" who undertook the persecution of heretics and people of alien creeds, especially Jews. The tribunals worked in secret and had recourse to torture to elicit "the truth." As the church abhorred bloodshed, the poor, condemned people were turned over to secular authorities for sentences. And how the blood flowed! Trials for ritual murder increased.

Next emerged the charge of desecration of the host. Jews were charged with stealing holy wafers and piercing them. This was the same as piercing Christ. In 1298, Jews of Rottingen, Bavaria, were accused of poisoning a holy wafer in a mortar. A German nobleman declared he had a call from heaven to avenge the dead. He gathered a band of men together and set to work to kill all the Jews in the town. Then he went through the territory plundering and destroying nearly 140 Jewish settlements.

About 1320 in Southern France, a young herdsman declared the Virgin told him to raise an army. It consisted of herdsmen, tramps, and peasants headed by two unfrocked priests. This Shepherd Crusade massacred Jews by the hundred, took their children from them and baptised them, and wiped out 120 communities. In order to stop them on their career of murder and rapine, Pope John XII ordered them disbanded. About the same time epidemics of poisoning broke out, and the Jews were accused of poisoning the wells. Five thousand died for a charge that was later found by the government to be false. Whereupon the Jews were fined 150,000 livres. They even had to be punished for being innocent.

About 1350 the Black Death raged across Europe. 25 million fell before it. The cause? Duke Amadeus of Savoy had the surgeon Belavigny tortured until he confessed he had poisoned the water. This was the poison: a mixture of snakes, frogs, scorpions, holy wafers, and Christians' hearts. After this explanation, thousands of Jews were burned to death. In Switzerland, they were broken on the wheel, hanged, and burned to death. In Germany, Alsace, and the Rhine provinces, similar treatment was accorded. In Strasburg, 2,000 were shut up in a wooden shed and burned. In Mayence, 6,000 of them committed themselves to the flames. And in this manner nearly 300 Jewish communities were destroyed. By 1496, practically all Jews in France had been driven out.

In Spain, about 1400, a "Holy War" was instigated against Jews and Moors. The leader wiped out a community of 30,000 in Seville. 70 other communities were destroyed. About 30,000 were baptized. These became Marranos—members of a church, but not of a faith. They continued in secret all the rites of Jewry. But later they were discovered. Then arose the cry, "The church is being undermined from within."

This paved the way for the "Holy Inquisition," which lasted from 1480 to 1810. This is almost too hideous to describe. A tribunal of six—two Dominicans, one Abbot, a treasury official, and two royal officials, informed the accused of what he was charged and then he was submitted to all forms of torture to prove the charge. His property was confiscated. His sentence ranged from imprisonment in a dungeon to burning at the stake. There were no legal proceedings, no examination of the charges, no appeal. In Seville, 15,000 Marranos (baptized Jews, suspected of Judaizing) were arrested and placed in subterranean galleries for torture. Then in the public square the death sentence was carried out by the burning of thousands at the stake. In Aragon, 1486, Feb. 12, 750 burned at the stake; Apr. 2, 900; May 2, 750. Streams of fugitives left Spain. The entire middle class of

STUDIES IN THE HEBREW EPISTLE

"Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have Eternal Life; and they are they which testify of me"—John 5:39.

Chapter V. Study No. VI. Ord Gehman

Reluctantly we take leave of the hallowed presence of the Son of God as our great High Priest in chapter IV. Turning the steps of our minds into the ensuing chapter we discover the opening verses of a lengthy passage dealing, in the main, with a thorough discussion further of the High Priestly position of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

As we study the High Priest of the Old Testament we find that there were some definite requirements and obligations which were involved. It is to be noted that the high priest from among men is ordained for the purpose of standing between God and men pertaining to the things of God. It was his duty to take the things of men and present them unto God, whether they be gifts or sacrifices for sin. The individual standing in such a great and weighty position before God and men needed to realize that God's call and not man's choice was the primary factor. God's especial servants need a real divine compulsion to do God's will. Every effort of man without the unction of the Holy Spirit is bound to Spain had vanished. 100,000 fugitives entered Portugal.

In Portugal their treatment might be compared to Dante's Inferno. They were allowed to stay eight months, but paid a head tax in gold. The king because of epidemics made them leave earlier. They were treated like beasts on the ships. Those who couldn't get a ship were given away or sold into slavery. Their children were taken from them. Mothers with children flung themselves into the sea. All Jewish children between 14 and 20 years were to be baptized at Easter. Numbers of parents committed suicide after killing their children. The baptism took place amid scenes of indescribable horror. The applicants were dragged to the baptismal fonts by means of ropes tied to the hair of their heads.

Thus in three centuries the Jews had been ejected from England, France, Spain, Portugal, and a great portion of Germany. They had been left on the way-side, hanged, slaughtered, drowned, burned at the stake, and broken on the wheel by the hundreds of thousands. Here was a load of debt, accumulated over centuries, that the western nations must pay and from which also the Roman Church is not absolved. That of which Moses spoke in Deut.28 has befallen the Jew, and that of which God told Abraham (Gen.12:3) must befall the nations which have cursed the Jew. Who can read these accounts emblazoned on the pages of history and not feel a deep well of pity arising for "Israel, mine elect" (Isa.45:4)?

detrimental failure. In the vindication of his own apostleship, Paul said: "For though I preach the gospel, I have nothing to glory of: for necessity is laid upon me; yea, woe is me if I preach not the gospel!" (I Cor. 9:16). To which every heaven-born servant of the Most High can humbly say, "Amen!"

The high priest was taken from among men in order that he would be in position to be able to extend toward ignorant and erring men a godly compassion, by reason of the fact that he was compassed about by the very same things of infirmity. He who has never borne the sting of ridicule and misunderstanding can never feel deeply with those who do. He who has never learned in his own heart the secret of the abiding love of an able Christ cannot be of help to those who need Him in times of stress. He who realizes his own infirmities and incapacities can better impart the secret of God's abundant grace. Paul had a troublesome "thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan" to buffet him, lest he should become "exalted above measure." But from it all he learned that God's grace was sufficient for his every need. "Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Christ may rest upon me" (cf. II Cor. 12:7-10). Each of life's bitter lessons tends only to drive God's true children closer to His great heart of love. And no child of faith has ever yet been disappointed in his time of need.

There is one other important factor needed for efficiency in God's servant. He must be one who realizes his own need. It is comparatively easy in human frailty to realize the other person's needs, but one's own is a different matter. Isaiah cried out, "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts" (Isa. 6:5). No high priest's service could have been or was effectual until he had learned this vital truth.

So much for the high priest taken from among men. One day, in God's omnipotent wisdom, when the spiritual needs of men were not being met, God sent forth His only begotten Son to become such an eternal High Priest for us who, by His grace, are the heirs of eternal salvation. Praise His dear name! Throughout all eternity we shall be reminded continually that Christ came to make propitiation for the sins of the world (Rev. 5:6). And it was only accomplished by the death of our precious Christ upon Calvary's rugged tree. Christ took upon Himself the likeness of sinful flesh, not sinful flesh (cf. Phil. 2:5-8), in order that He might become "obedient unto death, even the death of the cross."

The author of this Epistle here alludes to the Melchizedekian priesthood of the Old Testament. Melchizedek, about whom we know very little, becomes an excellent type of Christ. Gen. 14, (the chapter which the higher critics, so-called have tried so hard to discredit) vs. 18 mentions Melchizedek as the King of Salem and the priest of the Most High God. Since our attention is focused on Christ's priestly ministry, let us notice that He "offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears unto Him that was able to save Him from death." We once again witness Christ in the Garden of Gethsemane as He prayed, while "His sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground" (Lk. 22:44b). Hear that agonizing prayer: "Father, if Thou be willing, remove this cup from Me: nevertheless, not My will, but Thine, be done" (Lk. 22:42). Even though the Lord Jesus Christ was God's only begotten Son, yet "learned He obedience by the things which He suffered" (v. 8). It was through this very obedience to the will of the Father that He was made perfect, becoming the Author of eternal salvation to all them that obey Him. Thus, our obedience unto

The Power of the Printed Page

The object of this article is to make a plea for the printed page, as a means of bringing the world to Christ; and of building up the churches.

I. The Printed Page Goes Where the Living Voice Cannot Go.

A colporteur in Central Missouri called at the house of a farmer noted for his violent opposition to churches and all things religious. The family were not at home, so he put under the door a four-page tract, such as he thought would do good to the man or any of his household, if they should read it. On entering the door, the farmer was the first to see the tract, and picking it up, crushed it in his hand and was about to throw it into the fire; but suddenly a better impulse seized him, and he determined to sit down and read what these Christians were going around and putting under the doors of people's houses. The result was that he sent for the colporteur to come and instruct him in the way of life; the colporteur baptized the whole household, and organized a church in the neighborhood. The little tract had prepared the way of the Lord. If the colporteur had gone at first in person, he would doubtless have been repulsed perhaps insulted.

Rev. G. J. Johnson preached one evening in a church in Pennsylvania, and in his sermon spoke of a little book, "The Blood of Jesus," by William Reid of Scotland. He noticed that a family near the pulpit became agitated at the mention of the book, and learned after the service from the pastor that the little book had been used of God to bring that whole family to Christ. They were * * * trusting in good works * * * for salvation, until a friend sent them "The Blood of Jesus" to read. From it they learned, for the first time, that they could be completely saved by the blood of Jesus, and they were soon all rejoicing in His "finished" salvation. The book had gone where no Protestant preacher would have been welcomed, carrying with it light and life; and there are hundreds of homes that would drive from their doors one who came to preach the blood of Jesus. They may receive and read the truth. It is our duty to give it to them.

Addison, the great English author, is said to have

Christ, His will and His Word becomes the earnest of our eternal inheritance in Him.

The writer closes this chapter with an illusion to a very simple, yet meaningful truth of spiritual growth. There were many more things the author wanted to mention but those to whom he wrote were spiritually incapable. For at the very time that many of them should have been themselves teachers of the precious truths of God's Word, they had need to be re-taught the "first principles of the oracles of God" (v. 12).

Some one has very aptly referred to "spiritual monstrosities"; those who have never developed beyond the place of babyhood in spiritual things. After years of teaching they still are not able to assimilate more than the milk of the Word. Let us, brethren, open our hearts to the veritable and unchanging truths of God's Word and manifest real spiritual growth. God is ready and able; are we willing?

been converted by a tract sent to his home under a cake by a Christian baker. We have heard of a dis-solute cobbler who was converted by reading part of a tract which he found between the soles of a shoe he was mending. A carpenter, in tearing down an old house, read a torn tract which he found in a rat's nest, and declared that it was the means of the conviction which led to his conversion. An infidel young man in North Carolina, who never went to church, was sauntering one beautiful Lord's Day along the shore of a pond, and for the lack of something else to do, picked up some torn pieces of paper which had been thrown from a fisherman's basket, and amused himself by putting them together and reading them. He saw written there his doom as a sinner, and hastened to seek the counsel of an earnest Christian.

Truly, these leaves for the healing of the nations can go where the voice cannot reach, and we need to scatter them far and wide that they may be all the time doing their work of mercy.

II. The Printed Page Is Often More Permanent In Its Influence than the Living Voice.

If John Bunyon had not written, we should doubtless be ignorant of the fact that such a man ever lived. Luther took hold of the printing press and made the Reformation permanent. No wonder then—said: "If we do not put down this printing press, it will put us down." Richard Baxter was converted by reading a book, and such a man is apt to want to do good by writing a book himself; so he wrote his "Call to the Unconverted," which Philip Doddridge read and was converted. Doddridge wrote "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul," which led William Wilberforce to Christ. Wilberforce wrote "Practical View to Christianity," by means of which Leigh Richmond became a Christian; and Leigh Richmond wrote a little tract called "The Dairyman's Daughter," which has been translated into more than a hundred languages, and millions of them have been circulated. More than one thousand persons are known to have been led to Christ by reading "The Dairyman's Daughter." To it I owe my first act of consecration to Christ.

Reading Buchanan's "Star in the East" sent Adoniram Judson to preach the Gospel to the heathen, so that all the results of his work can be traced to that small book. It may be that eternity will reveal to Mr. Buchanan more permanent results from the influence of his little book than from all the other forces of his life combined.

III. The Printed Page Is More Easily Diffused than the Living Voice.

Busy men and women, who cannot leave their work, may distribute the printed Gospel.

In a busy railroad town a ticket agent was converted, so he decided to supply himself with gospel tracts and give one with every ticket he sold. In five years he distributed $250.00 worth of tracts, and received letters from 22 persons, saying they had been led to Christ by reading them.

A druggist in Indiana testifies that he has known of not a few conversions through tracts, which he sent into homes with his medicines. A devoted Christian, who is a member of a church in Baltimore, has served God in this way for many years, and he says he has seen most encouraging results.

A wealthy lady went one evening into her kitchen to see what the servants were doing. She found one of them absorbed in reading something, and on looking to see what it was her eye fell upon the word "Eternity" at the head of a tract. It went like an arrow to her soul, and she had no rest until she found it in Him who, through His death and resurrection, gives hope for eternity.

A timid young woman was distributing tracts the sailors of New York. She came upon a group of rough men, who were swearing savagely about something. Afraid to speak to them, she laid down among them a tract entitled "The Swearer's Prayer." A young man picked it up and began to read it. Its first sentences brought to mind the home and parents he had left, and he made up his mind at once to quit the sea and become a Christian. He went up to Albany, N. Y., and entered the prayer meeting of the Pearl Street Baptist Church, of which Rev. Bartholomew T. Welch was pastor, and asked Christian people to pray for him. He was soon converted and licensed to preach. For years he has worked through the Northwest, and one who knows him says that not less than 10,000 souls have been saved through his labors. What a result from a little tract given by a timid woman!

IV. The Printed Page Is Sometimes More Powerful than the Living Voice.

The printed word comes with a quiet, persuasive power. It has no repulsive manner. Attention is not attracted from the truth to the way in which it is delivered. It persistently presents its claims and makes no angry reply.

A young man in a town of Central New York was distressed at the low state of religion in the place. He bought 1000 tracts and gathered about him a small company of earnest Christians, who prayerfully distributed them. The result was a revival, in which more than 50 were converted, 30 of whom traced their first impressions to the tracts.

At a religious reading club in a New Hampshire village, it was the turn of a worldly young woman to read on the evening when the tract, already mentioned, "The End of Time," was to be read. Before she was half through there came over her such a sense of guilt and danger that she had to request another to finish it. In the language of one who reported the incident: "The tract was read, but the end of time and the realities of eternity were brought into close connection with the scenes of that evening. The influence extended from heart to heart, from family to family, through the neighborhood, and in the short space of a few weeks most of those persons who first listened to the reading of the tract, and more than 60 others, were led to place their hopes of salvation on Jesus Christ." An earnest preacher had labored for years in this town with little results, and died without reaping any sheaves. "God uses a little tract," continues our reporter, "to do what 40 years of preaching had failed to accomplish, and now that town enjoys a living church."

This is a reading age, and men reach conclusions by reading rather than by listening. The great object of preaching is to move them to act. We must still depend, as in apostolic times, on the pen for indoctrination. Rich men need to wake up to the importance of spending money in supporting the printed as well as the spoken Gospel. The objection that people do not read sermons or strictly religious articles is not well taken. It is a very moderate statement to say that any man whose sermons are published mul-tiplies his congregation by two, while in most cases he multiplies it by at least 10, and in some cases by 10,000.

Evangelization is simply bringing the truths of the Gospel in contact with the people. That is our part, the rest is with God. We cannot convert men through the press any more than from the pulpit; in both cases we must simply proclaim the truth, and trust God to cause it to germinate and bring forth fruit. Of course, there is waste. The parable of the sower would lead us to expect at least three-fourths of the seed to be lost. So there seems to be an immense waste of words and energy in the pulpit. But we must be willing to waste, or else we shall do nothing.

If I had the money, I would fill at least a column of every daily paper in this land with saving gospel truth. If the editors would not publish it as reading matter, then I would insert it as advertisements, and make the way to heaven so plain that every reader would have no excuse for being lost.

For this purpose all who have money should be ready to contribute liberally to the treasury of the Lord for this important work. —Christian Workers Magazine.

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

HOW A FATHER SAVED HIS CHILDREN

By Verla Aakjer

A father with his little boy and girl lived in a tenement house in one of our large cities. The mother had died and the father did not have enough money to take care of the children while he was gone.

Soon after he left for work one morning the building caught on fire, and the children were trapped on the 12th floor. It did not take long for the father to hear of the fire, and he rushed home. Seeing only one way to save his children he did not hesitate. He hurried to the 12th floor of an adjoining building and quickly opened the window opposite his own apartment. He leaned out of the window until he caught hold of his own window sill, keeping his legs securely fastened to the other window ledge. By doing this he made a bridge between the two buildings.

The little boy and then the little girl went safely across the human bridge to the people waiting for them in the next building. Before the father could regain his upright position he became so exhausted from the flames that he fell to the ground below. The two children dearly loved their father because he gave his own life to save them.

The love of this father reminds me of our loving heavenly Father. The only way we could be saved from going to the place of eternal fire was for God to send His Son, the Lord Jesus, to die in our place. When you think of all He had to go through for you to be saved, don't you think you should love Him very much? The best way to show Him that you love Him is to tell someone else about how He came to save sinners.

NEWS FROM THE BOYS AND GIRLS AT CONFERENCE

Dear boys and girls:

We want to tell those of you who didn't go to Winona Lake of some of the interesting things we enjoyed in our Bible School from 9:00-12:00 every morning of conference week.

One morning Miss Tyson, who is home on furlough from French Equatorial Africa, told us about the boys and girls of Africa. We began bringing our pennies to Bible School, and by the end of the week we had 126 pennies to give to Miss Tyson.

Mrs. Sewell Landrum told us about the boys and girls in Kentucky who live in the mountains. She told us how difficult it is for the boys and girls in the mountains to hear the gospel. That made us appreciate our Sunday Schools and Bible Schools.

We also enjoyed hearing Rev. Clarence Sickel, missionary to South America, tell us of the work in South America. He told us about many boys and girls who are persecuted and ridiculed because of their belief, but they are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ. He also sang, "Jesus Loves Me" and repeated Jn. 3:16 for us in Spanish.

Two Bethany Camp girls gave object talks, and the Biola Trumpeters played a special number, and one of our own Bible School boys played a cornet solo.

Then, too, we heard many Bible stories and object lessons by our teachers, Miss Bertha Kuhn of Sterling, O., and Miss Ethel Morrill of Ellet (Akron), O.

On Saturday, our closing day, those with a perfect attendance record for the week were given Scripture mottoes, and everyone was given an A B C Bible 13af-let.

We hope you will be with us next year!

Sincerely,

The boys and girls of the D.V.B.S. at Winona Lake.

THAT LAWSUIT AGAINST THE BIBLE

By Dr. Harry Rimmer, 88 pages, cloth bound, 50c

While holding meetings in New York, Dr. Harry Rimmer nightly mentioned the Research Science Bureau's offer to pay $1,000 to anyone proving a scientific error in the Bible. Desiring to give the meetings publicity, an attendant inserted in a New York newspaper an advertisement mentioning the offer. A few days later Dr. Rimmer received a letter setting forth without proof five supposed errors of Scripture, all of which are discussed in the book. After waiting only a couple of days for reply, suit for the $1,000 was filed against Dr. Rimmer. When the case came up for trial, the witnesses to testify concerning the alleged scientific errors were not scientists, but unbelievers. Their examination was sometimes as amusing to those in the courtroom as it was embarrassing to themselves. As they were wholly unable to prove any of their charges against the Scripture, it was a glorious victory for the Bible. The details of the trial are recorded in an interesting manner in the book.—G.A.

Day

This Book contains—The mind of God, the state of man, the way of Salvation, the doom of Sinners, and the happiness of Believers. Its doctrines are holy, its precepts are binding, its histories are true, and its decisions are immutable. Read it to be wise, believe it to be safe, and practice it to be holy. It contains light to direct you, food to support you, and comfort to cheer you. It is the traveler's map, the pilgrim's staff, the pilot's compass, the soldier's sword, and the Christian's charter. Here Paradise is restored, Heaven opened, and the gates of hell disclosed. Christ is its grand subject, our good its design, and the glory of God its end. It should fill the memory, rule the heart, and guide the feet. Read it slowly, frequently, prayerfully. It is a mine of wealth, a paradise of glory, and a river of pleasure. It is given you in life, will be opened at the Judgment, and be remembered for ever. It involves the highest responsibility, will reward the greatest labor, and condemn all who trifle with its sacred contents.

I SAW

I saw a human life ablaze with God,
I felt a power divine;
As through an empty vessel of frail clay
I saw God's glory shine!
Then woke I from a dream and cried aloud:
"My Father, give to me
The blessing of a life consumed by God
That I may live for Thee!"

DO THE JEWS CONTROL AMERICA?

A Look at the Facts

(Reprint of a special release distributed by the American Prophetic League of 4747 Townsend Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif. with special permission from Rev. Keith L. Brooks, Pres. Copies may be had at 25c a hundred, by addressing American Board of Missions to the Jews, 27 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Some 800 organizations, foreign and native, are pouring anti-Semitic propaganda into the people of the United States at the present time. It is not strange that thousands of well-meaning Christian people who constantly receive such material through the mails, not having statistics to refute these sensational charges against the Jews, should succumb to prejudice and even fear.

We therefore call to your attention some simple facts, which if kept in mind will demolish all such propaganda. These facts are condensed from a special survey and report made by Fortune Magazine of February 1936.

The Communist Manifesto of 1848 was devised by Karl Marx, a Jew who to his end denounced the Jewish race and disassociated himself from them completely. His co-signer was Friedrich Engels, a German. Nicolai Lenin, Russia's Red leader, was not a Jew and denounced the Jews for opposing him.

Russia is controlled by 13 leaders, only one a Jew. Of the 19 Commissars four are Jews.

Communism in the U. S. is led by Browder, Hathaway, Ford, Minor, Haywood, Bedacht and Mother Bloor—none of them Jews. In New York City, the world's largest Jewish city, only about 1,000 Jews belong to the Communist Party. In a thickly settled Jewish district, Earl Browder himself running for Congress could not muster enough votes to make a showing.

There are in the United States today over 4,000,000 Jews. Of this number, over 2,000,000, or more than half, are in New York City. Every third man in New York City is a Jew! There are five times as many Jews in New York City as in all of Great Britain and Ireland, four times as many as in Germany when Hitler came to power. One-third doctors and lawyers of New York are Jewish, their proportion of the population.

Jews do not control U. S. banking. Of 420 directors of the 19 member concerns of N. Y. Clearing House—30 Jews. In the largest banks of New York there are no Jews at all in spite of the fact that many of their customers are Jews.

Investment houses of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Speyer & Co., Seligman and Co., Thallman and Co., and Lehman Bros.—the largest Jewish concerns—do not compare in power with Gentile firms like J. P. Morgan & Co., National City Co., Dillon-Read, Chase-Harris-Forbes Co., Guarantee Co., Bankamerica. The Morgan Co. does nearly 20 per cent of all the foreign loan business; Kuhn, Loeb & Co., the highest Jewish concern, only 2.88 per cent, and this company is part Gentile in control.

Of the 1375 member concerns of the New York Stock Exchange, 252 are Jews. This is 18 per cent.

The number of Jews in Federal positions is lower than their percentage in the population. There are few Jews in high administrative and policy-making posts and most of these are distinguished for efficient service.

Jews have a subordinate place in the field of heavy industry (Scrap iron business 90 per cent Jews); No influence in auto industry, coal mining, rubber, oil, chemicals, shipping, transportation, railroad, ship building, airplane building; found only in light industries, largely the distributing end.

Underwear and dress-cutting and men's clothing, high percentage Jews. Department Stores of N. Y. City largely Jewish, but in Chicago the largest concerns are non-Jewish. Chain stores only 5 per cent Jewish. Mail order business is non-Jewish. Drug store chains 10 per cent.

In movies Jews control 3 of 8 principal companies. Of 85 names engaged in production, 53 are Jews.

New York Times, largest newspaper, Jewish owned, but considered one of most reliable papers. Associated Press with 1300 papers, not a single Jew. United Press, no Jews. International News Service owned by Hearst. Of 916 papers in 544 cities of over 15,000, only 33 Jewish controlled.

This should be sufficient to show that Jews do not dominate the American scene. Were they more evenly distributed throughout the country, their presence would be scarcely noticed.

Remember that even among Christian publishers there are those who circulate the anti-Jewish propaganda of outright Jew-baiting agencies. Beware of those who constantly crusade against Communism, but make use of Nazi anti-Jewish propaganda.

The Northern Ohio Premillennial Fellowship, of which Rev. C. W. Mayes is President, met in the W. Tenth St. Brethren Church of Ashland, O., Monday afternoon and evening, Sept. 16. Dr. Arthur I. Brown, well-known surgeon of Vancouver, B. C., for the past 15 years a Bible lecturer, spoke to an assembly of ministers and their wives in the afternoon and addressed a mass meeting of 400 from many churches in Northern Ohio.

L. L. Grubb will leave his pastorate of several years at Rittman, O., to become pastor of our new church at Hagerstown, Md. sometime in October.

Arthur Carey, for several years pastor of the Campbell Brethren Church near Lake Odessa, Mich., will leave his work there to take over the Rittman pastorate.

The Brethren Church of Ellet (Akron), O., under the direction of the pastor Raymond E. Gingrich, began another year of weekly Sunday morning broadcasting over station WJW, Akron, Sept. 15.

Churches securing new pastors, and pastors having changes of addresses, and all having other information needed for the conference annual, should send same to The Brethren Missionary Herald Company immediately. The material is to be sent to the printer just as soon as it can be assembled, so please do not delay. Promptness in attending to this will considerably lessen the work of those responsible for the annual. Material not in our hands within the next two weeks at the latest is likely to be too late to be included.

A young woman whose father's ill health makes it necessary for her to earn her own way through high school in order to graduate, is attempting to do so by collecting used postage stamps of the various denominations other than the common 3c stamp. Those living in the west and desiring to help her attain her goal may send the stamps to Frances Jean Naher, 4251 E. 4th St., Long Beach, Calif. ## FROM THE FIELD

THE FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH OF
LONG BEACH, CALIF.

We have been so busy drinking in Bible conferences, growing and "stepping forward," that we fear we have neglected shouting about it sufficiently loud to be heard beyond the confines of Southern California.

Particularly are we rejoicing in the growth of the work outside of the walls of Fifth and Cherry, the home base. A glance at the accompanying picture of our branch Sunday School in Naples (in the eastern part of Long Beach) will illustrate, more than words, what we mean by "growth." This Sunday School was opened in June, 1939, under the leadership of one of our own young men, Ralph Colburn, who has completed his course in the Bible Institute of Los Angeles. Under his direction, with the help of the Holy Spirit and a few consecrated young folks, the attendance of this Sunday School has trebled in the one year of its history. At the beginning of the work, there were 22 present, all meeting in one class. Now, there are six classes. The work is self-supporting as to running expenses. A morning church service is held each Sunday, and a mid-week prayer meeting, both with a good attendance. Also, Brother Colburn has opened Intermediate and Young People's meetings on Sunday evenings in Seal Beach, adjacent to Naples. The Lord is using him greatly among the young people of these two communities.

As to the home Church at Fifth and Cherry, though our pastor, Dr. Louis S. Bauman, has, of necessity, been absent more than usual during the past year, we have been well taken care of by our associate pastor, Brother Pearce, and the men of God secured for our pulpit.

Mrs. Lewis E. Andrews, Church Correspondent.

FIRST BRETHREN CHURCH
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

On Monday morning, July 1, our 16th annual Summer Bible School assembled at the church with our pastor, Bro. A. V. Kimmell, in charge. There were 80 children and 15 teachers present, making a total attendance on the opening day of 95. Our highest attendance was 92 children and 15 teachers; and our average attendance for the three weeks was 86 children and 14 teachers, total 100.

Bro. Kimmell had the opening exercises and devotions from 9:00 to 9:30. We also had as guest speakers our own missionary, Miss Elizabeth Tyson, and our Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Carl Seitz.

On Friday, July 19, which was decision day, 35 boys and girls accepted the Lord Jesus Christ as their Savior.

Our school closed with commencement exercises on Wednesday evening, July 24. This was well attended by the parents and friends of the Summer Bible School. The picnic was held at a nearby park on Friday, July 26, with 75 children and 14 teachers attending.

We had a wonderful corps of teachers, who faithfully taught these children the fundamental truths of God's Word.

On the same morning, July 1, we held our first Summer Bible School at our new location at the tent at Oxford Ave. and Knorr Sts. This work was in charge of Mrs. Laura Frank as principal. There were 27 children present on the opening day with four teachers; highest attendance 45 children, average attendance 38.

This Bible School was not only a new venture for us, but also a very new thing in this neighborhood. The children were so delighted with the school that they wanted to come all summer. The parents of these children were amazed at the work accomplished in the space of three short weeks. 16 boys and girls accepted the Lord Jesus as their personal Savior.

The picnic for this branch of the work was also held in a nearby park on Wednesday, July 24.

Waiting

By Martha Snell Nicholson

There is a strange hush in my soul
A stirring in my heart,
A singing eagerness for flight
As one who would depart,

And in the sentient, waiting air
A hint of brushing wings . . .
Strain against my fetters and
The pull of earthly things.

There is a quickening sense of light.
Of dawns about to break,
As glory paints the morning sky
To bid the earth awake.

Come quickly, Lord, and break our bonds
At last, and set us free,
And soaring, we shall rise, and dwell
Forevermore with Thee!

EDITORIALS

By Louis S. Bauman, Editor

"The Tragedy Of It All"

A few days ago the missionary editor was in Waterloo, Ia. conducting a Bible conference under the auspices of the Waterloo Bible Institute. The meetings were held in that great well known church—the Walnut St. Baptist Church—of which Dr. Robert T. Ketcham is the pastor. One day, while talking with Dr. Ketcham, he told us of the foreign missionary situation in the Baptist Church. He called our attention to the fact that 8,000 Baptist churches who are still holding to the Northern Baptist Convention are undergoing a terrific decline in their foreign missionary activities, while the comparatively small group of Fundamentalist Baptist churches operating under the name of the "General Association of Regular Baptist Church (North)" have been witnessing a tremendous increase in foreign missionary interest, and, of course, in missionary giving.

And what is true of foreign missionary endeavor in that church is likewise true in home missionary endeavor.

Dr. Ketcham expresses his opinion that the "modernistic practices and policies" in the missionary agencies of the Northern Baptist Convention is to blame for this decline. When churches depart from a true gospel faith, a decline in their interest in the salvation of their fellowmen seems to be inevitable. The truth of the matter is, whether some are ready to admit it or not, that an acid test of the faith that is held by a congregation of people, as to whether it is running true to the Word of God, is discerned in its missionary spirit, home and foreign.

Paradoxical as it may seem, when a church departs from salvation on the basis of pure grace and true faith, to a salvation to be won, if it were possible, by keeping the commandments of the law, that church is sure to witness a decline in its interest in the salvation of its fellowmen and therefore in the true social welfare of the world. And this is not to deny, for one moment, that the church that is made up of born again men and women will strive with all its strength to walk uprightly and acceptably within the commandments of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It will do so simply because it is saved—a born again church. A genuine salvation begets commandment keepers, and therefore good works; but commandment keepers and good works do not beget salvation, simply because "by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified" and "all have sinned and come short of the glory of God." Where there is a single failure in the keeping of commandments, the soul is lost. For, as the holy apostle Paul has said: "Whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all" (James 2:10); and where there is human failure and sin, grace must step in.

On another page, with Dr. Ketcham's permission, we are printing an editorial written by him and appearing in The Baptist Bulletin (July, 1940) of which he is editor. This editorial gives Brethren, as well as Baptists, something to think about! The editorial was fittingly entitled "The Tragedy of It All."

Romanism Vs. Protestantism

The battle between the Romish priest and the old fashioned Protestant believer still rages. Especially is this true in poor musty old Latin America. Max-imino Pereira, our national pastor at Laboulaye, has written a brief article on the subject of "Justification by Faith," which appears herein. The only trouble with this article is that it is entirely too short. We are going to urge these national pastors of ours to write more frequently. This article, though brief, is one of the best articles we have received from a missionary for some time.

It is an article very much needed in The Brethren Church at this time. It is not only "the Church of Rome, with its priests and monastic orders" that "stumbles at this doctrine of justification by faith." It is not only the Church of Rome, in which the ordained ministers "classify it (the doctrine of justification) as heresy, believing that it opens the door to go on sinning." We have heard that taught quite frequently very much nearer home. Really, must the converts on our benighted field some of these days be sent our way as missionaries to call us back to God and the faith that avails unto the salvation of sinful men?

That African Bible Conference!

On another page Dr. Floyd W. Taber and Jake Kliever give a unique report of the Bkoro Bible Conference, in which our readers will be greatly interested. We are publishing the notes to the editor that came in connection with this report.

While perhaps those two royal servants of the King did not expect us to publish the personal notes to the editor in connection with this conference, yet certainly they will not object to us doing it, inasmuch as the report would hardly be complete or altogether understandable without publishing the notes they sent with it.

After all, a missionary's life is not uninteresting. Sometimes we could wish that we were away from the turmoil of civilization—"out there" holding Bible conferences in Africa.

But, as Brother Taber puts it, "apart from the joking" here is a fine place for Christian Endeavor So-

The Spirit of Antichrist Continues Rampant Over the World

Japan is devising a "hundred year plan" to counteract the work of Christian missions by spreading Buddhism throughout China. As one looks abroad over the old world today and sees what is going on in Japan, in China, in Germany, in Russia, in Italy, in Spain, and in a number of the smaller countries of the earth, witnessing the spirit of antichrist utterly rampant in those lands, need we marvel that some of us believe that the reign of the antichrist is near? But, thank God, that reign will be short. It must needs be that "that old serpent called the devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world . . . (is to be) cast out into the earth." But, thank God, it is written that, when "the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath," it will be "because he knoweth that he hath but a short time" (Rev. 12:12). Satan is putting up a mighty fight these days, and we believe that it is because he knows, if some pulpiter do not, that his days are numbered. The Lord shall reign, and that right soon!

Troublous Days for Foreign Missionaries

Our sister and friend, Mrs. Howard Nicholson, the poetess of Wilmington, Calif. who has contributed the beautiful poem on the front of the cover, has just permitted us to read a letter to her from some of her very dear missionary friends who signed the letter thus: "The Jacksons." This letter gives us a clear insight to that which many missionaries are passing through in these troubled war days. We quote:

"We have had to close our work in Bulgaria, Europe, because of war. But the greatest thing is the information we received this week from England. As you may remember, we have represented the Spezia Mission for Italy for over 20 years. And for the past 12 years it has enjoyed the protection of Mussolini himself by a proclamation which I printed years ago.

"This is the largest mission work in all Europe, and six weeks ago our Director, Dr. Pullen, was ordered by the Italian government to leave for England with his staff, leaving the big work in the hands of just a few local Italian pastors. This is a shock, for Dr. Pullen has been honored above other men by the government, and now that he has had to get out, it just means that God's plans for and through this work must be complete, for I expect that almost immediately the Vatican will just move in and steal the whole shooting match which comprises millions of dollars worth of buildings, including one girl's orphanage with over 500 orphans in it.

"And the strangest thing is that neither Dr. Pullen nor his staff have landed at England, nor have they been seen or heard of since they were supposed to leave Italy. They were to travel across France, but at that time Germany was warring with France. Where are they?

"Because God has permitted this great mission to be leaderless . . . it comes to me to mean that surely the Lord's coming is nearer than we believe and sure."

After reading this part of the letter from "The Jacksons," I am sure that we will be more impressed than ever with the need of praying very definitely that God shall keep beneath His wings our own missionaries in Africa. Naturally, French Equatorial Africa, being a colony of France, is now caught between the upper and nether millstones. Nevertheless, God is able, and we are praying that our missionaries may continue their work there unhindered. Those poor natives need Christ now more than ever have they needed Him. They need Him now in time as never before, and as always before, they need Him for eternity.

At this writing, we have not heard that our missionaries in Africa have been disturbed. There is always a possibility that they, being Americans may be ordered to move out of a territory that Germany, rather than France, now controls. Should it happen that the exigencies of war, or change of governmental ownership in Africa, cause the removal of our missionaries who are citizens of the great American democracy, let us thank God for the native ministry that has been prepared; and that we believe will carry on until Jesus comes.

If this order shall come, it will be a piece of rather expensive business, but there is still plenty of unoccupied territory in Africa into which our missionaries can go and continue their great service for Jesus Christ. Of course, if England should be conquered and lose her African territories, which is almost unthinkable, we might have a hard time finding any place in Africa to carry on for Christ. But we do not believe that our Lord and Master will let such a thing come to pass as the spiritual blacking-out of one whole continent. We still believe that Adolf Hitler is riding to a fall, and, unless we are at the time of the end, the Italian dictator is doing the same thing. God is still on His throne.

Mighty Fine Skimmed Milk!

We are "making up" this magazine at the conclusion of a Prophetic Bible Conference we have been conducting for the church in Waynesboro, Pa., of which Robert D. Crees is the up-and-going pastor. "A packed house" greeted us each evening. We have had a great time with a great church!

A few months ago, a number of folks left this church, being a part of a movement promoted by a certain so-called "Loyalist League." The remark was then made that "the cream of the First Brethren Church of Waynesboro has left it!" Well, that would mean that that which remains is skimmed milk.

All we can say is, fortunate is the church that possesses plenty of "skimmed milk" of this sort. As we are packing up, a check has just been handed us for foreign missions that will carry the annual offering of this fine little band to somewhere near the $700 mark—the largest in its history! (What would it have been had that "cream" remained) And, the home mission offering of this church has been proportionately among the best in the brotherhood. Watch 'em this coming Thanksgiving!

Then, last, and not least, they handed me a check for my services with them; and if my memory does not fail me, it is the finest bit of "appreciation" that we ever received for a like number of services in any Bible conference; and we usually are very well treated everywhere we go!

"Skimmed milk?" We don't object! Kindly pass the bottle again, please!

"And the Word (Christ) was made flesh and dwelt among us, and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth."—Jn. 1:14.

THINK IT OVER

Of the 12 apostles chosen by Jesus, all but one became a missionary. The only one among the 12 who did not become a missionary became a traitor.

Justification by Faith

By Maximino Periera, Pastor, Laboulaye

Justification by faith in Jesus Christ is the great distance that separates the gospel from all the religions that exist upon this planet. While they seek eagerly to gain pardon for their sins by their good works, and seek to gain heaven by penances, prayers, and supplications, the divine revelation stands, safe and firm as a rock, on that faith by which "the just shall live."

The church of Rome, with its priests and monastic orders stumbles at this doctrine of justification by faith. It is impossible for them to coordinate in their closed minds such divine teaching. They classify it as heresy, believing that it opens the door to go on sinning, and is only a means to deceive the conscience.

Paul, the great apostle to the Gentile world, was a mystic soul with a great zeal for the dispensation of the works of the law, but when the Holy Spirit worked in his Pharasaic soul, he became a great defender of the doctrine of justification by faith in the work of Christ. When the Augustinian friar, Martin Luther, had the privilege to visit Rome, hoping to add to his penances one more of extraordinary value, he began to go on his knees up the steps to the Vatican. When about half way up, he suddenly remembered that he had once read in the Bible that "the just shall live by faith." Ashamed of himself, and of so much fanatical servitude, he went down the steps and had no desire to go up again.

The most powerful weapon wielded by the Church of Rome is the doctrine of justification by works. Not long ago some Dominican friars arrived in a certain city to preach repentance of sins to the inhabitants. After 20 days of preaching, they told the people to go to the confessional. The parish priest of that church had brought in six confessors to hear the confessions of the penitents. Many women and a few men went. One woman had confessed grave sins. She had to go on her knees out of the church and around the courtyard and back into the church. When she returned, her knees were badly cut and bruised. Later infection set in, and the woman died after days of severe suffering.

Another woman confessed serious sins. As penance she was forced to wear next to the flesh a kind of belt of woven wire with sharp points. After suffering this cruel treatment for a while, she tore the thing off and blasphemed the name of God and of the Roman Church and turned atheist. In the latter days of her life, on hearing the gospel, she was converted, and confessing her sins to God she received pardon through faith in the Lord Jesus. Certainly these people are greatly deceived in seeking the justice of heaven by these works so cruel and savage.

Is not therefore the life of faith in Christ greater, more honorable, and fuller of vital power, than these poor and sorry rudiments of a justification by works—works that are never finished nor contain in themselves the power to put an end to sin and to break once for all the yoke of servitude? It remains established forever: "The just shall live by faith."

The Tragedy of It All

An Editorial from The Baptist Bulletin—Dr. Robert T. Ketchum, Editor

It is with no sense of exultation that we write the following paragraphs, but it is with a deep sense of gratitude to God that He led many of us to see the direction in which He was going and the pathway along which He was leading, and that He gave us grace and courage to follow even at the cost of the sacrifice of lifelong fellowships.

The Northern Baptist Convention held its annual meeting in Atlantic City, N. J., a few weeks ago. The Watchman-Examiner of June 6 carries a full report of the convention. We quote from the editor's observations regarding the convention.—"The Atlantic City Convention was strong in inspiration but deplorably weak in deliberation. . . This (deliberation) must be done if we are to solve such problems as face Northern Baptists. As a Foreign Mission Society we are steadily going out of business. We have entered no new field in 40 years. We have fewer missionaries this year than last year and next year we will have still fewer. The Home Mission agencies are struggling with deficits and debts. . . . Some Northern Baptist colleges are in dire danger and cannot continue unless help is forthcoming. Do we not need to deliberate on these? And yet we left Atlantic City with not one of these grave issues even partly solved. . . . At what stage of decline will we stop and consider?"

We quote again some of the address of Dr. Lerrigo, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Society, in his annual message to the convention. "Starting with Judson's challenge our giving to foreign missions increased steadily for a period of more than 100 years, but for the past 15 years it has steadily declined until the receipts for the year just closed have shrunk to a point paralleling those of a full generation ago, the year 1906. The history of American Baptist foreign missions covers a period of a century and a quarter. All of our 10 great world fields were entered in the first 86 years of our existence and for 40 years no great new area has been occupied. The foreign missionary staff has shrunk from its peak figure of 845 to 508. In the past 10 years lack of resources has required the turning away from great new opportunities such as the call of India's 70,000,000 outcasts for a new faith."

In the June issue of the Bulletin we called attention to the fact that if the Northern Baptist Convention continued to retreat the next three years on the same basis as they had in the past three, and if the Independent Baptists continued progress in the next three years on the same basis as they had in the past three, that at the end of three years the Independent Baptists would have more missionaries on the foreign field than the Northern Baptist Convention.

And now comes the startling statement from their own officials, that they are fast going out of business as a foreign mission agency. Think of it—no new field entered by Northern Baptists in 40 years! Think of it—a reduction of 337 missionaries in the past 10 years! Think of it—the missionary giving of 8000 Baptist Churches has dwindled until it is back where it was in 1906! Northern Baptists have backed up 34 years in their missionary giving! The editor of the Watchman-Examiner pleads for Baptists to sit down and deliberate. Familiar appeal, this! For 12 years scores and even hundreds of us pled with this same convention to sit down and face the issue. Scores of honored servants of the Lord have continued during recent years with the same appeal, but to this sad hour the Northern Baptist Convention has refused to face the cause of the difficulty.

We confess to a feeling of something akin to holy wrath when we see articles appearing in print emanating from convention headquarters, blaming the missionary decline on the stinginess of Baptists. If ever there was a slander on Baptists, that claim constitutes one. Let the convention officials face the fact that it is their continued propagation of and their defense of modernistic practices and policies in our missionary agencies that have caused the people to withhold their funds.

This statement is not spun out of mere theory. It has been demonstrated in the school of experience. The statistics of Independent Baptists during the past two years have proven our contention. Last year Independent Baptists gave on an average of $1,499.82 per church. These churches ranged all the way from 26 members to 1,500 members and were scattered from Maine to California. They therefore, constitute a typical cross section of Baptist churches as you find them. The average of these Independent Baptist churches could and should be the average of convention churches. Had the Northern Baptist Convention's 8,000 churches averaged the same as our Independent Baptist churches, the Northern Convention would have received approximately $12,000,000 for missions last year. The figures from the Independent Baptist churches for two years ago demonstrate the same thing.

And why is this? Because there isn't a single solitary taint of modernism in the Independent Baptist missionary program!

If the Northern Baptist Convention wants to "de-liberate," here is something to think about.

SILENCE is
COWARDLY

To sin by silence when we should protest
Makes cowards out of men. The human race
Has climbed on protest. Had no voice been raised Against injustice, ignorance and lust,
The Inquisition yet would serve the law,
And guillotines decide our last disputes.
The few who dare must speak, and speak again,
To right the wrongs of many."

Born Again November 1939—Promoted to Glory July 1940

By Elder J. Paul Dowdy, Rio Cuarto, Argentina

Mrs. Aguierré

This sister in Christ, some ninety odd years of age, was the oldest member of the Rio Cuarto congregation. In another sense, she was the youngest, having been the last to be baptized and received into the fellowship of this church. Although a babe in Christ at 90 years of age, she grew in the grace and knowledge of her Lord till the day of her going home.

The story of her entrance into the way of life, her brief sojourn, and her departure, is, in some respects, unique and interesting. In the first place, it is nothing less than remarkable to see a person of 90 years accept the Lord as Savior. Few indeed are they who come to Him so late in life. Second, it is no small matter that those 90 years were lived under the influence and power of the Roman Catholic Church. Only about a year ago a priest threatened this woman with eternal condemnation if she ever should come to this mission again. Thirdly, she did what so many younger babes in Christ fail to do. She grew in Christ. As a fourth item of interest, her death and even her funeral presented a testimony worthy of mention.

Less than three years ago the daughter of this woman was saved, and she and her husband came into the church. Naturally, they began in earnest to testify to, and to pray for, others of their family. Sometime later, the women's society of the church held a meeting in the home of the daughter, Mrs. Olthoff. The aged mother was not interested in the doings of the Evangelicos. But acquaintances were made and the way opened for further opportunities to present to her the way of salvation. Little by little, and very slowly, she came nearer and nearer. She had become acquainted with the wife of one of the workers, and now and then went to her with questions. Also she had the testimony and prayers of her daughter and son-in-law. These also instructed her in the Word of God.

Then along in September or October of last year she began to talk of being baptized. The believers of her family felt somehow that she was not exactly clear as to salvation, so they tried to bring her to see that baptism would be of no value to her unless she really believed on the Lord Jesus Christ as her Savior.

Now she had in her home a saint, or rather, an image of "Saint Antonio." Her son-in-law told her that if she now truly believed on the Lord Jesus, He was all-sufficient for all her needs, and San Antonio would no longer be of any use to her. In fact, he assured her that San Antonio had never really been of any use to her. Well, she was not so sure. Did not every believer (?) in "La Iglesia" (Catholic Church) have need of the help of the saints? It was a bit difficult for her, after 90 years, to be convinced that the Lord does not need the saints to help take care of the believers. Anyway, this image of San Antonio was a gift, presented to grandmother by the elder daughter of Mrs. Olthoff.

Finally she was willing to trust her all to the Lord Jesus, and get rid of the image. That also was a problem. What should she do with it? To take it out and destroy it she was not quite ready. Then, an idea: she would return it to her granddaughter. This she did. When her son-in-law learned of this transaction, he asked her if she supposed that San Antonio, being of no value to her, could be worth anything to her granddaughter.

From then on she was sure that the Lord Jesus was her all-sufficient Savior. She wanted only Him, and desired only to please Him. She made this known one night at the close of a street meeting held in front of the Olthoff home. She asked to be baptized. The baptismal service was arranged, and she was received as a member of this congregation in December of last year.

For eight short months she was a follower and servant of the Lord. Her humble home was located some considerable distance beyond the end of the bus line, but her attendance at the meetings was very regular for one of her great age. Not only did she attend the services, she had a desire to contribute something. Out of the little that she had, she gave.

To us here in the mission, her spiritual growth was most gratifying. It was a real joy just to contemplate the spiritual progress achieved in so short a time. May the Lord give us more believers that grow.

On July 7 she attended Sunday School for the last time. During the following two weeks of her illness, she witnessed for the Lord to those who came to her bedside. Especially during the last three days did she speak very definitely to both family and neighbors concerning the saving grace of the Lord. Then on Sunday evening, July 21, as the sun was lowering, this sister in Christ announced to those present that the Lord had come for her, and in the glory of His presence she was happy.

The funeral was very simply arranged. There were no candles, crucifixes, or other adornments customary at funerals in this country. Neither were there present those who pray for the dead. This very simplicity, especially the absence of crucifixes and candles, caused astonishment in the neighborhood. And that there should be no prayers for the departed one was unthinkable. These strange departures from customs universal in this land, while causing surprise, also gave opportunity for our brother and sister Olthoff to tell of the death of the Son of God for lost sinners. They also reminded the questioners that our Lord was not surrounded in his death by candles and adornments, but was quietly laid in the tomb by a faithful follower.

We thank God for this soul that by His grace passed out of darkness into His marvelous light. Well beyond threescore years and ten, she was privileged to begin life anew, a new creature in Christ.

An African Bible Conference

(Editorial Note: Dr. Floyd W. Taber and Elder Jake Kliever are nothing if not original. They certainly make a great pair—an ideal pair for the rigors of African mission work. The editor has just received, through mails greatly delayed, an account of the "Bekoro Bible Conference." To make this report interesting, we are going to quote the personal note to the editor that came in connection with this Bible Conference. The note, together with the report of the conference, was as follows.—L.S.B.)

Bekoro, par Paoua, par Bozoum
French Equatorial Africa
June 7, 1940

Dear Brother Bauman:

We are just dying to write up our Bible Conference and pat ourselves on the back; but it looks better to let someone else do it. We are quoting an article from the Kabba Daily Cloudburst.

You may be interested in knowing that only one daily appears in Kabbaland, but that it appears under two different names, depending on the season. From May to October it carries the above caption, but from November to April it bears the title of Kabba Middyay Sun.

Yours for publicity,

Jake and Floyd.

BEKORO BIBLE CONFERENCE

Biggest Gathering of Christian Workers Ever Held in Kabbaland

The first Bekoro Bible Conference has just come to a close, and all reports agree that it is the greatest yet. You never heard of a Bible Conference before? Neither did the editor. But here is what happened.

In connection with a happy event with which our readers are already familiar, the doctor came to spend three weeks at Bekoro. The father was already here. So that made a pair.

Word was sent to the pastors of the churches at Bedam, Benamkor, and Bedaya. They, with their assistants and lay workers from other villages that do not yet have full time pastors, gathered together at the Miller Memorial Station to see what it was all about.

Convention Auditorium consists of 18 fence posts stuck in a circle about 12 feet in diameter, supporting a conical grass roof. The only wall was a grass mat tied to the posts behind the speakers. The floor, naturally, was good Bekoro dirt.

As benches, there were seven sticks about six inches in diameter, lying on the ground. The "Puffessors" each sat on a mbata. (Note for foreign readers: A mbata is a stool eight to ten inches high, with a concave top, carved out of one piece of log.)

As a table, they used a chair. (Note for local readers: A chair is an instrument of torture on which white men place their posterior extremity in such a position that their knees and their hips both form right angles. Why anyone submits to such an uncomfortable position is unknown, but most local ethnologists believe it is connected with the superstition of white superiority.) The only remaining piece of furniture, as well as the most used, was a blackboard.

After an intermission following regular chapel, at eight o'clock each morning the doctor began an hour or an-hour-and-a-half of what he called Bible Exposition. Then he went to give medicines to sick people, and after a short intermission, the father gave an hour of Pastoral Theology. At 2:00 P.M. the doctor taught a class in Biblical Introduction, and following that the father gave a course in Music Conducting, with special emphasis on the message of the hymns.

Everyone who attended is agreed that if they could have good "puffessors," such conferences of Christian workers would be highly worth while. It is hoped someone else will be invited to hold one soon. It is unknown how soon the doctor will have another similar occasion to come.

According to the doctor, one of the most highly successful features of the conference was the enter-

What Kind of a Colleague am I?

By Dr. Florence N. Gribble

Spurgeon has said that his great difficulty was not in formulating his sermon or his address, but in choosing his texts. How great would have been his difficulty, if he like ourselves had had 40 texts instead of one!

We will now proceed to read our 40 texts.* . . . .

Having read these texts, let each one of us inquire within his own heart, not, "What kind of a colleague is my brother or my sister?" but, "What kind of a colleague am I myself?"

There is an old adage which says: "If the shoe fits, put it on." Roman shoes are here displayed for choice, Cappadocian shoes also, and shoes from other climes. I must confess that I have found here a pair of Roman shoes which fits me very well, a pair of Cappadocian shoes which I hope henceforth to wear, and even shoes from other climes which I aspire one day to possess.

First of all, let each of us ask: "As to membership, what kind of colleague am I? Do I remember that every colleague of mine is a member of the body of Christ? (40). Do I remember that every colleague is a member of every other colleague?" (5).

As to gifts, do I exercise my own, however humble? Am I willing that other colleagues should exercise theirs, however brilliant?

If endowed with the gift of prophecy, do I use it? (6). If called to show mercy do I show it with cheerfulness? (8). If called to minister in any capacity, do I wait on that ministry? (7). If called to teach tainment. He reports he never ate such cooking anywhere as among the Kabba.

Bekoro, June 10, 1940

Dear Brother Bauman:

Apart from the joking, which we hope is not too raw, you may be interested in knowing this is the kind of Bible Conferences the Field Council had in mind, in requesting donors to native evangelists to allow their gifts to be used in this way instead. The native workers, except those farthest advanced, cannot "hold" a lot of teaching in one long stretch, and they do not have a big enough stock to continue preaching very long without receiving some more. So it looks like a good plan to send them out for a short spell of preaching, then bring them in for a little schooling, or Bible Conference—whichever you want to call it. Of course, the local missionary can do the teaching most of the time, but it makes a pretty heavy schedule to teach all day; so when another missionary can come in to help, it is a big advantage. Of course, in this particular case the Bible Conference did not cost anything, since the trip had to be made for medical purposes. But in other cases it costs the transportation for the visiting missionary. We believe this is one of the best ways of really helping native workers, but without spoiling them. So we thought it might make a special appeal to those who hitherto made their gifts to support native evangelists.

Father, mother, and daughters are doing well. The nurse and the doctor are hardest hit!

Getting worse and worse,

Floyd.

do I do it faithfully? (7). If required to exhort, do I do it humbly? Giving, do I give with simplicity? (8). If called to rule, in the school room, in the hospital, wards, in the church, in the mission do I do it with diligence? (8).

As to mind, what kind of a colleague am I? Do I mind high things? (16). If so am I willing to be transformed by the renewing of my mind? (2). Am I obedient to the rule: "Be of the same mind one to another?" (16).

As to my thoughts, do I think of myself more highly than I ought to think? (3). Are my thoughts according to the measure of faith that God has given to me? (3). Am I wise in my own concepts? (16). Do I prefer others in honor? (10). Do I humble myself under the mighty hand of God? (37).

As to judging, if I do fast or abstain, do I judge another who does not? (27). If I do not fast, do I judge another who does? (27). Do I judge my fellow colleague in anything? (30). Do I set any colleague at naught? (30). Do I judge my colleague's servants, in other words, their personal boys, forgetting that God is able to make them stand? (28). Do I refuse to judge, but seek rather to please and to edify? (34).

As to my tongue, do I use it to upbraid my fellow colleagues? (14). Do I use it to criticize them? (14). Do I give place to the wrath of another, or do I revenge myself by retorting? (17). Being criticized and upbraided am I patient in this, and in every other tribulation? (12). Do I endeavor to make my life a blessing to all with whom I come in contact? (18). Do I speak peaceably to all? (18). Do I dispute with another whom I consider weak in the faith? (32). Do I rather bear the infirmities of weaker colleagues? (35). Do I walk in strife? (25). Do I permit my heart to be envious because I have been called to a greater degree of poverty than another? (25). Do I recompense evil to another colleague through an uncontrolled and bitter tongue? (17).

As to my relationship, am I conformed to this world? (2). Do I live unto myself, or unto the Lord and my colleagues? (29). Do I distribute to the necessity of the saints? (13). Am I more or less willing to give to a native, whether colleague or servant, than I am to my fellow missionaries? (13). Am I given to hospitality, not only to outsiders, but also to my colleagues? (13).

Do I pretend to love a colleague whom I do not love? (9). Or on my knees do I claim grace over the adversary who is leading me to this dissimulation? (9). Do I truly love all my colleagues? (22). Do I ever put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in a fellow colleague's way? (31). Am I kindly affectioned toward all my colleagues? (10). Do I exercise true brotherly (or sisterly) love? (10). Do I love members of another household as I love members of my own? (23, 24). Do I love them as I love myself? (23). Do I make provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof? (26). Do I provide things honest in the sight of my other colleagues? (19). Do I abhor that which is evil in mission standards, and cleave alone to that which is good? (9). Do I recognize in station and committee and field council meetings that my will is not a standard of good, but that God's will only is good, His will only is acceptable, His will is perfect? (2). Do I endeavor to prove what is the will of God? (2). Or do I push what is my own will? Am I in debt to another colleague? (22). Do I weep with those who weep in the loss of husband, wife, or child? (15). Do I rejoice with those who rejoice in that husband, wife or child have been spared to them? (15). Do I rejoice in hope? (12). Do I receive another as Christ has received me?

As to subjection, am I subject under God to the government, yet preaching the word? (21). Am I subject under God to those who are in authority in the Mission? (21), thus serving the Lord? If a younger colleague, am I subject to my elder colleagues? (36). Am I subject to every other colleague? (36). Do I treat my native colleagues and helpers with consideration? (16). Do I condescend to men of low estate? (16).

As to privilege, if I perceive a colleague to be at fault do I pray for him in faith? (38, 39). Do I continue for all my colleagues? (12).

We have heard many sermons on our duty to God, on our duty to the natives, but perhaps very few on our simple duties to one another. Have each of us been able to answer all these questions acceptably to God?

Or have you, too, found one or more shoes that fit? If so let us put them on. The Holy Spirit waits until we are thus shod with the preparation of gospel of peace, to pour out a mighty blessing upon us.

THE TEST

A new religion came to me

With buoyant step and radiant smile,

And at my door asked joyously

Just to come in and chat awhile.

Her jewelled hands were fair to see;

Her white robe glistened in the sun.

'Twas quite agreeable to me

To listen to her silver tongue.

She spoke of health and wealth and peace,

Of pleasure and prosperity,

Of love divine that fills all space,

The only great reality.

Despite her look, her smile, her speech,

My spirit shrank, strange to remark,

Like one whose groping fingers reach

Some cold, dead thing amid the dark.

"Give me," I cried, "O stranger-guest,

Before I entertain thy plea,

An answer to this one request,—

Dost come by way of Calvary?"

Swift changed her eyes from noon to night,

Her smile to cold, superior scorn;

She vanished on my wondering sight,

But left me neither sad nor lorn.

A shining Presence filled my room,

A voice divine spoke peace to me,

A Person full of truth and grace,

Who came by way of Calvary.

Elizabeth Cheney.

MINUTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

Selected From the Regular Minutes of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church Annual Meeting, Winona Lake, Ind., Aug. 22-30, 1940

Present: McClain, Shively, Barnard, Koontz, Kent, Kimmell, Bauman.

Chairman: A. V. Kimmell.

1. Committee on DeLozier Resolutions.

A motion prevailed that the Chair appoint a committee of two to draw up suitable resolutions for the board to present to the family of Arthur L. DeLozier. Kent and Koontz were appointed.

2. Offer to Meet with Representatives of the Ashland College Group.

A motion prevailed that since, in The Brethren Evangelist of Aug. 10th, 1940, the suggestion has been made of the desirability of a meeting between representatives of the Ashland College Group and the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church; we, as a board, indicate our willingness to meet representatives from the Ashland College Group at some point midway between Ashland, O. and Winona Lake, Ind., preferably on Mon., Aug. 26, 1940.

Our purpose in taking this action is to conserve the interests of the Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, and to advance the cause of Christ.

This action was discussed quite thoroughly, and U. J. Shively was chosen to present this motion to the moderator of the Ashland Group, Claud Studebaker. (See item 13).

3. Representative to Publication Board.

The motion prevailed that our representatives (Ashman and McClain) on the Board of Directors of The Brethren Publishing Co. be continued.

4. Candidate Secretary's Report.

In this regard, the candidate secretary read a letter from Helen Garber containing information regarding language study, then recommended the following names to the board for consideration:

1. Dorothy Ethel Hay. 2. Emma June Blough. 3. Herman Baerg. 4. Mrs. Marguerite Hoffman Baerg.

The board advised the candidate secretary to inform these candidates of the existing transportation and other problems, and encourage them to continue their preparations for the field.

The possibility of sending Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dunning was discussed, and the board recommended that, until a way opens to go to the field, the Dunnings be encouraged to take a supply pastorate.

5. Election of Officers.

The following Foreign Board officers were elected by ballot vote:

President: A. V. Kimmell

Treasurer: L. S. Bauman

Candidate Secretary: A. J. McClain

Editor Missionary Magazine: L. S. Bauman

Deputation Director: A. V. Kimmell

6. Application for Passage.

The question of transportation to Africa was discussed, in the light of a bulletin which the secretary had received from the Foreign Missions Conference of North America; and a letter in reply was dictated, applying for passage for nine missionaries on a steamer which that organization proposes to charter.

7. South American Reports.

A motion prevailed that the reports of the South American field be accepted, and the material contained therein placed at the disposal of the missionary editor for publication, as he sees fit.

8. South American Field Expenses.

A motion prevailed that we appropriate $350 per month to South America for field expenses.

9. North American Missionaries' Salaries.

A motion prevailed that the salary scale for North American missionaries, including allowances for children, be continued the same as heretofore.

10. Furlough and Transportation Problem.

A motion prevailed that the board approve Dr. Bauman's handling of the furlough situation, and that he write the missionaries on the field, explaining fully the problem connected therewith, as the board faces it.

11. Return of Sickels to Field.

A motion prevailed that we return the Sickels to the field in Argentina as soon as possible.

12. Report of Property Holdings in Africa.

A motion prevailed that we acknowledge the receipt of the report of our African properties and express our appreciation to Supt. Jobson for the fine presentation, and indicate our intention of using the same for publicity purposes in the future.

13. Reply from Offer to Meet Representatives of Ashland College Group (See item 2).

The following telegram from Claude Studebaker, in answer to the Board's request to meet with a committee of the Ashland College viewpoint, was read and discussed:

The board regarded the above telegram as wholly unsatisfactory, inasmuch as Mr. Studebaker fixed the time between Aug. 26 and Sept. 1 as the only time for the meeting, and Mr. Studebaker must have known that it was manifestly impossible for the Foreign Board to meet at this time, due to the fact that most of the members of the board would be in attendance at the National Conference of The Brethren Church at Winona Lake. Moreover, the board knew of no such meeting as "the foreign conference of the Brethren Church."

14. Treasurer's Partial Financial Report.

A motion prevailed that the Treasurer's Report, covering approximately 14 months, be approved; and since the report is incomplete, due to the fact that local churches have held funds in their own treasuries, we instruct the treasurer to lengthen the fiscal year to a period of 18 months; and immediately following Jan. 1, 1941, to render a complete report covering this total period.

15. Daniel Miller Estate.

Inasmuch as no report has been made in regard to the Daniel Miller Estate, we move that Bro. Kent and Bro. McClain act as representatives of the board in determining the status of this matter. Motion carried.

16. Herman Baerg Interviewed.

Mr. Herman Baerg, a candidate missionary, was introduced to the board and given the opportunity to ask any questions he desired. Mr. Baerg expressed the desire of himself and wife to go to Africa whenever the way is opened.

17. African Hospital Fund.

A motion prevailed to appropriate the sum of $75.00 per month to the African Hospital Fund for the following year, as heretofore.

18. African Field Supt.

A motion prevailed that Bro. Orville D. Jobson be reappointed as our Superintendent of the African Field, Mission Oubangui-Char, for the following year.

19. Nomination of Trustees for 1941.

A motion prevailed that this board nominate A. V. Kimmel, Herman Koontz and Charles H. Ashman for re-election for the regular term, the election to take place in keeping with our constitution, by mail, during the period, Aug. 1, 1941 to Aug. 15, 1941.

20. South American Supt.

A motion prevailed that Clarence L. Sickel be reappointed as our Superintendent for the South American Field, upon arrival at the field.

21. Representative on Brethren Missionary Herald Board.

A motion prevailed that Homer A. Kent be appointed as our representative on the Board of Trustees of The Brethren Herald Co.

22. Recommendation to the F.M.S. of Amendments to Constitution.

A motion prevailed that the following amendments to the constitution of the Foreign Missionary Society be approved and recommended to the Foreign Missionary Society:

Amendment No. 1. Voting Power.

A motion prevailed that we recommend to the society that Article III, MEMBERSHIP, Section (3), Paragraph 2, be amended to read as follows:

23. Revision of Articles of Incorporation (Charter) of the F.M.S.*Revision No. 1.

A motion prevailed that we recommend to the Society that the Second of the Articles of Incorporation of The Foreign Missionary Society, now reading:

"Said corporation is to be located at Ashland, in Ashland County, Ohio, U.S.A., and its principal business there transacted," be revised to read as follows:

"Said Corporation is to be located at Dayton, in Montgomery County, Ohio, U.S.A., and its principal business there transacted."

25. Report from Committee on DeLozier Resolution.

A motion prevailed that the following letter, as presented by the Committee, be sent to Mrs. DeLozier and her family, as an expression of the feeling of this board, and also included in the minutes:

"Mrs. A. L. DeLozier and Family
333 Samaritan Avenue
Ashland, Ohio
Dear Friends:

In this your hour of deep sorrow, due to the death of Bro. DeLozier, we, the members of the board of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church, wish to convey to you our heartfelt sympathy, and express the appreciation of our board for the helpful service which he has rendered to the work of foreign missions in our beloved church, over a long period of years.

As a member of our board, Bro. DeLozier gave invaluable service in problems having to do with our contacts with foreign languages. Many times he was able to clarify seeming difficulties because of his unusual ability in language study. We shall miss such service in the future. He also was always ready to give kindly to help outgoing missionaries in their difficulties connected with mastering foreign languages.

As a counsellor in all matters relating to the direction of the work of foreign missions in The Brethren Church, Bro. DeLozier's work was faithful and earnest. His service has been sincerely appreciated.

Now he has gone into the presence of his Lord, Who will not fail to reward His servant abundantly. Our loss is heaven's gain. We as a board trust that you as his wife and the members of your family will be remarkably upheld in your sorrow by His grace, and that the assurance of meeting your loved one face to face in the glory may comfort you in this hour; for truly, 'ye sorrow not, even as others which have no hope.'

Yours in the Blessed Hope,

Members of the Board of Trustees of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church."

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

MILK

By Mrs. Clarence Sickel

The missionaries' little daughter was very ill one day. It was hard to know just what was the matter. Perhaps the milk we were buying was not good. We could not tell. The milkman came to our door in a two-wheeled cart in which were four or five ten-gallon cans. There he measured out the amount we wanted and poured it into our own pans. Many times the days were hot, and the only protection from the heat were wet sacks wrapped around the cans. The milkman had to come several miles with the hot sun beating down upon his cart. Perhaps that was the trouble, or it might have been that on the dusty days some dirt and stray microbes might have fallen into the milk, in the many times that he must open the can to leave milk at the various homes on his route. It was rumored, too, that he didn't use much care in keeping his cans clean, and that he left some water in the cans when he poured in the milk. Most people bought milk in that way, but that did not prove it to be the best way, for there were many little children who were ill and who died.

There was a better way, and the missionary mother decided to try it. She asked another milkman to come and bring milk for the sick baby. This one brought cows to our very door, and not only the cows but the little calves as well. And there he would milk just the quantity we needed and pour it into our pan before going on to another house. One day he would bring a black cow, another day a white one or a red one. But no matter what the color of the cow we had delicious fresh warm milk. How different from the half-skimmed milk we had been getting! How the little daughter liked it and how quickly she was well and rosy again!

This reminded me of many people in Argentina, large and small, who should be learning about God from His own Word, getting the truth fresh and warm from the Bible, but they cannot because they do not have the Bible. Instead they are receiving false teaching, skimmed and poisoned milk, that only makes them sick, spiritually. Missionaries go to South America to give them the Word of God, which will make them strong and well spiritually.

TAKE UP YOUR HOUSE AND WALK

By J. Roger Jobson

"Why there goes a house down the road!" Sure enough, it is a real native house. About eight men are carrying a grass roof on their heads. They are moving this house to the next village where a clay foundation has been made, and a large mat has been woven for it. Sticks are gathered quickly and tied tightly, and then the grass roof is placed on these sticks or poles, and the large mat drawn closely around. Most all the native houses are round with a high foundation, and a small place left open which they call their door. Everybody stoops, of course, to enter the house.

The women usually make lots of clay pots, which is about all they have in an ordinary hut; and some bamboo poles tied together for the bed. Cooking and eating is outside the house, and dish washing which doesn't take very long.

OUR BIBLE CHARACTER ALPHABET

Answer to N: Nehemiah.

O was a giant whose bed was about as wide as our beds are long, and about as long as your bedroom. He was a king, but although he was big and strong, he and his people and his kingdom were all destroyed in battle. In Deut. 3:1-11 Moses gives his name and tells who defeated him and how. Moses also gives the exact size of his bed. A cubit was at least 1½ feet. Just for fun, take a yard stick and see how much space his bed occupied.

A Bible Conference was conducted each evening, Sept. 22-27 at the Canton, Ohio Church by Dr. J. C. Beal.

The Twelve Churches Composing The East Central District met in the W. 10th St. Brethren Church of Ashland, O., Sept. 17-20. Dr. Arthur I. Brown, was conference Bible lecturer and spoke twice daily. Attendance was excellent. 500 persons attended the service the closing night. Brethren R. D. Barnard of Dayton, O., Dr. J. C. Beal, and Leo Polman, of Fort Wayne, ministers from outside the district, fellowshipped with the people of the district during part or all of the conference.

Bible Speaker Ralph Underwood spoke on two successive Sundays recently in the Brethren Church of South Gate, Calif.

The First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif. on three recent successive Sundays enjoyed the ministry of Dr. Charles G. Trumbull, Dr. W. L. Pettingill, and Dr. Dan Gilbert.

The West Tenth Street Brethren Church of Ashland, Ohio, of which Rev. Chas. W. Mayes is pastor reports an average Bible School attendance for the last year of 279, a gain of 119 over the previous year.

Dr. Alva J. McClain, Pres. of Grace Theological Seminary, spent the week of Sept. 23-29 at Moody Bible Institute, Chicago, Ill. Each noon he spoke over the Institute radio station, W.M.B.I., and at other times addressed students.

The Akron Bible Institute, instituted by the influence of Grace Seminary while it was housed in Akron, opened its fall term Sept. 26. During the 1939-1940 school year this school instructed 279 students from 55 different churches and 19 denominations of North Ohio. Of the five on the faculty, two are Brethren men: L. L. Grubb, pastor at Rittman, and R. E. Gingrich, pastor at Ellet (Akron). Of the remaining three, two are graduates of Grace Seminary: Harold H. Etting and Cloyce J. Pugh.

The value of our summer camps can be seen from a mother's testimony: "I do thank God for a Brethren camp. This was my daughter's first year, and she has been a changed girl since she's been home." This is just another evidence of the Lord's blessing upon the efforts expended for His sake in our various districts.

From Glendale, Calif. comes this word, "I think we have stood up splendidly under the usual summer slump. The Lord has blessed us with a slow but steady growth in all ways: spiritually, materially, and by numbers."

What If?

By James Worboys

What would happen if the whole church arose as one man and began to seek and to save the lost? How, think you, would the world feel, if next week the whole church gathered together to pray that the strongholds of the devil might be destroyed, and millions of souls delivered from his awful grasp?

What if thousands of Christian workers offered to go to India with the Christian message, to meet the needs of the vast masses there who seek a Savior? What if thousands of others pooled their resources to meet the needs of those volunteers?

To stem the recent bush-fires in Victoria there were many more volunteers than could be used. To replace the loss, so far as finance could do that, money poured in at the rate of about 10,000 Lbs. a day for 12 days at least.

What a glorious response to meet a small need as compared with the needs of millions of souls that are being pulled and broken and destroyed by sin every hour. The spiritual ear throbs with the Christless tread of vast myriads of men and women who hurry each other unshrinking and unshrouted into an awful eternity.

God Is Still Able

The evacuation last May of 350,400 members of the British Expeditionary Force from the beaches around the Channel port of Dunkirk was a remarkable achievement which has been widely publicized in the secular press, but we have seen nothing in the accounts published in this country which seemed to recognize the part which the providence of God played in this event.

C. B. Mortlock, writing in the London Daily Telegraph of June 8, says: "Two great wonders stand forth. I have talked with officers and men who have got safely back to England, and all of them tell of these two phenomena. The first was the great storm which broke over Flanders on Tuesday, May 28, and the other was the great calm which settled on the English Channel during the days following."

"In the darkness of the storm and the violence of the rain, formations which were eight to twelve miles from Dunkirk were able to move up on foot to the coasts with scarcely any interruption from aircraft, for aircraft were unable to operate in such turbulent conditions." And then, when the men had reached the coast, a most unusual calm settled over the Channel. Mr. Mortlock says: "It is undoubted that there was such a calmness over the whole of the waters of the English Channel for that vital period of days as has rarely been experienced. Those who are accustomed to the Channel testify to the strangeness of this calm; they are impressed by the phenomenon of nature by which it became possible for tiny craft to go back and forth in safety."

Authorities had carefully surveyed the situation, and had estimated that 30,000 was the maximum number who could possibly escape death or capture. Instead, more than ten times that number were safely embarked. "So," remarks Mr. Mortlock, "the two miracles made possible what seemed impossible."

And was this all regarded as merely "a fortuitous concatenation of circumstances?" Not by the men who had passed through it. When the great storm broke on May 28, they remembered that on May 26 the British Empire had been on its knees in national recognition of God and supplication for His deliverance. The same article quoted above says: "Officers of high rank do not hesitate to put down the deliverance of the B. E. F. to the fact of the nation being at prayer on Sunday, May 26," and the writer tells how "the consciousness of miraculous deliverance" pervaded the camps where the troops were temporarily housed on arrival in England, and of how, in many cases, informal services of prayer and thanksgiving were held at the request of the men themselves.

Do You Believe In Signs

The widespread disrespect for governmental authority, the tottering of thrones, the rise of dictators, the existence of a League of Nations, the threatened race-war between the Orient and the Occident, the general unrest of nations, the opening of Palestine as a home land for the Jews, the apostasy of the churches, the extreme worldliness of the age, and the incorrigibility of "flaming youth" are considered by many thoughtful persons to be signs of the rapidly approaching "end of the age."

Whether these "signs" are correctly interpreted or not, there is an urgent need of preparation for the Lord's Return. The Lord Jesus has definitely promised to return. He said: "In My Father's House are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto Myself; that where I am, there ye may be also" (John 14:2-3).

As the Lord Jesus Christ was ascending, this comforting message was given to the awe-struck disciples: "This same Jesus, which is taken up from you into Heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye have seen Him go into Heaven" (Acts 1:11).

That the Return of the Lord shall be a personal, physical return is evident from the following inspired words: "For the Lord Himself shall descend from Heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord" (I Thess. 4:16-17).

The closing chapter of the closing Book of the Bible contains the thrice repeated assurance of the speedy return of the Lord Jesus Christ. "I come quickly" (Rev. 22:7-12-20). And the last prayer of the Book of God is: "Even so, come, Lord Jesus" (Rev. 22:20).

He may come at any time. Are you ready. If not, why not? To be ready at His return will mean—to be caught up and to meet the Lord in the air, and be forever with Him. What a prospect!

If the Lord Jesus Christ were to come today and find you unprepared, it would mean that you would be left for the series of unparalleled judgments which shall be poured out on the earth, after the believers have been taken out of the world. What is there about "wars, famines, pestilences, earthquakes," "deceivers," the "Man of Sin," the "False Prophet," the "Great Tribulation," and the "Lake of Fire" that appeals to you, dear reader? Why expose yourself for one moment of time to eternal doom? "Behold, now is the accepted time, behold now is the day of salvation;" and you may be accepted and saved now by placing personal faith in the Lord Jesus Christ who died for our sins, and was buried and rose again. Receive Him, know Him, love Him, serve Him, and wait for Him!

THE SHADOW ON THE WORLD

There's a shadow on the world, and it darkens
Tho' men persuade themselves it's just a mist,
That will lift itself, give way to sunshine;
There's no real danger in it, they insist.

There's a shadow on the world, and it deepens;
The hearts of men begin to fail for fear;
Beneath apparent confidence and boasting,
Perplexity is growing year by year.

There's a shadow on the world: and its rulers
See lawlessness abound and tumults rife,
And prove that all their deeply thought-out measures
Are powerless to quell the rising strife.

There's a shadow on the world—Christ rejected—
How can the creature man see aught aright
In darkness which must always be before him,
When he has turned his back upon the light?

There's a shadow on the world: it betokens
The long-suffering of God is well-nigh o'er,
And the blest atoning work of Christ the Savior
Shall be held out to sinful men no more.

There's a shadow on the world: the proud empires
Which o'er the world now boastfully bear sway
Shall soon be swept aside by God's great power,
And the Lord alone exalted in that day.

There's a shadow on the world; but it tells me
That the Christ of God shall soon appear again,
The government shall be upon His shoulder,
And righteousness the symbol of His reign.

There's a shadow on the world: but it cannot Bring a shadow on the peace God gave to me
When I saw that my account with Him was settled
By the death of Christ, His Son, on Calvary.

Through the shadow on the world comes the sunshine
To my heart, which is resting on His Word;
For ere the shadows deepen into darkness,
I shall be in the bright presence of my Lord.

THE BIBLE IS GIVEN A PLACE IN A TEXAS COURT ROOM

The Gold Star Mothers of Dallas, Tex. asked Judge Joe M. Hill of the Corporation Court what they could do to show their gratitude to him for helping them in their business affairs. When they said they had thought of giving them a flag, he said, "I already have a flag, but I'll tell you what I would like for my courtroom—a Bible."

The judge explained, "You know, the taking of an oath in our courts has become a pretty perfunctory thing. The clerk gets up, and gabbles off his formula, so fast you can't understand a word, and the witness says, 'Er-er-yessir,' and doesn't have the slightest feeling that he has taken a sacred oath. Especially in a court like mine, where most of the cases involve small matters, you would be appalled to see how lightly perjury is regarded. Last year, I put up a big sign over the bench: 'Thou Shalt Not Bear False Witness.' I wonder how many read it. Texas law does not require the use of a Bible in administering an oath, but my court is going to require it from now on; and we'll take time to do the thing decently and impressively. After all, there are mighty few people who don't respect the Bible, and I believe we'd have a different atmosphere about our trials if it were reverently used in every court in the land."

Judge Hill's request was granted. The Gold Star Mothers presented him with a beautiful pulpit Bible with the following inscription embossed in gold: "Presented to Judge Joe M. Hill in appreciation of his kindness to us, and with the hope that those who are sworn hereon will be impressed by the solemnity of an oath."

Thy mercy is great above the heavens, and thy truth reacheth unto the clouds. Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth (Ps. 108:4-5).

How Every Christian May Use Gospel Tracts

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand; for thou knowest not which shall prosper, whether this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good" (Eccl. 11:6, R.V.).

"He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him" (Psa. 126:6).

A Word of Caution

1. Read carefully the tracts you distribute and make sure that they are evangelical and true to the Word of God.

2. Select tracts that are attractive, well printed on good paper, with readable type. Cheap looking tracts are not becoming the Christian message or ministry.

3. Use tracts that are well written, free from grammatical errors, and easily read. Ignorance is no credit to the cause you represent.

4. Hand out tracts with a pleasant, courteous word. Let your looks and manner be becoming the "Good News" you seek to broadcast.

A. Few Suggestions

1. Always enclose a carefully selected tract in your letters, whether private or business. Remember we are ambassadors of Christ and here on business for the King. "Be instant in season and out of season."

2. Have a supply of tracts near the front and back doors of your home, or in some convenient place in your office, so you can hand a copy to the friend, neighbor or stranger who may call.

3. Always carry tracts with you, when you go to the store or market to do your shopping, so you can give one to the clerk who waits upon you. Frequently you can hand one to a clerk who is not busy waiting upon customers. The merchant can place a tract in every package he delivers.

4. Those who are traveling on street cars, railroad trains and busses, without anything particular to do, will generally accept a tract. Give one to the person next to you, and to those near by. It will generally be accepted and appreciated, and may lead to a personal conversation on the subject of salvation.

5. The railroad stations afford opportune places to hand out tracts tactfully, quietly, one by one, here and there; the same is true in the summer time, concerning those who are resting in the city parks or summer resorts.

6. Often on the street cars, elevated trains, and at the depots, you will find tin boxes that are empty, in which you can place a few tracts for the traveling public; also leave one on the window-sill, or on the car seat.

7. At open-air meetings, it is a good time to hand tracts to those who are passing by, and to those who are leaving the crowd after listening for a while to the singing and speaking.

8. By the use of "Tract Holders," placed in depots, restaurants, hotels, barber shops, drug stores, laundries, factories, hospitals, etc., many tracts will find their way into the hands of the unsaved. It is well, if possible, to have these "holders" supplied by a "Tract Committee" from some Bible class, or young people's society. There should also be one or more "Tract Holders" in every church, one at each exit, well filled with tracts for young and old, and the people encouraged by the pastor or the tract committee to take them for prayerful distribution. By the use of a rubber stamp, the tracts can be made to serve also as an announcement of the regular Sunday services, or other meetings of the church.

9. When the regular church services or special evangelical meetings are being held, a worker can stand in front of the church, tabernacle, tent or hall, and hand out tracts to those passing by, with a cordial invitation to attend the services then in session. They are seldom refused. Again, a rubber stamp can be used to announce the time and place of the meetings.

A Word of Encouragement

Make it a rule to give out a few tracts every day. Watch for opportunities. Pray for courage and wisdom, and for God's blessing upon His Word to those who read. By so doing, you will experience daily the joy of the Lord, and have the double assurance that "your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

The late J. Hudson Taylor, who founded the China Inland Mission, was brought to a saving knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ at the age of 14 by reading a gospel tract which had been left on the table in his own home.

A few years ago, a young man came out of a gambling house in Chicago, late at night, after losing every cent he had, and not knowing where to go nor what to do. While standing on the street in a state of despair, a Christian worker, passing by, handed him a gospel tract. As the young man read it under the street lamp, he was convicted of his sinful, lost condition, and his need of salvation. By the tract, he also learned the way to salvation, and right where he stood, he bowed his head and called upon the Lord to save him. God heard his cry and he was happily saved that night. Today he is the superintendent of a mission for the Lithuanian people and many have accepted Jesus Christ as their Saviour as the result of his ministry. Who handed him that tract? God alone knows, but the one who did will surely have reason to rejoice when Christ shall come to reward his faithful servants.

"Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord" (1 Cor. 15:58).

THE MAIN DIFFERENCE

According to the Moderator of the Ashland Conference

Doubtless, on the part of many readers of the Herald, there is a feeling that after all the words which have been written during the conflict of the past several years, it were better that henceforth nothing should be said unless justified by necessity. I share that feeling. Therefore, it is not with any desire to engage in further argument that this article is being written. Probably from now on few minds would be changed substantially by argument, regardless of its cogency. From time to time, however, there may be important events or utterances which need to be pointed out and discussed for the information of the public and also for the purpose of historical record.

The year 1940 marked the first time in the history of The Brethren Church that two groups of churches, approximately equal in size numerically, held at the same time in two different places, two respective conferences which claimed to be national in scope. Both conferences, when convened, were called "The National Conference of The Brethren Church." I am not concerned in this article with the reasons why there were two conferences, but only with the fact, and also in part with the main theological difference between the two groups of churches as now aligned with the two conferences.

Division is not the worst thing in the world or in the professing church. Under certain circumstances, division may be a very sensible thing, and may result in more efficient service among both parties. But the one thing which men judge without mercy is division with no reasonable difference or justification. And this is as it should be. Therefore, we should not be surprised to find on the part of the general public and other denominations a genuine desire to know just what constitutes the main difference between our two groups of churches. Sooner or later we shall have to make some kind of an answer to this legitimate inquiry. And whether we like it or not, we shall be judged by the answer we make. If the answer is confused, we shall be laughed at, and rightfully so. If the answer is trivial, we shall be condemned, and rightfully so. But if the answer reveals some great gulf in doctrine, even though the spectators themselves may reject the position of both parties, we shall at least command their respect.

What is the main difference among us? What can we say to a curious public which is mystified by what has transpired? As far back as two years ago it was suggested, by myself and others, that it would be very wholesome for the two groups of ministers to meet together for several days if necessary, for the purpose of isolating and clarifying our differences. At that time it was hoped that, although we would be certain to find individual differences, no fundamental differences would be found which ran in contrast through the majority of the respective groups. But nothing was done. Even at this late date, when it appears that there are some very fundamental differences, I still think it would be very sensible for the two groups to sit down together and map a list of them. By doing this, we could accomplish at least two good results: First, we could scotch possible false or mistaken charges from both sides. Second, we could inform the public as to the situation and thus justify the separation, if there be any real justification. But I have little hope that anything so sensible as this will be done now.

Therefore, under the existing circumstances, we are dependent upon public statements which may be made from time to time by individuals and organizations of the two groups. But such statements, to be of public or historic value, should conform to two practical conditions: First, the speaker should be an acknowledged leader in his own group and speaking in an official capacity. Second, it is equally important that such a speaker should be permitted to speak only for his own group. It will be obvious that the value of what he says is greatly increased if a third condition is met, namely, if his statement is accepted as true by the opposing group.

Keeping these conditions in mind, I wish to present here a statement made by Pastor Claude Studebaker as published in The Brethren Evangelist of Aug 31, 1940, page 7. After recognizing the present division, and having characterized it as a case of "rival theologies" which has resulted in "two churches," Pastor Studebaker goes on to state the differences between the two. He does not have the time "to point out these differences in detail," but selects only three. The one which he places first has to do with the way that men are saved; and in placing it first he shows good judgment, for the way of salvation is the most important matter in the whole realm of Christian faith. Speaking rather contemptuously of our group as the "Gracelites," and applying to his own group the name "Brethren," he finds that the two groups teach different ways of salvation, as follows:

We, the "Gracelites," teach that water baptism is not essential to salvation. They, the "Brethren," teach that it is essential to salvation.

Now, great as the temptation may be, I do not propose to discuss what the Bible teaches on this important subject, nor Pastor Studebaker's competence as a teacher of theology. These matters are not within the scope of this article. But I do wish to point out several things:

First, regardless of what anyone may think about his competence, Pastor Studebaker is an acknowledged leader of the Ashland group of churches. To say nothing about his other activities, these churches unanimously elected him to serve as moderator over the so-called "National Conference" which under his leadership did everything possible to make division certain and permanent.

Second, it cannot be said that these delegates did not understand clearly what they were doing when they elected him as moderator. For years, as everyone knows, he has been singing just one theological refrain. In any article, or in a conference address, no matter where he began, the hearers knew in advance where he would end, namely, that water baptism was essential to salvation. This was the Alpha and the Omega of his theological system. And knowing this, Ashland delegates turned to him for leadership in what all admit to be the most serious crisis in the history of the church.

Third, Pastor Studebaker came to the 1940 Ashland Conference as the spokesman of the Ashland group of churches. It was the first of their conferences in a divided denomination. He had had an entire year to think over what had been done, to study the situation, to consider what he might say as the moderator to justify the many friends who had placed him in his place of responsibility. Furthermore, he was the chairman of the important Committee on the Spiritual State of the Churches, conscious of the fact that it was his solemn duty to report the situation to his conference. Surely no sensible man would speak carelessly under such conditions, without weighing every word before he uttered it.

In view of these considerations the general public will be fully warranted, I think, in taking seriously his words when Pastor Studebaker in his official capacity as Moderator announced to the public that his group of churches believe water baptism is essential to salvation, and singled this out as the first difference between his and the opposing group. And while he did not say so specifically, I think it may be assumed that he means trine immersion.

It should be stated further that, while our own group of churches firmly hold trine immersion as the Biblical form of baptism, a final command of the Lord to His own which they gladly obey because they love Him, and a very solemn matter for any who deliberately disobey, yet we cannot accept any human work or religious form as essential to salvation, nor can we say that all are lost who have not been baptized by trine immersion. On this point, we accept the statement made by the Ashland moderator. If his group believe that trine immersion is essential to salvation it is equally certain that we do not.

I, for one, am thankful for this one clear statement from the moderator of the Ashland conference. It will help me to explain intelligibly at least one difference between the two groups of churches and conferences. And most intelligent men will see the great gulf between the two positions. There are other serious differences, I am sure, but on this particular difference we are both agreed that it exists. And however much we may lament the fact that so many pastors and churches should have fallen away into this legalistic position, or however certain we may be that the position involves a grave case of hypocrisy in the matter of Ashland College and its unbaptized faculty members, still we should welcome such a frank statement from Ashland. Anything is better than slippery evasion. Furthermore, we owe it to the public, to which we make our respective appeals for converts and members, to make clear at least one reason why there are now two groups of Brethren churches. The statement on baptism should be helpful to the pastors on both sides in those communities where we find ourselves with two churches.

There is, of course, one possible alternative to the view taken in this article, namely, that Moderator Studebaker knows little or nothing about what the churches of his conference believe, and therefore what he said on baptism is not to be taken seriously. This would be a harsh judgment. At any rate, until the Ashland conference repudiates his address, the public is justified in accepting it seriously.

In closing, attention should be called to the fact that there is nothing distinctive in the position of the Ashland group regarding the relation of water baptism to salvation. A number of other bodies believe that it is essential to salvation. The largest is the Roman Catholic Church. The same error is held by the Mormon church, and also by the Campbellite churches.

Was Christ Punished for Our Diseases?

By A. J. McClain

The question is often stated otherwise: "Is Bodily Healing in the Atonement?" But thus stated it becomes somewhat ambiguous in meaning, and in any important question like this it is highly essential that we should know exactly what we are talking about. Many pastors have had to face the problem as it has been raised in their communities, both by false cults and sincere inquirers.

The particular theory which has provoked these inquiries is that held by certain religious movements of which Mrs. McPherson and her "Four Square Gospel" may be taken as an outstanding and well publicized example. It is also held, I am sorry to say, by individuals within Protestant churches here and there. Even the Brethren Church has had one or two ministers whose teaching was confused by this theory.

In brief, this particular healing theory may be stated as follows: When Christ died on the cross, its adherents argue, He made atonement for our diseases as well as for our sins. Therefore, they conclude, no true Christian need be sick or diseased at any time. If a Christian suffers from physical disease, as all of us do sooner or later, these theorists explain the situation by the following alternatives: The sick Christian has either failed to "appropriate" fully the benefits of the atonement, or else he is guilty of some personal sin for which the sickness is sent as a divine judgment. In either case, they say, the whole responsibility rests upon the person. It is always the will of God to heal, according to their theory, if we truly repent of our sins and believe in the fullness of our Lord's work on the cross. If we are sick, we are either lost or backslidden. No true Christian, they argue, can be sick if he is in complete fellowship with God.

The Biblical passages upon which this theory has been built are found in the books of Isaiah and Matthew. The first reads as follows: "Surely He hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows" (Isa. 53: 4). The second includes a direct quotation of the first: "When even was come they brought unto Him many that were possessed of devils, and He cast out the spirits with His Word, and healed all that were sick: that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by Esaias the prophet, saying Himself took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses" (Matt. 8:16-17).

What Do These Passages Mean?

Two preliminary questions must be settled. First, do these "griefs," "sorrows," "infirmities," and "sicknesses" refer to ailments of the body or of the soul? While exegetically it might be possible to interpret the Isaiah passage in either one of these senses, if taken alone, its quotation by Matthew leaves no possible doubt that in that particular context he applies it to physical disease. It is impossible to deny this on the ground of any impartial exegesis. And the parallel passage in Mark 1:34 settles the matter: "He healed many that were sick of divers diseases."

The second question is this: When and how did our Lord Jesus Christ take our infirmities and bear our sicknesses, as affirmed by Matthew on the basis of Isa. 53:4? The constant assumption of those who preach the "atonement healing" theory described above is that Christ did this when He died at Calvary. But now it is a curious fact that the death of Christ is not mentioned specifically in either of the passages upon which the theory has been mainly built. The fact that the first text occurs in the great 53rd chapter of Isaiah has doubtless led the superficial to assume that v. 4 must refer to the death of Christ. And certainly the death of Christ looms large in that chapter. But let us not forget that it contains many other details of what He was and what He did. As to v. 4 and its precise meaning, surely the safest guide to its exact interpretation will be found in Matthew's use of it in his Gospel. And what does Matthew say? Christ healed the sick, he declares, and in so doing He "fulfilled" this particular prophecy in Isa. 53:4. It was by His ministry of healing while living, not by His death, that He "took our infirmities and bare our sicknesses." There is no mention by Matthew of our Lord's death or atonement in this connection. On the contrary, Matthew tells how He healed sickness, and then declares that by this ministry He fulfilled the prophecy of Isa. 53:4a. And since Matthew wrote by divine inspiration, this is God's interpretation, not man's.

There is no mystery about all this. The passage does not say that Christ died or suffered for the infirmities of men. He "took" them. The same verb is used in Mt. 5:40, "If any man . . . take away thy coat." Everyone knows exactly what this means. It is a practical, not a judicial act. Even so our Lord took away the sicknesses of men in His day by healing them. Furthermore, in the case of the other expression, "bare our sicknesses," the verb here is never used in the New Testament with reference to our Lord's atoning death. An excellent example of its meaning is found in Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens," where it very obviously refers to sympathetic helpfulness and has nothing to do with the idea of atonement. It was thus the Lord "bare" the sicknesses of men, by giving them relief.

The Absurdity of Atonement for Disease

The verbs "took" and "bare" in the passage under discussion cannot refer to an act of substitutionary suffering and death such as we have in the cross of our Lord. Those who wrongly teach that they do have such a reference probably have not realized clearly just where such a doctrine must finally lead. Logically it would lead to the absurd and monstrous notion that Christ suffered disease somehow in our stead, a notion from which every enlightened believer must shrink with abhorrence.

The cause of this error seems to arise out of a confusion of two separate things, namely, sin and disease. Sickness is not sin; it is rather the result of sin. We punish men for sinning, but not for getting sick. Certainly a man may become diseased through breaking the law, but in dealing with such a man we at once separate the sin from the disease. We may punish him for his sin, but we send him to the hospital for his disease. The laws of nations are far from perfect, but they do not punish men for being sick. Once we see this clearly, it is easy to find our way out of the confusion about healing and atonement.

Christ died for our sins, not for our diseases. He was made sin for us; He was not made disease for us. Christ never forgave disease. He forgave sin, and healed disease. Death is the divine penalty for sin, not for disease. Therefore, the death of Christ as our Substitute was penal, not pathological. Christ died in our stead. He did not (I speak reverently) have tuberculosis in our stead. To look clearly and steadily at this matter is sufficient to disperse all the clouds of misunderstanding. Those who go out into eternity lost will suffer punishment according to their sins, not according to the number of diseases they may have had.

The True Relation of Calvary and Sickness

In nearly all doctrinal errors there may be discovered a grain of truth, and the matter under discussion is no exception. The death of our Lord did have something to do with sickness and disease, for these things are the results of sin. The entrance of sin into the human race brought a whole train of disaster, a veritable Pandora's Box filled with unimaginable evils, including disease, weakness, poverty, insanity and inefficiency. Now at Calvary God dealt with sin once for all, and thereby laid the moral foundation upon the basis of which He would be able to banish at last from the universe every evil result caused by sin. But the actual banishment of these things will come according to the plan and time of God, not of man.

Everything in its own order. At the Coming of the Lord from heaven His saints will be delivered forever from all weakness, sickness, and death. When He establishes His kingdom, poverty and all the ordinary social evils will be abolished. And at last death itself, the final enemy, shall be destroyed. Thus we see that the death of Christ provided for the destruction of all that is evil. Looking at the matter from this viewpoint, nothing lies outside the scope of the atonement. The very heavens above were somehow purified (Heb. 9:23), and the prince of this world was cast out (John 12:31), when our Lord died at Calvary. That Satan at this very hour still dwells in heavenly places does not invalidate the work of the cross. It only means that the doom of Satan, made certain at Calvary, will be visited upon him in God's own good time. In like manner the banishment of all weakness and disease from the bodies of the saved will be carried out according to God's perfect plan and calendar. Even though we may sometimes in the midst of affliction ask, "How long, O Lord?" we are not to think that God is slack concerning His promises as some men count slackness. But He cannot be hurried by the theories of men.

But Does God Heal The Body Today?

Does what has been said above mean that there is no help here and now for the child of God caught in the grip of disease and affliction? Must he be satisfied with mere human skill, and for more than this wait until the coming of the Lord? Is the power of the Lord to heal available at all for the Christian during the present age of grace? The answer is emphatically yes—God does heal the body today. But mark the important qualification—when it is His will to heal. The power of God is never limited by time or place, but only by His own holy and sovereign will. Nothing is clearer in Scripture than the fact that it is not always God's will to relieve the believer of his physical afflictions. There is a glorious and divine ministry oftentimes in suffering. God uses infirmity and suffering for our eternal good and His own glory. It is not only theologically wrong, but also spiritually disastrous, to teach Christians that they are either lost or backslidden if they suffer from bodily illness. The trial of our faith is precious. And sometimes it takes more faith to suffer than to be healed. The great apostle prayed three times to be relieved of a certain "thorn in the flesh," and found that he was not praying in harmony with God's will (2 Cor. 12: 1-10). The Lord did not grant the request, but gave something better. "My grace," He said very tenderly, "is sufficient for thee." And after all, it is better to have the all-sufficient grace of God than to be relieved of a few aches and pains.

God does heal the body today, when it is His will. But we are not to forget that the body of the believer is not yet redeemed. Its final redemption certainly was provided for at the cross. The price was paid in full. Nothing can ever be added to that. But for the present even the redeemed must say with Paul. "Even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body" (Rom. 8:23). What a glorious day that day of redemption will be, when at His coming He will fashion anew these bodies of our humiliation so that they shall be conformed to the body of His glory, according to the working whereby He is able to subdue all things unto Himself; no more sickness, no more weakness, no more sorrow, no more pain, no more death. The very hope of that glorious day will take away the bitterness of all affliction here and now.

"Come, Lord Jesus."

1940-1941

PLANS FOR BRETHREN C. E.

For the benefit of those Christian Endeavorers whom we have not reached with our monthly C. E. letter, we first want to call attention to our—

Projects for the coming year

1. Home Missions to be stressed during September, October and November. Goal: $100, to be used in purchasing hymn books and communion sets for our home mission churches. Incidentally you will want to know the part C. E. plays in these home mission churches. Be sure to read the reports from two societies elsewhere in this department.

2. Foreign Missions to be stressed during December, January and February. Goal: $450; $350 to be used for the full support of our C. E. missionary, J. P. Kliever, in Africa; and $100 toward the support of the Bible Coach work in South America. These gifts may be sent in through your local church, marked "C.E." Kliever or "C.E." Bible Coach.

3. Christian Endeavor Promotion to be stressed during March, April and May. Goal: $250, to be used for the support of Christian Endeavor teachers in Brethren summer camps, and for C. E. promotional and extension work.

4. Jewish and Sailor Evangelism to be stressed during June, July and August. Goal: $100, to be used toward the support of our Jewish mission in Los Angeles, and of the sailor evangelism our Bro. Claude Pearson is carrying on among the seamen who stop at the harbors in San Pedro, Calif., Fusan, Korea, and Rangoon, Burma.

5. Junior C.E. Project to be stressed throughout the entire year. Goal: $116.67 for the full support of Ann Celeste Kliever, our missionary child in Africa. Offerings may be sent in through the local church, marked "C.E." Ann Celeste.

In some of these projects a much larger amount could be used to good advantage, so let's go over the top in supporting them.

The C. E. Department of The Brethren Missionary Herald

Your National C. E. officers are busy gathering good ideas and suggestions for every department of your own C. E. You won't want to miss a one of these items, which will appear monthly in these columns. In order to make room for these valuable helps, we will not repeat items mentioned in the monthly letters mailed to the local officers whose names and addresses are sent us. Your society cannot afford to miss the information in these letters, so don't delay to fill out the blank found elsewhere in this department.

Monthly Party Plans

Do you remember the excellent party plans we printed a while ago in these columns? The Social Department of the National C. E. Board is planning to mimeograph party plans for every month, to be mailed with the monthly letters. So you see this is another reason for sending in that blank right away to make sure that you don't miss a one of the good things the C. E. Union has for you.

Reorganization of Your National C.E. Board

In order to be of more help to your society, the Brethren National C. E. Board has reorganized to conform with the Standard C. E. Manual, which your society should be using. Officers and department heads in your society having problems or suggestions pertaining to their respective departments should contact the corresponding national officer. For your convenience the officary will be found in the C. E. Department of each Educational Number.

Quarterlies for C. E. Topics

Say—How do you like the new Christian Life Series Quarterlies for you C. E. Society? They sure are full of good things, don't you think? Let us know how you like them.

Those who are not yet using these C. E. quarterlies can purchase them from The Brethren National C. E. Union, 3326 S. Calhoun St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.; 12c per quarter, or where five or more are sent to one address, 10c ea. per quarter. For full particulars see The Brethren Missionary Herald for Sept. 14, p. 13.

YOUR OCTOBER HOME MISSION PROGRAM

By Arthur Malles

"At least one home mission program each month during September, October and November" is the first special goal for Project 1 among our Brethren National C. E. goals. Why not try some form of the following program in your C. E. this month?

The aim of this program is to bring before your C. E. news from some of our home missions churches by means of a radio program. Have a committee arrange the C. E. room as much like a home as possible, a few floor lamps, some pictures on the walls, a canary, etc. Arrange the chairs in the room as they would be for a group this size in your home. Perhaps a rocker or an arm chair or two could be brought. A radio should be in a prominent place in the room.

At the time to begin the president will pull out his watch and remark that it is time for the C. E. broadcast, and will go to the radio and dial. Those participating in the program will be behind a curtain.

A quartette will sing, "The Call For Reapers" or some other such hymn as a theme song. Then the announcer states that "This is Radio Station Y.P.C.E. broadcasting the weekly C. E. hour of (name of your group or church). This broadcast is of unusual interest because it will take the radio audience to various points in the United States where Brethren young people have a particular interest because of their home missions stations there. First we will take you to Fremont, O., to hear a report of their work."

Reports can be made of as many home mission churches as time will allow, depending upon the length of each report. In the July 27, Aug. 17 and 24, and Sept. 21 issues of The Brethren Missionary Herald, material will be found for reports on Peru, Ind.; Wooster, O.; Fremont, O.; Hagerstown, Md.; Flora, Ind.; and San Diego, Calif.

When the program is over have the quartette sing "The Church's One Foundation." The announcer then invites the audience to listen in at the same hour next week.

FROM OUR HOME MISSION CHURCHES

"Nothing Plus God Equals Victory"

For some months our hearts have been burdened for a real young people's work in the Third Brethren Church of Los Angeles. When one or two young people would visit our church, they would never return, for there were no other young people with whom they might fellowship. Humanly speaking, we had nothing. We realized our only solution was to take "nothing" and put the Lord into it. We went to the knees, and very definitely prayed that the Lord would send us two or three young people who really knew the Lord and loved Him. During this time we leaned very heavily upon the Lord knowing that our Lord is never late in His answer to prayer. In due time, God answered our petition and gave us more than we asked of Him, for He sent us four young people who really know Him.

Our hearts were filled with joy and our praise went up to the Lord for His goodness. But then, our problem was how we might get to the unsaved of the community, for the four that the Lord sent us were not from our local community and thus we had no direct contact with the schools. We continued to put it all on the Lord, asking that He would guide us. As we prayed, we worked, and here and there we secured the names of young people that would be eligible for our young people's society.

One Sunday afternoon we went calling, visiting in the homes of the prospective members. Previously we had planned for a real, well-arranged C. E. service, namely a "Candle Light Service," and also for a party on the following Friday night. With each prospect, we left a printed invitation to the meeting and the party. We completed our calls, and continued to pray that the Lord would bless our efforts to His glory, by sending a "good" number to our first C. E. meeting. This He did! That Sunday evening, we had 15 present. That was our first C. E. meeting, just two weeks ago. Then on last Friday night we had our "Mystery Party" at which 16 young people were present. Plans were made for a "hay ride" in October.

More effort was put forth during the week that followed, and on last Sunday evening we had 17 present. At this service we had a "Mail Box Meeting" which proved very beneficial. Names were exchanged at our party on the previous Friday night and then each one wrote a letter to the one whose name he drew. A box was made like a "post box" and placed by the door of the C. E. room. As each one entered, he dropped his letter in the box. Later, the box was opened, and delivery was made to the proper party, who in turn read the letter to the whole society. Each letter contained a little about the writer's life: birth-place, outstanding incidents, travels, and anticipated occupation. The letter was closed stating whether or not the writer had confessed Christ publicly as his personal Savior: If not, why not; if so, what the Lord meant to the writer. No one knew who wrote the letter for no letter was signed, save by a middle initial plus a number between one and 25. These letters proved to be a real blessing. The service was closed with a challenge from the pastor to all those present.

Next Sunday we are having another "surprise meeting" and we are advertising "The Book That Talks!" Concealed behind a curtain will be "a voice" who will talk into an object so as to give a "hallowed" sound. A hollow tube will make for this effect. In front of the curtain will be placed a table on which will be an open Bible. The leader in charge will base his talk on the Promises of God's Word. After the lights are turned off, a candle will be lighted beside the open Bible. Each time the subject is introduced, a promise will be read as the leader turns a page in the Bible, and the voice behind the curtain reads the portion of Scripture. Promises both for the saved and the unsaved will be read and elaborated upon by the leader. A fine meeting is anticipated.

We are working diligently in our C. E., and we covet that you would hold us up before the throne daily, for we have found that "nothing plus God equals victory."

Yours in C. E. for Him,

Arnold R. Kriegbaum, pastor.

Give Reasons for the Hope that is in You

I'd like to tell you of an interesting meeting our Adult C. E. had. On the floor the leader had arranged an electric light covered with red paper and twigs in the center to resemble a camp fire. Everyone was seated on the floor in a circle around the camp fire. The leader explained that all but one of us were shipwrecked Christians, but we weren't downhearted, and were to give our reasons for the happy songs we sang. Someone would start a chorus, and the rest joined in. The one taking the part of an unsaved man was quite saddened by our plight, and of course couldn't understand our joy. He finally began asking why we weren't afraid. He played the part very convincingly, and we just as convincingly told our reasons, quoting Scripture (no Bibles allowed) and giving him the plan of salvation. You'd be surprised how little Scriptures one really knows when it comes right down to it. Everyone thought it a most enlightening lesson.

Your sister in Christ,

Mrs. A. W. Stivers, First Brethren Church,

DANGER AHEAD

Oh, set your sail to the heavenly gale,
And then, no matter what winds prevail,
No reef can wreck you, no calm delay,
No mist shall hinder, no storm shall stay.
Through salt sea sprays and o'er white sea foam,
No wind that can blow but shall speed you home.

—Annie Johnson Flint.

"REDEMPTION, RENEWAL AND REWARD"

John 1:12; 2 Cor. 5:17; 1 Cor. 2:9

Love came down and died for sin.
Faith reached out and took it in.
Hope looked up and made its claim.
Hallelujah! Praise His name!

Came the Word and I believed!
Came the Son and I received!
One receipt and this poor clod
Found itself a son of God!

Pleasures old are passed away.
Pleasures new are come to stay.
All the old life wavers dim,
Now that I am hid with Him.

Hid with Him to tell the story.
Hid with Him, while in glory,
God, according to His plan,
Long prepares a place for man.

Things too great for tongue to tell
Throng the place where I shall dwell.
Beauties never seen or heard,
Ever settled by the Word.

Glory hallelujah! sing
Glad hosannas to the King!
Praise the One who overcame!
Hallelujah! Praise His name!

—Gene Farrell.

Coming Judgments Upon the World

An Exposition of Revelation 9

By R. I. Humberd

"Great earthquakes . . . famines . . . pestilences . . . fearful sights and great signs from heaven . . . signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars . . . distress of nations . . . men's hearts failing them for fear . . . the powers of heaven shaken."

As a snare it shall come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man" (Lk. 21:11, 26, 35, 36).

Two Woe Trumpets

"And the fifth angel sounded, and I saw a star fall from heaven unto the earth; and to him was given the key to the bottomless pit" (v. 1).

This is not a material star, as in chapt. 8. "To him" was given the key. It is an angel. Satan was called "Lucifer" or daystar before his fall.

The Pit

The regions of the damned are as real as anything on the surface of this earth. Although scientists believe our earth to be a molten mass of material, this is no hindrance for spirit beings. Somewhere on the surface of this earth is the mouth of the bottomless pit.

God has a program and events must await their course. This star may be Satan or some other fallen angel who, having received permission to open the pit, throws himself down with all possible speed. Or it may be one of God's angels who has the key to the pit, as in chapt. 20.

Satan had to get permission to torment Job and when that was granted he used his power to the limit. So here the bottomless pit is opened to do its part in bringing tribulation upon this earth such as never was to this time no nor ever shall be (Mt. 24:21).

Infernal Regions

When Christ met the demons at Gadera, they besought Him not to send them out into the deep; rather er would they enter the bodies of swine. When Christ granted them permission, enough demons left that man to set 2000 hogs crazy.

The demons dread the abyss and shun it, knowing full well it is their future abode. Some besought Christ not to torment them before the time. When the unclean spirit goes out of a man it walks through dry places seeking rest but finds none (Lk. 11:24).

This pit is a fearful prison of unruly spirits and has its lid somewhere on the surface of the earth. At the battle of Armageddon, an angel will chain Satan and cast him into this pit and close it up for 1000 years.

Satan, at present, has millions of fallen angels and demons to work his evil designs. But there is a dark and horrible pit, full of strange and evil beings, that is closed to protect mankind from their fearful torments.

"Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him" (1 Cor. 2:9). This verse is not only true of the saved but no doubt of the unsaved as well, for who can imagine the fearful scenes that come before the eyes of an unsaved man as he passes into a Christless eternity?

Infernal Creatures

"And he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace" (v. 2).

Many times a volcano has blown off a mountain cap and has thrown ashes many miles into the air. But here is a volcano of another description. The lid flies off; a great black smoke belches forth.

"And there came out of the smoke locusts upon the earth; and unto them was given power, as the scorpions of the earth have power" (v. 3).

When we think of eternal life, we think of something that will never end; we expect to be somewhere in a million years from now. But God was alive and active a million years in the past.

Spirits of Evil Men

In five thousand years from now, there will be a prison full of evil spirits. Once these spirits lived up on this earth. They ate and drank; they bought and sold. Some of them were our relatives, our neighbors and our friends. But earth's distinctions will have vanished then. No difference whether they rode in an auto or walked, lived in a cottage or a palace. They sinned away their day of grace and for ever must they suffer for the error of their way.

And so 5000 years ago, and 10,000 and throughout all eternity past, God has been at work. We know not how many waves of intelligent creatures have passed over the scenes of this or another earth. But there is evidence in the rocks and in the Bible that great judgments have been visited in ages past.

Bound Agents of Evil

Once Satan sang and enjoyed the smile of his Creator as he led a multitude of angels in ceaseless joy to do His will. But a time came when Satan sinned and myriads of angels sinned with him. There are at this moment hosts of angels in "everlasting chains under darkness" because they "kept not their first estate" (Jude 6). The very air we breathe is peopled with demons who ever seek to possess a human body or in some way hinder a child of God.

Myriads of infernal creatures impatiently wait at the door of the bottomless pit, while in some distant age that is passed, four great generals of power with 200,000,000 infernal cavalry were chained and locked up in the River Euphrates.

And so as the fifth angel sounds his trumpet, the door of the pit swings open, and a hoard of locusts swarm out, the like of which men have never seen before.

Infernal Locusts

Regular locusts may lie dormant for 17 years and come forth to bring destruction to vegetation. But here are locusts that have been locked up for ages, now turned loose with a commission to hurt no green thing but "only those men which have not the seal of God in their forehead" (v. 4).

These locusts are unearthly in shape and unnatural in disposition. They are shaped like horses, with faces of men, hair of women, teeth as lions and with breast-plates of iron (v. 7-9).

Turtles have protection of shell, but here the iron seems to signify that these creatures cannot be caught and destroyed. They dart about in darkness, do not eat but do delight to cause suffering. It is natural for the fallen mind to kill and delight to torture another. Hunters kill and shout for joy as the helpless little rabbit writhes in its last death agonies. So here the fallen creatures of another age delight to see man suffer.

These creatures are called locusts, but they have little in common with earth's regular locusts. In heaven the cherubim have four faces; one as a man, one as a lion, one as an eagle, and one as an ox. So here, these seem to be sort of an infernal cherubim.

No doubt they once possessed greater intelligence, but having fallen from that high position, they have their "understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God" (Eph. 4:18). When sin alienates a person from God, the understanding is darkened. An unsaved person cannot reason straight about spiritual matters. The things of the spirit of God are foolishness to him, "neither can he know them, because they are spiritually discerned" (1 Cor. 2:14).

Torment

"And to them it was given that they should not kill them, but that they should be tormented five months" (v. 5).

What mercy to our present age that these creatures are locked up. And what torment the future holds in store for those who trifle with God's mercy. There is much suffering on earth now, but much evil is held in check. The Holy Spirit is hindering the mystery of iniquity (2 Thess. 2); these infernal locusts are locked in the abyss; and 200,000,000 horsemen are bound and helpless.

But one day these creatures of sorrow will be turned loose upon mankind and men will writhe in pain and agony. Think of an eternal hell together with all of these creatures as companions! And yet men build on the very edge of hell and boast of their great wisdom!

No Suicide

"And in those days shall men seek death and shall not find it; and shall desire to die, and death shall flee from them" (v. 6).

Now medical science works for healing as life's greatest blessing. Men spurn the electric chair and feign would live for ever. But a time is not far future when men will welcome death and court disaster.

Just what would happen if a man were to hold a shotgun to his head or sink himself in a lake, we do not know. Suicide will not bring relief for death shall flee from them and "they shall not find it." It may be that these creatures will be able in some way to prevent suicide as part of their torment.

This is a mere taste of what it would mean if God had not set a watch at the tree of life. For had man eaten of that tree and have lived forever in a mortal body; a body reeking with disease and cancer, what horrors no man can even imagine.

It is only when redeemed men receive an immortal body; a body pulsating with eternal life; a body that will never feel a pain nor heave a sigh. It is only in that body that men will have right to the tree of life and live forever.

The wings of ordinary locusts have the sound of whirling machinery. I was one time in a woods, and hearing the sound, I went in search of the machine until I passed a tree and heard the sound behind me. But the sound of these wings are "as the sound of chariots of many horses running to battle" (v.9).

"And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomless pit, whose name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon" (v. 11).

When Satan fell, he led multitudes of angels with him. So here is another mighty prince who is king of this host of evil; a prince who no doubt one day led in rebellion against his God.

Our Clue Again

"One woe is past; and, behold, there come two woes more hereafter" (v. 12).

Let us remember our clue to the understanding of the book of Revelation. A man buys a farm in July but cannot come into possession until Apr. 1. It is a large farm and he will need several men to work for him, so at various times during these months he hires a man to begin work on Apr. 1.

Christ purchased the earth over 1900 years ago but will not take possession until the day of redemption. During this 1900 years He has been 'hiring' people to become kings and priests to reign with Him on the new earth when He takes possession.

Chap. 2 and 3 are taken up with messages to the churches. It is instructions to those who will help Him rule at that time.

On Apr. 1, He will find Satan in control and Satan will contest His every right to the earth. Christ will then take steps to oust this intruder. Chap. 4 is the court scene. In Chap. 5, Christ takes the title deed and in Chap. 6 He opens the seals. Since the issue is in the human heart. Christ puts on the judgments with care so as to turn men to Himself.

The last seal is broken in Chap. 8. The book is now open and judgments fierce are soon to fall upon earth dwellers. These take the form of trumpet judgments. The last three are "woe" trumpets and bring great suffering and sorrow. The first opens the bottomless pit and brings terrible locusts upon the earth.

Outraged Mercy

"And the sixth angel sounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God" (v. 13).

The location of the cry locates the sin. For ages, these horns have been united in a cry to God for mercy toward sinful men. On the day of atonement they upheld the blood. But now mercy is exhausted and even these horns are crying out for vengeance. Abel's blood cried unto God from the ground. So here, men have been praying and acting saved; belonging to church and daring to call themselves by the name of God, but they so outraged God by their conduct that the four horns turned from mercy to vengeance for the evil doers.

The Four Angels

"Saying to the sixth angel which had the trumpet, Loose the four angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates" (v. 14).

These are evil angels for good angels would not be bound, neither would they hurt mankind if they were turned loose. Little can the human race know the realities of the infernal regions. Here are four great generals with all their hosts trying to free themselves in order to torment mankind.

They were no doubt bound in some preceeding age and are kept bound in mercy to man. Satan will be bound for 1000 years. Imagine people living during that time; they will know of him only as we know of these, merely hearsay.

There may be many angels that are bound, but here are four of a certain class capable of doing certain things at this time.

The Euphrates River is near where Satan first entered human history and where the tower of Babel was built. It is Satan's center of operation.

Four Infernal Captains

"And the four angels were loosed, which were prepared for an hour, and a day, and a month, and a year, for to slay a third part of men" (v. 15).

Here are particular angels, of a particular class, in a particular position! turned loose for a particular time to slay one third of mankind.

For five months, while the locusts held sway, men desired to die but could not do so. Here under this trumpet they get their fill of death, as one out of three fall victim to these creatures.

And the number of the army of the horsemen were two hundred thousand thousand" (v. 16).

Here is an enormous host. No such army has ever been mustered. 200,000,000 infernal cavalry with "them that sat on them, having breastplates of fire, and jacineth, and brimstone: and the heads of the horses were as the heads of lions; and out of their mouths issued fire and smoke and brimstone" v. 17).

No doubt both the writer and the reader of these lines have friends who will sometime suffer these torments, being subject any moment to be horrified, stung, stifled and scorched by the very elements of hell; the fire, and the smoke and the brimstone.

Imagine the physicians and the hospitals working overtime; the undertakers unable to care for the dead; the long lists in every newspaper. One out of a family in Egypt died and the cry rang throughout the land, but here one out of three are struck down.

There are some 2,000,000,000 people on earth today. One-third of that number will bring in a time of anguish that only those who feel it can fully know. Five times the population of the United States will fall during this brief period of time.

Refused Warning

But if the one-third are killed, it will give due warning to the two-thirds to listen to the servants of the Lord and repent, but alas,—

"the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and of wood—neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts" (v. 20, 21).

The World Waxing Worse

This is a time of abounding iniquity. But not all at once does it become thus. The let down in morals is gradual. First, just men smoked cigarettes; then great billboards pictured women enjoying the smoke; later she had her preference; and now she openly smokes in public.

So here, the characteristic of the age has been a general let down in morals. Men were becoming more and more selfish, covetous, boasters, blasphemers, unthankful, unholy, fierce, heady, highminded and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God (2 Tim. 3), until now it has become a part of their very life. As the days of Noah, so will be the days of Christ's return.

Some tell us that after men have suffered in hell, they will repent and all be saved. But here, under the most terrible pressure, they repent not. They murder and are not sorry. They may weep when arrested but they are not sorry they committed the crime, just sorry they are caught.

No More Marriage

There is a hint here that marriage is done away. Fornication is the act of the unmarried as adultery is the act of the married. In our present time of fearful morals in schools and colleges; in our time when men and women can live together like cats and dogs and call it companionate marriage; when divorce is easy and remarriage is in good standing. In such a time as this, it is only a step to discarding the sacred institution of marriage all together.

There are also "thefts." Our day abounds in dishonesty, deceit and theft. There must be pure food laws to protect our health; government inspection at the slaughter house, and men to test the scales and measures in every store lest our purchase be cut short. Verily how blind are those who comfort their hearts by saying the world is getting better.

The Neglected Race for Whom Christ Died

by Leo Polman

Even in a war-torn world Jews throughout the world welcomed Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish religious New Year, which opened Wednesday evening Oct. 2 (the eve of the first day of Tishri, the 7th month in the Jewish Calendar). This begins the new year 5702 of the Hebrew calendar.

As a holy day concerned primarily with the life of the individual, Rosh Hashonah with its message of eternal values will bring new courage to persecuted people and new strength to those called upon to aid their fellowmen.

This festival of High Holy Days was observed by Reform Jews, Orthodox and Conservative Jews alike. Rosh Hashonah, which begins these Holy Days for all Jews ends with the final blowing of the Shofar at Yom Kippur which makes its deep impression on Jewry. As one Jew writes, "There may be a slight difference between 'Happy New Year' as expressed on the first day of January, and 'May You Be Inscribed in the Book of Life for Good Year' as Jew greets Jew on Rosh Hashonah. It is in the concept of hope, the only weapon and the only defense of the Jewish people."

The importance of Rosh Hashonah to the Jew is deeply significant to him, religiously. For his tradition teaches him that the world was created at this time; that the birth of Abraham, of Isaac, of Jacob took place on this day; Joseph was freed from his prison on this day; and the Jews found emancipation from Egyptian bondage on this day.

The apostle Paul one day wrote to the Galatians (1:13, 14), "For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it; and profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers." Oh, that Israel would be more concerned in what the Lord Jesus Christ came to do for them. One day they shall turn to Him rather than to their traditions and festivals.

"Give now—and they will live" is a slogan used by The B'nai Brith Messenger magazine, meaning, "Give to Jewish agencies for help among Jewish refugees." Every Christian ought not only to pray for all Israel, but give also that the blessed gospel of Jesus Christ may be given to them that they truly might live; for Christ came "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly" (Jn. 10:10). Brethren have a wonderful opportunity to give to our own supported Jewish Mission located in Los Angeles, Calif. Send your gifts through your local church or through The Brethren Home Missions Council, Brnne, Ind.

The newspaper "Viene" reports that the Yugoslavian government, among other restrictive measures on the Jews in government and industry, is going to issue a decree shortly, excluding Jews who obtained citizenship after Dec. 1, 1918, and all other persons working with Jewish capital will be barred from the food trade.

PILGRIM HIGHWAY

By Manford Evans

And the man believed the word Jesus had spoke unto him, and he went his way (Jn. 4:50).

Here is a beautiful example of faith without benefit of physical evidence or seeing, or, "the proving of things not seen." Says someone, "If I could see a miracle wrought, then I'd believe." But that wouldn't be faith. "Faith is the assurance of things not seen."

When the nobleman besought the Lord to come down to Capernaum to heal his son he undoubtedly expected Him to suspend all other important business right there and come. He wanted the Lord to come with him so he could see Him heal his son. Nothing else would do.

So Jesus put him to the test. Said he: "Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe." My, he hadn't expected that! No doubt he was somewhat taken aback. But the son's sickness was very serious; he himself was desperate; the Lord just had to come, hence: "Sir, come ere my child die."

He could not very well have made his appeal more emphatic. Surely, after making it, the Lord must come. Not so. "Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way, thy son liveth." We have no intimation that the nobleman stopped to argue, not to insist further that the Lord come so that he himself might see. Faith arose to the occasion. For we read: And the man believed the word that Jesus had spoken unto him, and he went his way."

"And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, thy son liveth." Further inquiry revealed that the child was healed in the hour that "Jesus said unto him, thy son liveth." And the happy climax reads thus: "And himself (the nobleman) believed, and his whole house." First, he believed the word that Jesus had spoken to him" for the healing of his son; second, he and his entire household believed that he Who wrought this miracle was indeed Him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets did write."

"And the man believed the word." Multitudes of problems could and would be solved if, as children of God, we were as quick to believe as was the nobleman. "Go thy way." In other words, "go back to your son, to your household. I have healed the child. Do not ask to see signs and wonders. Believe my word; be on your way." And the man believed the word." He believed, and then he saw, "the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living."

The reason we do not see more miracles in the work of evangelism is because we do not believe the word. We believe a number of things because we see them; but we fail to glorify God in a number of things because we do not step out on the faith that must believe the word in order to bring "great and mighty things" to pass. Jude exhorts the saints to "earnestly contend for the faith . . ." Thank God for faith for salvation, but should we stop there?

There is something to contend for after we are saved. It is "the faith once and for all delivered." When we read the 11th chapter of Hebrews we find a glorious record of faith heroes—men and women who not only believed, but by faith set in motion the miracle-working power of God. "Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens."

Faith in our modern world has fallen to a low ebb. Instead of subduing kingdoms, many of us have a strenuous time to subdue "the little foxes that spoil the vine." The faith heroes of old "obtained promises," embraced them and God made them good. We have a Bible full of God's promises but how much do we embrace (believe) them that God might work? The Bible heroes "wrought righteousness," but we as modern Christians hardly peep against the unrighteousness, the ungodliness, the iniquity of the booze and cigarette evil lest we offend some of the politicians.

Position of the Brethren Church on War

(See Page 16)

As re-affirmed and adopted by the East Central District Conference of Brethren Churches at Ashland, Ohio, September 20, 1940

Considering that the world is seething with unrest and reverberating with the tread of marching feet and cannon roar, it seems fitting and proper to set forth the position of The Brethren Church in respect to war.

From its inception in 1708 A.D. The Brethren Church has insisted that war is wrong for Christians. Opposition to the Christian's participation in war was a major cause for the migration of Brethren to America. In a Brethren Conference in 1785, it was resolved that "we cannot find liberty to use any sword save the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, by which to cast down imaginations and every thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God and bring into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ," as Paul says in 2 Corinthians 10:5.

During the Civil War it was the position of The Brethren Church that "the government shall have our aid in any way which does not conflict with the principles of the Gospel of Christ. But, since in our profession we regard these principles as superior or paramount to all others, consistency requires that we regard them in our practices."

Christian's Warfare is Spiritual

While we recognize that war may be necessary for the settlement of disputes between nations, we likewise believe that the Word of God teaches that such a course of action is contrary to God's will for the Christian, (Rom. 12:17-21). We recognize that the Christian has no authority from the Bible to dictate a course of action for those who reject Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord. At the same time we believe that, in harmony with the teaching of Holy Scripture, the Christian has a heavenly as well as an earthly citizenship, (Phil. 3:20), the latter superceding the former (Acts 5:29), and that the Christian's warfare is not carnal but spiritual (1 Corinthians 10:3-4).

In harmony with the historic stand of The Brethren Church on war and carnal strife, The East Central District Conference of Brethren Churches wishes to reaffirm its position in harmony with the aforesaid convictions, and go on record, again, as being utterly opposed to war as a method to be used by Christians for the settlement of their difficulties with any human being upon the earth.

We wish to go on record as having no criticism of governmental authorities of a nation in a world that is far from being as yet regenerated, if they shall deem the use of the sword a necessity in the defense of a free people. The Word of God teaches that government is divinely instituted as an instrument of God to maintain order and punish evil doers (Rom. 13:1-6).

Brethren Not Pacifists

We wish to emphasize that The Brethren Church is not a pacifist church, nor are Brethren peoples pacifists. The Brethren Church is a non-combatant church.

We affirm it is our conviction that it is impossible for the Christian, as a citizen of a Heavenly Kingdom of which Christ is the King, to carry arms or engage in any conflict where he would take human life, without directly violating God's requirements for Christian conduct (John 18:36).

But, we wish to go on record that, in the event of the active participation of our nation in war, we will gladly offer our services as non-combatants, if asked to do so by our government, and will fearlessly serve in any manner that would help to mitigate the horrors and suffering that would inevitably accompany mortal combat.

We wish to go on record as encouraging every Brethren Church and every Brethren pastor to refuse to sign a statement in support of young men of conscription or draft age who claim exemption from combat military service upon conscientious grounds, yet whose lives are lived in a way that is inconsistent with the teaching of the Word of God.

Five Principles Listed

We wish to present the following principles as a guide for young men facing the problem of conscription:

1. Governments are ordained of God to maintain order and punish evil doers (Romans 13:1-6).
2. War may be a necessary part of this world order (John 18:36).
3. The Christian has a heavenly as well as an earthly citizenship (Phil. 3:20), the latter being superceded by the former (Acts 5:29).
4. The principles of our heavenly citizenship forbid the use by the Christian of carnal weapons as a means to settle differences (Romans 12:17-21).
5. Submission to and service in behalf of human government is a principle which God's Word commands of a Christian (Rom. 13:1) and therefore we must serve as non-combatants in time of war if asked to do so by our government.

Answering Some Questions on the Conscription Act

(See Page 15)

The Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 purposes to increase and train the men of the armed forces of the United States.

The act applies to every male citizen and every alien residing in the United States who is between the ages of 21 and 36 on the day fixed for registering. The President has fixed Wednesday, Oct. 16, 1940, as the registration day. The words, "between the ages of 21 and 36," mean all those who have reached their 21st birthday and who have not reached their 36th birthday on the day of registration.

Ignorance of the act, or having dependents, or if opposed to war, or any other reason, is no excuse from registering. All between 21 and 36 years must present themselves for registration at the time and place determined by local board in charge of the act.

Not everyone who is registered will be taken in training and service. There are a few exceptions: those who have already served a certain period in the army or in the National Guard, governors of states, judges of courts, members of legislature, and ministers of religion. A college student who has entered upon the attendance of his college for the year 1940-1941 and who is pursuing his studies in college will not be required to go into training until his school year ends, or until July 1, 1941.

Conscientious Objectors

The Selective Service Act does not require any man to be subject to combatant training and service, who, by reason of religious training and belief, conscientiously objects to participation in war in any form.

The status of a conscientious objector is determined by the local Selective Service Board. If satisfaction cannot be had there one can appeal to an Appeal Board which will be set up to handle such questions.

If conscientious objection is found to exist the objector may be assigned to non-combatant service, or he may be assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction.

Other exceptions to active service, after registration, may be men who are employed in industry, agriculture, or any other occupation of importance which the local board finds is necessary to maintain national health or safety.

Those who have one or more dependents upon them may be relieved from training by local boards under rules and regulations which will be prescribed by the President.

By the word "dependent" is meant one who is dependent in fact for support in a reasonable manner, and whose support depends upon the income or earnings by such person in business, occupation, or employment.

Physically, mentally, or morally defective ones will not be accepted for training—but they must register.

The following form may be of help to some who would like to consider some uniform form to present to the Selective Service Act Board:

CERTIFICATE OF MEMBERSHIP

What a Gospel of John did for an Old Man

By R. I. Humberd, Martinsburg, Pa.

"I have spent enough for drink and other forms of sin, to buy the best farm in this country." Such were the words of an old man to me a short time ago. His experience with Christians had so disappointed him that he had come to hate the church with a terrible hatred.

About two years ago, so he said, I had crossed his path and had given him a Gospel of John. (I do not remember the incident but am continually giving out Gospels and tracts). He was angered and threw it away. About a year later our paths again crossed and I gave him another Gospel. This time the incorruptible seed of the word of God fell into good ground and brought forth fruit unto life eternal.

"In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good" (Eccles. 11:6).

The old man went to a little country church, and to the surprise of those in the audience who knew him, he walked down the aisle and boldly faced the audience to let everyone know that he had given his heart to the Lord. Then realizing that he would need strength and encouragement, he rented a room in the home of one of the members; and with joy in his heart at the prospect of a peaceful and happy Christian life, he moved into his new home.

Although it is better for a man to have a millstone about his neck and be cast into the depths of the sea, than to cause a little one to stumble, yet from the other side of the house there rang the invitation,

"Do you want a drink of beer?"

"No," was the instant reply "I am living for Jesus."

"Ha! Ha! You will come to it," came back the fearful taunt.

This was repeated from time to time until one evening two of his old friends entered his room, and together with his Christian (?) landlord, they drank and tried to get him to join them. This was a fearful test for a man who had spent his life in drink, but he said, "No, I am living for Jesus." Then in despair he cried for help: "Oh, Jesus and God help me, Oh Jesus and God help me."

That short and simple prayer was heard and the victory was won, but his nerves had been so disturbed that for days he could scarcely eat or sleep, and he wandered about among the members trying in vain to bring peace to his troubled heart.

Then a word from far back in his early childhood began to form itself upon the pages of his memory. He had heard a preacher say something about going to the wilderness. He could not remember just what it was, but he resolved to heed the promptings; and on Sunday morning he went away in the woods to an old deserted sawmill, taking the little red Gospel of John with him.

After great effort he finally quieted his mind and began to read the Word of life. It was slow work for him, but by spelling out the big words and pausing over others it brought strength to his weary soul. He had not known where to find me, but later when we met we had a joyful time in the Lord.

"Be ye steadfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord" (I Cor. 15:58).

THANKSGIVING OFFERING DIME COLLECTORS

These splendid aids in making up the thank offering for Home Missions should be at work in every church today. Thanksgiving now is but four weeks away. There is no time to lose if we are to give an offering that will be sufficient to carry on the work that our Father God has given us for this coming year. We urge all pastors to send promptly for as many as you will need. Last year we had great results with these little collectors. Here is the slogan:

"All my dimes for Home Missions from now till Thanksgiving."

Get started today.

COLD WEATHER IS BEGINNING IN KENTUCKY!

We have just received an appeal from Bro. Sewell Landrum that they will need a greater amount of clothing this year than ever. They have little left over from last season and their needs are greater due to having a much larger work now.

Here is a suggestion for all Women's Missionary Councils and all who would help the work in this way. Go to your local dry goods stores and shoe stores. Every season store keepers have shop-worn and out-of-style clothing and shoes that they cannot sell, and sometimes they simply throw these things out. Hats, shoes, clothing, and underwear of all kinds can thus be gotten easily. Last year some of our folks did this and the result was surprising. The storekeepers are glad to help in this way.

But gather it together now and send it down at once, for

THE NEED IS NOW.

The pressing need is during the fall months. Next spring will be too late to help much. Most of the suffering down there comes before Christmas. So get busy now.

Send everything to Rev. Sewell Landrum, Lost Creek, Ky. Send it parcel post in several packages, which is best. If by express, send to Jackson, Ky., or by truck line to Lost Creek, Ky. After Nov. 1st, send it to Bro. Landrum addressed to Clayhole, Ky., by mail or truck. Express must always go to Jackson, Ky.

BUT, SEND WHAT YOU SEND NOW!

Of All The Gail!

Of all the inhuman, fiendish, relentless persecutions heaped upon the Jews by Hitler and his Nazi Germany, wherein the Jews were made to trod the pathway of blood and terror and torture beyond all description, it seems that no irony could be greater than that now Mr. Hitler should be trying to entice the Jew to return to Germany under a promise of blessing.

A recent United Press dispatch from Belgium tells of posters put up in the German consulate at Antwerp inviting doctors, engineers, and technicians of German nationality regardless of race to return at once to Germany with a promise of immediate restoration to citizenship and of their previously confiscated fortunes. The dispatch states that it is aimed primarily at the professional Jews who formed the most brilliant, scientific and specially trained experts that were in Germany. In his mad hate and in the effort to inflame the German people against the Jews in order to give him an issue upon which to build his dictatorship, Hitler drove the Jews out, regardless. Now then, he is finding that he drove out the very men who once made Germany great. His insane temerity is found in the fact that he evidently believes that if he would ask the Jews to return to the man who had lied to them and had in every way possible sought to destroy them, that any of them would be so foolish as to do so, and once again put their necks in the noose. Quite superfluously it seems to us the dispatch adds, "No Jews have accepted the offer to date."

Whatever it may have cost Germany to drive out the Jews as they have done, it is nothing compared to what it is going to cost Germany as a part of Gog when finally in the land of Palestine they shall meet their doom and God "will give unto Gog a place there of graves in Israel."

The Devil in Cap and Gown

The idea that radicalism and communism are largely born in the hearts of those who have been unfortunate in an economic situation has long been prevailing in the minds of many in this country. On the basis of this assumption there has been a widespread movement to provide jobs and to give billions of dollars in order to satisfy the people and thus prevent a revolution. At the recent meeting of the American Psychological Association held at State College, Pa. on Sept. 7, Dr. Goodwin Watson of Columbia University told that august assembly that this idea has been proven as all wrong. He declared that the facts show that the influence of unemployment is negligible. This is so striking that the real problem is to find out why the unemployed are so little radicalized by their experience. Persons without jobs for two years were almost unaffected by any radical viewpoint. On the contrary he said, that the real trouble with radicalism and communism is not with this class of people. He said that the most radical group of all was found among professional and sub-professional people, including engineers and scientists. He said that the main factors causing economic radicalism appeared to be schooling, particularly in going to high school and college, as investigations showed. Those "who carried on into graduate study," said he, "include ten times the proportion of radicals as those who have barely finished the eighth grade."

Now that is something, isn't it? America has worshipped at her educational shrine. She has all but made education her god. Now she is finding that education as it is now pursued is the breeding ground of the very forces that are determined to overthrow this nation. The day when America threw the Bible out of her school room and began to invite into her halls atheists, agnostics, infidels and skeptics, was the day that she invited her own downfall. This nation was built by Puritan fathers who believed the Bible and had no question about it. The school systems that they built were built upon the Word of God. It was honored, revered and read day by day in the school room. America has sown to the wind in her educational systems and she is now reaping the whirlwind. She is now ever learning but never coming to a knowledge of the truth. If Uncle Sam wants to save this country, instead of sending the FBI agents into cellars and labor halls looking for communists with bombs and sticks of dynamite, they had better go into our educational halls and there find the men who have been teaching communism, atheism, and revolution to our higher schools of learning for the last 20 years.

Where Memory Should Fail

The greatest preacher of the gospel who ever lived declared, "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus" (Phil. 3:13, 14). There are times when the power to forget is of greater value than the power to recall. To have a tendency to recall unpleasant memories, unpleasant situations, unfortunate deeds that others may have done against you, and to allow the mind to dwell upon them and the heart to meditate upon them, can be most detrimental and costly to the Christian life. There is only one thing in all the universe that the Bible says God forgets, and that is, He forgets our sins. "Their sins and iniquities will I remember no more." Those are the things that God wants to forget.

There are just as certainly some things that the true Christian wants to forget also. Many an otherwise successful minister has allowed the old sour memory of other days, of times when he was slighted, of unkind deeds done against him, and of grudges that he has refused to give up, to act as a millstone around the neck of his future and of his success before God. Thousands of laymen have done the same thing and are doing it today. This is the shortest way to destroy fruitfulness in the sight of God. The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches of America must guard against the same thing. As a people we must forget our past, whether it is of defeat or whether it is of glowing successes. We cannot live in the past in any sense. To dwell on our defeats or our failures cuts the nerve of our courage for the future. To meditate on any successes or victories of the past but lulls us to sleep for greater accomplishments in the days to come.

We must forget the past entirely and press on, for we have a world to reach for Christ; we have sacrifices to make; we have battles to fight; we have our great struggles against sin and Satan and unbelief to meet and overcome. We have a great testimony to bear. We have a responsibility to reach men that we have never been able to reach before. Today God is calling us to greater and wider fields. Doors are opening to us that we have never even known of before. New powers are developing within our own midst to accomplish greater things for Him. Hitherto unknown and hidden sources of supply are now becoming manifest, and God is calling us on. While the sun of this age of grace is setting and while the time is drawing to the close of the age, we must lay ourselves to our task for His sake. Just as Jesus, hanging upon Calvary within a few seconds of His death, fulfilled the Word of God and the will of God to the last moment, so must we engage ourselves in the thrill of the greatest task we have ever undertaken for Christ and until He comes.

Success consists not so much in sitting up nights as being awake in the daytime.

Just about the time you think you can make ends meet someone moves the ends.

GOD'S TESTING

A blacksmith, eight years after he had been converted, was approached by an intelligent unbeliever with the question: "Why is it you have so much trouble? I have been watching you. Since you began to 'walk square' and seem to love everybody, you have had twice as many trials and accidents as you had before. I thought that when a man gave himself to God his troubles were over. Isn't that what the parsons tell us?"

With a thoughtful and glowing face, the blacksmith replied: "Do you see this piece of iron? It is for the springs of a carriage. I have been 'tempering' it for some time. To do this I heat it redhot, and then plunge it into a tub of ice water. This I do many times. If I find it taking temper, I heat and hammer it unmercifully. In getting the right piece of iron I found several that were too brittle. So I threw them on the scrap-pile. Those scraps are worth about a cent a pound; this carriage spring is very valuable.

God saves us for something more than to have a good time—that's the way I see it. We have a good time all right, for God's favor means peace and happiness to the soul. But He wants us for service just as I want this piece of iron. Ever since I saw this I have been saying to Him: 'Test me, Lord, in any way You choose; only don't throw me on the scrap-pile.'

—Just David.

My Bible --- Can I Depend Upon It?

By Bernard N. Schneider, Pastor, Washington, D. C.

There was a time when I seriously doubted the dependability of the Bible. Before I accepted the Lord Jesus as my personal Savior some 8 years ago; I used to read book after book acquainting myself with the "mistakes" of the Bible. After meeting with the Lord under the cross, I wanted sincerely to believe the whole Bible as the Word of God, but for a short time there remained with me some honest doubts about its dependability in every verse. The Lord soon opened my eyes, and through the few years of my life as a Christian the conviction that every word of the Bible is the true Word of God has grown stronger, until nothing in the world could shake it. This deep conviction is based upon both experience and knowledge. In this short article I want to give four good reasons why I trust in the Bible as the infallible Word of God.

1. I have complete confidence in the Bible because I have applied its teachings and promises to my own life and have found out that they are true, for they work. In submitting myself to the Lord as His Word tells us to do He has made me a new creature. I have prayed and my Lord has sent remarkable answers. These things are promises of the Bible, and when tried, they worked in my life. I realize that this reason is of a personal nature and does not convince others, but to me it is more convincing than anything else.

2. I have confidence in the Bible because I have observed that its teachings and promises work with others whenever applied. The following is just one example. Five years ago I was sent to Covington to organize a Brethren church. When we came here we found very little with which to accomplish such a task. In fact, it seemed impossible from a human standpoint, and most people here who knew of the intention seriously doubted its consummation. But we had the promises of God in His Word. He had given the command to go out into the world and preach the gospel. He had promised that when His Word was faithfully sown, it would bear fruit. We believed this promise. We acted upon it. God faithfully kept His promise, and as a result we have here now a thriving, self-supporting Brethren congregation. Why shouldn't we have confidence in the Bible as God's Word? He has never failed to make it good in our case.

3. I trust in my Bible because I see its prophecies fulfilled concerning Christ's first coming. Prophecy is what sets the Bible off to itself, towering above all other writings, sacred and otherwise, as the Writings of God. Most religions have their sacred writings, but none of them do accurately foretell the future except in such parts as have been borrowed from the Bible itself.

Anyone with a fair mind, making a close comparison between the O. T. prophecies concerning Christ's birth and death, and their fulfillment in the N. T., cannot help but see that the mind of man did not conceive the writings of the Bible. The foretellings are in no wise general, but exact details are given by the prophets, and fulfilled to the letter. For instance, Isaiah tells us that Christ is to be born of a virgin mother (Isa. 7:14 with Mt. 1:18-23). It must be remembered that this prophet wrote these words some 700 years before Christ was born. Micah tells us the birthplace of Christ over 700 years in advance (Mic. 5:2 with Mt. 2:3-6). David gives us the very minute details of Christ's suffering and death about 1000 years in advance. He tells of the piercing of the hands and feet (Psa. 22:16), of the parting of His garments and the casting of lots over His coat (Psa. 22:18 with Jn. 19:23-24). Even the little detail of having vinegar given Christ to drink was foretold by the Psalmist (Psa. 69:21 with Jn. 19:28-29). And these are only a few convincing samples of this fruitful field of study.

Right here I want to beg the reader's pardon for mentioning another personal experience. Before I was a Christian, I knew about these prophecies. But I had many doubts as to their originality. Even after I became a Christian, secret doubts would steal into my heart concerning these things. How was I to know for certain that these foretellings had really been written long before they were fulfilled? But one day, soon after being saved, I had a great experience which helped me much in exchanging certainty for honest doubts. I was hunting in an encyclopedia for some detail concerning ancient history. Suddenly I stopped. I was reading that among other noteworthy deeds of a certain ancient ruler who lived a few hundred years before Christ came to earth, was the fact that he had ordered a group of educated men to translate the O. T. Bible from the Hebrew language to the Greek language of his country. I read this for the second time. It was something worth while to me, especially since it was found in a worldly encyclopedia of facts. Of course, all this is well known to ministers and Bible students, but to my young Christian life it meant a great deal. If the O. T. was already translated from one language into another 200 years before Christ came to earth, then those prophecies concerning His first coming are a wonderful proof of the trustworthiness of the Bible for they were literally fulfilled. No mere human could make such accurate predictions concerning a certain person centuries in advance.

4. I trust my Bible because its ancient prophecies concerning this present time are being fulfilled before our eyes today in such a wonderful manner that it ought to convince even the most sceptical. One can sometimes take a front page of one of our daily newspapers, and a page from the Bible, and laying them side by side be tempted to think that the same editor had dictated the contents of both, so plainly are the events of today the fulfilment of the foretellings of God's Word.

The history of the Jews has always been an excellent commentary on the Bible. But today their plight speaks louder than ever confirming the words of our Lord: "Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law until all be fulfilled" (Mt. 5:18). Who can read the graphic description of their dismal existence among the nations of the world in this age as foretold in Deut. 29, and then read about their inhuman treatment in many parts of the world today without an apparent cause or human explanation, and not be convinced that the Bible is trustworthy?

We read concerning the Jewish people: "And the Lord shall scatter thee among all people, from one end of the earth even unto the other" (no prophecy was ever more literally fulfilled) "and among these nations shalt thou find no ease, neither shall the sole of thy foot have rest" (Deut. 29:64-65). Think of the Jews being shoved about in the world today. Unwanted, but present everywhere! A few years ago they were fleeing from Germany to Austria for safety. But there their rest was short lived as Hitler soon took that over. Czecho-Slovakia seemed to be a safe haven, and many tried to enter that country. But, alas, Hitler soon swept that nation into his "Lebensraum," and many thousands of Jews tried to escape. Even the poverty of Poland seemed better for a time than the Nazi concentration camp. And now Poland has its Nazi concentration camps. Today there are several million Jews homeless and moneyless in Central Europe, wondering what will be happening to them next. Recently we read of hundreds who died while being shipped in cattle cars back and forth between Berlin and Warsaw in zero weather. Thousands have taken refuge on ships, sailing the seven seas, hoping that some nation will act human and let their feet touch solid earth again. "No rest for the sole of thy foot" says the sacred record. How literally true.

"But the Lord shall give thee there a trembling heart, and thy life shall hang in doubt before thee, and thou shalt fear day and night, and thou shalt have none assurance of thy life" (Deut. 29:65-66). Who can read these words, which are only a small sample of the great store of prophecy concerning the Jews, and not be convinced that not man but God is the author of the Bible, when we see them being fulfilled so accurately. The evidence is too convincing, and is the more convincing the closer it is examined. Furthermore this same Bible tells us that the Jews will suffer these things among the nations until a certain time when they shall be regathered to their own land for the last drama of their already colorful life story. There they must yet endure the time of "Jacob's trouble" before they will fulfill the purpose of their calling, and receive their King and kingdom. Again, the events of our day bear out the accuracy of God's Word, and slowly the children of Israel are stealing home to Palestine.

To all these evidences we could add many others. There is for instance the unnatural friendship of Russia and Germany, so plainly foretold in the Bible. But, what further evidence do we need? Let us praise the Lord that He has given us His Word, and let us heed its goodly instructions to us, for: "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness" (II Tim. 3:16).

LIVES THAT OFT REMIND US

By Enos Cox

176 Pages; Cloth binding; Price, $1.00

This book gives us 20 pen portraits of 20 outstanding Old Testament Bible characters of which the following are examples: Mrs. Noah, an old-time preacher's wife; Esau, the man who could not wait; Jochabed, a mighty mother; Eli, a father who failed; Caleb, a Puritan of long ago.

The lives of these men and women speak with a real message to men and women of today who are faced with like problems. The lives of those of olden times of "like passions as we" herein set forth truths being just those which readily find their way to hearts hungering after spiritual help in the everyday, busy routine of life.

The Greatest Need

(Given as a talk at a special Home Mission service at Roanoke, Va. by Mrs. Dewey Murray and not planned originally for publication.—R.P.M.)

Almost to another Thanksgiving season, and God has preserved us as individuals, and as a church! Unworthy and undeserving though all of us are, I am sure we would have to admit; yet God has bountifully blessed us in too many ways to mention this morning. Then surely in the hearts of His children at this season of the year there will be a spirit of thankfulness that will manifest itself in action.

I know we will not have to be reminded that this is the time when we will receive our Home Mission offering, for many have been remembering this most important offering in prayer and several have made contributions already, while quite a few have dime collectors as a reminder.

But lest there be one Christian who may not feel his or her responsibility in this the greatest need perhaps for a large Home Mission offering up to this time, we do come to you this morning asking that you will seek the Lord's will, and as He leads, do your very best for Him this time.

To be a Christian is to be Christ-like; and if we would follow Christ we must discharge our obligations to our fellowmen, for Christianity puts us in debt to every man, woman and child. It is estimated that there are over 70,000,000 people in the United States, our home land, that do not belong to any church. Surely after 1900 years someone has failed to "go . . . therefore and preach the gospel to every creature," as commanded in Mt. 28:19, 20, and have they failed to go because we have not made it possible by bringing the gifts that rightfully belong to Him to be used in His service? For most part, I believe our people are missionary minded. Many sacrificial gifts in the past have proven as much. But we dare not let up in our giving while there is still one without the message of salvation.

It is very evident that America is facing moral collapse, and low ideals and morals result in just what we are witnessing in America today, economic chaos. Experts tell us that one half the adults in the U. S. today are gamblers. Next to China and India the U. S. is the greatest consumer of dope. And the Federal Narcotics Bureau claims that one third of the drug addicts in the U. S. are children in their teens. Think of it!

It is also estimated that 115,000,000 people attend the movies weekly. Many of this number are church members. A late survey among boys in several reformatories and houses of correction revealed that most of their crime training was received at the movies. Al Capone of gangland fame said, "No children should be allowed to attend the moving picture theatre of the present time." What a rebuke to parents, especially professing Christians, that a gangster might be more concerned about where his children go, than they.

With our prisons being filled at the rate of 500 weekly, homes wrecked daily by separation and divorce, liquor sales increasing by leaps and bounds, why do I mention these things? (They are not new to any of us.) Because we who have the remedy look on these so lightly. What would we think of a doctor who had the remedy for something that was causing physical death daily, if he did not do everything within his power to prevent it? Yet we are face to face with something much more serious, and that is the multitudes who are spiritually dead; and how much do we do about it?

God has told us in Ezek. 33:8, 9, that if we do not warn the wicked, they shall die in their sins, but their blood will He require at our hands. But He also says if we warn them and they turn not from their sins, we have delivered our souls.

Surely the need is for more old-fashioned Bible preaching and teaching, and unless we somehow get a vision of this need we will not be willing to make the sacrifices necessary to make possible such a program.

When faith in the infallibility and integrity of God's Word is undermined we can expect a race of demoralized men and women to rise up; and modernism, evolution and worldliness have lifted their heads in many pulpits. I believe there are Bible-loving and Bible-believing Christians today supporting unaware the programs of modernistic atheistic denominational colleges and seminaries which have sold their birth-right for a mess of pottage.

A man who was president of the American Association for the Advancement of Atheism and a graduate of one of the larger denominational colleges recently said this, "Modernism has taken over control of our major denominations today and the dumb fundamentalists are helping to foot the bill."

May God help us to stand loyally by our schools that uphold the "faith of our fathers" and by the pastors who fearlessly proclaim the whole truths of God's Word. We believe that we are in the eventide of this church age, for certainly there is "distress of nations with perplexity" in our day and "men's hearts failing them for fear." But our Lord has told us in Lk. 21:28 "when these things begin to come to pass then look up and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." We know that it is darkest just before dawn and we believe there is going to be a glorious daybreak soon, when the "Sun of Righteousness" shall arise with healing in His wings. There seems to be no other solution for the problems of the world but the return of our Lord. But we must not become so interested in His coming that we fail to occupy or do business for Him until He comes.

The gospel of Jesus Christ proclaimed and lived in the power of the Spirit is the only force that can hope to cope with the evil in this unregenerate world. I believe The Brethren Church possesses this gospel, and home missions is the only avenue of extending this pure gospel throughout America. The task calls for the entire church to be aroused, consecrated and active, using every means at our disposal; and let's not forget to pray.

When Israel was about to be destroyed because of their unbelief, Moses prayed earnestly for them and they were spared for Moses' sake; and again when the entire nation of Israel had sunk into idolatry and were about to be destroyed, Elijah prayed for God to show His power and turn them back, and the fire fell, and a nation was saved that day. We have the same prayer-hearing and prayer-answering God today.

And because atheism, modernism, and materialism threaten, because apostasy is eating the heart out of the church, and because many Christians are discouraged and are throwing away their faith and their Bibles, The Brethren Church should double her efforts that we might prove true to God in such a time as this, to send forth the gospel as never before, to build more churches dedicated to the whole gospel. And to do this through our Brethren Home Missions Council is a good way to enlarge our work throughout our land. Their success in the past is evidence that God is blessing the work of home missions in our church.

What will be our answer to this need in the next couple of weeks when the offering is received? I believe that God intended His children to have the necessities of life, but most of us today feel that we do not have our needs unless we have every comfort or convenience. Remember that Christ once said while here, "The foxes have holes and the birds have their nests, but the Son of man hath not where to lay His head."

He gave up everything, and came and lived like that for you and me, then died on the cross and purchased our redemption. Will we give Him just the leftovers, or will we put Him first? This is a question each person will have to answer for himself.

"What The Home Missions Council Is Doing"

ACROSS
NATION with our secretary

A Blessed Directors' Meeting

Each year the Directors of the Home Missions Council meet and lay out an entire year's work before the Lord. Everything is done wholly on faith, expecting God to provide for His work. Until one has gone through an experience of sitting through all the sessions of an annual meeting over 10 days of time, and observing all that is involved in the problems of such work, and the wide reach of the responsibilities of our expanding fields, it is impossible to appreciate the weight that is on the hearts of our directors when they come to each meeting. To keep from going beyond the Lord's leading, and likewise to keep from lagging behind His leading through lack of faith, is constantly before us. When the directors leave an annual session, having budgeted many thousands of dollars for the work ahead for one year, they have done so with practically nothing in the treasury. They have acted believing that God will move upon the hearts of His people to provide for all the needs. And God has always honored their faith by providing more than we have asked. The happy hours come at the opening of each annual meeting when the report of the year's work is made and the story of God's wonderful working is revealed. Each year the directors grow in faith to attempt greater things. This year was an exceptionally blessed time in every way.

Our Largest Thanksgiving Offering

This was our first full year's work. The Council was but 21 months old when this year's annual report was made. Nevertheless an offering of $24,552.73 was laid at the feet of our blessed Lord for home missions during the year. It was cause for great joy in the hearts of the directors you can be sure. This offering was pure gifts in the general fund alone. Including all funds the year's receipts aside from balances carried over was $27,564.02. To us this was clear and distinct evidences of God's approval of our dependence upon Him and in the type of work we are doing in spreading the gospel here in America. We give Him all the praise.

Nine New Congregations Established

This is the touchstone of all that we do. It is the actual new congregations of believers that are founded that really test the success of all home mission work. Nine new churches were established during the year, and two fields were given primary attention as prospective congregations. This is the largest year's work Brethren home missions has ever experienced. It is enough to make Brethren hearts everywhere to rejoice with a great rejoicing. It is the distinct evidence of the favor of God.

Five More Fields Ready for Entrance

Just as soon as men and means are available the Council plans to enter Bakersfield, Calif., Middletown, O., South Mansfield, O., North Akron, O., and two sections of Dayton, O., where good fields are waiting. God is leading and calling on. The Lord is drawing nigh, our time is so short in which to accomplish so much, and we have lost so much time that should have been used in doing the very thing we are now witnessing, that we must do the extraordinary thing today. That is why the Council has felt led to ask for a larger Thanksgiving offering for the coming year. We believe God is leading and will enable our people to provide for the work He has laid out our door. This is why the Council established the Brethren Student Life Volunteers in order to supply many more young preachers of the gospel to enable us to take these fields for Christ.

Vigorous Mission Points

We are not building mission points that lay on the Council for 20 years feeding at the trough. Our missions now are vigorous, and responsible. Last year our mission points added 342 souls to their work, and raised almost $50,000.00 for their own works and for missions, a sum equal to three times as much as the Council gave them. This is a clear testimony as to the splendid type of administration that the Council outlines for its mission points today. Such works merit the finest confidence that the Lord's money is being wisely used to the greatest good when given to the Thanksgiving offering for home missions.

Brother Johanson Sick

Our sessions were saddened by the serious illness of our Bro. William Johanson, one of our fellow directors. At present writing he is at his home in Shipshewanna, Ind., and is reported to be improving. We are definitely praying for him that God will be glorified in his complete recovery. Let all who pray remember him. He has been a very helpful member of the Council. He made some beautiful tables for our office, and planned to make the pews for the Clayhole church, but was prevented by this illness.

A Great Sight

The Brethren Home Missions Council is definitely set for the preaching and defence of the gospel of Christ, no more, no less. It is written into our charter that the directors of the Council and all pastors and employees must sign the statement of faith written therein. The unhesitating way, to say nothing of the eagerness with which each one arose to sign his name to the statement at the meeting of the corporation on Saturday morning, and thus render his hearty endorsement to it, was a sight to behold. Men who believe the whole gospel are not ashamed to testify to it at all times. This is the kind of men who are establishing Brethren home missions today.

A Blessed Time of Fellowship

It has been the custom to have a gathering of the directors and their wives with the mission pastors and their wives at some time during each national conference. This year it was held on Friday night in the dining hall of Bethany Camp. The Spirit of optimism, joy, and good will pervaded all. There were 45 present. Roy A. Patterson, president of the Council, presided as toastmaster, and a mighty fine job he did of it too. In his opening remarks he recalled how, just two years ago, four of the present directors stood alone in protest against methods that we believed to be certain death to the growth of The Brethren Church, and left the old home mission board. That day we had nothing but our integrity and our faith in God. We had no mission points and no funds—not even an organization. That to look over that fine assembly of directors and mission pastors now and know of the wonders God hath wrought among us and for us during these two years was heart filling. We all echoed a hearty "amen." Then followed short talks from our mission pastors. These talks were filled with information, humor and optimism. The pastors wives were not called upon, but we believe that they will get a chance next year to tell what they think about things! The entire meeting was interspersed with gospel choruses, sung with zest. At the close the president had all of us to form a circle around the dining hall and sing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." It was a great time. Mission pastors and their wives went out feeling deeply moved and knowing that their labors and sacrifices were not unnoticed, and that we were all together devoted to the great work. Directors had a new sense of appreciation of what the boys on the field are facing and feeling. It means great things for the future when we are "all for one and one for all." We give Him all the glory.

Revival at Pleasant Grove, Iowa

Twenty years ago we held a meeting in the Pleasant Grove church and had a fine time then. For quite a while the folks have been asking that we return again. It has been a little trying to find a time to come, but finally we made it for two weeks.

It has been a pleasure to return and meet again so many friends of other days. We found the church smaller than when we were here before. But it is a credit to the laymen here that there is a Brethren Church left at all in this place. They have been most of the time without a Brethren pastor at all. One thing is certain, we can't build Brethren churches without Brethren pastors. Other pastors may be friendly and helpful at times, but they cannot build up The Brethren Church. It takes a man who is dedicated to the things The Brethren Church believes and is passionate in teaching and practicing them.

There is a fine fundamentalist preacher in this community who has been doing what he could for this Brethren Church but he has had so little time to give to the work with his other duties that he has been unable to accomplish much. He is a very fine man and we believe that God has a greater work for him and one that will draw him much closer to our own.

The attendance at the meeting has been fine and the interest growing. However conviction proved slow to make its appearance. Finally the break came and a regular landslide of spiritual blessing came upon the meeting. Many were saved, lives were changed, offenses that had been allowed to live for years were adjusted and forgiven, and the congregation voted to buy a parsonage and raised $850 to that end. They voted to provide a permanent pastor for the church. All in all we had a great time of blessing at Pleasant Grove. We returned a week later to baptize a number of whole families and many others. We give God all the glory and rejoice that there is a beginning of greater things.

Our home during the meetings was with Brother and Sister John Myers. It is the home of the missionaries when they come this way, for it is the paternal home of our Sister Stella Myers who is now in Africa. It has been a happy home for us. Our time has been made most pleasant by the many invitations to the homes of the members of the congregation. Their hospitality is incomparable. We hope to return again.

Home Mission Pictures

We are now on the road with the motion pictures showing the wide reaches of our work and the wonderful advances made during the last two years. We are now in the west central district and will start in Ohio after this. Everywhere we go the pictures are proving enlightening to the folks who have never had an idea of the real scope of our Home Mission fields.

A man was telling his minister that his neighbor was "the biggest fool in the place," because, although seriously ill, he refused to have a doctor. He concluded by remarking, "I believe the man is mentally deranged." "Well," said the minister, "I know a far greater fool in this town—one who, although a hopeless sinner, refuses to believe God's verdict and apply God's remedy. Supposing now 'thou art that man?' The shaft went home, and the man, convicted of his sin and folly, was soon after saved by grace.

"REMEMBER, that when you're in the right you can afford to keep your temper and when you're in the wrong you can't afford to lose it."

The First Brethren Church of Fort Wayne, Ind. heard the resignation of their pastor, Leo Polman, Sept. 15, and accepted it. We read in the Fort Wayne News Sentinel dated Mon., Sept. 30, "First Brethren Church, 3326 South Calhoun St., voted to extend a call to the Rev. John Aebly, pastor of First Brethren Church in Middlebranch, O., in a special meeting following the Sunday night service. It is assumed by officials of the church that he will accept the call."

By invitation of Rev. Ralph Stewart, program director of W.M.B.I., Moody Bible Institute Radio Station, Rev. Leo Polman will bring evangelistic messages each noon and speak on pastor's hour, and to students, Dec. 16-20.

The America Back to God Quartette, sponsored by Dr. John Zoller, famous radio preacher of Detroit, Mich. conducted meetings in the Brethren Church, Wooster, O. of which John H. Squires is pastor, Sept. 16-18. The auditorium of the church was filled to overflowing; in fact, one evening many were forced to stand outside the windows to hear the program. Souls were saved and a real testimony for Christ was left in the city of Wooster.

During the week beginning Sept. 9, Dr. L. S. Bauman, pastor of our First Brethren Church of Long Beach, Calif., was speaker at the City-wide Bible Conference, under the sponsorship of Waterloo Bible Institute, Waterloo, Ia.

Pastor Geo. Richardson of First Brethren Church, Glendale, Calif. and Pastor Frank Coleman Jr. of Grace Brethren Church, Waterloo, Ia. are conducting special training classes in their churches to train men in the work of public ministry. Bro. Richardson's class is advertised as "Preparation and Delivery of Sermons," and Bro. Coleman's as "Study of N. T. Gospels, and other subjects."

The First Brethren Church, Allentown, Pa. is the host this year to the "School of The Open Bible" of that city. The school meets twice weekly. Pastor J. L. Gingrich, one of the six teachers, teaches Bible Doctrine.

THE HOME MISSION TREE

Home Mission Story No. 5

When the children entered Miss Bryce's pleasant Sunday School room one bright Sunday morning they all looked with great curiosity at an object standing in the front of the room. It was a beautiful little tree planted in a large tub, and the children wondered why it stood there.

As soon as the songs and prayers were over Miss Bryce called their attention to their new guest.

"I have invited this little cherry tree to be our guest today because it has many lessons to teach us about our great church.

"First of all, this little tree has a witness, or testimony, to the goodness of God. Can any of you children tell us some of the ways in which this little tree shows its testimony?"

"It gives us fruit," said one child.

"It gives us shade," said another.

"Wood for furniture." "Firewood." "Branches where birds can nest." The answers came thick and fast.

"Those things are all true," answered Miss Bryce.

"As we look at this little tree we can see the promise of all these things. As we look, too, at our great church we wish it to have just such a testimony in foreign lands. We wish it to have the fruit there of saved souls and hearts happy because they belong to Christ. We wish them to receive comfort and happy homes and a bright future through the gospel that we send to them.

"This little tree also shows what is necessary if we are to send this testimony forth. If Paul and David will come and help me, we will show you what makes this tree's testimony possible.

The two boys lifted the tree out of the soil about it, and while David held it Paul carefully cut away the burlap that was fastened in a great ball at the base of the tree. Carefully Miss Bryce began to pull out long clinging tendrils from the dense ball.

"Do you see, children, how many roots this little tree has?" she asked. "If we were to spread them out they would be more in number than the branches. Without all these roots that are hidden from our sight the tree could not live. If something should cut them away or injure them the tree would die. Only when the roots can spread and go deep into the ground can the tree grow tall and beautiful and fruitful.

"Now you know the secret of a great foreign mission testimony. It is a strong, growing, fruitful church in the homeland—the roots that can provide a heavy harvest over there.

"Our story hour is almost over, but before we go we must take our tree over to the parsonage yard and plant it. I have already spoken to our minister about it and we have fine soil all prepared for its roots. Then we can watch it grow and bloom and bear fruit. Let us call it our Home Mission Tree, and may it always remind us to keep our church strong and growing."

Greetings

FROM THE FIELD

NEW TROY, MICH.

We have just finished a time of blessed fellowship under the ministry of Bro. Charles Ashman.

There was an extreme hardness on the part of the unsaved during the meetings. It seemed as though all of Satan's forces were united in resistance to the pleading of the Holy Spirit. This resistance was just beginning to break down when the time for the meeting to close was here. Our only wish is that it might have been possible for Bro. Ashman to have stayed with us longer.

There were several very definite results of the meeting. First of all there were the open decisions for Christ. The number was not as large as we had hoped but each one who came came as a result of definite deliberate decision. None of them came because of overwrought emotion, therefore they should be stable as they grow in the Christian life. One lady came the last evening of the meeting and made a reaffirmation of faith. She joined the Brethren Church here years ago but has since drifted into the world. There were also two men in the church who came and laid habits before the Lord. There are a number of Christians without church homes whom we hope may yet come and join with us.

The greatest results of the meeting are coming in other ways, primarily in that there is a new interest and vision in reaching the unsaved, both by the pastor and the people. The pastor and evangelist visited home after home where the people make absolutely no profession of faith. Bro. Ashman made the statement that he saw more families who make no profession whatever than his home church contacts in a year's time. We are working on a three-fold plan to reach these people. First, an organized soul-winner's band, encouraging every Christian to be a personal worker. Second, a missionary speaker at least once each three-month period. One class is already carrying on this program. Third, a tent meeting each summer, and an evangelistic meeting each winter. We are also planning to have a summer Bible School for the children next summer. As the Lord may open the way we are praying that these plans may be used in reaching the lost.

His and Yours,

Russell L. Williams.

THE PREPARED HEART

Maria Hare, a very devout woman who knew how to pray, gave a great secret of prevailing prayer when she said: "When kneeling down to pray, if for a few minutes you would be still and not attempt either to pray or think, but quiet your mind before God, it prepares the soul for the Holy Spirit to move upon its waters, and I find that words are poured into my mind without effort of my own, and real prayer is more the result."

A Nation Wide Call To Prayer For All Brethren

Wednesday, November 20th

Never has there been a time when Brethren as a people needed to cast themselves before the Lord in prayer as in this hour

FIRST, that we shall not "leave our first love."

The danger of any people in times of great stress and struggle is to lose sight of Jesus Christ. Like Peter, they look at the storm waves instead of the Lord. We must keep our eyes on Him.

SECOND, that we shall be kept from a spirit of bitterness over the unhappy and unfortunate occurrences of the past.

THIRD, that we shall be wholly absorbed in the future and the fact that we have much to do in a very short time.

FOURTH, that we shall prove worthy before God of the wonderful opportunities He is giving us to reach new fields for the gospel.

FIFTH, that He will raise up many young men of ability with hearts afire for Christ to enter these new fields and to take them for God.

SIXTH, that He will send in the $30,000 needed to care for our 21 mission points and the new fields just starting. The Thanksgiving Offering is our only time to provide this need.

SEVENTH, that the Directors of the Council may have the wisdom of the Spirit of God in the many perplexing and difficult problems that are constantly arising in the accomplishing of this work.

EIGHTH, that sufficient additional Jewish Conferences shall be held yet this year to enable us to provide for our Jewish Mission in Los Angeles.

ABOVE ALL THINGS PRAY THAT OUR FATHER GOD SHALL BE GLORIFIED IN US AS WE HOLD UP THE GOSPEL IN THE CLOSING HOURS OF THIS AGE.

GOD HAS A PLAN

He has a physical plan for this universe. The sun, moon, stars, and earth move according to that plan.

He also has a spiritual plan for His kingdom.

He surely must have a financial plan for His church. It is unthinkable that the God of order and system and law in everything else, would leave so important a matter as financing His church to haphazard methods, mere emotional decisions, and "as you like it" plans.

God's plan is for God's people to bring God's money to God's house on God's day for God's glory. "Bring ye all the tithes . . ."—Mal. 3:10. "Upon the first day of the week."—I Cor. 16:2.

HE EVER LIVETH TO MAKE INTERCESSION FOR US

You may forget to pray for me, my friend. O shame, I may forget to pray for you; but praise His name, There ever liveth One Who stands before God's throne, And day and night makes intercession for His own!

Can fear or worry, sin or failure, find a place Within this guarded life of mine? O matchless grace Of Him Who knows and meets my every need as He, The wondrous Lord of glory, daily prays for me!

"BOUCA TRUE STORY"

By Mrs. Joseph Foster

Quite some distance from the Bouca Post in the bush, there lives a black farmer; who, every year plants large gardens of kaffir corn. The place where he lives is infested with macaques. The macaque belongs to the monkey family. He is big, has a stout body and strong muscles. Every year these bold macaques cause this farmer a great many heartaches; because they always feed on his kaffir corn after it is harvested.

Last year the farmer built a large "barn" wherein to store his grain. Now African barns are altogether different than those at home. They are very large, round baskets made of strong reed and reinforced with sticks. A strong platform is built, then the basket is set on top of it; a detachable cone shaped roof is made of poles and grass, and is placed on top of the basket. In the spring of the year before the rains begin, the farmer puts the grain into the basket, places the roof on top of it, and it is safe until he uses it.

Now in the family of macaques there was an old great-grandfather, who was very bold. He always traveled alone when he went out to hunt food. He seemed to know the very day when the grain was stored in the "barn"; for immediately he made his appearance. Every day he came, and every day the farmer tried to spear him. But the monkey, even though old, was to agile for the man. He always came in the morning, when there was no one about. In his nimble way he climbed on to the platform, stood there a moment looking this way and that, and seeing no one he pushed his hand through the grass roof into the basket and brought it out full of grain. This performance he repeated until his appetite was satisfied.

The farmer was desperate, because his food was disappearing all too fast. One day he called his brother, and asked him to help catch the monkey. This brother was a big, husky fellow with plenty of strength. The farmer proposed that the brother hide in the "barn," and when the thief put his hand through the grass, the brother grab it and hold on tight until the farmer killed the invader. It seemed like a hazardous task, but since there was nothing to lose, and perhaps much to gain, the brother consented.

Early the following morning before the macaque made his appearance; the roof was lifted off the basket, the brother climbed in and after he was well seated, the roof was replaced. The farmer hid close by. Soon he saw the thief come, jump on the platform and look all around. Seeing no one, he thrust his hand through the grass, pulled it out full of grain, and ate it. In went the hand the second time, but instead of it coming out as before; he began to yell and shriek, squirm and wriggle; but try as he would, he could not dislodge his hand, for it was caught as in a vise. The brother held on with all his might, while the farmer ran quickly and speared the macaque to death. His persistence in stealing brought him to an untimely end.

I wonder whether there are any boys and girls like this macaque? The longer he lived, the more he stole. Boys and girls sometimes commit little sins, but they are not caught in them, and the little sins grow to big ones. The older they grow, the more they yielded to the sinful temptations that Satan sets before them, until like the macaque they die in their sins.

If the thief had heeded the warnings of the farmer, he would still be alive. So it is with the boys and girls who heed the "good news" of God's Word. For He said, "Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon." Therefore let us be obedient to the Word of God, and live.

A PRAYER

Loving Jesus, meek and mild,
Look upon a little child.
Make me loving as thou art.
Come and live within my heart.
Take my childish hand in thine,
Guide these little feet of mine.

—Charles Wesley.

And the man believed the word . . . and he went his way. Believing the Word of God is something infinitely greater than going through certain motions of religious profession. It is the exercise of faith that puts God into motion to perform miracles, if need be, in answer to the prayers of those who believe His Word.

EDITORIALS

Also a Missionary Project

Already we are approaching the end of our first major offering period. November is the final month for the ingathering of our National Expense Fund. The need is $920, and many questions have been asked of your editor concerning this offering. Why is it so large? Why make it the first offering, ahead of our regular missionary projects? These are the two most frequently asked, and if the Council members in our own district desire to know these things, no doubt there are others over the Brotherhood who are similarly interested. So we use this opportunity to answer these questions for the greatest possible number of our women.

Why do we ask so much? Perhaps the fact that we united two needs in one is the best answer. The National W.M.C. is not planning to spend this sum on running expense alone—only $200 is asked for postage and mimeograph costs for getting out our Devotional Topics, and other incidental office expense items. The $720 additional is needed in order that our W.M.C., which is one of the four main organizations supporting and using The Brethren Missionary Herald to publicize their work, may pay its fair share of the cost of such a paper, which this year is $60 per month.

And then that second question: Why make it the first offering, ahead of regular missionary projects? But it is a missionary project! Neither the Foreign Missionary Board nor the Home Missions Council could long continue their work successfully without a medium of publicity. We must have a church paper, and with a limited subscription list, the expense must be met in other ways, and why not by those organizations which need its columns for their own use? The W.M.C. is one of those organizations, and we know that the space used in The Brethren Missionary Herald last year was blessed by God to help us make the success for which we are praising Him.

As to its being the first offering of the year, some of the funds are immediately necessary for us to carry on the work; and so, after consultation with the various boards, we placed each major offering in what seemed to be the most strategic point in our program.

We trust we have made it clear that the National Expense Fund is a basic project in our missionary endeavors, and we are asking the Lord to make it possible for all to respond, each in her own proper amount, and to make it a great offering for His glory.

Are You a Subscriber?

We have been greatly surprised since National Conference to receive so many letters from various parts of the country asking that we send them monthly the prayer requests, the programs for meetings, and other material which appears regularly in The Brethren Missionary Herald. Some of these dear sisters do not seem to know that we have a medium of publication, and some ask that we mail the material "because we do not get The Brethren Missionary Herald." So far we have answered in each case urging that the individual subscribe for the paper and explaining that we could not possibly spend the time or the money to send this material by mail.

In view of these things we are going to repeat what we said last month about Number 4 in our list of objectives: getting subscriptions for The Brethren Missionary Herald this year will help to cut down the necessity for so large a contribution next year, and our money will be thus released for other purposes.

Of course if you are already a subscriber for The Brethren Missionary Herald, and if every family in your church receives it and reads it regularly, you did not need to read this editorial; but if that is not true, better go back now and read it again.

PRAYER REQUESTS

3. For the annual Thanksgiving offering for home missions, that it may be "abundantly above all that we may ask or think."
4. That a number of consecrated natives may be quickly trained for service in Africa.
5. That those in authority in our United States may accept divine guidance in this time of threat of war.

A Letter from our National President

Dear Sisters:

I am very happy to greet you in the name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. It rejoices my heart continually, to know that when He said, "Go ye into all the world," He was not only calling missionaries abroad, but that He must have been assigning some definite work for all of us. The W.M.C. is endeavoring to help our women in their missionary service. Not all of us are called to "go," but all of us are called to serve in some capacity. We are reminded to pray constantly, to give diligently and to be a faithful witness at all times. What a privilege we have of talking to our heavenly Father about our beloved missionaries and to plead for lost souls.

The Brethren Church has a noble band of missionaries in Africa and South America. Although war clouds hover over this old world and our missionaries may be rapidly coming into the very noise of battle, they are undaunted. They are fired to greater activity in order to win more souls while there is yet time. They are training native evangelists as rapidly as possible, so that these native evangelists may carry on the work, if war conditions force our missionaries home. Sisters, we can have a large share in this work by daily intercession. Remember to pray for the missionaries by name, and to ask God to give sufficiency to the native Christians to enable them to give out the Word in truth and power. And of course your local officers have told you that we are giving one major offering to this cause this present year. For three months we shall be gathering our offerings for Bro. Jobson to extend the native work in Bozoum.

I would like to tell you how wonderfully God blessed our work last year. But I can only point out a few specific instances. When we stepped out on faith, a little over a year ago, we undertook to support Bouca Station. We didn't know how much money it would take for Bouca Station at that time. Brother Jobson later wrote that we must give $792. So your officers prayed, and you prayed, and the offering was $794.

Another evidence of answer to prayer was concerning our thank offering to home missions which we always bring to National Conference. Since this was our first conference, none of us had the slightest idea of what to expect. But your president and some others asked the Lord to encourage our women with a $500 offering. After the service we discovered that the ingathering was $510 and more has since come in.

Surely God answers prayer! To Him be all the glory. I might go on and tell you of other evidences of direct leading of the Holy Spirit but space will not permit.

Now sisters, if our heavenly Father blessed us so abundantly last year, surely we can trust Him for the present year. May we deepen our devotion to the Word. May we be more faithful in intercessory prayer for the missionaries and the work of the W.M.C. as a whole. May we realize more keenly that His inexhaustible grace may be our daily portion.

Yours in that blessed hope,

Mrs. Homer A. Kent, Natl. Pres. of W.M.C.

Just as we left to attend National Conference the following article was received from Miss Mabel Crawford, one of our missionaries in Africa. Because of the amount of National Conference material, we did not find room for it in the last W.M.C. number; but it is still timely and most interesting.—Ed.

THE EDUCATIONAL WORK OF OUR AFRICAN MISSION

Mabel Crawford

1. The reasons for educational work.
2. The reaction of the natives to it.
3. The results obtained.
4. The requirements of the future.

In a mission work established among a wholly heathen and illiterate people one of the first and most essential elements of that work is the establishing of schools and the attempt to make of an illiterate people one that is literate. No great truths of the Word can long remain true and unadulterated if left to be passed on year after year by word of mouth alone. The great essential of a strong native church is a large Bible-reading constituency.

In lands that have a literature and an educational system of their own this need is supplied when the people, already literate, are presented with the Word of God in their own tongue. But in an illiterate tribe an unreadable book assumes in the mind of the simple hearted native the place of a fetish . . . the mere possession of a book being sufficient to ward off untold evil. This desire to possess a "book," any paper in fact, simply for the sake of possession and to make an impression upon others just as illiterate as the possessor, is one of the great things against which we have to fight. We want all who can read to have the Word but we hate to see it carried about getting dirty and torn, simply to give the possessor certain privileges and prerogatives among his friends and neighbors. Consequently, the missionary in such surroundings must necessarily be an educator. Men, women, and children must be carefully, diligently, and consistently taught day after day, week by week, year upon year, the simple mechanics of reading until they become familiar enough with letters and sounds to be able to read the Word for themselves. This then should be our first and foremost thought after bringing them to a knowledge of the truth—to have all with whom we come in contact, and especially the Christians, able to read their own language.

But having cared for this need, the educational responsibility has not been fully met. Simple primary teaching does not fill all our need. If missionaries are to be free from the mechanical aspects of their everyday life in order to give themselves to teaching of the Scriptures, they must have some helpers more specifically trained for special tasks. This need gives rise to the French School as an agency for the training of efficient helpers since all truly educational work has to be done in that language.

Through the medium of the French School young boys can be taught to become good penmen, to have a knowledge of simple figures, to learn to read the French language, to develop their ability to think and to express themselves concisely and accurately, and especially to learn the need of discipline and constant attention to a task rather than to continue in their natural plan of following the desire of the moment. From this group is then chosen our office helpers who quickly learn to keep accounts and statistics, make out reports, run mimeographs and multigraphs, and type with speed and efficiency. To the French School we also look for translation helpers, their knowledge (though perhaps limited) of French being a great help to the understanding of what is meant in a given Scripture passage. Our French Schools also provide us with our best trained and most efficient assistant teachers. Without this corps of trained helpers a missionary is decidedly handicapped; with it one lone missionary can fill the place of four or five. Thus it must be realized that there is a vital need in our mission both for a large Bible-reading Christian community and also for a smaller, select group of specially trained native assistants.

2. Native reaction to our educational plans for their betterment vary according to individuals and according to location. There are many who have a real heart desire to know how to read and who assiduously apply themselves day after day until they gain their desire. Among this group we find many older men to whom learning does not come easy but who eventually find their faith and persistence bearing fruit. There are many others, even among our Christians, also, who feel they are doing us a decided favor in condescending to attend a class, and unless they can have the undivided missionary attention, will not make the effort to come. They are not willing to be taught by another native. To have a steady, daily attendance at an adult class is an ideal, not yet attained but toward which we are striving. There are so many who will come to class when they have nothing else to do or when working for the mission and thus get an hour's relief from manual labor with pay. If, on the other hand, personal desires call, the day is ideal for gardening, etc. many members of the class will be missing. But we must go on as best we can until we reach the place where they themselves will see the advantage of mental development over the constant satisfying of their natural desires.

Work with women is especially difficult. Small children, garden work, food making . . . all these make such a heavy demand upon their time that they do not see the advantages of coming regularly to a class where their mental outlook makes progress at its best a very slow process.

On the whole, children take to reading like "ducks to water." In former days daily class attendance was difficult to attain but in more recent years this evil has been less noticeable. Perhaps the desire to get out of village work has had some effect upon the children. Another incentive to faithful attendance has been the making of a reading vernacular knowledge a pre-requisite to entrance into the French School. All children seem to have that one "star" to which they have hitched their wagon. I am not fully convinced in my own mind when the number in French School is so small that knowing a bit of French is always best for the boy concerned. He is inclined to become "big-headed" and proud rather than thankful for his rare privilege. Consequently we must seek that in their pursuit after wisdom they get "understanding" also and that they become grounded in God's Word and receive a vital knowledge of the Lord that will keep their feet on the ground.

Out in the villages of recent months we find a real thirst for learning. Men, women, and children are all expressing the desire to know how to read for themselves the "paper of God." Some chiefs have cooperated in releasing their people early from work that they might attend the classes. In some cases even the chief himself has shown a desire to know how to read. One chief once told Miss Myers that he would give her several sacks of money (a sack is 1000 francs) if she could give him medicine for his eyes so that he too could "see the paper." She told him that reading did not come that way but his patience did not long survive the strain of "here a little, there a little" daily perseverance. In spite of difficulties in the villages—village work, cotton gardens, road building, etc.—we look to our faithful workers to find the faithful few who will "stand by" until they finally learn to read.

3. An attempt to check the results that have been obtained in our educational program is decidedly difficult. Each station on our field is a unit in itself and has its own plans and methods of teaching different from those of the other stations. To have a unified system would be a distinct advantage but successful running of such a system would be very difficult with our present minimum force of workers. However, we do have one aim and for the most part are seeing results: to give every person, man, woman, or child, an opportunity whereby he can learn to read if he really so desires. On our stations we all seek to maintain a number of classes, some missionary-taught, others native-taught, where everyone can find a group suited to his own intellectual development and degree of progress. Methods may vary widely—some using syllables and primers, others using black-board teaching, some using flash cards, still others using the word method and letting their students read a gospel, picking out words one by one. Despite our widely varying methods we each attain eventually to the same end, that of building up a class who have learned to read for themselves.

For the most part our village catechists and evangelists are now able to read and have little groups at their chapel points whom they are teaching. We are many times gratified to have children and young men come in to us from the far away corners of our field showing a fine knowledge of reading and expressing the desire to buy a Gospel for their own use. Thus we realize that little by little, from one native to another, the ability to read is slowly but surely making headway among the people.

In the French department progress can be more accurately judged. Since students now coming to school are chosen from those who have learned to read, who have been disciplined in the art of daily class attendance and who show a distinct interest in the things of God, there has been a very decided decrease in the percentage of losses due to dismissal through careless attendance and insubordination as well as inability to carry the work. The amount of progress made by a class here in a year's time, as compared with a class of beginners at home, has always been a marvel to me. Now that they come to us with a little training their quick absorption of knowledge is even more marked. They have wonderfully retentive minds, and properly trained and disciplined, make excellent students.

Too many of us are like wheel barrows: useful only when pushed, and easily upset.

All in all, I feel that our mission has made a large contribution not only to the spiritual uplift of these tribes of central Africa but also to their mental development through our educational program.

4. However, the more we do, the more we realize the tremendous responsibility resting upon us to do still greater things. The task before us is super-human and we realize that only as we who are already trained devote our time to the training of native helpers can we ever hope to see our aim of a Bible-reading church materialize. To reach this goal we must have teachers trained not only mentally but spiritually to cope with the problems they daily meet on the far-flung frontiers of our work far from the mission station. To meet this need is now our greatest burden. Here in the Bassai field we feel that to some extent we are accomplishing that task. Early in this year the workers of the Tali tribe (some 25 in number) were all called in to a central point where they were given two month's intensive study of New Testament truths (using the translation in the trade language) by one of our evangelists who last year attended the Bozoum Bible School. Here at Bassai we now have a group of almost 50 consecrated young men in definite study and training. Miss Myers is teaching Old Testament history and I am giving them the life of Christ. Similar groups and classes are being conducted at the other stations of our mission. To meet the need of training for our more mature Christian workers we have the Central Bible School at Bozoum under Mr. Jobson's supervision.

It has become increasingly evident to many of us that, in these days of uncertainty and lack of workers, our paramount aim must be to multiply our efforts and "bear fruit a hundred fold" by building up a corps of native teachers not only efficient in teaching the mechanics of reading but with a deep heart knowledge of the Lord and His Word, and a burning zeal to impart that knowledge to their own people. They must be willing to go any place, do anything, suffer deprivations and even persecutions in order to spread to others yet without those same advantages, the knowledge they have received.

In so far as missionary and native helper personnel make it possible, we must look to both the Bible Schools and the French Schools to be so adequately equipped as to attain our goal. At the present time we have but two French Schools in mission . . . one at Yaloke meeting the needs of that field, and one at Bassai to care for students from the other stations. Impending furloughs of incumbent teachers and the inability in these war days for new teachers to get the necessary French diplomas casts some doubt over the immediate future of our French School work. It is to be hoped that even under the most reduced circumstances we may be able to keep at least one of the schools open. However, so far our personnel makes it possible, we are going forward in our attempt to contribute to the spiritual and mental betterment of our people. Our future plans are in God's hands and as He unfolds them we will go forward with Him in the shedding of light among these so long steeped in the darkness of sin and illiteracy.

Mrs. T. E. Slaybaugh of Rittman, O. shares with her letters from two South American missionaries. Thank you, Mrs. Slaybaugh, and we hope others will follow your example.

From Mrs. J. P. Dowdy of Rio Cuarto, Argentina

Dear Sister in Christ:

Your letter of April 25 came just the day after I sent one to you, so you keep me owing you letters always.

Have you heard anything of the African missionaries since France was conquered by Germany? We have been remembering them in prayer and wondering how things are there. We haven't heard anything from Dr. Bauman for some time so don't know what's going on.

Some months ago, we were asked to outline a program for here and present the needs. We did, and our great need is autos. Dr. Bauman wrote back saying that the board was willing to get us the transportation but nothing more was heard—I guess because the war took a turn for the worse and they began to think of other things and forgot us. We really are in need of autos here. Just now there is only one (an old Model A Ford which Brother Sickel has used hard since 1930) and Paul and Bro. Macdonagh have quite a time arranging times for that car. Bro. A. Sister Macdonagh could do a lot more if they had car of their own and so could we. We have busses here and trains too, but when we go out for meetings we have to take along a portable organ, blackboard, flannel-graph, a bundle of tracts, a brief case of Bibles, song books, etc. besides any other helps. You can readily see that train or bus travel isn't very helpful with such a load, and then too one loses a lot of time waiting for busses and trains. Just now our trains have been cut off because of lack of coal at those running are using wood. Soon they'll have to begin burning corn. When Bro. Sickel comes back to Macdonaghs and we will probably be without a car because this belongs to Bro. Sickel. We are praying that the Lord will provide cars for us by that time. Won't you remember that item for prayer too? We have recently been appointed the directors of this district for the Child Evangelism Fellowship so we will need a means of travel to take care of that.

Are you acquainted with the Child Evangelism Fellowship? I believe that the Lord sent Bro. and Sister Overholtzer (the director and his wife) to us to open our eyes to a new and better means of reaching the lost of this country.

Just this last Sunday a dear old saint went to be with the Lord. She was over 90 years old. Her exact age is not known for she was born in the country and in a time when people thought little of counting years. She accepted Christ as her Savior just last November and was baptized in December. She had been a faithful Catholic before. Her little San Antonio was very much cherished and it was difficult for her to give it up. When she did get rid of it and give her heart to the Lord, it was the beginning of a complete change in her life and from then on her energy was for the Lord's work. During the summer months when we were holding weekly meetings in that section of town, she worked hard inviting people to come and preparing the benches for them to sit on. She loved to hear the gospel choruses and taught them to her grandchildren. She testified for the Lord until the last. She very frequently asked her son-in-law and daughter to pray with her, and the many visitors of the neighborhood stood amazed at the faith she had and the way they prayed. Before dying she said, "I see a great light." Then later she said, "There goes the Lord." Then, "Here He comes for me." Later, "Well, daughter, I have obtained the glorious possession." Then she went to sleep. She was only sick two weeks. Had been here to S. S. just two weeks before going to be with Christ.

Her funeral was the nicest Christian one I've seen since being in this country. The gospel was preached in a clear way to those unsaved who were gathered. No candles were burned nor a cross at the head of her casket. And the traditional Catholic cross above the hearse was removed for this occasion.

My, how the hours pass. Here it is 11:30 P.M. The boys have long since been sleeping. They are well. Roger is walking everywhere. He began at 9½ months. Yesterday, July 23, he was 11 months old. He is quite a boy and a nice companion for Jimmy.

Give my greetings to all the Brethren there.

Yours in Christ,
Dortha Dowdy

And Another Letter From Ricardo E. Wagner, Missionary at Almafuerte, Argentina

Dear Sister Slaybaugh:

I thank you so much for your letter, and much more for your prayers which are what we most need in this place. At times one cannot explain why one effort brings no results or why another is a success. But when we discover the secret forces which operate together with our activities, then we realize the why of the failure or success of our task.

Such is our case. When I look over the summary of a year's work, such as the one I have just completed, I can only exclaim, "Thanks, O Lord, for the invisible forces which Thou hast granted us to complete the task before us." These forces are the prayers of many who have sustained us in the struggle just as Moses' hands were held up. The 3,000 converts at Pentecost was the result of a former prayer circle (Acts 1:13, 14) that prepared the messenger and the field, and we note that women took part in these prayers (Acts 1:13, 14; 2:41, 42).

So do not feel that your privilege is less than that of those who have obeyed the "go ye," for in your prayers you are participating in the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard where you cannot be present personally.

And now I will tell you, a co-worker in prayer, something of our field of labor and the blessings which we have had.

Our residence is in Almafuerte. Here we have Sunday School and two other meetings each week. Other places where we have weekly meetings are Berrotaran and Elna. We also have a meeting every two weeks in the hills. The work in Almafuerte was started 12 years ago, but in the other places it is now, not quite two years old. Apart from this we visit, whenever it is possible, the towns round about us.

During the year we have had Daily Vacation Bible School in three places and have given out about 15,500 tracts. There have been 39 manifestations of conversion and more than half of this number have been received into the church. Two families have been lost to Russellism.

The hardest field is Berrotaran. On two occasions all of the window panes of the mission hall have been broken. The Roman Catholic Church has much influence over the people there, but nevertheless the Lord has called out a faithful little group to His name.

We thank you again, Sister Slaybaugh, and wish you the best blessings. Regards from my wife (formerly Laura Evangeline Larson).

Your brother in Christ,
R. E. Wagner

Goals for Year 1940 and 1941

1. Twelve devotional meetings using suggested material.
2. Bible reading: The four Gospels and the Acts.
Junior reading: John and Mark. 50% membership completing Bible reading.
3. Membership project.
4. Cabinet meetings in fall and spring.
5. Bandages sent to bandage Sec'y by July 31, and at least one other benevolent work during the year.
6. Offering sent to financial secretary by Jan. 31 and July 31 for administrative purposes.
7. Two thank offerings received during the year and sent to financial secretary. These may be taken any time during the year to be sent in at the same time as the regular offering.

A life without a goal does not accomplish much. As Sisterhood girls there are certain things expected of us; these goals are some of them. Due to lack of space they are not discussed in detail, but should there be any question concerning them or any one of them write to the general sec'y. Please stress the goals in your society and meet every one of them so that you may receive recognition at National Conference.

The Junior Sisterhood may follow the monthly program or the patroness may change it in any way to suit the local society.

Again we urge you to send the names and addresses of your officers, number in society, and name of church so that your society may go on record.

We shall be glad for any news from your society; any questions or suggestions. Some of the districts have had conferences and others will be having theirs. Your general sec'y appreciates having reports of these conferences. Tell us about any interesting or unusual meeting that you may have had.

Prayer is not one of the listed goals, but may we suggest that each society make prayer a very definite project. Prayer should be the very most important factor in our daily lives. Many societies are taking the idea of the W. M. C. and using prayer cards. These are file cards with a picture of a missionary on them, one for each girl, and are exchanged at each meeting. The one who has prayed for the missionary whose picture is on the card writes her name on the card. One of the Sisterhood girls from Rittman suggests that each girl find some point of interest about the missionary on her card and report at the devotional meeting. This will help us to become better acquainted with our missionaries and help us to remember them more often in our prayers.

Hymn: "If Jesus Goes with Me I'll Go."

Topic: It is our desire to have one of our missionaries write our devotional topic each month. This month we have asked Miss Ruth Snyder to introduce our theme. Ruth has been called by our Lord to the mission field and is waiting for the way to be opened that she may be in His service there. Pray for her.

To Know Christ and to Make Him Known

I. The Christ of History.

There was much ado about the city of Jerusalem. A man who that very morning was blind could now see clearly. This miracle occasioned the great bustle of activity among these Jews. However the greater miracle of the day was unobserved by their tradition-blinded eyes. That miracle was the gift of sight to a blind heart.

This once blind man was cast out by kindred and friends, but he was sought out by the same Lord who had opened his eyes. "And when he had found him, he said unto him, 'Dost thou believe on the Son of God?' The answer of the former blind man is that of every inquiring heart, "Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?" (Jn. 9:35, 36). Upon hearing that his benefactor was the Son of God, the man believed and worshipped.

Before any one can believe and worship, he must ask the same question, "Who is He?" To us S.M.M. girls such a question seems so trite that we are likely to forget its importance. We are so familiar with the facts concerning our Lord that we rarely give them a thought. However before we can know Christ, we must be acquainted with the historical Christ.

Suppose for a moment that you, a Christian girl, were speaking of Christ to one of your school friends or a girl with whom you work. What would you answer if that girl said to you, "Who is Christ?" Could you tell her that He is the eternal God who took upon Him human form, the Babe of Bethlehem's manger, the Man of Galilee, the Lamb slain on Calvary, and the pages of history. Do you know this Christ of history?

II Knowing Christ in Life.

To know the Christ of history is not enough. We must have the living Christ abiding within our hearts. The other Sunday night there was a great feté here in Quebec. The houses were decorated with colored lights and the streets were given over to a religious procession. All the people in the procession were carrying lighted tapers of some kind. There is no doubt but that these people all know about the Christ of history, but the risen Christ is not dwelling in their hearts. Like Job they have heard of Him by the hearing of the ear, but unlike Job, their eyes have not yet seen Him (Job 42:5).

Before we can really know Christ, we must be one with Him. The Lord Jesus once said, "I am the Vine, ye are the branches" (Jn. 15:5). Now we know that between the vine and its branches there is such a union that gives life to the branches. Unless such a union exists between Christ and the soul, one cannot truly know Him. Can you say as did Paul, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, Who loved me, and gave Himself for me" (Gal. 2:20)?

If you cannot take those words of Paul to your own heart, you are not yet ready to say with him, "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day" (II Tim. 1:12).

III. To Make Him Known.

Everyone who really knows Christ becomes anxious to do something with his knowledge. When the Apostle Paul became acquainted with Christ on the Damascus road, his immediate question was, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" (Acts 9:6).

This should be the eager question of every child of God. We love to think of what He did for us on Calvary, but too often we fail to realize that He even now is giving us the great privilege of sharing in the most important thing in the world, the joy of making Him known.

What a responsibility rests upon each one of us! We have been saved by His blood and entrusted with His work. "... God ... hath reconciled us to Himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation" (II Cor. 5:19).

What are you doing as His ambassador? Do the girls with whom you associate know that you are a Christian? Every Christian life should be so separated from the world and so filled with His fulness that just the daily walk is a testimony to the world. However, more is needed. We should not be ashamed to speak His name to our friends. Others have no fear of speaking of their great interest; why should the Christian tremble?

To know Him and to make Him known is enough to fill completely the life of every child of His. Is your life making Him known?

(This topic has been written in three parts so that it may be presented by three different persons.)

TO THE WORK OF THE MASTER

To the work of the Master I'll hasten today,

Telling others the story of grace,

His will and command, I'll gladly obey

Standing true unto God in my place.

For the Lord I'll attempt, for the Lord will pursue,

And His help will my weakness outweigh;

So I'll follow whatever He tells me to do,

And will trust to the end of the way.

Business.

Benediction. Psal. 145:1, 2.

The Unveiling of Jesus Christ

AN EXPOSITION OF REVELATION 10

By R. I. Humberd

The Open Book

"And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud; and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire" (v. 1).

This is "another angel"—not one of the seven nor one of the bound, but the description seems to bring us back to chap. 1. In the Old Testament, Christ is called "the angel of the Lord;" so here, He is the mighty angel with the description of deity. In 11:3, He calls them "My witnesses," making it clear that this is none other than Christ Himself.

Christ has now opened the seals and has brought fierce judgments upon Satan's followers. His people have been persecuted and killed. Now as heaven opens and He Himself comes forth, we might expect mercy to be a thing of the past, but the rainbow about His head still speaks of mercy.

Taking Possession

"And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth" (v. 2).

Redemption proceeds on legal ground. To take possession there must be a warrant. Christ now descends with title deed to assert His rights and purposes and to enforce His rights on land and sea.

"Every place whereon the soles of your feet shall tread shall be yours" (Deut. 11:24). To place the foot on anything means to take possession. So here, Christ comes with open title deed and declares His rights to, take the earth.

As a Lion

"And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth" (v. 3)

As a Lamb He was worthy to take the book; as a Lion He has power to enforce His purpose. It is a shout of victory. A lion has cat's paws and walks softly until his prey is within reach. Then a mighty roar freezes the prey into dead stillness as the lion springs upon it. "The devil as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour" (1 Pet. 5:8). But when the Lion of Judah roars, the other lion may well tremble with mighty fear.

"Seven thunders uttered their voices" (v. 3).

John has been told to write, so he proceeds to do so until ordered to "seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not" (v. 4).

Delay to End

"And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth lifted up his hand to heaven, And swore by him that liveth for ever and ever—that there should be time no longer" (v. 5, 6).

For ages men have been looking and longing for the Lord to come, but still He tarries. Some say, "My Lord delayeth his coming" and begin to smite their fellowservants (Mt. 24:48). Others drop into a state of apathy and cry, "Where is the promise of his coming" (2 Pet. 3:4).

There has been hope and delay; hope and disappointment; hope and still more delay, but still the Lord tarries. But God is not slack concerning His promises; He remembers them everyone. Rather is He longsuffering not willing that any should perish. I am glad He did not come ten years ago, or even five; for these years have given me opportunity to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ.

But now comes one of the most solemn proclamations on record. Christ, whose mercy has extended to giving His own life—He who has so long waited and delayed His coming that others might be saved—He now utters a decree of finality—Delay shall be no longer.

A Synopsis

"But in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God shall be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets" (v. 7).

The days of the seventh trumpet are like the days of Noah or the days of Abraham; they cover a period of time. They will include the seven vials. During these "days" prophecy will be fulfilled. The old prophecies did not prophesy of eternal things.

The seventh is the last and third woe trumpet. When it sounds, the final events take place. For some time the conflict between Christ and Satan has been growing more strong. It is evident there must be a showdown. The final struggle will come in chap. 19, but there are many angles to end time events.

We might read a history of the Civil War. The author might take a chapter to describe the political conditions in the north and relate some of the doings of Abraham Lincoln. The next chapter might give us a view of slavery and the condition of the negroes in the south. Another chapter might deal with General Lee and another with General Grant.

So here, in chap. 10 Christ declares possession; in chap. 11 He takes a plot of ground in Jerusalem and keeps it by supernatural power and also sends two witnesses to testify to Himself. In chap. 12 we are given the Jewish situation; in chap. 13 we have a view of the political situation of the times. Chap. 14 gives us warnings, proclamations and foreviews. Chapters 15, 16 bring the terrible vial judgments. Seventeen is the religious situation and 18 gives the commercial angle. Now everything is set for the final showdown which is given in chap. 19. Chap. 20 clears off the rubbish of our age and chap. 21, 22, begin with all things new.

"And the voice which I heard from heaven spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel" (v. 8).

This open title deed is the result of Christ's redemptive work. For centuries it has been in the Father's hand. Men of all ages have tried to redeem men from the curse of sin, but none can even approach to it.

All having failed, the Lamb steps forward; and amidst the acclamation of all created beings He takes the book, breaks the seals, and with it still in His hand He comes to take possession of the earth in the name of the Lord.

"And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey" (v. 9).

This book represents Christ's redemptive work. All of Christ's work in redemption has been to procure

The Neglected Race for Whom Christ Died

HEAR, O ISRAEL !

By Geneva G. Kuhn

The treatment of the Jewish race upon the earth today does not just happen. It is in the plan and purpose of God. Let us first establish the fact that this race of people is God's people, chosen of Him. We, of course, shall base this establishment of fact upon the Scripture, for that is the only sure Word in these changing times.

God said to Abram: "And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed" (Gen. 12:2, 3). Also in Gen. 17:19, "Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him." Then, in Lev. 26:9, 12, "For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you . . . And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people."

As children oftimes are, so were the children of Israel disobedient. In such circumstances, chastisement is necessary — the amount, type, and extent of which are determined by the inflictor. So, says Jehovah (Lev. 26:23, 25, 32, 33): "And if ye will not . . . but will walk contrary unto me . . . And I will bring a sword upon you . . . and ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy . . . And I will bring the land into desolation; and your enemies which dwell therein shall be astonished at it. And I will scatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a sword after you: and your land shall be desolate, and your cities this title deed; open it and give the benefits to His people, that they may take them; feed upon them; appropriate them; live by them; preach and teach them and build themselves up in the most holy faith.

God told Ezekiel to "eat that thou findest; eat this roll, and go speak to the house of Israel" (Ezek. 3:1). To 'eat' the word is to study it, digest it and receive it into our very life; to make it the subject of all our hopes and prayers and living. When we thus receive and appropriate the title to our inheritance, we are to pass it on. John was to "prophesy again before peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings" (v. 11).

It was sweet as honey in John's mouth. As he first glanced over it and saw the happy ending and the glorious promises, it was sweet and brought joy to his heart; but as he began to study it more carefully and digest the message he saw the terrible wrath and sorrow that must come before that glad day, and it was bitterness to his soul.

God's Word is always sweet to the earnest soul, but it costs bitterness to be a full souled believer.

waste." "And thou shalt become an astonishment, a proverb, and a byword, among all nations whither the Lord shall lead thee" (Deut. 28:37).

Now, let us look into the 20th century and see some current things which are occurring and which involve this race. Quotations which follow are taken verbatim from the "News of the Week" column in a Jewish weekly "The B'nai B'rith Messenger" dated Oct. 4, 1940:

3,000 JEWISH SOLDIERS BARRED FROM HOMES

Three thousand Jewish soldiers, recently demobilized from the Rumanian Army, were barred from returning to their homes in northern Transylvania by the Hungarian Government, it was reported in Belgrade this week. Northern Transylvania was ceded to Hungary by Rumania at the insistence of the Axis Powers. When the Jewish soldiers returned to Transylvania they found Hungarian soldiers at the new border, who turned them back at the point of bayonets.

All Jews engaged in commerce in Bohemia and Moravia have been barred from their posts since Oct. 1, when the provinces were absorbed into the Third Reich, according to a radio report from Hague, picked up in London.

ANTI-SEMITISM FOLLOWS FRANCO'S AXIS ALLIANCE

Spain's alliance with the Berlin-Rome-Tokio Axis has resulted in a new anti-Semitic campaign throughout Spain, instigated by Gen. Franco's own Fascist Party, it was reported in Lisbon this week. Latest demand by the Fascist Party is that the Government repeal all legislation, adopted while Spain was a republic, protecting the civil rights of minorities.

ITALY ORDERS EXPULSION FROM ALBANIA

Italy has ordered its puppet Government in Albania to expel the Jewish population within the next few months. There are approximately 150 Jewish families now in Albania.

BERLIN JEWS, FEARING ATTACKS, CANCEL SERVICES

The Jewish community of Berlin this year is dispensing with high holiday services in synagogues. In previous years, Jews, men and women, attending Rosh Hashanah services, were attacked by gangs of Nazis when they left the synagogues. The Nazis charge every year that Jews conspire against Germany during high holiday services.

The following bespeaks the fact that the Spirit of God is dealing with these hearts unbeknown to them to prepare for their future task of building up their land ("And they shall build the old wastes, they shall raise up the former desolations, and they shall repair the waste cities, and desolations of many generations" Isa. 61:4). Quoting verbatim again from this Jewish weekly:

FRENCH RABBIS PONDER PROBLEMS

Rabbis of un-occupied France gathered last week at Lyon to discuss the increasingly tragic problems confronting French Jewry.

The conference concerned itself for the most part with the question of the Jewish youth. It was decided to encourage children to form social, religious and athletic organizations, to help organize agricultural schools, and to establish youth camps. Speakers agreed that the Jewish youth would be best prepared for the future if they knew farming and other trades.

The final quoted portion following shows that, in spite of all the hardships, affliction, and tribulation, their leaders have not lost hopefulness and offer encouragement in these dark days and for those which they feel will yet confront them.

PALESTINE COUNCIL ENCOURAGES WORLD JEWRY

Exhorting the millions of Jews now suffering under brutal Nazi domination not to give up hope but to keep their eyes and their hopes fixed on the haven to be afforded them by the Jewish National Home, the Vaad Leumi (Jewish National Council) sent New Year's greetings this week to all Jews in the Diaspora, encouraging them to hope for better days in the year 5701.

"And the governors of Judah shall say in their heart, The inhabitants of Jerusalem shall be my strength in the Lord of hosts their God . . . and Jerusalem shall be inhabited again in her own place . . . In that day shall the Lord defend the inhabitants of Jerusalem . . . And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for Him" (Zech. 12:5, 6, 8, 10).

Jesus ("neither is there salvation in any other . . ." Acts 4:12) said in Luke 21:17, 24b: "And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake . . . and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Be it known to you, O Israel, that the "times of the Gentiles" is fast closing. Jesus, the Christ, will soon return. Rev. 1:7 and Zech. 13:6—"Behold, He cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see Him, and they also which pierced Him . . . And one shall say unto Him, What are these wounds in thine hands? Then He shall answer, Those with which I was wounded in the house of my friends."

This Jesus is Savior and Lord. Christ is your Messiah. Hear, O Israel! "Even so come, Lord Jesus"

THE JEW

"To the Jew first" (Romans 1:16)

(Written by a Christian Jewess, age eighteen years)

Scattered by God's almighty hand,
Afflicted and forlorn;
Sad wanderers from their pleasant land
Do Judah's children mourn,
And e'en in Christian countries, few
Breathe kindly thoughts towards the Jew!
Yea, listen, Gentile—you who love
The Bible's ancient page;
And let your pure compassions move
To Israel's heritage—
Who traced those glorious lines for you?
Each sacred writer was a Jew!
And think how as the years went past,
And nations rose and fell;
Though clouds and darkness oft were cast
O'er captive Israel,
The Oracles of God for you
Were kept in safety by the Jew!
And when the great Redeemer came
For guilty man to bleed,
He did not take an angel's name,
No—born of Abraham's seed,
Jesus, who gave His life for you—
Your Lord and Savior—was a Jew!
And though "His Own" received Him not,
And turned in pride away;
Whence came the Gentiles' happier lot—
Were such more just than they?
No! God in pity turned to you,
Have you no pity for the Jew?
Go then, and bend your knee and pray
For Israel's chosen race;
That they may own Messiah's sway,
And be restored by grace,
Go, for a debt of love is due
From Christian Gentiles to the Jew!

MICAH

By Arthur Malles

Micah tells us in the first verse of his book that the Word of the Lord came to him in the days of Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah. Under Jotham and the king before him, Uzziah, prosperity reigned. A rich class was created who oppressed the poor, even being protected in their crime by the rulers and false prophets.

The following king, Ahaz, abandoned himself to the most desperate iniquity. The Assyrians came in and forced Judah to pay tribute, making a heavier burden for the already oppressed peasant. The impiety of Ahaz was so great that he was not even allowed burial in the sepulchers of the kings of Israel.

Hezekiah, successor of Ahaz, was very unlike him. He purged the nation of idolatry, restored the true forms of worship, and asserted the independence of his kingdom from Assyria.

It was in the midst of these conditions that Micah prophesied.

The Judgment of Jehovah upon the House of Israel for Their Sins (Hos. 1-3).

Micah prophesied against both the northern and the southern kingdoms of Israel, as we read in v. 1: "concerning Samaria and Jerusalem." Chapt. 1 deals with the northern kingdom in general and the city of Samaria in particular.

In 1:2 we read, "Hear, all ye people; hearken, O earth, and all that therein is: and let the Lord God be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple." God's holiness, contrary to the teachings of "new" theology, is the basis of His judgment. Because He is holy He cannot away with the corruption of His chosen people, and punishment must come.

From v. 6 to the end of the chapter Micah foretells the destruction of the city of Samaria, capitol of the northern kingdom. "Therefore I will make Samaria as an heap of the field, and as plantings of a vineyard: and I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley, and I will discover the foundations thereof." Modern travelers testify to the precisely literal fulfillment of these words, saying that the valley adjacent to the hill of Samaria is full of the stones which once had a place in her houses and idol temples. Its stones are tumbled down the hill on which the city stood to fill the valley below, and the very foundations on which it stood are laid bare!

The reason? V. 9, "For her wound is incurable." God is merciful, long-suffering and loving. He has demonstrated these facts in his dealing with rebellious humanity. But there comes a time when a man's "wound" becomes "incurable." The only cure for the wound of sin is the blood of our Lord Jesus Christ. Refusal to accept this cure results in an incurable sin. Just as God demonstrated His wrath in the utter destruction of the sinful city of Samaria, just so will He destroy eternally in hell one who is not under the blood of Christ.

The prophet denounces the oppression of the poor in chapt. 2. The wealthy men who had suddenly become rich under Uzziah were infatuated with their quickly gained wealth, and had become greedy for still more gain. "And they covet fields, and take them by violence; and houses, and take them away: so they oppress a man and his house, even a man and his heritage.

Apparently Micah's rebuke brought some retort from the people, and he replies in the last of v. 7, "Do not my words do good to him that walketh uprightly?" How true today! If God's Word offends you, tramps your toes, remember these words of Micah. To those who are walking uprightly His words do good. And remember who was complaining in this case.

The last two verses present a pleasant picture to the people of Israel. "I will surely assemble, O Jacob, all of thee; I will surely gather the remnant of Israel." Today Israel is scattered all over the face of the globe. They have no home. But one day God is going to regather Israel. A foretaste of this regathering is before our very eyes today. The Jews are going back to Palestine. Although they still do not believe in Jesus Christ as their Messiah, He is coming soon in person to be their king. Then they will believe. One day He's coming, O glorious day!

Micah turns to the rulers in chapt. 3. These rich exploiters of chapt. 2 could not have oppressed the poor had they not been protected in their crime by the rulers whom God had appointed to safeguard the rights of the poor. In v. 2, 3 he compares this exploitation to a cannibal feast; "Ye princes of the house of Israel; Is it not for you to know judgment? Who hate the good and love the evil; who pluck off their skin from off them, and their flesh from off their bones; who also eat the flesh of my people, and flay their skin from off them; and they break their bones, and chop them in pieces, as for the pot, and as flesh within the caldron."

Behind the idle rich and the corrupt politicians, Micah pointed out the false prophet. "Thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets that make my people err." Living in the bounty of the idle rich and basking in the favor of a depraved government, the false prophets found it easy to justify the wicked for a reward, to wink at their vices and to share their cannibal feasts.

The last verse of this chapter foretells the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 A.D. "Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field, and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountain of the house as the high places of the forest." Again divine judgment is pronounced against sin. Just as completely as Shalmaneser the Assyrian overtook and overthrew Samaria, so was Jerusalem captured and beaten down to the ground by the conquering armies of the Romans in 70 A.D.

A Graphic Picture of the Restoration of the Jews Under their Messiah (Hos. 4, 5).

Chapt. 4:1-5 contains some thrilling and valuable facts concerning the kingdom Christ is going to set up at His coming. Whole messages could be preached on these verses alone, but we will be able but to mention the more important and interesting details.

A mountain in the Bible is a symbol for a great earth power or government, and a hill of a smaller one. The kingdom will be set up "in the latter days" at Jerusalem. The rule of this kingdom will be universal. Verse 3 tells us that the predominate characteristic of this kingdom will be peace. This verse is often used today in the interest of "world peace" without recognition of the fact that the "he" referred to is none other than our Lord Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, Who must be enthroned at Jerusalem before that millennium peace can come true.

In the light of present day happenings v. 4 is very interesting. Today we see and hear so much of the economic insecurity. How long you will have your property or your job is only a matter of speculation. The laborer is fighting the capitalist and calling him a crook for stealing his wages. The last few years we have seen the worst in our history. Veritable wars were fought. Labor and capital were at odds again. Someone was getting cheated. But, this situation will not remain in the kingdom which Christ in Person will set up! Verse 4 presents every man sitting under his own vine and fig tree without fear of oppression or loss of property. This is an ideal picture, not only of peace, but also of the equal distribution of wealth. But we cannot have the kingdom until the King comes.

Israel is reassured in v. 6-8 of her regathering as a nation. "I will gather her that is driven out." Although they are scattered and some lost today, when Christ brings His kingdom He will regather them to Himself.

But in v. 9, 10 we have a picture of darker hue. "For now shalt thou go forth out of the city, and thou shalt dwell in the field, and thou shalt go even unto Babylon;" For 70 years Israel labored in bondage in Babylon in fulfillment of this prophecy.

At the end of the period of the great tribulation which will be ushered in by the rapture of the church, the awful battle of Armageddon as described in 4:11-5:1 will take place. The nations will be gathered to the great battlefield to fight against the God of heaven when Christ shall come with all His saints and will defeat His enemies with the word out of his mouth. "Now also many nations are gathered against thee, that say, Let her be defiled, and let our eye look upon Zion. But they know not the thoughts of the Lord, neither understand they his council: for he shall gather them as sheaves into the floor." How foolish to fight against God! The lessons from history should convince any man of this, but if they are not sufficient, then God will give him one last reminder at that awful day of battle.

One of the four great prophecies relative to the birth of our Lord is found in 5:2. "But thou, Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the thousands of Judah, yet out of thee shall come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel, whose goings forth have been from old, from everlasting." Interesting is the exactness of the Holy Spirit. The child was born in Bethlehem, the Person Christ Jesus existed from all eternity. It was 700 years after this prophecy was made that Herod was referred to it when he inquired where Christ was to be born.

There are people about us today who scoff at the idea of the second coming of Christ in the flesh. They say that preachers have been saying this for hundreds of years, and it never has happened yet. God does at times foretell future events hundreds of years before they come to pass. A thousand years is as a day with Him. It was so with the birth of Christ. But it is only His grace that gives that time so men may have a chance to repent before it is too late.

The remainder of chap. 5 tells us more of the conditions of the kingdom as it will be when Christ comes again to set it up. "And this man shall be the peace." World peace is not possible without the Prince of Peace. The remnant of the Jews are to be regathered. "And the remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of

Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.—Heb. 4:13

many people as a dew from the Lord." Until the regathering they are to be preserved, never to perish. But then they will no longer be the downtrodden people as we know them today, for Micah says, "And the remnant of Jacob shall be among the Gentiles in the midst of many people as a lion among the beasts of the forest, as a young lion among the flocks of sheep; who, if he go through, both treadeth down, and tear-eth in pieces, and none can deliver." Then God will purge them from all their sins. "I will cut off witchcrafts out of thine hand; and thou shalt have no more soothsayers: Thy graven images also will I cut off . . . and thou shalt no more worship the work of thine hands."

Finally, "I will execute vengeance in anger and fury upon the heathen such as they have not heard." God is going to punish the nations that have persecuted the Jews. We need to remember that today, God's Word still holds that the nation that curses the Jew will be cursed, and the nation that blesses them shall be blessed. Spain got her curse; Germany has her curse coming; may America never be so foolish as to disobey God's plain command!

Israel Under Conviction for Her Sins (Hos. 6, 7).

God's controversy is presented in 6:1-5. "O my people, what have I done unto thee? and wherein have I wearied thee? testify against me." He reminds them of their deliverance from Egypt, of the leaders He provided, and of ways in which He demonstrated His righteousness to them. Now what's wrong? Why all this rebellion and sin?

Israel replied in v. 6, 7 that they had been doing the best they could. They came and bowed themselves, they offered burnt offerings and offerings of oil—they had done all they could. But God replied, "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly before thy God?" Mere empty formality means nothing to Me, I see your hearts. You outwardly do all these things, but your hearts are far from Me.

Some writers have very mistakenly gone to the extreme of saying that the priestly-sacrificial system had no place with the prophets and was by them abandoned. This is not true. The sacrificial system was divinely appointed to be continued and fulfilled in Christ. One of the last things our Lord did was to make ready for the passover, of which He was Himself the slain Lamb. Micah was condemning the mere meaningless performances of these ordinances. God does not delight in the doing of these ordinances, but in the spiritual attitude of the doer.

When we come to chap. 7 we find Israel under conviction for her sins and confessing them. "Woe is me . . . That they may do evil with both hands earnestly, the prince asketh, and the judge asketh for a reward; and the great man, he uttereth his mischievous desire;" Micah's confession and intercession of v. 7 to the end also voices the heart of the remnant of the Jews in the last days. "Therefore I will look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation: my God will hear me . . . I will bear the indignation of the Lord, because I have sinned against him."

In answer to the prayer of the remnant, God is going to exalt His people. "Then she that is mine enemy shall see it, and shame shall cover her which said unto me, where is the Lord thy God?" The nations that mistreated her "shall lick the dust like a serpent . . . they shall be afraid of the Lord our God, and shall rear because of thee."

Verses 18 to 20 are a beautiful benediction to the book. "Who is a God like unto thee that pardoneth iniquity and passeth by the transgression of the remnant of his heritage? He will turn again, he will have compassion upon us; he will subdue our iniquities and thou wilt cast all their sins into the depths of the sea. Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old."

What beautiful faith! Micah knows his God is above all gods, and is able to forgive sins, even to the point of blotting them out of existence. Does he doubt or question any of God's promises to Israel? No, for he says "Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob." God's Word is settled in heaven. He has never failed to fulfill a promise. Israel has been promised blessing, deliverance and forgiveness of sin in turn for faith in God. She will get them! But we too may claim forgiveness of sins, deliverance from their power, and blessing in the Lord Jesus Christ through faith in Him. If we believe, God will bring it to pass!

FROM THE FIELD

PLEASANT GROVE EVANGELISTIC SERVICES

Greetings in the name of Jesus to our fellow-churches.

For the second time this year Pleasant Grove has been wonderfully blessed in revival. This time Rev. R. Paul Miller was the Lord's instrument of service and he is certainly being used of the Lord. What a satisfaction it is to know that the Lord is answering the prayers of the church! How marvelously He does work! Truly Bro. Miller through the Lord's power is a church founder and reorganizer.

Bro. Miller arrived in Iowa County, Ia., on Tues., Sept. 12, to begin evangelistic services that evening. Attendance increased daily except for a service or two. Interest grew, spiritual power increased, prayer services increased in number and spiritual fervor. Prayer was made by name for the unsaved of the community. Over 30 families were remembered each evening at prayer.

The invitation to accept Christ was first given on Sunday night after souls began to realize their need. By the end of the week 18 had accepted Christ. On the second and last Sunday came the climax. Bro. Miller had been making the plea for church renewal. 46 came to the altar either for confession or spiritual blessing and reconsecration. The house simply broke down to rise in spiritual strength. It was a wonderful day. Services closed that night with a total of 64 accessions.

On the preceding Saturday night the church through Bro. Miller's influence voted to purchase an improved 40 acre farm adjoining the church lot for parking space and a parsonage. We now feel as Bro. Miller expressed it, "We will go to town." The church is looking forward now to a full time pastor before many months slip by. With 20 or 25 families in the community in spiritual need this field is indeed a veritable unrequited harvest. Please pray for that harvest.

We have previously written in the church paper about cooperation of surrounding churches. It was no less evident on this occasion. No less than seven churches cooperated, some lending a large portion of their attending congregation, having dismissed their own services. The young people also cooperated in a fine way.

On Friday night, Sept. 27, Bro. Miller was back to show his home mission pictures which are truly a blessing and inspiration. They are doing so much. What are we doing?

On Saturday a beautiful and impressive baptismal service was held at a lovely pool alongside the public highway, at which service 22 were baptized. In the evening ten of that number were received into our church fellowship. We feel sure others will come later.

The Lord truly has blessed our church. Please pray that the church may "let go and let God" work out His own plans through us that souls may be won for Him; that serving spiritual food shall always be the purpose for the existence of the Pleasant Grove Church.

Mrs. John R. Myers, Cor. Sec'y.

THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

He held the lamp of truth that day,
So low that none could miss the way,
And yet so high to bring in sight
That picture fair, the world's great Light,
That gazing up, the lamp between,
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

He held the pitcher, stooping low,
To lips of little ones below,
Then raised it to the weary saint,
And bade him drink when sick and faint.
They drank—the pitcher then between,
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

He blew the trumpet soft and clear,
That trembling sinners need not fear,
And then a louder note, and bold,
To rouse the souls in Satan's hold—
The trumpet coming thus between,
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

But when the Captain says, 'Well done,
Thou good and faithful servant, come,
Lay down the pitcher and the lamp,
Lay down the trumpet, leave the camp,
The weary hand will then be seen,
Clasped in those pierced hands — naught between.'

IN THE SHADOW

DOOLEY, Henry R., was born near Martinsburg, Pa., Oct. 10, 1856, the son of Thomas W. and Nancy Replogle Dooley.

For more than 60 years he was a faithful member of the Church of the Brethren and of The Brethren Church, having been a member of the First Brethren Church of Washington for more than 40 years. For many years he held the office of deacon, and brought honor to that office and to his Lord by his clean Christian living, his life of quiet service, and his constant kindness and courtesy.

It was his greatest pleasure to be in the house of the Lord as long as he was able to attend, and his words of testimony, especially at the communion services, will long be treasured. He was called home, to be with his Lord, on Sept. 20, 1940, at the age of 83 years, 11 months, and 20 days, his good wife having preceded him in 1925.

He is survived by the following children: George Homer Dooley, Mrs. Nancy Birch, Henry Clay Dooley, Mrs. Edith Evans, Mrs. Laura Macauley, Mrs. Sue Hubbard, Mrs. Ruth White, and Mrs. Josephine Brooks. He is also survived by nine grandchildren and 2 great-grandchildren.

He loved his Lord, and was ready to meet him. Those who knew him best will bear witness of his life, in the words of the Scriptures, that "the path of the just is as the shining light, that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Funeral services by the writer, assisted by the Rev. Harold Dunning.

Thoburn C. Lyon.

The heroes of old "stopped the mouths of lions," but unhappily far too many who profess to know the Lord cannot stop their own mouths from "evil speaking" concerning others who do not belong to their particular church group. The heroes of old "quenched the violence of fire," but the doubtful heroes of modern warfare indiscriminately drop incendiary bombs to start fires in the homes of innocent people. The heroes of old "escaped the edge of the sword," but a world that has forgotten God, gropes through "black-outs" looking for bombproof shelters.

If your stock of choruses needs to be replenished, here is a book you should be sure to get. Single copies 30c, 5 or more 25c.

The heroes of old "out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens." But the heroes of 1940 are reversing the picture. They are permitting the aliens to turn to flight the armies of the righteous. Everywhere is retreat because of lack of faith. Where a handful contend for the faith, a thousand run from the battle as though the God of our faith heroes had died. For one Caleb, for one Joshua, who say "we are well able," a multitude of fearful, faithless ones see only "the giants, the sons of Anak" of opposition. For one who contends for the faith, for one who believes the Word of the Lord and acts upon it, hundreds are turned to flight by the armies of modern Amalekites, Hittites, Jebusites, Amorites, Canaanites, fifth columnists, and other Ite.

An Exceedingly Interesting Document Revealing the Meaning of Historic Brethrenism

Upon another page, an exceedingly interesting old document will throw some light upon the true meaning of that phrase, "historic Brethrenism," that has been heard upon the lips of so many "Brethren" recently. It will assist true Brethren in understanding the attitude of the men who brought The Brethren Church into existence as a separate denomination.

The document is of very special interest at this time, for two reasons:

First, because it gives light upon the attitude that real Brethren assume toward human government. In this critical hour, that needs to be carefully studied. It is to be noted that those who brought The Brethren Church into being were not what the world today calls "pacifists." For instance, they did not condemn all war as "legalized murder." They did not take the position that a nation belonging to this world system is never justified in taking the sword. They did hold, however, that the child of God whose "citizenship is in heaven" (Phil. 3:20) is a different spirit from the spirit that controls the unregenerate nations of earth, and that they are a different "manner of men." War in the world of unregenerate men, may become a terrible necessity. Christ never taught that the dead should not be buried, but He did instruct His own disciples to "let the dead bury their dead" (Lk. 9:60).

Brethren should ever keep in mind that criticism of the government that takes the sword to defend human liberty, and even our right to worship God according to the dictates of conscience, may be criticism that is utterly unchristian and undeserved.

Secondly, this document throws light upon the subject of a Christian dragging his brother into the courts of the unregenerate nations, rather than to lay their cause before the saints.

How is it, we wonder, that some "Brethren" can pose as sincere "conscientious objectors" in the matter of going to war, and are not sincere "conscientious objectors" in the matter of going to law with their brethren? The principle is the same. This may prove to be a very interesting query when some Brethren stand before the civil authorities one of these days in an attempt to prove themselves to be sincere "conscientious objectors." Think that over! Apparently, some "Brethren" are "conscientiously" opposed to fighting Hitler, but have no "conscientious" convictions on fighting their brethren.

Dr. Gribble Writes to "Friends at Home"

In this issue we are printing three letters from Dr. Gribble. Mails are very uncertain these days, and sometimes letters written as much as a month apart will arrive on the same day, and on several occasions regular mail has passed up air mail on its trip to the homeland.

These letters from Mrs. Gribble will be of great interest to our readers. We feel, for the sake of a clear understanding, however, that we should call attention to several of Mrs. Gribble's statements.

First, Mrs. Gribble speaks of 'the cablegram recently received permitting vacations in Africa only,' and that this caused Miss Emmert to give up coming home on furlough. We know that Dr. Gribble would never intentionally misrepresent the facts. Nevertheless, this statement might lead astray from the facts.

The fact of the matter is that the cablegram in question was advisory only, and advised missionaries whose furloughs were due that if they could find any possible way to get home and wished to take their furloughs at this time, that the board would not object, for they were entitled to their furloughs. For months the board has had $3,000 in the hands of the Presbyterian Missionary Board Treasurer at Kribi, subject to the order of any missionary whose furlough is due.

But, due to the utter helplessness of the board in the matter of securing return transportation for missionaries now at home on furlough, and also due to the tremendous dangers in ocean travel at the present time, the board advised the missionaries in Africa to take their vacations in Africa if possible. The board has offered to pay all expenses for such vacations. Mrs. Gribble chose to take her vacation in that way.

The interpretation of a cablegram that the Secretary-Treasurer received recently, signed "Emmert," was a bit uncertain, but it requested the Board to send $1800 to Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo; and if our interpretation of the cable was correct, it was to provide for the transportation of Miss Emmert, Mrs. Kennedy and Kenneth Sheldon in returning to the homeland. The money was immediately placed at the disposal of Miss Emmert. It is possible that even now they are en route home. It would be very unjust to the board for the church to gain the idea that it is compelling any missionary to remain in Africa overtime. If any missionary, whose furlough is due, does not come home at this time, it isn't because the board refuses to permit them to come or fails to send them the necessary funds for transportation.

Again, Mrs. Gribble says: "All outgoing missionaries should get the necessary visas before leaving New York." The fact of the matter is that no steamship company will take a passenger these days who does not secure in advance a proper visa; and if anyone wishes to know how difficult it is to get a visa into any French territory in these days, let him try to secure one. If he can find a way, the board will appreciate any information as to the route they took to find it. It is one thing to get a visa into British territory. It is quite another thing to get a visa into French territory. The board has been officially advised by French authorities that if a missionary wants to get into French territory, it will be well for him to stay out of British territory. That is, do not try to get into French Equatorial Africa via any British possessions. We are hoping this attitude of the French counsels will change.

And it must be understood that it would be a far easier thing to bring missionaries home to America (in which case we would have whatever help the United States government can give) than to send the missionaries from America to a French possession in Africa (in which case the United States government would be unsympathetic.)

As we write these words, we have our own Miss Elizabeth Tyson, missionary on furlough, who lives in Philadelphia, under orders to make trips to New York, to Washington, and to keep on the outlook in her own city; consulting with steamship companies, with foreign legations, and with the State Department, to learn of the very first opportunity possible to send missionaries to the relief of the overworked missionaries in Africa. Moreover, we have the Foreign Missions Council of North America, who should know, if anybody knows, of a way whereby missionaries can be sent across the seas—we have the great concern on the watch to report to us instantly if they learn of anything that will help us solve our problem.

Dr. Gribble further says: "The fact that traveling is difficult in these times does not mean that it is impossible." We thoroughly agree with that statement, if by it she means "impossible" within the will of God. "With God, all things are possible." It was absolutely possible for God to take the thorn out of Paul's flesh, but He didn't. We may not understand the ways of God in permitting doors to be closed so tightly to missionary progress in this world crisis, when missionaries are so greatly needed. Nevertheless, it is quite probable that the all-wise God knows some things about the immediate future that we do not know!

Mrs. Gribble's letters also reveal the sad depletion in the number of our missionaries on the fields, and she wonders how we can save closing up one or more of our stations during this world crisis. One thing sure, we cannot solve that problem by bringing missionaries home when they cannot be returned. Therefore, the feeling on the part of the board is that, unless positive health reasons compel, our missionaries should take their vacations in Africa at some place that they themselves may choose, and at a place from which they are sure of being able to return to their stations. However, in this matter the board refuses to command. It can only advise.

The experience through which our Society is passing is the experience through which every foreign missionary board is passing these days, and French Equatorial Africa is not the only mission field in which these difficulties exist. The devil seems bent on closing every missionary door in the world. However, God is still on His throne. In the meantime, the saints of God in the homeland need to spend much time on their knees in behalf of the mission boards and the missionaries working under their direction.

C. F. Yoder Returns to Active Service in Argentina

Reliable reports, confirmed in a letter to the editor from Elder C. F. Yoder, inform us that he is returning to Argentina to open up Brethren missions in the cities of Cordoba, Rosario and Buenos Aires. He is to be supported by the Missionary Board of The Brethren Church, more commonly known as the National Home Mission Board. This board was chartered to do both home and foreign mission work. It seems that this board was unaware of its mission under the charter until about two years ago. It now expects to carry the gospel into pagan and heathen lands, as well as to the cities of North America. We congratulate it, and wish it every possible success.

The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church has done work in both Rosario and Buenos Aires. It found the work in both these great cities to be very expensive unless done on a scale so small that it would scarcely make an appeal to the people in those two magnificent cities. Buenos Aires is known as "the Paris of South America." However, The Foreign Missionary Society would have continued its work in those cities had it not been for the fact that from the standpoint of Protestant evangelization there are no two cities in Argentina better provided with the gospel of the grace of God. Anyone who wants to know of the Christ, or who wants a copy of the Scriptures, knows where to get the same in either of those cities. We understand the same is true also of Cordoba. Therefore The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church decided to withdraw from those cities, and to spend its entire resources available for work in the Argentine in wholly unevangelized communities.

However, if the theological beliefs of the president of the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church are correct, and trine immersion is absolutely essential to salvation, then these three great cities are in desperate need of the saving message.

That water baptism is essential to salvation, we believe to be an error. Nevertheless we do not believe that anyone will be excluded from heaven merely because he has fallen into that error. Therefore we are sincere when we say that we wish the Missionary Board of the Brethren Church every success as they preach Christ and Him crucified in these great cities of Argentina.

"Light From Bible Prophecy"

Many have written the editor asking whether or not the series of articles that have appeared from his pen in The Sunday School Times during the year past could be secured in book form. (These are the articles to which Mrs. Gribble makes reference in her letters from Africa, printed in this issue.) We are pleased to say that these articles have been revised and brought up to date, from the standpoint of the current events to which they refer, and are, as we write, on the press in New York. The book should be ready for mailing by the time the readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald shall be reading these editorials. The book will contain about 170 pages. The price is $1.00. It can be obtained from the editor himself, or from the Sunday School Times Co., 325 N. 13th St., Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; or direct from the publisher, Fleming H. Revell Co., 158 Fifth Ave., New York City.

Thanksgiving Offering

Before another issue of the Foreign Mission Number of The Brethren Missionary Herald will go to the mails, the Thanksgiving offering within The Brethren Church for home missions will be a thing of the past. That offering is lifted on Thanksgiving Day.

We know that every member of the Foreign Missionary Society is earnestly praying that the largest offering for home missions ever received in The Brethren Church will be taken this coming Thanksgiving Day. The time grows so short between now and the coming of our Lord when we must leave all earthly treasure behind, that we cannot but feel we are working for the eternal interests of every member in The Brethren Church, when we urge them to lay up as much of their treasure in heaven as they possibly can. And if giving to the support of the fine group of men—largely young men—who are the home missionary pastors of our churches, and who are preaching the gospel of the grace of God in all of its fulness and richness, is not one way of laying up treasure in heaven, then we know of no way whereby it can be done. There are many ways of laying up treasures in heaven, and this is certainly one of the best of them.

Perhaps The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church is not altogether unselfish in urging so strongly a great offering for home missions, for home missions builds the churches that become the foundation of our foreign work. No home missions, no foreign missions.

The marching orders of the Master are too plain to be misunderstood. First "Jerusalem"; then "Judea"; then "Samaria"; then "the uttermost parts of the earth." And, by the way, our successful home mission churches are even now among the foremost of the churches in their contributions to foreign missions.

God bless you, Bro. Miller, and the fine board of men that are working together with you. You had "the greatest year ever" in 1939-1940. Here is a prediction that 1940-1941, under the blessing of God and the leadership of the Holy Spirit, will be better still.

"GLORY"

Keep me from seeking glory on this earth.

While life may last

Help me to pay for years misspent from birth,

For time flies fast.

Use me as Thou would'st have it best for Thee

To help some one

Climb up and o'er the mountain tops to see

Thine only Son.

Give strength to bear when trials swamp my soul

And swirl around

My fainting heart, and let Thy spirit whole

In Thee be found.

Help me to sacrifice in gratitude

Because of love

Thou poured upon me oft in sorrow's mood

Through stars above.

Feed me as Thou hast done on dreary waste,

When I did cry,

O, God, help me to help, and keep me chaste,

Till I shall die.

Keep me from seeking vain things on the earth

Or idols crave.

Be with me when I leave this old world's mirth.

And near my grave.

SAM SIMMONS.

"HISTORIC BRETHRENISM"

AN EXCEEDINGLY INTERESTING DOCUMENT, REVEALING ITS MEANING

(NOTE: Dr. Alva J. McClain has loaned the editor a very interesting and valuable document that came into his hands through some aged sister in California. This is "The Brethren's Almanac for The United States, for the Year of Our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, 1871, published by H. R. Holsinger, Tyrone, Penna.")

In this old Almanac, under the title, "REMARKS UPON COURTS," there is reprinted a translation "FROM THE 'HIGH GERMAN AMERICAN ALMANAC' FOR THE YEAR 1760, PUBLISHED BY CHRISTOPHER SAUR, AND WAS WRITTEN BY HIM AS A PRE-FACE TO THE LIST OF COURTS TO BE HELD IN THE DIFFERENT 'STATES AND TERRITORIES.'"

Certainly, if there is any such thing as historic Brethrenism, we here possess some of it; for who can deny that the voice of Christopher Saur, the printer of the first Bible that was ever printed in America, and one of the most famous worthies of the Brethren movement from its very beginning, is any other than one of the most authoritative voices within the realm of "historic Brethrenism"?

These "REMARKS UPON COURTS" ought to be read with exceeding great interest. PROFESSING TO BE "historic Brethren," and TRULY POSSESSING the spirit of "historic Brethrenism" that enables one to be strong enough and big enough and spiritual enough to live according to its teachings when temporal possessions are at stake, seem to be two different things.

Anyhow, if anyone wants to know the position of the fathers who made Brethrenism historic, this document certainly reveals it; and in these momentous days we quote the same in full, and pray that it may help all Brethren to live up to their professions and to be truly Brethren.—L.S.B.)

REMARKS UPON COURTS

Inasmuch as through the fall of man everything became so desperately corrupt, that men will no longer be governed by the Spirit of God, (which is a spirit of love and peace,) but are continually bent upon defrauding and deceiving one another, exercising injustice, withholding just dues, and even destroying one another's lives, as it is daily witnessed, therefore, God, in the wisdom of his counsel, thought it good to appoint governments, and into their hands has delivered the sword for the punishment of the evil doer, and the protection of the good. See Rom. 13. And where a government answers these designs of God, there it is right for believers to be subject to such government as the apostle commands in the same chapter. The token by which such a government may be known, to which such obedience is due, is also set forth by the apostle in the 3d verse of the 13th chapter: "For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil. Wilt thou then not be afraid of the powers? Do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise of the same." Now where a government is thus administered, so that the pious receive its protection and praise, which never transcends the limits of the Divine law, nor attempts to exercise authority over the consciences or religious views of its subjects, unless acts deserving of punishment should be committed, ever seeking to maintain peace and union; bearing the sword, but compelling no one to use it against his conscience; he that resisteth such a government, "resisteth the ordinance of God. And they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation."

Should, however, a government not be constituted according to God's ordinance, hating and envying the just, praising and protecting the evil, exercising authority over the consciences of men, imposing on them unchristian deeds, and the carnal sword, (which Christ has commanded to be put into the sheath,) to be subject to such a government, would be nothing else than rejecting the master and obeying the servant; to such Peter and John replied without a violation of conscience, (Acts 4:19): "Whether it be right in the sight of God, to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye."

According to the original text of Hebrews 11:3, it reads: "Through faith we know that the things which we see, became of the things which we do not see." Hence all visible things, whether good or evil, are an offspring, or antitype from the powers of light or darkness, and are swayed by them. So also governments established according to divine appointment, together with their ministrations, are typical of the judicature of Christ and his saints at that great day when all shall be judged in righteousness, at which great court, or judgment day, shall appear, not only all men, as Paul says; (2 Cor. 5:10); but even angels themselves shall be judged (1 Cor. 6:3).

And as Christ the true Head of all believers humbled himself before He ascended, suffered before He reigned, was condemned and put to death before He comes to judge; did not appeal to secular powers for protection or redress when upbraided as Beelzebub or prince of devils; "reviled not when He was reviled, and when He suffered He threatened not, but committed all unto Him who judgeth righteously;" hence the true followers of that blessed Head are commanded not to "judge before the time," gladly leaving over this ministration to its servants and allowing them to represent the figure, but they themselves the substance; and where the servants, or as they are termed in Rom. 13:4, the "ministers of God," rule well, there the children will also rejoice together.

We are therefore under obligations to thank God, that here in Pennsylvania we have such authorities that grant and protect liberty of conscience, and have on several occasions bravely defended those liberties when we were in danger of losing them, for which God will certainly be their rewarder. But that many acts of injustice and violence are perpetrated, against the advice of the authorities, not only by ungodly citizens, but by under officials, who love bribes, and pervert right, almost daily experience teaches. It would indeed be desirable that men would accept the advice of Christ and His apostles, rather to suffer than to contend at law. "And if any man will sue thee at law and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also." "Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath: for it is written, vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord." Rom.

12:19. And whosoever suffereth wrong for Christ's sake, hath the promise of receiving "an hundred fold again." Matt. 19:29.

Should, however, the objector say, "My faith is too weak for these things, and for such things no one is prepared without faith; and if we do not appeal to the civil authorities and make use of the law, which is ordained of God and designed for our benefit, we are in danger of being wronged out of what is justly our own; and circumstances differ widely and cannot all be measured by the same rule," etc., then I answer: It is well spoken, for hereunto faith is demanded, for without faith these things cannot be fulfilled; but is not faith required in the performance of every Christian duty? For "That which is without faith is sin." Rom. 14:23. And the fear of suffering the loss of goods by honoring the doctrine of Christ, "and exercising himself in godliness, cannot possess him that has faith, for he knoweth that without the permission of God neither men nor the devil have power to harm him, and should God permit it he is content that His will shall be done, knowing that it will work for our good: for "godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life, that now is and that which is to come." I Tim. 4:8.

As to circumstances being so diversified that all may not be squared by the same rule, I partly admit, yet no circumstance is so extraordinary that by faith we may not meet the approbation of God. But this I say, and will prove it by the Scriptures, that it is a great shame for professors of Christianity, and members of the same church, to sue one another at law before the civil authorities, for they thereby plainly manifest that their teachers and superintendents, and deacons, and in fact their whole society are destitute of that wisdom which qualifies men to decide in worldly matters, as Paul says, I Cor. 6:5-7, which read carefully.

Such professors give plainly to understand that they love their temporal goods more than their undying souls, seeing they entrust their souls to such to whom they will not commit the adjusting of their temporal difficulties. Should, however, the contending parties belong to different societies or religious professions, it would be advisable that each select several men and pledge themselves together to abide by the decision of those men, and thus in a short time, and at a trifling expense, the most important contests could be disposed of. It is consistent with sound reason that neighbors, being acquainted with all the circumstances on both sides, are more competent to decide cases than strangers who have not that acquaintance, and whose judgment frequently must depend upon statements made by unprincipled tattlers, who for money will make right appear wrong, and wrong right. And then after the parties have spent more in lawing than the matter in dispute was worth, and continued the suit for years, after all it is not unfrequently settled by arbitration.

It is evident that lawyers are seldom at enmity with each other, but frequently decide cases between themselves beforehand, and if one gains a case this time, he must allow the other to gain the next, whether right or wrong. Hence they may justly be compared to a pair of shears, the blades of which seem continually to be cutting each other, but really they cut only that which comes between them.

In Pennsylvania alone, more than ten thousand pounds might be saved annually, if men would refrain from contending at law, and have their disputes settled according to the foregoing plan. But he that is not pleased with this method, and would rather choose the way of retaliation than of amity, will find information below of the time and places set apart when and where the vindictive may impeach one another.

(Then follows a list of Courts.—Ed.)

After quoting the above document, the editor was struck with its remarkable ending. While the "List of Courts" was not printed in the document, yet apparently the document ended in a way as much as to say: We have given you the will of God, as set forth in the Scriptures, to guide your feet when issues arise between brethren, but if any of you cannot live up to this teaching and are determined to "choose the way of retaliation" rather "than of amity," here is a "List of Courts" where you can go to satisfy the "vindictive" old man within you and proceed to "impeach one another."—L.S.B.

CHARLES DARWIN AND THE BIBLE.

The following little account by Lady Hope of the death of Charles Darwin, the evolutionist, is stirring. It is a most wonderful narrative, and contains the account of a great and terrible tragedy.

Darwin is propped up in bed, and he looks out over the lovely landscape as the sun is setting. He is reading—the Bible! Said Lady Hope: "I made some allusion to the strong opinions expressed by many persons on the history of the creation, its grandeur, and then to their treatment of the earlier chapters of the Book of Genesis.

"He seemed greatly distressed, his fingers twitched nervously, and a look of agony came over his face as he said:

"I was a young man with unformed ideas. I threw out queries, suggestions, wondering all the time over everything; and to my astonishment the ideas took like wildfire. People made a religion of them."

Dedication of the First Kabba Village Chapel

By Eld. Orville D. Jobson, Supt. of African Brethren Missions

In the early days of the work when Bassai was the only station in our French Equatorial Mission, Bro. Gribble used to talk about our line of advance in reaching the tribes of Western Oubangui-Chari with the gospel of salvation. His vision in those days was a station in the Laka-Kabba tribes to the north of Bassai as our next move. He spoke often of this unusual group of people and especially about a number of them whom he had met on his travels. He admired their splendid physique, just as every one who sees them does, and he longed for the opportunity to reach them with the gospel.

Before our first year together had come to a close, Bro. Gribble was looking forward to opening our next station among these people. But shortly afterwards he took a trip to Bangui—several months before he was called home—and on this trip he turned his eyes upon Yaloke's village, in the Banou tribe, as our next immediate station. This station was opened in 1924 by Bro. Hathaway.

However, the desire to reach the Kabba had become a part of my being, and shortly after the home-going of Bro. Gribble I made my first contacts with them. There is no doubt that our love for the different tribes in those early days was the Lord leading us to the unreached parts of His vineyard. Interest in the Kabba people became a mission burden, and in 1925 Bro. Sheldon made a trip thru the tribe with a view to opening our third station. At this time, however, the government was building an auto road thru parts of the tribe, and the changing of village sites to the new road made the location of a station very uncertain. The Kabba station was then postponed and our third station was opened among the Gbea tribe at Bellevue, in 1926.

In spite of this delay our prayers unceasingly ascended to God's throne for a station among the Kabba. In 1928 I made a trip thru parts of the tribe, made new contacts, and promised them that one day the Lord would send them a messenger.

Again in 1932 we covered parts of the tribe, and one of the old chiefs chided me, that our promise had not been fulfilled. Then three years later when the Morrills came to the field, we saw the possibilities of reaching the Kabba people for whom we had prayed since 1922. Most gladly did we take time from our Bassai duties to locate a site and build a temporary home for Kabbaland's first messengers of the gospel, for thus we were helping to realize our prayer of the years, "Lord send us laborers for the Kabba tribe."

This little introduction will help you to realize some of the joy that was ours when, on a recent trip to Paoua, some 30 miles south of our Kabba station, Bro. Kliever asked me to assist him in dedicating the first Kabba village chapel.

Bedam is one of the three new village points that have been opened in the Kabba tribe, the others being at Benamkor and Bedaya. These are centers from which Bro. Kliever expects to reach three-fifths of the tribe. Two of the workers at these points have been in the Central Bible School at Bozoum for two terms. The worker at Bedam is a Laka-Kabba, who first came to us in 1927 and enrolled in our first French School class. Here he accepted the Lord as his Savior and was baptized April 27, 1933. For a number of years Joseph had a checkered career—hesitating between serving the Lord and serving mammon—but in 1936 the Lord laid His hand upon him and sent him to a Kabba village in the Bassai field as a self supporting evangelist.

In 1939 he was transferred to the Bekoro field, where he has grown in grace and in the knowledge of the Word under the ministry of Bro. Kliever. It is quite fitting that he should be the evangelist at the first Kabba village chapel to be dedicated. At last he Joseph Bondounga, Evangelist at Bedam Chapel, standing between his wife and a young helper.

Chapel at Bedam, photographed on day of dedication has found God's place for him, and our prayer is that Joseph shall be faithful to the promise of his youth to serve his own people in the gospel of Christ.

It was a dry, hot afternoon when we loaded a group of the Bekoro Christians in the mission truck to go to Bedam for the dedication. It was May 19th. Upon arriving, Bro. Kliever hung a brake-drum from an old mission truck in a nearby tree, and Joseph beat the call to church, and the people began to gather.

The chapel building is a crude structure of poles and grass. A mat on one side forms a protection from the wind; the other side and both ends are entirely open. The floor was unpounded dirt. There was a pedestal—made especially for Jake Kliever—I couldn't see the first three rows. It consisted of a pole in the ground with a box lid nailed on top of it. There were a few left-over building sticks on the men's side, and they were utilized as benches. The women sat on clods of dirt or on the ground. But the best part is that this chapel was built by the Christians themselves, and that speaks for a more definitely indigenous spirit than if it had been constructed with brick walls, paid for from mission funds.

The service was short. The singing, message, exhortation, and dedicatory prayer lasted barely an hour. There was nothing unusual about the service, but somehow the Lord crowned me with a particular joy. What I was seeing that day represented the efforts of the Kabba people to provide a place of worship for themselves, and to reach their fellow tribe members. All of our prayers have not been answered for this people—no, not by a wide margin—but what we saw gave us cause for real rejoicing, and filled us with courage to pray thru until the Lord has gathered a great church to Himself from among the Laka-Kabba peoples.

May the Lord add His blessing upon the efforts of His servants in this field—missionaries and native workers—encouraging their hearts and giving them joy as they labor for Him.

On the way back to the station, the group of Christians that we took along to the dedication, stood in the back of the truck and sang heartily one gospel song after another. I could not help comparing the heathen singing that I first heard, when I spent my first night among this people. What a difference. Surely, "the gospel is the power of God unto salvation."

A STRIKING TESTIMONY.

Heinrich von Heine, a Jew, half German, half French, a man of flashing wit, a brilliant writer and poet, a confirmed doubter, one day took up a Bible and spent most of the day in the unwonted task of reading.

"What a Book!" he exclaimed, as he laid it down; "vast and wide as the world! rooted in the abysses of creation, and towering up beyond the blue secrets of heaven. Sunrise and sunset, birth and death, promise and fulfilment, the whole drama of humanity are in this Book!"

YALOKO BIBLE CONFERENCE

By Floyd W. Taber, M.D., F. E. Africa

It began with the missionary pastor flat on his back; continued by the evangelists going crazy; and ended with a love-feast, 45 baptisms, and five weddings.

On returning home from Bekoro, after welcoming Donna Marie Kliever, I found three very important jobs staring me in the face, all of which must be done within the next two weeks, and any one of which was more than I could possibly do right in that length of time. The easiest of the three was the Bible Conference for native workers.

The Lord had to show me that I was not nearly so important as I thought I was. He put me in bed with an infection arising from a sore on the ankle, and kept me there until all the important jobs were done without me.

Dr. Gribble and Miss Emmert did exploits. In addition to all their regular work, and all of mine, and taking care of me, they brought frequent messages to the Bible Conference. But it was simply impossible to find time to attend the business sessions and guide the native church in plans for the work.

We have been wondering all along how soon the native church would be ready to carry on, so the missionaries could move on to unoccupied fields. What would they do if the entire responsibility fell on them, with no missionaries to guide them?

By force of circumstances, we got a partial answer to that question. The native church was left to face its problems alone.

When there is enough money, the evangelists supported by native offerings receive from 50c to $1.00 a month. But much of the time this is cut, for lack of money. The last pay before the conference, they received just two-thirds. In the face of this shortage, they decided to send twelve new workers into the field and divide their money with them.

I began to wonder if it would not be a good thing for the Lord to keep me in bed! But possibly after He teaches me a few more lessons I will go crazy too, and then He can let me get up without danger to the native church.

INTERESTING COMMUNICATIONS FROM DR. CRIBBLE

Steamship "Fondere," Oubangui River

July 12, 1940

Dear Friends at Home,

The long talked of South African trip is at last a reality. I left Yaloke July 8, spent July 9 in Bangui for business, and embarked July 10 upon this boat. Miss Emmert is not with me. This is owing to the cablegram recently received permitting vacations in Africa only. This has been a great disappointment to me. I feel especially sorry for her, as she is very tired after four years of service . . . . .

I am traveling with a party of missionaries from our neighboring mission who are especially kind and congenial. I enjoy the two households and the children, but it is an especially gracious provision of the Lord to have permitted me to travel on the same boat with Miss Lindeman. We have much in common and are very congenial.

We expect to arrive at Brazzaville July 17. We then have considerable business to attend to, cashing drafts, exchanging money, getting new passports and visas, and securing passage on our next boat. The next boat, belonging to the company Unatra, makes the voyage upstream on the Congo and Kasai rivers to Port Francquis in eight days. Of course we do not know how long we may be delayed at Leopoldville. Upon our arrival at Port Francquis we expect to travel by rail to the Cape, making probably only one stop at the frontier. The time required for the trip from Port Francquis to the Cape is seven days, three of which are spent in the Belgian Congo and four on the South African railways.

Once having arrived at the Cape, our first business will be to see the American Consul, pick up mail and funds which we hope will be awaiting us there, and make out plans accordingly. As for myself, I expect to go to some missionary home or boarding house in Cape Town or suburbs.

In these days it is extremely difficult to obtain visas. I therefore consider myself very fortunate to have my passport already visaed for my return to Oubangui-Chari. I also have a detachable visa to attach to my next passport, as this one will be expiring before my return. We are armed with our certificates of vaccination, and will probably have to get sanitary passports in Brazzaville before crossing into Congo Belge. I also have an authorization from the governor of Congo Belge to cross his territory. All out-coming missionaries should get the necessary visas before leaving New York. There will probably be no difficulty in getting the British visa. The Belgian and French visa must be obtained from the respective governor generals of the Colonies, and application should be made to the French or Belgian Consuls at home, to obtain these visas from the Gouvernor General.

The fact that traveling is difficult in these times does not mean that it is impossible. Everyone who is called by the Lord into mission fields should buckle on his armor and sally forth, ready to live or to die, according to the will of God, being satisfied that life or death will be for the Word of God and the testimony of Jesus (Rev. 1:9).

One of my trunks is almost full of manuscripts. I am sure the time will not hang heavy on my hands in South Africa, for there I hope to complete the book started on my furlough, if possible. I would be glad if you would pray that the Lord may provide a secretary for my use in South Africa, if it be His will. Then I would be able to do work more quickly, as the manuscripts are now in such a shape that much can be accomplished by dictation. We have a wonderful Lord, and although we do not see how prayers can be answered, we know that He can and does answer prayer. He Who is the Creator is not dependent upon any created thing or being, but chooses His own instruments. Hence, it is often that the very weakness of the instrument enhances His glory.

Many times I marvel that I should have been called to the position of privilege and responsibility which awaits some missionary in South Africa at this time of crisis in traveling. Again, I pray that in this case also the very weakness of the instrument may enhance His glory, and that a safe and inexpensive route to the unevangelized colonies may soon be opened.

In our own mission the need is great. There is yet a brief respite for the preaching of the gospel in Oubangui-Chari, but forces are few and weak. Since May, 1938, with one exception, no missionaries who have gone on furlough have been able to return. At the present time we have six posts manned by 15 missionaries, four of whom are overdue for furlough. Eleven divided by six gives less than two as a quotient. The result is inevitable. Unless we have reinforcements soon, one of our stations at least must be closed or manned by a single missionary, and that a lady.

Will you not join with us in praying that God Himself will thrust forth volunteers in this extreme crisis of our work? Will not you who are volunteers, lift up your heads in this time of darkness and discouragement, and pray that for you there may be open doors to go forward? Will not you who are members of our churches, like the Spartan mothers, send forth your sons and your daughters with the injunction to return with their shields or upon them? Will not you who are donors rejoice in the privilege of giving more largely now than ever before, realizing that the time is short indeed? Whether you pray, whether you go, whether you give, do it heartily as unto the Lord, believing that in Oubangui-Chari the church will soon be completed and the coming of our Lord hastened.

We have been lax and slow. On every hand the men are dying for causes infinitely less than our own; dying to add luster to names far less glorious than that of our Lord; dying without hope of that glorious immortality which is ours; expecting nothing but a resurrection unto damnation. Why should we, who are assured of the glorious resurrection unto life, halt and hesitate before making that final charge, which the church must make in order to complete her ranks?

And now, dear friends, I commend each of you to Him Who is our hope. We have long expected this hour; interpreters of prophecy have long since proclaimed it. The darkness of the hour is but a harbingers of hope—not a hope dim, ill-defined and impersonal, but a hope definite and personal, even our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. There are perhaps no sadder words in the Bible than these: "Nevertheless when the Son of man cometh, shall He find faith on the earth?" Shall He find in you, shall He find in me, that faith which is the victory? Let us encourage one another to love and to good works. F.N.G.

Leopoldville, Congo Belge
July 31, 1940

Dear Readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald:

Back at Stanley Pool again, on the Brazzaville shores on which we did that long waiting of 18 months in 1918-19. This time we have had a wait—a much shorter one—on the Leopoldville side. We had thought traveling upon the Oubangui River to be a thing of the past in our lives as for more than 12 years we have traveled in and out, to and fro, by the Camerouns. But things have changed. Now it is the part of wisdom, if not of necessity, to pass again by way of Brazzaville and Leopoldville, where our very kind American Consul, Mr. Patrick Mallon, resides.

As far as the Oubangui-Chari Mission is concerned, I traveled down river alone. Missionaries from the Mid-African Mission were however traveling by the same opportunity, viz: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Leachour and three children, and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fogle and one child, as well as Miss Esther Lindeman.

I am enroute to South Africa for a brief rest; the others were enroute to America. After considerable red tape and many difficulties, the two families named above, accompanied by Mr. Metzler and family who were also waiting at Leopoldville, have seized

All Christians are called by a new name or names. Here are a few of them found in the scriptures:

|           |                                       |
|-----------|---------------------------------------|
| SAINTS    | because of holiness                   |
| BELIEVERS | because of faith                      |
| BRETHREN  | because of love                       |
| DISCIPLES | because of obedience or learning      |
| SERVANTS  | because of work or ministry           |
| PRIESTS   | because of worship                    |
| WITNESSES | because of testimony                  |
| CHILDREN  | because of position or relationship   |
| SONS      | because of privileges and possessions |

What is the measure of your Christian life along side this array of names that God has given to us? Are you living true to each name by which God has called you?

upon an unprecedented opportunity to make their way to New York. The S. S. Leopoldville of the Belgian Line was sailing on short notice to New York itself, for the first time. Whether or not it will continue to ply between New York and Matadi, we do not know; but while it does so, it affords a marvelous opportunity for missionaries to go and come. (Note: We heard of the possibility of securing passage on this boat for our outgoing missionaries. As we were trying to secure reservations, we received notice that all further sailings of this ship were cancelled—L.S.B.).

Miss Lindeman chose to continue with me to South Africa, where she hopes to embark either on one of the steamers of the American-South Africa Lines which ply regularly between New York and the Cape, or upon one of the steamers of the President Line. These boats require from 22 to 30 days for the passage.

What seemed like an insuperable difficulty confronted me when I reached the City of Brazzaville. All my money was in French francs. I could obtain no lodging on the Brazzaville side, and it was therefore necessary for me to go to Leopoldville where the Union Mission Hotel is located. But French francs are at present not legal tender in Congo Belge, and no bank will exchange them. Furthermore, it is necessary to leave our French money on the French side.

Through the kindness of Mr. Metzler and also of Mr. Coxhill and Mr. Carpenter, what at first seemed like impossible difficulties have been overcome. Parties needing the French francs have taken them off our hands instead of receiving them direct from their mission boards or employers in America. The dollars, which are negotiable anywhere, were received in a providential manner—some through the American Consul, some through private friends, and some through chance acquaintances. Upon Mr. Metzler fell the responsibility of caring for these negotiations.

Finally, something more than two-thirds of the amount formerly held in French francs has been received in Belgian francs or in dollars, and I am enabled to continue my journey to the Cape, where I expect to spend something less than six months; after which I hope in the providence of God to return to Oubangui-Chari. I was able to purchase a return ticket from Leopoldville to the Cape at considerable reduction, with a maximum duration of six months from Leopoldville.

Pray at this time for our missionaries waiting to return, for candidates waiting to be thrust out, for our board, that wisdom and grace may be given them in directing the movements of our missionaries during these troublous times. Pray also for our tired and worn out missionaries on the field—especially for the Sheldons, Mrs. Kennedy and Miss Emmert who furloughs are overdue—that the way may be opened for them to rest. Pray for me, as I hurry back to Oubangui-Chari without seeing your faces, that I may be enabled to relieve some to rejoice in the homecoming. My dear Herald Readers:

Once more I write to you, having reached the end of my journey.

I will now resume the narrative in diary form for the month of August to date, feeling that the new and varying experiences through which I have passed may be of interest to some of you.

August 1st

Spoke tonight at the Salvation Army meeting at Leopoldville. There were more than 800 present at 5:00 p. m. As I do not speak Lingalo, I spoke in English through an interpreter. Great interest was shown. . . . The Salvation Army is to be commended for the evangelistic, medical and educational work it is carrying on at Leopoldville.

August 2nd

A red letter day—our first plane ride! Having an unusual burden of prayer, I arose at 4:30. The "last inevitables" were soon arranged, and after prayer we partook of an early breakfast, entered the waiting bus, . . . and were driven to the airport. Tickets having been previously arranged for, there remained nothing to do except the weighing of the excess baggage, of which only 20 kilograms is allowed in addition to the regular 20 kilos free. We "took off" at 8:00 a. m. I did not expect an accident, but we had one. At first I did not know that we were tipping and swerving in an unusual way, but presumed I was just getting my money's worth! Soon, however, it was apparent that we were making a forced landing, and we were all greatly relieved when it was made in safety and we taxied back over the turf to the airport. Here we found out what had happened. We had collided with two huge birds which had riddled our wings. A huge hole in one, a smaller one in the other, had doubtless caused the tipping and the swerving which seemed so ghastly. Some time was now consumed in making repairs, after which we took off again and reached our destination—Luluaburg—without further accident. The birds proved to be of a species hitherto unknown in the vicinity of Leopoldville. The impact with the plane caused their death, and the exclamations of wonder as their carcasses were inspected were universal. . . .

August 3rd

By 7:30 we were on the train. Reservations had been made for us, but our compartment was occupied by three train men. They insisted on going; we demurred. Notwithstanding, they went out and stood in the corridor. Belgian and South Africa second class compartments "seat and sleep 6." We moved over to the window, after which with many apologies they returned. There really was no other place for them to go until another car was put on at 5:30 that evening. They were much interested when we started a game of anagrams, and insisted on making suggestions. This opened the way for us to speak to them of Jesus. May the seed have been sown on good ground.

August 4th

We spent a fairly comfortable night in our bunks, where we settled nicely soon after we had the compartment to ourselves. Most of this Sunday we were alone. We felt the afternoon heat terribly for two days, and were glad we were continually going South into cooler climes.

As the train pulled into Luene, we saw a mulatto family waiting to board it. Mulattos belong to a distinct class in this part of the Congo and in British territory. We knew they would be traveling second class also, and wondered just where they would be. We soon found out the wife and baby were to share our compartment for the night. We were just preparing our little supper, which we had the privilege of sharing with them, as they had none. As the mother was not well, we gave her one of the lower berths. We were now four, and had a feeling that we were "complet." But no! At nine o'clock the porter came in and made up a berth for a fifth passenger, for whose appearance, however, we waited in vain. At 2:00 a. m. the porter came in again and removed the bedding. Evidently we were not quite so popular as we had thought!

August 5th, 6th, & 7th

After this somewhat disturbed night we were glad to be reaching Elizabethville, our destination. . . . We arrived finally to find our friends, Bishop and Mrs. Springer, awaiting us. . . . We had to remain in Elizabethville two nights and a day. Both days, however, we were invited to the Methodist mission for tea, and the time passed very rapidly. We were happy to find that the Hotel Albert gave a missionary reduction.

We left on the morning of the 7th. Bishop and Mrs. Springer saw us off at the train and loaded us down with reading matter, which was very acceptable.

We were now bound for the Belgian frontier and had been told to prepare to pass customs at Sakania. But we did not understand that we were to change trains there, and were much amused at a lady getting in our car who was bound for Elizabethville. But in our superior(?) wisdom we thought we were right, and it was only at the last minute, just as the train on the other track was leaving for Sakania, that we were finally persuaded to change! What an example of that spiritual blindness and perversity which refuses to believe that it is on the wrong track; sometimes, alas, until it is too late!

An hour later we arrived at Ndula. We knew we had to change here, but had quite a time effecting this. We found we were assigned to a compartment with a Dutch lady and her little boy, and at last at 11:00 p. m. all four of us subsided for the night.

August 8th

All day on the train! Since it was a day without incidents, I might relax sufficiently to say that Belgian and South African second class trains remind one somewhat of freight trains at home, with one or more cabooses attached! They make a similar speed, also! I am wondering whether it would not be better economy to go first class! One would save so much time—and food!

August 9th

Livingstone! What a thrill about the name, and even the place! By previous arrangement, we left the train in the early morning, took first a bus, then a boat, then a double trolley, and arrived at the famous Victoria Falls. They are magnificent and beautiful even in the dry season, although they are reputed to be twice the volume in the rainy season. Now the falls are a series of magnificent "chutes." Then they are one grand mass of mighty roaring waters. The spray, like smoke, can be seen for many miles. What a thrill Livingstone must have had on first beholding them!

Arrangements had been made for lunch at the hotel, which a South African seriously assured me was larger than any in New York! While this was a natural exaggeration on the part of one who had never seen New York hotels, it was a fine hotel for Africa! The best thing about it was the hot baths,

Mr. Leo Polman

Dear Sir:

Our W.M.C. of Southern California would like to give out envelopes for The Brethren Missionary Herald at their district meeting held the last of October.

They want to stress a Brethren Missionary Herald in every home at that time. So I was told to ask you to send us about 1,000 envelopes if possible. This will take care of the envelopes for the whole district and we will see that all churches are supplied.

Yours in His Service,

thrice welcome after weary days on the train. We joined our train again at Victoria, and next morning found ourselves at historic Bulawayo.

August 10th

Another change! . . . . We have already entered winter, and the winter of a high plateau. Most of us had taken cold, and felt sight-seeing would be out of the question. Yet, we had 12 hours in Bulawayo for that very purpose!

Sitting shivering by the open fire, nothing could have surprised me more than to hear a gentleman's voice saying: "Is Dr. Florence Gribble in the room?" Turning, I saw a very earnest looking young man, who introduced himself as the Baptist Minister in Bulawayo. A friend who had passed through on the train a week previously had left her card, with my name and information necessary! We gladly accepted Mr. Edmunds's invitation to dinner, and were soon introduced to wife, family and friends. What kindness to extend to complete strangers like ourselves!

At Elizabethville we had learned that we might be required to deposit L5 (at present, something over $20) at Mafeking, the "border" town in Bechuanaland where one enters the Union of South Africa. Now Mr. Edmunds told us of another cloud which hovers over Mafeking. If our papers were not in perfect order, we might have to get off at Mafeking and wait until all could be regulated! I am afraid we did not feel the weight of this on Saturday as we did on Sunday when the hour of our judgment came.

In Rhodesia and in South Africa one is always asked as to denominational affiliations. The Edmunds were no exception. But when I responded "Brethren," it did not cause the usual confusion in his mind. Someone present responded: "Is it the same as the 'Brethren' in Cape Town?" Another said: "Are you a member of the Garangouze Evangelical Mission?"

"No," I said, "we belong to the—"

"Is it not the same denomination as that to which Dr. Bauman belongs?" interrupted Mr. Edmunds.

"Yes," I responded, surprised at having the matter so quickly and thoroughly elucidated.

"We all read Dr. Bauman's articles in the Sunday School Times," responded Mr. Edmunds, "and we are thoroughly in accord with his teachings."

Here in Cape Town, too, I find the same experience. Dr. Bauman's articles have made an open door for our denomination among South Africa fundamentalists.

Among others, however, I have found that confusion still exists. The A.M.I., a company similar to Cook's who booked us thru from Leopoldville, wanted to give me half-fare on the train as soon as they heard I was a "Brethren." This of course I could not accept, as our Society is not among the listed societies eligible to half-fare in Belgian Congo. In South Africa one must be born here (I had almost said "a native") before one is eligible to half-fare.

The Edmunds took us back to our train. Customs Declarations were passed soon after, as well as Immigration Blanks. We were told that the "visit" would occur Sunday morning after breakfast.

August 11th

True to his word, the officer appeared. Our blanks had been diligently filled in. Miss Lindeman, my traveling companion was the first to present hers. The officer perused the detailed information thereon, then asked for my papers, passports, etc. Turning to Miss Lindeman, he said: "I must ask you to get off at Mafeking." "I cannot hope for a better fate," I thought.

"I will bring you a permit," he said, "but you must deposit five pounds because your Society is not listed." This money he explained to me would be returned to me at Mafeking. Why the difference? Simply because I had my ticket to exit. Miss Lindeman, naturally since she was going home, had none. When I perceived at Leopoldville that I was not eligible to missionary discount, I decided to avail myself of the advantages of a return ticket, knowing nothing of the fact that it would be my passport into the Union. Miss Lindeman's ticket to America was to be provided from her headquarters in America—allright when once here.

This is just one more evidence of what we have been perceiving all along—that funds for American missionaries returning home from French Equatorial Africa via Leopoldville should be sent in care of American Consulate at Leopoldville. For, had my friend had the money to purchase her ticket to New York, she would have had no trouble. There was nothing to do but for her to get off the train. It was a sad parting for those who had traveled together for nearly five weeks. She went to the hotel, and, it being Sunday, to church. She met kind Christian friends who invited her to their home. The next morning she telegraphed the American Consul, who immediately arranged with the Immigration Boards at Mafeking and Cape Town; and she was permitted to proceed, pending the carrying out of certain formalities. She arrived in Cape Town, 36 hours after I did. What a kind being an American Consul appears to Americans traveling abroad!

Very faithfully yours,

FLORENCE N. GRIBBLE

"MISSIONARIES' MISSIVES"

Miss Mary L. Emmert wrote the editor from Bangui, F.E.A., on July 10. Her letter reveals the truly sacrificial spirit of all our missionaries in these days of stress and trial. The physical bodies of some of our missionaries are certainly in need of rest. This letter reveals the fact that the soldiers of the Lord Jesus Christ are not outdone by the soldiers of the kingdoms of this world in the matter of possessing the spirit of "standing by the guns" until someone comes to man them and keep up the fight. Surely, we in the homeland, because of sacrificing a few dollars to provide the wherewithal for these missionaries, have utterly nothing wherein to boast in the way of sacrifice for Christ. From Miss Emmert's letter we quote:

"If the way eventually opens up for going and returning, then I would rather take my furlough in the homeland as usual. If, on the other hand, there seems to be no likelihood of a change for the better, it would then be time to take a rest somewhere in Africa if thought best . . . I feel that I should not want to go home if it were impossible to return; and so I am willing to stay on another year or so, if necessary and if the Lord leads. We shall continue to look to Him, Who alone is able to lead us."

Chauncey B. Sheldon, under date of July 8, 1940, wrote the editor a very interesting letter. Knowing the desires of all the members of The Foreign Missionary Society for every possible bit of news as to how our missionaries are faring in these troubled times and as to what they are doing on the field, we quote for their information a portion of this letter written from Bellevue, par Bossangoa, French Equatorial Africa. Brother and Sister Sheldon are two missionaries who are also sadly in need of rest, but they are "standing by the guns" at present in Africa. Let us hope that someone will be sent to their relief. We quote:

"World conditions are anything but pleasant these days, and each time the news arrives it seems worse than before. One just doesn't know what will be the end of all of this upheaval. But we as Americans have had nothing, compared to the anguish of heart of the French, Belgians, and others in this land. A Belgian couple that we know had had no word of their aged parents; others have wives and even children back there, and don't know whether they are still alive or not. Such anguish as is caused by the evil of one man's heart! Unless he repents, he will get his punishment one day. Only those who put their trust in God can have peace in this world of unrest. We pray that, whatever comes to pass, this land will remain open to the gospel. That is much on our hearts.

"During the past weeks we have been much in prayer about our furlough. So long as the missionaries at home did not return and the need on the field was so great, we just couldn't get peace about going home. We had decided to postpone our going even before your telegram arrived. But we had planned to send Kenneth home with Miss Emmert by way of South Africa. He is now 13 and should be in regular school. We had written to John Brown School in Arkansas and were arranging for him to enter there in September. Then, when your telegram arrived Miss Emmert of course decided not to go. It has been a disappointment to us that he could not go on, but the Lord knows all about it and He will work it out for us. . . . If the Lord does not open the way for others to come forth and for us to go on furlough, pray that He will give strength to tired bodies. . . .

"The world is in great distress, but we praise the Lord that His Word is going forth and souls are being saved. Children are coming to the classes and learning to read the Word. The Acts of the Apostles in Gbea has been finished, and we feel that the infant church needs this book, but how are we to get it printed? The British and Foreign Bible Society did this work so efficiently before, but it looks as if they wouldn't be able to do it now. I suppose we will have to inquire of the American Bible Society as to whether they would do it or not. Pray that we may be able to get the book in the hands of the people soon.

"We are praying for you during these days that you may have wisdom from on high for the many problems you have to face."

THE GIFT

He'd spend his dimes for candy,
He'd spend some more for gum,
And give it not a second thought—
'Twas such a trifling sum.

He'd spend his dimes for this and that,
For pleasure and for mirth,
And never miss those dimes he spent—
He'd had his money's worth.

Then when on Sunday came the time
For him to give his gift,
He'd drop a dime into the plate
And think 'twas quite a bit.

Oh that the Savior would have come
And showed this thoughtless man
His pierced hands, His wounded side,
Marred by the hands of man.

How shamed this sinful man would feel!
How small the trifling sum
Beside the Gift God gave for us—
His own beloved Son.

—Robert Sharp.

BOZOOM PRAISE AND PRAYER NOTES

Ps. 50:15, "And call upon me in the day of trouble; I will deliver thee, and thou shalt glorify me." What a glorious privilege is ours to be able to call on One Whom we know has delivered, and is still able to deliver! We praise the Lord for the peace and joy He gives in these dark days.

At our 1940 New Year's service a number of the Christians promised to memorize one verse of Scripture a month during the year. In January we began with Mt. 6:33; in February, Heb. 11:6,7. March we added Rom. 6:23. For April we choose 2 Cor. 8:9, and now we have I Pt. 5:10. We praise the Lord that our people are hiding God's Word in their hearts. It has been a real source of blessing to us to hear them recite these verses day after day. Remember to ask the Lord to keep them faithful until twelve rich and helpful verses have crowned their year's effort.

Mr. Jobson just returned from Baiboukoum and reports a real victory, for which we praise the Lord. Last month we asked you to keep Baiboukoum before you as an object of prayer. God heard prayer, and 40 were received into the waters of baptism. This group of believers have been having services daily since Noel started his work among them last January. Communion service was held on Sunday, also a testimony meeting in which all praised the Lord for the blessed privilege of hearing the way of salvation. They said they never knew they were sinners until they heard the gospel. One member was chosen to come to the Bible School this year to learn more of the Word. Another was chosen to pastor the flock until an evangelist comes to them, as Noel has now returned to Bozoum to attend the Bible School. We know you will remember this church at Baiboukoum. The enemy will be quick to throw his darts at them and try to destroy their new found joy. Let us be faithful in remembering them daily at the throne of Grace.

Pray for our missionaries who are due for furlough, but due to war conditions are not permitted to sail. The Lord is able to renew their strength day by day. Also continue to remember our missionaries at home who are waiting to come to the field. Truly, these are troublesome days, but may we keep looking up. God is on the throne, and our times are in His hands.

We have seen French Equatorial Africa throw its gates wide, wide open to the gospel. Let us continue to pray that they may not be closed. Truly, the fields are white unto the harvest. Pray for the Christians in Oubangui Chari that they may not become discouraged.

Yours in Him,

CHARLOTTE JOBSON.

Dear Bro. Bauman:

Am sending the prayer notes. We greatly need your prayers and the prayers of the brotherhood at this time.

You of course know the serious condition of France and her colonies. May we as missionaries have wisdom given from the Lord.

We do not know if air mail reaches U.S.A. or not, but are committing all to Him.

God bless you. In Him,

CHARLOTTE JOBSON

TEACHING THROUGH WORSHIP

By Ann Morgan

154 pages; cloth; price, $1.50

In this book, Mrs. Morgan has embodied 58 interesting and helpful programs for teaching worship to Junior-age boys and girls. Each program consists of order of worship, superintendent's talk, handwork and poster suggestions. The stories and outlines given adhere for the greater part to the main and all-important theme of our need of Christ the Savior Who died for our sin. The teacher or superintendent, of course, as in any aid to teaching, has the prerogative of adding or omitting as he sees fit.

It is quite evident from a perusal of this book that it would work beautifully into any program for Juniors, especially in the Christian Endeavor group.

Since at this age, boys and girls are most pliable, it seems only fitting that reverence and worship should be indelibly impressed upon them. Such, I am sure, Mrs. Morgan had in mind in preparing this book and we do not hesitate to recommend its extensive use.

PELLETS FOR PREACHERS

The public activities of four professions are rolled up in one, plus the financial shrewdness of a promoter, the social tactfulness of a society leader, the shrewdness of an honest politician, the wise penetration of the man with the sociological sense, and the holy zeal of an aroused Old Testament prophet.—Prof. G. W. Fisk.

PREACHING is truth through personality.—Philips Brooks.

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

FROM SUNDAY SCHOOL TO CONVENT

By Mrs. Paul Dowdy

Mrs. Dowdy

There are in Rio Cuarto two little girls who have had some experiences which few children ever have, and I imagine that very few would like to have. Their father is a real Christian but their mother is a wicked, sinful woman. The mother has tried everything possible to keep the father from living a life of real testimony for the Lord Jesus. She has also tried to lead her little girls away from the Lord Jesus.

Last November, the mother left the father and the two little girls. Can you imagine your mother going to another house to live and leaving without kissing you or your daddy good-bye? This mother did just that. However, the little girls didn't seem to miss her much for their father had always done more for them than their mother.

Yes, God had given them a good Christian father, who took them on his knees and told them of Jesus. He told them many more beautiful stories of the Bible. He also took them to Sunday School. They loved to hear these beautiful stories and always enjoyed hearing them again. They are very intelligent and learned very quickly the golden texts for each Sunday.

One day the mother came to see her little girls and asked to take them for a walk. But when it became dark she had not yet returned them. The father began to hunt them. When he could not find them, he told the police. They hunted two and a half months for them but could find them nowhere. Then one day both the father and mother had to go to the court house for a trial before the judge. The mother brought the little girls. Although the father was glad to see the little girls, yet he was sad to see that their attitude toward him had changed.

During those two and a half months that the mother had them hid, they had been told that their father was not a good man and that the Sunday School where he took them was a bad place to go. They were taught that they should have nothing to do with their father and that when the judge should ask them what they wanted to do, they should ask him for the permission to be put in a Catholic school. Immediately they were sent there. In that Catholic school they are taught that the people who attend the Brethren Sunday school are just animals. For a month the father was allowed to enter and see them every day but now the teachers do not like to allow the little girls to see their father. The father asks us all to pray that he may be able to get his little girls out of there and put them in a school where they will be taught to love the Lord Jesus and once more enjoy the beautiful Bible stories.

Won't you pray for them too?

SONG THE AFRICANS SING

How would you like to sing some hymns just as the Africans sing them? First we will tell you how to pronounce the words and then we will give the songs. If you will study one song out carefully before learning the others, you will find the pronunciation of the others much easier.

ou before i or a has the sound of w ch is sounded like sh ai as in aisle
e as in get i as in machine.
a as in papa
o as in go ou without an i as in soup
last s in Jesus is silent dashes indicate the syllables.

Very early on Sunday morning, boys leave their huts and go out to neighboring villages to bring people in to hear the "good news" that day. They may sing as they go a very appropriate hymn, "Bringing in the Sheaves." Perhaps you would like to join in the chorus—

Ba ngai-li oui-li, ba ngai-li oui-li,
Se-le 'le te des-sa, ba ngai-li oui-li,
Ba ngai-li oui-li, ba ngai-li oui-li,
Sele ele te des-sa, oui-chi ga-ra oui.

When they have gathered from far and near, they will sing again and hear the story of God's love. No doubt they enjoy singing the great children's favorite, "Jesus Loves Me." This is the way they would sing it.

Se-le Je-sus ko-a mi,
Mbe-to ke Nza-pa to oui-ne d-e;
Je-sus ha ngai-li ho mi,
Ngai-li oui-ne ke Nza-pa.

Chorus:

Se-le Je-sus ko-a mi,
Se-le Je-sus ko-a mi,
Se-le Je-sus ko-a mi,
Mbe-ti ke Nza-pa to oui-ne d-e.

As they learn of this love which includes them, they want to remember it all the way. If you asked them what song they would like to close with, they would probably say "Take the Name of Jesus with you," for this is their favorite. Let us listen as they sing:

Je-sus Christ ne Bi-me ke Nza-pa,
A te-no di sene nou,
A de-me no-da oui-li,
A ous-sou oua-ra pas-sa.

Chorus:

A fi-e, a tou-nou,
A ne-no de li-zane me;
A fi-e, a tou-nou,
A mo-no-tou-ni dou-me.

NOTICE TO PASTORS ON THE DRAFT

Brother Russell D. Barnard has prepared the finest statement, that we have ever seen, of the position of the Brethren through the years, on the subject of war and non-resistance, for use by our drafted men in presenting their claim for exemption on the basis of conscientious objection. It has attached a certificate for signature of pastor and church secretary required by the draft boards. This certificate can be adapted to each case as desired. Brother Barnard is to be commended for this fine piece of work at this timely hour.

We suggest that pastors send for a copy and make up certificates of their own after this model. These of course were made up for use by Brother Barnard's own young men of his Dayton Church. Brother Barnard's address is 1900 W. Third Street, Dayton, Ohio.

OUR COVER CARTOON

While the world's peoples are leaping at each other's throats; while nations are falling and disappearing in a day; while the spirit of antichrist spreads over the earth, crushing the people of Christ; while our own nation in alarm turns to arms to save her; we must the more earnestly preach the Word of God as the only way out, we must preach Christ as the only Savior. The cover cartoon from the Fort Wayne News Sentinel is a most timely message to America's people.

GARIBALDI WARNED YEARS AGO THE BIBLE WAS "THE ONLY CANNON THAT WOULD SET ITALY FREE" IT'S THE ONLY "CANNON" TODAY THAT WILL SET THE WORLD FREE.

LADIES, HAVEN'T YOU FORGOTTEN SOMETHING?

Brother Sewell Landrum reminds us that clothing has been very slow in arriving this year. The need is now. Has your Women's Missionary Council sent clothing bozes down yet this fall? Perhaps you have enough for a box of your own. Send boxes weighing up to 70 pounds by parcel post. It is best to send them that way for it makes quicker and more accurate delivery this way than any other. It is also cheaper. Ladies of The Brethren Church, this is one ministry that we count on you alone to render. Don't forget us down in Kentucky this season. The real need is now!

Send everything to Sewell Landrum, Lost Creek, Ky.

The Great Sign of Wars

Professor Sorokin of Harvard University is quoted in the Alliance Weekly to the effect that,

"War in the 20th century has reached a total eight times greater than all the preceding centuries." He says that during the last 2500 years, so an analysis of 962 wars and 1615 internal disturbances shows, the 13th century citizen had 6,500 more chances to die peaceably in his bed than his descendant of the 20th century. He showed that during this period Spain had led the world in warfare, being at war 67% of her history. France followed next with 60%, England with 56%, Russia 46%, Italy 36%, Germany 28%, and ancient Greece 57%.

The significant thing to note is that today every man faces 6,500 hazards of meeting a violent death due to war sweeping over the earth to one hazard faced by an average man in the 13th century. The developments of the present world situation must be exceedingly embarrassing to those who have laughed at the prophetic utterances of our Lord in Matthew when He said in the 24th chapter that "Ye shall hear of wars and rumours of wars**** all these things must come to pass but the end is not yet. For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines and pestilences and earthquakes in divers places."

Those who have sung the little ditty that the world was getting better no matter what folks said are eloquent by their silence. It is not for those of us who have believed the words of Daniel, when he said "wars and desolations are determined unto the end," to shout "I told you so." That is silly. It is not for us who have believed Ezekiel, when in the 38th and 39th chapters of his book he described a whole world of nations at war at the close of this age, to glory in its fulfillment and our exoneration. It is for us to work and pray and testify as never before because we also believe that the night is coming on apace. It is for us to cause our hand to "cleave to the sword," and to work intensely day and night to save every precious blood-bought soul we can. It is for us to give for the cause of Christ in every way as never before, for next year we may not be here to do it. Why? Our Lord is coming. He said, "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh" (Lk. 21:28). Christian, with our blessed hope, you can work and sing while the world falls to pieces. Sing, Christian, sing!

Their Last Fight

Right after writing the above paragraph on war, the following incident from the World Dominion came to our desk. It is so gripping and so encouraging for those of us who have been praying that somehow someone may be able to reach the boys in the armies of the dictators with the gospel of Christ before that awful carnage sweeps them into eternity, that we felt that we could do nothing better than reprint it here for all of our readers:—

THEIR LAST FIGHT

One of the strangest tales we have heard recently was told by an eminent Finnish engineer, who, as an officer in General Mannerheim's army during the revolutionary period, took part in the recapture of a town:

Among the revolutionary prisoners placed under his care were seven who were to be shot at dawn. They were kept in the basement of the town hall, where his men stood in the passage with their rifles at the ready.

The victorious soldiers taunted their prisoners and their reply was to swear and beat the walls with their bleeding fists, or to call for their wives and children whom they were to leave for ever when morning broke. To everyone's astonishment, one of the men doomed to death began to sing, rather waveringly at first, and then in a stronger voice, which filled out until it became natural and free:

Safe in the arms of Jesus,
Safe on His gentle breast,
There by His love o'ershadowed,
Sweetly my soul shall rest.

When he finished, everyone was quiet for a few minutes, until a wild-looking individual broke out with: "Where did you get that, you fool?" Koskinen answered quietly: "You ask where I got this song. It was from the Salvation Army. I heard it three weeks ago!"

Then he rose to his feet and continued: "It is cowardly to hide our beliefs. The God my mother believed in has now become my God also. I cannot tell you how it happened, but it has happened. Last night, as I lay awake, I saw my mother's face before me. It reminded me of the song I had heard in the Salvation Army. Then I prayed—like the thief on the cross—that Christ would forgive me and make me ready to stand before Him whom I shall meet soon."

Koskinen's face shone as he continued to describe his new experience, and the soldiers were listening to what this red revolutionary had to say. Presently there were two red soldiers down on their knees, praying for each other, and before four o'clock in the morning all Koskinen's companions had followed his example and had begun to pray.

The change in the atmosphere was indescribable. Some of them sat on the floor, others wept quietly, others talked of spiritual things. Someone remembered those at home and an hour of intensive letter-writing followed. The soldiers on guard began to sing with those who were guarded.

The town clock struck six! Between two rows of soldiers the condemned men marched to the place of execution. They sang Koskinen's song, and when the lines had died out, the lieutenant gave the word: "Fire!"; and we inclined our heads in silent prayer as the seven red soldiers entered their last fight.

The Needs of 21 Mission Points--

What Do They Mean to You?

W. H. SCHAFER, Treasurer, Home Missions Council, Ind.

Rev. William Schaffer

After a colored pastor had preached a sermon on the theme, "The Water of Salvation Is Free" (Isa. 55: 1), one of his members asked him, "How come, parson, if you says 'de watah ob salvation am free,' do you all de time plague us for money?" The parson gathering up all of his dignity arose to the occasion with this apt reply, "Rastus, its true, de 'watah ob salvation is free but somebody's got to pay de pipin'?" Are you going to help pay for "the piping?"

Before our Lord returned to glory He gave the responsibility of carrying on His work to His disciples.

Today we are enjoying the privileges and blessings of His gospel because 11 of them did not fail Him. Are you counting yourself with those 11 men or are you willing to sell and betray your Lord for your own selfish gratifications? The Lord has given us the responsibility of 21 home mission points and we dare not fail Him! He would certainly not place under our care these responsibilities if He knew we did not have the ability to care for them. He is testing our faith in His promise to be with us in this great work of evangelization unto the consummation of the age. As we read the news of the day and hear it broadcast and then turn to God's Word for the answer, there is no doubt but that the consummation of this age is not far hence.

We should like to present to you what we consider the three greatest needs of our home mission points. The first of these greatest needs is prayer: your prayers, my prayers; the prayers offered in public, the prayers prayed in the secret closet, prayers of faith, prayers with conviction; prayers that bring answers according to His will. Our mission pastors and laymen covet your prayers. What a power—if every day each one of us would remember each mission point to our Lord in prayer, naming some particular need as we may know of it in that church!

The second greatest need is giving of life—consecrated and dedicated lives of young men to the ministry of the Word. Our preaching is lacking something if it does not produce results in lives laid upon the altar with these words sung from the heart, "I'll go where you want me to go dear Lord, I'll say what you want me to say, I'll be what you want me to be." Our mission points need churches which can produce young men with a vision of the Lord Jesus Christ calling them to enlist in His service. Brethren churches not in existence 10 years ago, yes, less than that, are producing successful home mission pastors for new Brethren churches. If you want to watch something very interesting, keep an eye on our home mission churches in this respect.

It may seem peculiar to some people that we should put giving of money as the last of these greatest needs. Undisputable facts reveal the following: Congregations which have given to The Brethren Church most of her foreign and home missionaries and pastors are missionary minded churches and missionary minded churches are praying and paying churches. God has no stingy children. "For God so loved the world that He gave . . ." Giving to the Lord's work is a natural attribute for His born-again children. An attribute is a quality. Do you have the quality of giving? God is not depending on the children of this world to support His program but He is counting on His blood-bought children to do it. Your offerings in God's sight will not be measured in the amount you give but by what you have left after you have given.

And now, one more very important matter. Let us be constantly reminded that the time to meet these three greatest needs is NOW! Give of what you now have as the Lord lays upon your heart and trust Him to supply all your future needs according to His riches in glory.

A LAYMAN'S HINT TO PASTORS

Ministers, who in their sermon delve into subjects with which they are not thoroughly familiar were taken to task today by Roger W. Babson, widely known economist, a lay delegate to the convention of the national council of the Congregational Church.

Mr. Babson suggests what he believed to be the most important reason more laymen do not attend church and followed with other suggestions for discussion, the adoption of which might remedy the indifference.

"More laymen would go to church if they were sure of getting real help and inspiration," said Babson. "The church, however, does not satisfy the religious emotions of the laymen. He does not care to go to church to hear discussions of the League of Nations, prohibition or other subjects.

"Laymen go to church to worship and to get wisdom, courage and inspiration. If ministers would confine themselves to these things, their churches would be crowded to the doors."

—Roger Babson.

The Macedonian Call of America

ROY A. PATTERSON, President of Brethren Home Missions Council

"And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us" (Acts 16:9).

Mr. Patterson

Paul was a man of visions. His intimate and close fellowship with the Holy Spirit bore fruit in similar messages and open manifestations, which throughout his life directed his course and plan of life and gave him comfort in times of peril. Before the worth while things of life, whether physical or spiritual, first the vision, then the call.

The vision did not confront this great missionary of the Christ as an inanimate object but as one possessed of all the human emotions, desires and needs of soul and body, such as you and I meet in our daily contacts: neither was this man different in his soul's needs than the needs of the throng in which we find ourselves day by day. The cry was a representative cry of souls needing the Christ. It was a cry of distress, "Come over into Macedonia and help us."

"And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavored to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us to preach the gospel unto them" (Acts 16:10).

I think I can see Paul leaping to his feet in the stillness of that night, in the burning certainty that God had spoken and that the entreaties of that vision should be answered.

No one then or since has been able successfully to maintain this answer to have been made in a desire of self glorification or for personal gain. The souls saved and the spread of Christianity, which followed, are the eloquent expressions of divine approbation and sanction.

Shall we now dismiss this incident as being one embracing the pages of Holy Writ telling forth the experiences of a zealous man of God who long since has ceased his work? If we have the same kind of eyes with which to see as had Paul, and we have; if we have the same kind of ears with which to hear as had Paul, and we have; if we have the same kind of persuasion to serve Christ and bring souls to Him as did Paul, and we should have, then this story will grip us anew as God calls the Brethren churches of America to a great ministry.

Our hearts are filled with unbounded joy when we think of His blessings of the past year, praises and thanks fall from our lips when we consider how you, living in all parts of this great America, saw the vision and heard the cry for help. To this cry you responded with your gifts of more than $24,550.00. Did this gift pay dividends? We commend you to a careful study of The Home Missions Council literature which will soon be in your hands. Here you will get the story far better than we can tell it.

We must not dwell too long, reflecting upon the past. Other visions are appearing before us; others are calling, "Come over and help us." Throughout our land, the cry is not too many messengers of the cross, but for more consecrated, trained and devoted young people to see the visions and hear and answer the calls. The cry is not that we have too many churches but that we shall have more houses of prayer.

May we straightway seek to go forth into the new fields of America, concluding that God has called the Brethren churches to a great ministry. Pray about your Thanksgiving offering for home missions. Let the Lord direct you in your giving.

More Important Than Unity

Unity among Christian believers is precious and vital. Our Lord prayed for it: "That they all may be one" (Jn. 17:21); and our Lord's prayers are always answered. There will be final and eternal unity among all true believers; and there is a present unity among all such, for Christ is the life of all, and all are members of his body. But while fallibility and sin continue among believers, there are times when outward unity may become a snare and even actual sin. This is a Scriptural truth not always recognized by those Christian leaders of today who put unity above all else.

John Nelson Darby recognized it many years ago. In his comment on II Tim. 2 he wrote: "The unity of the assembly (church) is so precious, it has such authority over the heart of man, that there was danger, when failure had set in, lest the desire for outward unity should induce even the faithful to accept evil and walk in fellowship with it, rather than break this unity. The principle therefore of individual faithfulness, of individual responsibility to God's established, and set above all other considerations; for it has to do with the nature of God himself, and his own authority over the conscience of the individual. . . . And let those who name the name of the Lord separate themselves from all evil. . . . To maintain in practice the possibility of union between that name and evil is to blaspheme it!"

It is just this failure that has snared some evangelical denominations and foreign mission boards to affiliate themselves with other groups of professing Christians in "union" movements or organizations at home or in foreign mission fields at the expense of fidelity to God's Word—and the resulting disaster has been tragic. It is in protest against such "union" movements in denominational boards that independent mission movements have come into being. Uncompromising union with God's revealed truth is our only safety against compromising union with all forms of unbelief.—S. S. Times.

"What The Home Missions Council Is Doing"*ACROSS
THE NATIONwith our secretaryThe Clayhole Parsonage Is Going Up

On October 7th actual work began on the erection of the new Clayhole parsonage. The secretary was down there on the 4th and 5th, and got as many arrangements made as possible toward the starting of the work. At that time the basement was just about excavated.

We have been most fortunate in obtaining Brother Wesley Miller of Goshen, Ind., a contractor and builder, to take his crew of men down there and put the house up in as short time as possible. He drove down with his trailer full of tools ready to begin work on Monday morning. He kept things moving, and within two weeks the house was under roof. When it rains he and his men go over to the church building and work on the finishing of the interior of that building which is not yet completed. So all things work out fine.

The electrician was sent down from Berne and he took along a floor sander that could be operated by a 32 volt current. As the power line was not yet in, we were wondering how we could sand the oak floors that cover the house. Hand scraping would be an endless job. We believe the Lord led us to this outfit, for we never heard of one like it before. The electrician is wiring both the church and the parsonage at the same time.

The plumbing work is being done by our Brother Wesley Baker who is a member of our Dayton Church. While we are paying for the fixtures, yet he and his men are donating the time it takes to do the work of installation. We plan to have a furnace there and he will install that at the same time. It is this kind of help that is enabling us to get this house up for the very low price planned.

From Brother Barnard we have received word that the Dayton church is assembling a lot of nice furniture for this new house and we hope that by the time the place is ready for occupancy that we will have sufficient equipment to start Brother and Sister Landrum out with things fit to go with their new home. Everything should be completed by the 1st of December.

The lumber in the building has been sawn out of logs which Brother Sewell Landrum bought on the stump and had hauled to the mill. Accompanying is a picture of loading the logs at the highway. This makes it much easier to get good lumber at a lower price. Two of our brethren from the Berne, Indiana church, hauled the mill work down for us and saved us much that way. In fact we have had the finest help from every side in this work.

One of our Dayton women has offered $50.00 toward the drilling of a new well. This work is now going on and we are waiting to hear what kind of a flow we will get. We cannot buy a pump for it till we know whether it will take a deep well pump or a shallow well pump.

We are hoping to be able to place a furnace under the church building at the same time we put in the furnace in the house. For the last two Sundays the preaching service had to be dismissed because it was too cold for the folks to remain. We do not have the funds for this item, but we are praying that by the time the work is finished, we will have enough on hand to pay for it.

The Home Mission Pictures

By the time this column is read, the work of showing the home mission pictures to the brotherhood will be about over. We expect to finish with them the day before Thanksgiving, except for a couple of places which could not be reached before that because of other situations. A duplicate set of pictures was obtained and has been shown out in the California churches by Brother Paul Bauman.

The pictures have been making a profound impression on our people wherever shown, and we pray that in some way the real passion that lives in the hearts of our mission pastors and their people, and in the hearts of the directors of the Council, shall be conveyed to all. If they may be used in some way to move the hearts of our people to lay our greatest offering at His feet at this Thanksgiving time for the spreading of the gospel here in America, we shall not regret the hard work it took. If only we may do a greater work for our Lord Jesus before He comes, and see the Brethren churches rising up to their best work for Him, we shall be satisfied. And we are sure that He will be satisfied also.

A New Brethren Church at Osceola

Brother Robert Hill, a student at Grace Seminary, has been caring for a group of Brethren at this place for several months. The work has grown right along in spite of the handicaps due to not having a place appropriate in which to meet. The people have now purchased a corner lot and have their plans drawn for a new building. They have arranged for a loan to finance the work and expect to have their building up before cold weather really gets here. Souls are being saved right along and there is every reason to believe that a fine church and congregation will be realized here before the first of the year.

MRS. W. A. OGDEN, Vice President, Brethren Home Missions Council

After hearing of the work in Kentucky and the great opportunity presented by that field, we have longed to visit it and know more about conditions there. That dream of several years was realized this year when we were permitted to take a trip thru that part of the country on our way home from National Conference.

Mrs. Ogden

Upon entering the state we were immediately impressed with the beauty of it. The rolling hills were covered with trees, grass, and beautiful homes, the latter presenting an indication of the wealth of that part of the country. After several hours of driving the scene changed. We had reached the mountainous region with its thickly wooded green slopes, beautiful with vegetation, but the homes were quite different. We were made to believe that here the majority of the people were not enjoying prosperity and plenty but were able to exist on the bare necessities of life. A woman slowly making her way down the road carrying two buckets of water proved that their houses do not have the simple conveniences that most of us enjoy today. The well was not even on her own place but along the road at quite a distance.

One thing that attracted our attention was the schools, so closely located along the highway. Some of them were the rudest of buildings, others more modern, the finest one being the two story brick building at Clayhole where Brother Clyde Landrum is the principal. Over 200 children attend this school and we were made to wonder where they all came from. Along with their regular educational program these children are taught to sing the songs and choruses that we use in our Sunday Schools. They are also taught the Word of God and memorize portions of the Scripture. We were glad for the privilege of visiting such a school as this.

Where were the churches? There is one that stands out as an oasis in a spiritual desert. A white church by the side of the road looms up as you approach, and presents an inviting appearance. This is our new Brethren Church at Clayhole where Brother Sewell Landrum is the pastor. He and his wife with their children are our missionaries in that vast field where the gospel is so greatly needed and where it is appreciated by those who have been reached.

These dear ones who are so capably fitted and willing to serve in this field must be provided with a house, a shelter from the approaching winter, a home that will be an example to those about them. What a wonderful Christian spirit has been evidenced by the life of our missionaries, proving that they have learned "in what-so-ever state I am therewith to be content," never complaining regardless of circumstances.

When the Women's Missionary Council learned of this need for a parsonage we gladly accepted the challenge for this project, believing that by so doing we are having a share in preaching the gospel in Kentucky. "Expect great things from God, attempt great things for Him". In attempting this great task, we are looking to Him for the means and He will abundantly provide.

Many councils have responded to the appeal for warm clothing and in this way have helped to prevent the suffering from cold this winter. Much discarded clothing is of real benefit when cleaned and mended. Women of our churches have gathered hundreds of pounds of such material and have spent hours in willing service to prepare it for use. It is sent with the prayer that every garment will be the means of bearing a testimony to some soul.

Have you been indifferent to the need, or are you, too, helping to preach the gospel in Kentucky?

DEAD WEIGHT

"I've been a dead weight many years,
Around the church's neck
I've let the others carry me,
And always pay the check.
I've had my name upon the rolls,
For years and years gone by;
I've criticised and grumbled too;
Nothing could satisfy."

"I've been a dead weight long enough,
Upon the church's back.
Beginning now, I'm going to take
A wholly different track.
I'm going to pray and pay and work,
And carry loads instead;
And not have others carry me
Like people do the dead.

In Abraham's most glorious hour, in his severest trial, it is said of him, "Wherefore, God did prove Abraham." It was in this hour, we believe, that Abraham reached his highest experience with God. We believe that it was here that Abraham glorified God more than at any other time. To have failed at this point would have meant failure all the way down the rest of his life so far as God was concerned.

The Brethren Church stands today at a tremendous place in her history. We believe that today God is giving The Brethren Church the chance to prove herself. We have been going through our severest trials, and we are also facing our greatest opportunity to glorify God. We believe that He wants to know some things about us as a people. He wants to know—

Will We Pray?

Will we earnestly devote ourselves individually and as churches to pray for God to be glorified in our ministry as never before? Will we pray the pastors on the firing line? Will we pray the souls of men they are reaching? Will we for an offering that will enable us to reach fields?

Will We Go?

Will we consider that we are the ones whom God wants to use; that it is our lips that He wants to speak through; that it is not only the ministers, but every member of the church who has a ministry to bear to those next to him; that it is our own sons who should be given to the ministry of the gospel and not the sons of other people? sponsibility so marvelously and graciously accorded a similar test. With this great and only message for a lost world, will we follow Jonah off to Tarshish and devote ourselves to the things of this world and this life, avoiding the "high calling of God in Christ Je-commission from God. They despised it, and as a result they have become the tragedy of the world.

Will we as a people rise up to the opportunities that God is now showering upon us? Will we enter the open doors He has unhooked for us to pass through with the gospel in these dark hours that close the age? America is our mission field! In two short years God has given us 18 actual mission fields besides three fields in which we have started an organization. Beyond these, five additional fields are waiting for consideration. In the fields we have already entered, last year we had the greatest harvest of souls in our history.

Each year we have increased our fields and our offerings. Each year God has blessed us with more souls and more fields to enter. With such an experience behind us, God wants to know what we as Brethren will do about it in 1941.

World Conditions Demand More Home Missions

By FRANK COLEMAN

In a recent editorial in the Saturday Evening Post there appeared the following, which sums up the condition of today's world: "How ready are we to see what is taking place in the world? A moral debacle of frightful proportions. All law between nations breaking down. No treaty worth the paper that has helplessly received the writing except there is on both sides of it equal gun power." Lawlessness reigns supreme! And it was our Lord Himself Who, in summing up the condition of the world at His second coming, said, "And because lawlessness (Gr.) shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold" (Matt. 24: 12). The lawlessness of the world is proof that our Lord's return is near. How brief may be our future ministry of reconciliation we can only guess, but surely it cannot be long.

How important, then, that more home missions become our watchword. With the dawning of the Day-star casting ribbons of light into a darkened world, betokening the fast approaching end of this age; with men unreached; with millions of children who have never been privileged to hear the name of Jesus save in cursing; the call is for more, and yet more, and still more, activity at home and abroad.

The call is for more home missions because the breakdown of moral and civil law has reached alarming proportions in our own land. The only antidote is in our hands—the binding of men with the chains of love through the preaching of the blood of the cross, the bringing of men into bond-service to the Lord Jesus Christ through the redemption that is in Him alone. This we must do, ever widening our horizons, never retrenching, until this land shall have been evangelized or our Lord shall have come.

The call is for more home missions because it is from the home base that ambassadors will go to the farthest reaches of the earth, there to storm the battlements of this world's prince and plant the banner of the cross in sin-cursed soil, calling men out of the bondage of night into the liberty of the glory of the children of God. The need of the world in its lawlessness is not the strong arm of man, but yielded men and women who will declare in all the world the strength of the arm of the Lord. Its need is not for more law, but for representatives of the eternal God who will declare the absoluteness of the authority of His Word wherever there are rebellious souls. Its need is not for more armies to police the lawless world, but for emissaries from the cross of Calvary who will preach the redeeming love of God, that by the miracle of regeneration lawless men may become subservient to the Redeemer's law of love. And these can come in increasing numbers only from a home base that is ever expanding.

The darkness of the morning hours is fast deepening. The world's night will soon be at its blackest, when all the forces of hell are let loose upon a world from which the saints shall have been removed. These are the days for us to bestir ourselves and "awake out of sleep; for now is our salvation nearer than when we believed. The night's far spent, the day is at hand." Today is the day for more home missions, tomorrow may find us in the heavenlies, giving account before the judgment seat of Christ.

Home Missions Answer to U. S. Danger

By WILLIAM CLOUGH

When Jesus Christ was here on this earth, He went about all the cities, teaching and preaching the gospel, healing the sick, casting out the demon spirits, and doing good in every place. When He saw the multitudes of the people gathering in every place, He was moved with compassion for them. When He looked out upon the world, He saw men, great numbers of men; He saw them like fields. I remember He spoke to His disciples and said, "Say not ye, there are yet four months, and then cometh harvest" Be-hold, I say unto you, "lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto eternal life."

Yes, the Savior saw them, great numbers of them out there in the world, going to hell; and He called to His workers and said, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Then He said to those disciples, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that He will send forth laborers into His harvest," and next we hear him instructing the twelve and sending them out, and next we hear him instructing the seventy and sending them out. And, if I understand the message of the New Testament, I hear the same word being spoken again, to every blood-bought, blood-washed, born-again man, "Look on the fields, they are white unto harvest, Go and gather them in." This is the work of home missions, and home missions is the only answer to America's great need today.

The First Picture

As we gaze upon this multitude that Christ brings before our eyes today in this Bible message, we see men, men of all walks of life and in all professions of life, men who stand before men and men who stand before God, a representative group not only of the day in which Jesus lived on this earth, but of our day as well, for men have not changed. Human nature and the human ills are the same in every age. If any change, the change has been for the worse. Oh I know the old cry of the world, but the cry of the world is not the truth. Men are not getting better, the Bible says so and men prove it to be so. "They shall wax worse and worse," and "because of sin, the love of many shall wax cold." Ah, this is a cold old world in which we find ourselves today.

Going back to the time when men were so corrupt and vile in the days prior to the flood, Jesus makes the comparison and says, "As it was then so shall it be in the days of My coming." That multitude that faced Christ in this picture truly represents another group, that great multitude that we face today, who will soon stand and face Jesus Christ. As we gaze upon them we see sick ones, those who are possessed with every disease, both physically speaking and spiritually speaking, even possessed with demons. Looking upon them, you can't help but notice: they are fainting; they are scattered; they have no shepherd. Yes, they are fainting and many of them are dying, no one to care for them! No one who cares, and as fields they stand! They are falling, and home missions is the only answer. What will we do about it? The blessed fact here is that they face Christ, and as He looks over them and looks on them, He has compassion; and in every place and in every case my Savior cares.

You who profess to know Christ, have you seen this multitude of men, women and children in their need before you in this world today? God not only help you to see them today, but give you a burden to help them and to carry to them through home missions this blessed Christ Who alone can meet the need.

As Jesus Saw Them

He saw them in their sin. That's how you and I need to see them today: dying in their sin, dying for a little of love, and a little of that you say you have for Jesus. How can we love Him, and not love those for whom He died?

You will remember the poor man who had fallen along the roadside as he travelled down from Jerusalem. The thieves of the world took him for an easy mark. They robbed him, they beat him, they stripped him, taking his money and leaving him wounded and ready to die. That's the old world's crowd for you, if you please. When a man is down, all they want is what he has and when they have gotten it, they leave him. What happened? There came the priest, there came the Levite, and others, but they all passed him up. Poor man, no one cares for Him! But by and by the good Samaritan came along, and this good Samaritan helped him. You know the full story, and told in brief it's just this: That good Samaritan saved his life. Thank God, that good Samaritan is Jesus Christ—and only Jesus Christ can help and will help the fallen, and how many have fallen! Oh God, for Jesus' sake lay upon every true Christian heart today this message, "To help someone out and on to Christ."

As Jesus saw these multitudes, He saw them in all their need, but He saw them ready to give up and ready to follow Him. I know He saw them ready to follow because when He spoke to the workers He said, "The harvest is plenteous, the fields are white unto harvest." This means they were ready to be taken. They wanted someone to lead them.

Jesus placed the responsibility on His disciples. He said "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that He will send forth laborers into His harvest." If there were those who would go, many would be taken and gathered in.

Often times when the grain is ripe and golden and ready for the reaping, if it is neglected, a storm comes and there is a great loss. There is an awful storm ahead for this world. It's the storm of God's wrath and judgment. Today the fields stand white and ready. Oh that God might help us to help home missions in its task of saving them before the storm breaks!

They That Make Excuse

These always speak first and speak loudest. In this Bible lesson we hear Jesus meet that excuse by saying, "Say not ye there are four months and then

..... THINK IT OVER.....

SCARS FOR CHRIST MEAN
STARS WITH CHRIST.

(See Matt. 19:29)

cometh harvest." With Jesus there was not four months left. This work must not be delayed. The time is short now. Let not another one say (One that bears the name Christ-ian), "I am busy. I have too much work to be bothered with the winning of men to Christ, I will later on." But the Lord knows; yes, the Lord knows, He knows you, and the many excuses you have made this long while. But God answers to-day and says, "Not so, there is not four months ahead. The harvest is already white, and today is the day of salvation." Now is the accepted time, and there are those out there before your face, who if you fail to help to Christ today, will be lost. They will go down in the ocean of sin and on to their eternal death in the lake of fire. God help every one of us to lay everything aside and sacrifice and give them a chance today.

How wonderful that Christ has compassion! Many of Christ's people are too much engaged in the things of this world to have compassion. Oh friend of Christ, find time to help in making the great rescue of some soul who is plunging down in sin at this very moment.

The Laborers Are Few

Christ sent them out. He sent the 12, He sent the 70, He wants to send you and me. The call comes, "Who will go for us?" Will you answer with the prophet, "Send me?"

I believe the greatest opportunities are before the church today. Never in all the history of the church was there such a time for soul winning as today. That picture of the whitened fields, and a plenteous harvest comes before every one today. It comes in such a wonderful meaning as never before. Great numbers, great multitudes, men and women of all walks of life! Some are high up, and some are low down, but the grace of God is sufficient in every case; and I believe many of them are ready now to follow Jesus and identify themselves with Christ and His church—if the laborers will go. With such pressing problems as face a world of sinful men today, with the distress of nations and with only a dark future ahead, there is a heart longing for something better. Millions are thinking. They have tried everything the world, the man, and the devil has to offer—but no satisfaction has come. Christ is the answer, and home missions with its message of Christ is the answer, Oh God help the church and each one in the church to help before it is too late. With a world that is crashing unless God intervenes, rivers will flow with human blood in the not distant future. God grant that every member of The Brethren Church shall with home missions stand together in the work of saving men until Christ shall come back.

U.S. Needs Home Missions Rather Than More Schools

ROBERT CREES, Pastor, Waynesboro, Penna.

Throughout the past 50 years the United States has become more and more education conscious. In the "good old days" not very many young people completed the eighth grade. Today most of them finish high school. Formerly, college and university graduates were scarce. Today, they are plentiful. Yesterday, educational standards were low. Now, they have been raised by state laws, and in some sections of the country liberal minded educational standardizing and accrediting agencies are making it almost impossible for the small denominational college to exist.

Throughout the past 50 years the United States has become more crime conscious. Formerly, crime was largely confined to the large cities. Now it rides rampant through country districts in high-powered cars. The use of alcohol has increased since prohibition was repealed. Jails and penitentiaries are full and overflowing. It is a dark outlook.

Throughout the past 50 years the United States has become less and less Christian conscious. Oh, yes, we are "religious conscious"—but without Christ. There is talk of getting together, but it is organic union without spiritual unity. The true Christ has become almost forgotten. He has been driven out of the large colleges and universities. While education has been enthroned, Christ has been dethroned. We have lost our spiritual balance. Think of it—an average of 25 hours per week in the secular school and of one hour per week in the Sunday School! Twenty-five hours for the head and one hour for the heart. Twenty-five for now and one for eternity. Twenty-five hours for the body which will some day turn to dust six feet under the ground, and only one solitary hour for the soul which lives through all eternity!!

There are more pagans in the United States today than there were 50 years ago, in proportion to the population. We are going forwards scientifically, and going backwards spiritually. What America needs today is not more schools, but more churches that teach and live the Word! If we do not awaken and continue an aggressive home mission program to help establish a righteous foundation, our civilization and education will crumble and fall about us. Americans are fast losing their sense of sin and of the righteousness of God. They are defying man and defying God. They hold to reason rather than to revelation. They worship the creature more than the Creator. Some of the most highly educated people manifest the greatest spiritual ignorance.

Today men are talking of "getting together." Programs are put on in various cities by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, featuring friendly discussions on the one platform by representatives of the Jewish, Catholic, and Protestant viewpoints. In that way "men" are getting together, but leaving God out of the picture. We need less round-table discussions and more heart-rending confessions as, "Lord be merciful to me a sinner!"

Russia and Germany today have education, but without the purifying influence of the Christian faith, their education has degenerated into a barbaric campaign to destroy faith by disseminating lies through propaganda.

May God give us a great vision for home missions!! It is the need of the hour. It will save the nation by saving individuals. And what we need is not just "more churches," but more churches that stand true to the faith in these days of apostasy!!

DARWIN'S LAST HOUR

The following little account by Lady Hope of the death of Charles Darwin, the evolutionist, is startling: it is a most wonderful narrative, and contains the account of a great and terrible tragedy.

Darwin is propped up in bed, and he looks out over the lovely landscape as the sun is setting. He is reading—the Bible! Said Lady Hope: "I made some allusion to the strong opinions expressed by many persons on the history of the creation, its grandeur, and then to their treatment of the earlier chapters of the Book of Genesis.

"He seemed greatly distressed, his fingers twitched nervously, and a look of agony came over his face as he said:

"I was a young man with unformed ideas. I threw out queries, suggestions, wondering all the time over everything; and to my astonishment the ideas took like wildfire. People made a religion of them."

AROUND THE COUNCIL TABLE

Grace Brethren at Flora Lay Cornerstone

Praise the Lord for His marvelous works among the children of men! Sunday, Oct. 20, marked an important milestone in the history of the Grace Brethren Church of Flora, Ind. It was on this day that the church observed the cornerstone laying ceremony of its new building. The stone could have been laid long before, but there was a delay on the part of the engravers. The Lord granted a lovely day and many friends and Brethren gathered from far and near to witness the ceremony.

The service was set for 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Brother Ralph Rambo, one of the board members of the Home Missions Council, was present with his good wife, Sister Rambo. Prof. Herman A. Hoyt and the Rev. Hugh Hall, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Kewanna, Ind. assisted in the ceremony. The services opened with the singing of the Doxology and an invocation. The entire assembly then sang, "How Firm a Foundation." Brother Hall at that time read a Scripture lesson and led in prayer. After the choir sang "The Church's One Foundation" Brother Hoyt delivered the message of the occasion. His text was the inscription on the stone, "Unto Him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood" (Rev. 1:5b), and his subject was, "Once Lost, but now Loved and Forever Loosed." The speaker pointed out how God through Jesus Christ loved fallen humanity. This love was so intense that the only begotten of the Father became man, went to the cross, there shedding His life blood, and thus appeasing the wrath of God against the sinner. By faith in the finished work of Christ the sinner is transformed into a saint, and so he is forever loosed from the guilt and penalty of his sin. All who were gathered heard the message of the gospel in no uncertain tones.

After the message the actual ceremony of the cornerstone laying took place. Brother Rempel, the pastor of the church officiated. He briefly referred to the symbolism of the stone, typifying the solid Rock, Christ Jesus, Who is the Chief Cornerstone in the foundation upon which the universal church is built. Very fittingly he placed a Bible and a number of documents of the church, such as a history, a membership list, a copy of its constitution and other papers, into a box prepared for the preservation of these items under the stone. At this point the stone was lifted into the niche and the head mason of the construction crew masoned it into place. Brother Hoyt pronounced the benediction and the assembly was dismissed. Many remarked how impressive the entire service had been.

After the services the doors of the church were opened, and friends and visitors were admitted to view the inside of the building. The church is rapidly nearing completion and the congregation is hoping to commence meeting in it on the 3rd of November.

A blessed time in real Bible study is anticipated with the coming of Dr. Beal. His two week's Bible conference will open on the 3rd of November. At the end of the two week's meetings the church will gather on Monday night of Nov. 18 to observe the fall communion. May we report from here that God is wonderfully blessing the work. Our attendance is steadily growing, and with the increase in attendance our church is growing numerically and spiritually.

Again we request that Brethren in all places pray for our work, and not for ours only but for all missions points, that God's will shall be done, that souls may be won to Christ, and that the return of our blessed Lord may be hastened.

HENRY REMPEL, Pastor.

We have completed one of the finest years ever in our history. Recently we had a revival among our members that put us on a completely new working basis. Brother Schneider led us in a real victory revival and campaign for souls. There will be several

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

Missionary Story No. 4

THE FAMILY THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN HAPPY

By MRS. HERMAN KOONTZ

"Today," said Miss Bryce, smiling at her children, "I am going to tell you a truly-true story about a family. I can't tell you the ending because the story is still going on, but we can guess that it will be happy.

"In this family there are a father, a mother, and five children, two boys, and three girls. It should have been a happy family, for the father was pleasant, affectionate, and hard-working; the mother was loving and kind and made the home pleasant; the children were bright and good-natured. But unfortunately, this home had a terrible enemy—liquor.

"It was the father who kept falling into this temptation of drink. And when he drank he was no longer pleasant and loving; he was cross and surly. Of course the liquor used up all the pay check, and then there was no money to pay the rent and to buy food. So the family was always in debt. The mother became discouraged because she could never get ahead; she could not even clothe her family properly; she could not buy coal for winter so that her children could be warm and comfortable. Worst of all, one of the little girls needed an operation, but there was never any money left over for that. You can see that this happy home became an unhappy one because of just one sin.

"However, down the street from this family there lived a very wonderful man and his wife who belonged to one of our mission churches. They loved the Lord Jesus so faithfully that they went about leading others to Him. They became acquainted with our family and persuaded them to go to our mission church. There the father was saved, the mother re-dedicated her life, and several of the children gave their hearts to the Lord Jesus Christ.

"Now a new life began for all of the members of this little family. They moved to a better neighborhood. The little girl's health became better because she was able to have a doctor's care. One of the bigger boys went to the young people's camp.

"Of course all this did not come at once. At first the father slipped once or twice, but his new friends helped him and he learned to trust the Lord so that the power of drink was broken at last. Even when he was without work for a short time he did not become discouraged, but took what jobs he could get until the shop opened up again.

"I have said this story is not finished yet because I believe that as the children grow older they will turn their lives over to God for full time service wherever He may place them. So once again your prayers and offerings have reached out through a home mission church to bring others to Christ.

"GLORY"

Keep me from seeking glory on this earth,
While life may last
Help me to pay for years misspent from birth,
For time flies fast.

Use me as thou would'st have it best for Thee
To help some one
Climb up and o'er the mountain tops to see
Thine only Son.

Give strength to bear when trials swamp my soul
And swirl around
My fainting heart, and let thy spirit whole
In Thee be found.

Help me to sacrifice in gratitude
Because of love
Thou poured upon me oft in sorrow's mood
Through stars above.

Feed me as thou hast done on dreary waste,
When I did cry,
O, God, help me to help, and keep me chaste,
Till I shall die.

Keep me from seeking vain things on this earth
Or idols crave!
Be with me when I leave this old world's mirth
And near my grave

baptized tomorrow and received into the church membership.

During the year we were busy with a Jewish Bible Conference with A. B. Macklin, a Bible conference with Dr. A. T. Reid from Cincinnati, a prophetic conference with Dr. L. S. Bauman. We also entertained the district Bible conference. This was a new experience for us, as it was the first time we felt that we could care for the group.

Rally Day was observed last Sunday. We had 117 in attendance.

The Winchester School of the Bible opened its third term in our church with over 90 enrolled. It usually takes on new members as we continue. Wonderful results have come from the school. A lady told me last night that she never heard of the rapture before hearing our teacher, Dr. Baker, explain about it.

An excellent seven room parsonage has been completed, which is a great help to the pastor and his wife. As you can see we tried to use good judgment and build for the future. Some pastor and family will certainly be glad that it is this large.

Our financial strength is better than ever before. We were able to release the District Mission Council of $100.00 and possibly soon can start to release the national council. We have increased every item on our budget.

Today I learned of a new radio station to be constructed and established here. We shall have a part on the program and look forward to buying some of the time for our own use.

The church will help in establishing a work in Front Royal. We are about 20 miles from the city and realize the tremendous importance of going in there now.

Pray for us at Winchester as you must have prayed before. Also remember to pray for an opening at Front Royal.

Remember The Brethren Call to Prayer

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1940

Never has there been a time when Brethren as a people needed to cast themselves before the Lord in prayer as in this hour

FIRST, that we shall not "leave our first love."

The danger of any people in times of great stress and struggle is to lose sight of Jesus Christ. Like Peter, they look at the storm waves instead of the Lord. We must keep our eyes on Him.

SECOND, that we shall be kept from a spirit of bitterness over the unhappy and unfortunate occurrences of the past.

THIRD, that we shall be wholly absorbed in the future and the fact that we have much to do in a very short time.

FOURTH, that we shall prove worthy before God of the wonderful opportunities He is giving us to reach new fields for the gospel.

FIFTH, that He will raise up many young men of ability with hearts afire for Christ to enter these new fields and to take them for God.

SIXTH, that He will send in the $30,000 needed to care for our 21 mission points and the new fields just starting. The Thanksgiving Offering is our only time to provide this need.

SEVENTH, that the Directors of the Council may have the wisdom of the Spirit of God in the many perplexing and difficult problems that are constantly arising in the accomplishing of this work.

EIGHTH, that sufficient additional Jewish Conferences shall be held yet this year to enable us to provide for our Jewish Mission in Los Angeles.

ABOVE ALL THINGS PRAY THAT OUR FATHER GOD SHALL BE GLORIFIED IN US AS WE HOLD UP THE GOSPEL IN THE CLOSING HOURS OF THIS AGE.

Pearson's Sailor Work

It has been arranged to have four articles throughout the year from our Brother Claude H. Pearson, 261 West Tenth St., San Pedro, Calif. about his work of world wide witnessing aboard ships. We herewith present the first of the articles.—Ed.

Here is a literal interpretation of Mk. 16:15—"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" right here in our own denomination. The forthcoming articles will deal with: "A Day on the Ships," "Our Foreign Activities at Burma and Korea," and "How the Work is Maintained."

It is fascinating to watch a huge ship loosed from her moorings push gracefully out to sea. Decks are crowded with passengers waving and shouting farewells, flags are flying, sirens blowing, giant engines chug rhythmically, and great clouds of smoke roll out of the smoke stacks. It is a thrill you long remember.

There are many kinds of ships—passenger, cargo, oil tankers, lumber boats, mighty war vessels, and numerous fishing and smaller pleasure craft. In Los Angeles Harbor alone between six and eight thousand dock and sail every year.

A ship may be likened to a floating hotel, a block long and from five to eight stories in height. It needs every sort of employee: captain, deck officers, engineers, electricians, plumbers, stewards, cooks, boatswains and sailors. It is in control of one man, the captain or master, as he is sometimes called. His word is law, he is the Mussolini of the ship. Every boat, large or small, has to have these. On the small boats one man may have several jobs but all we have named are needed.

Starting Facts. 90% of these men seldom, if ever, go to a church or mission. Their work is such that they cannot. They are confined to small steel walled cabins, often overcrowded.

Pearson's Sailor Work is that of going on board these ships and giving the men the gospel, sometimes by holding a meeting, but mostly by personal work, home entertainment and correspondence.

Bibles, Gospels, Scripture portions and very choice magazines, pamphlets and tracts, printed in his own language (some 16 languages) are given to the sailor personally or placed in the room, on a desk, under a pillow on his bunk or in the mess room. All are given freely, nothing is sold.

The sailor is a man who reads and re-reads anything and everything he can get his hands on; so when we hand a Belgian, a Frenchman, a Japanese or an Englishman these, we know they will be read. God uses His Word and when a man is several thousand miles away from home, lonesome, homesick, wor-

FIRST THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

By GEORGE WASHINGTON, 1789

"NOW, therefore, I do recommend and assign Thursday, the 26th day of November next, to be devoted by the people of these states to the services of that great and Glorious Being, who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be. That we may then all unite in the rendering unto Him our sincere and humble thanks for His kind care and protection of the people of this country previous to their becoming a nation — for the single and manifold mercies, and for the favorable interpretation of His providence, in the course and conclusion of the late war."

ried right now, discouraged, and often bitter, it is a joy to give him the story of the Lord Jesus Christ and deal with him about his soul.

Our next article will describe a day on board ships.

EDITORIALS

Shall We Cry?

Over our local radio station a daily program is given in which a woman and two men read recipes sent in by listeners. One of the men intersperses some piano music, and a check for $1 is sent each day to the person sending in the best recipe. On days when the mail has brought few recipes one of the three will put on a crying act, pleading for more recipes—and it seems to be effective, for a few days at least.

Now we have no radio station from which to reach our women—but, ladies, this column will serve as Station W E E P — and we are crying to you to send in more news items about your district rallies, your local Council doings, any original plans, or letters received from missionaries, so that we can make these columns more interesting. The editor hears a rumor that a district rally has been held, or a statement is made incidentally in a letter that some Councils are doing fine work along certain lines. Now, if we were a novelist, we might make up a story out of this, but, being merely an editor, we must await reports more definite.

Nor do we have any dollars to offer you—we can only promise that our God will surely reward any service done for Him or any testimony offered to inspire others to serve Him better.

May we hear from you?

O Ye of Little Faith

Last night we wrote the foregoing editorial; this morning the mail brought us reports from two district rallies. You see we have no radio station, but we have a God who hears before we ask, who sees before we write, and who loves us better than we know. Praise the Lord!

Rom. 8:28 is again pertinent. This month we were given an extra week in which to send in the manuscripts for our W.M.C. number, and behold, the Lord lays it upon the hearts of two district secretaries to get their copy in real early for the December number!

Where to Procure Material For Your Scrap Books

We understand that a large sheet carrying the pictures of all missionaries may be obtained from our literature secretary, Mrs. Lilly Monroe.

It is also rumored that copies of The Brethren Handbook of Missionary Facts may be secured from Dr. Louis S. Bauman. We are not informed as to price on either of the above items. The supply of the Handbook is perhaps limited, so it will be a case of first come, first served.

Memorial Notice

We have received word of the passing of our sister, Mrs. Vern Hartlerode, assistant secretary of the Peru, Ind. Council, into the presence of her Lord. Her death occurred on Aug. 29, 1940.

We have also been notified of the promotion to glory of our sister, Mrs. Sara Butterbaugh, a member of the Dallas Center, Ia. Council. We do not know the date of this sister's death.

We know, with the Apostle Paul, that "to depart, and to be with Christ . . . is far better." Yet we know that such departure always leaves behind sorrowing hearts, and to these the hearts of our women go out in sympathy, knowing that our loving Lord will comfort and sustain them.

PRAYER REQUESTS

National Prayer Chairman: Mrs. Arthur Carey, Rittman, O.

Let Us Pray:

1. For our foreign mission offering for Bozoum Seminary, which is the objective for the next three months.
2. For The Brethren Missionary Herald, that subscriptions may be multiplied and its ministry be always to the glory of God.
3. For our foreign missionaries, especially for the situation in Africa; and for the native Christians that they may grow in grace in these trying times.

4. That the zeal of our women may increase; that new Councils may be formed; and that the work may go forward, even exceeding last year.

An Interesting Item from Flora, Ind.

Just a news item from the W.M.C. at Flora, Ind. Our W.M.C. held a special meeting on Oct. 15 at the home of Sister Axie Myer for the purpose of making "sock dolls" for the mountain children through our Mission point at Clayhole, Ky.

We made 36 dolls and are having another special meeting or two until our goal of 100 dolls are made. We made and sent 20 last year and the Landrums told us that since the field had become so much larger they could use many times more. We also packed three boxes of clothing.

Report of East Central District Rally

Greetings in the name of the Lord Jesus to all the W.M.C. officers, members and friends from the East Central District W.M.C. Rally at Canton, O. on Oct. 18.

After a covered dish dinner presided over by the Canton ladies in a very efficient manner, the ladies all gathered in the church auditorium, while Mrs. Rose Byers played several numbers on the organ.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. A. Y. Robinson, president of the Canton Council. The opening song was, "Rock of Ages."

Mrs. R. W. Lape, vice president of Canton Council had charge of the devotions and chose I Cor. 13 for her Scripture reading.

A vocal duet, "If He Abide with Me," sung by Wilma and Nellie Magers of the Danville Council, was followed by a very inspirational lesson on Psa. 23 with the visual-aid board by Miss Anne Sutek of Canton. The Lord has blessed Miss Sutek with an unusual ability in the use of the visual-aid board.

Mrs. Rose Byers then sang, "Is Your All on the Altar?"

Mrs. R. E. Gingrich, our district president, then had charge of the business session, at which time the plans and objectives for the coming year were discussed. We were sorry to receive the resignation of Mrs. John Aeby as vice president, because of their leaving for Fort Wayne, Ind. Mrs. Arthur Carey was chosen to succeed Mrs. Aeby. While waiting for the report of the tellers the group sang the chorus "Saved To Tell Others," which has been chosen as the Council chorus for the year.

Our next rally will be held at Rittman on the third Friday in January. Mrs. Aeby dismissed the meeting.

The following Councils were represented: Canton, Danville, Ellet, Middlebranch, Rittman and Sterling.

NELLIE MAGERS, Sec'y.

Eastern District Women's Missionary Council Fellowship

The women of the Eastern District met for their second annual Missionary Council fellowship at the Waynesboro Brethren Church Oct. 22-24, 1940. Fifty-one women registered at the services and a fine spirit and attendance was manifested. There were visiting women from Winchester, Va., Hagerstown, Md., and Fort Wayne, Ind.

The Council program opened each morning in the main auditorium of the church at 8:30 A. M. The sessions were presided over by the president, Mrs. R. D. Crees. Each morning the service opened with an inspirational song service and devotions, led by Mrs. Kenneth Ashman, Mrs. A. V. Kimmell, and Mrs. R. D. Crees. Special music by Miss Pauline Saitz of Philadelphia, who brought a message in song at one of the morning sessions, was enjoyed.

The missionary Council had the pleasure of having Miss Elizabeth Tyson, one of our own missionaries to Africa, as the speaker two mornings. Her messages were not only interesting, but encouraged in a new way in the hearts of the women an interest in soul-winning and personal work.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. Orville Lorenz; Vice-President,

THINK IT OVER

Any coward can praise Christ, but it takes courage to follow Him.

Mrs. Wm. Schaffer; Secretary, Mrs. Ernest Pine; Treasurer, Mrs. Carl Seitz.

An invitation was accepted to attend our Spring Rally at Vinco, where the Women's Missionary Council there will entertain the Eastern District Missionary Council Rally.

At the closing session Mrs. Leo Polman led a discussion of the objectives for the coming year and a period of open discussion followed which was helpful to all. A feeling of sincere appreciation was felt for the messages of Miss Tyson, for the help Mrs. Polman gave the Councils, and for the fine hospitality of the Waynesboro women.

MRS. ERNEST PINE, Sec'y.

We Need Your Cooperation!!

Only a small percentage of societies have responded by sending information regarding officers and members to the general secretary. It is important that we have these facts. As you know our Sisterhood is getting a new start this year, and the new officers have many difficulties to face. Each member of each society must do her part. Are you doing yours?

Along with the names and addresses of your officers, send your questions, news items, and any plan which your society may have that you think would be interesting to the rest of us. We also appreciate any suggestions or ideas that will make our department more helpful to all the girls.

We Welcome this News from Waynesboro, Pa.

At the East District Fellowship Bible Conference of The Brethren Church at Waynesboro, Pa. the Sisterhood girls were entertained at a banquet on Wednesday evening, Oct. 23. There were 53 girls and patronesses present, with 20 guests, all of whom enjoyed the program. Following the banquet the girls sang several choruses and learned the chorus which gives the theme of the new year's work. The theme is: "To Know Him and To Make Him Known." That is our goal in this district for our new year's work.

A duet was given by Miss Lucille Margin and Miss Elaine Berringer, accompanied by Miss Eunice Berringer. Following the musical selection, we took up the business of the meeting. The new business, in charge of Mrs. O. Lorney, consisted of the election of officers. They are as follows:

President, Larue Malles, of Waynesboro; Secretary-Treasurer, Marian Dilling of Martinsburg; Patroness, Mrs. K. Ashman of Mundy's Corner.

We were very fortunate in having with us, our national patroness, who brought us a very inspiring message. The meeting then adjourned.

Important Announcement:—

Ship all bandages to the First Brethren Church, 10th and Dauphin Streets, Philadelphia, Pa. Send any questions or information concerning the bandages to address of the bandage secretary given above.

We are working and hoping to have membership cards, and other useful and needed information for you soon. Please be patient and do your best until we are completely organized.

In this Christmas season may we as Sisterhood girls think more of God's generous gift of His beloved Son and our Savior than of giving and receiving as the world does; more of giving of our time, talents, and love to Him who indeed has given His all for us.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS

As quickly as possible upon receipt of your subscription or renewal, your name is entered upon our mailing list or your renewal effected. We do appreciate your interest and thank you for your remittances. Inasmuch as it is impossible to acknowledge each one individually, although it would be our pleasure to do so, will you kindly let the label on your magazine serve for this acknowledgment and be your receipt?

Being God's and Serving God

"Whose I am and whom I serve" (Acts 27:23).

This sentence from the lips of the apostle Paul is worthy of being used as a motto by every Christian. First, "Whose I am" — to be God's. Then "Whom I serve" — to serve God. First belonging to God, dedicated to His name, given over to His ownership. Then, "Whom I serve" — consecrated to His cause, kept for His use, made over heart and hand to His service. To be God's and to serve God—who could imagine a higher ideal!

Dedication — Being God's

I was once an outcast stranger on earth;
A sinner by choice, and an alien by birth.
But I've been adopted, my name's written down,
An heir to a mansion, a robe and a crown,
All glory to God, I'm the child of a King.

Being God's. Do we realize what it means? Being God's implies a full giving of ourselves to Him, a solemn setting ourselves apart to Him. The person who thus gives himself to God cannot go on serving the world, and the flesh. He is God's and God's alone. His whole life must be given over to the end of glorifying God. Too many of us are like the great cathedrals of Argentina, dedicated to God in name only. Let us picture one. It is a beautiful building architecturally. Two massive doors mark the entrance. Inside is semi-darkness. Worshipers entering before us dip their fingers in holy water beside the door, cross themselves devoutly, and slip off to kneel before a holy picture. Down the long depth of the nave stands the altar—the cross above it—soaring toward the great cathedral window. Candles, scores of them, flicker their uncertainty. Threads of incense scent the air. Along the wall are pictures and images of the Virgin Mary and many saints of the church. Before these, men, women, and children kneel in worship. A mass is said. Priests richly gowned stand before the altar; chants—in Latin—are intoned. The worshippers depart, dipping their fingers in the holy water as they go. This is a temple dedicated to God, but in all of its services and its rich trappings He is not found. He is overshadowed by countless other things.

Many years ago something like 40,000 people stood on the shore and watched the launching of a ship. It was the St. Louis. Most of the stays that held the great liner on the incline were removed, and yet she stood motionless. Then amid an almost audible hush the order was given to break away the few remaining braces, and fully released, she glided out into the waters of the Delaware, ready for service.

That should be our experience, to withdraw ourselves from the few remaining things that hinder our service for God, and turn ourselves fully to Him.

Consecration

We use this word in the active sense of devotion. There is a distinct difference between the idea of dedication and devotion. We dedicate a house to God. We devote our time to His service. In the sense, consecration follows dedication. It means the application of ourselves to God, then we devote ourselves to His cause. First, we must be God's own, then we serve Him.

We are told that a missionary physician in one of China's hospitals was the means of curing a man of a cataract. A few weeks later, 48 blind men from one of the provinces of the interior, each holding on to a rope held in the hands of the man who was cured, came to the hospital. Thus in a chain, they had walked 250 miles to the doctor, and nearly all were cured.

Does this not call to mind another picture in which we have a place? If we have come to Christ, and by faith have received Him, He has not only opened our blind eyes, but has given us the gift of eternal life. Can we, thus healed, be unconcerned as we see those all about us groping in spiritual darkness? The least we can do is to lead others to the Lord who healed us. Somewhere some soul awaits your coming with this message of healing. It may be the companion in school or office to whom you have never spoken of Christ: it may be the one who is dearest to you in the fellowship of friendship, and yet who knows not the Lord to Whom you have given allegiance; or it may be a little group in the dark and distant ends of the world who, unconsciously to themselves, await the coming of one who shall be to them God's messenger of light, life and deliverance from the captivity of sin and death. Perhaps it may be those in Argentine whose only sure hope is purgatory, and the fires of torment.

We are His. We have been given the nature of Christ. If we are "partakers of the divine nature" must we not also have a compassion for the lost like unto His?

Have you found the heavenly light?

Pass it on!

Souls are groping in the night,

Daylight gone;

Hold thy lighted lamp on high,

Be a star in someone's sky:

He may live who else would die—

Pass it on!

Hymn: "Take My Life and Let It Be"

Business: Roll call, minutes, offering. Check on Bible reading. If you have not appointed a Bible reading chairman, do so. She should keep an accurate check on the Bible reading of each member. Christmas time is a good time for benevolent work. Kentucky needs clothing, and especially children's clothing. Read and discuss goals. Determine to meet them 100%.

We urge you to remember S.M.M. continually in your prayers.

The Light of the World

A DOCTRINE OF CHRIST DEPARTMENT

By FRANK COLEMAN

BORN OF A VIRGIN

Around the doctrine of the virgin birth of Christ there has raged a storm of controversy from the very dawn of the Christian era. That storm has by no means abated in this day. For to admit the virgin birth of Christ is to admit the supernatural entrance of the transcendent God into the affairs of men, and this many are unwilling to do. Though "born of a virgin" stands in the creeds which men still repeat and to which many still subscribe, yet it is with a mental reservation or with a strange definition of terms that modern theologians and teachers of religion permit the statement to stand.

Whatever others may mean, by the virgin birth of Christ we mean that God the Father, in accord with the Son as His verbal and eternal expression, and through the coordinate operation of the Holy Spirit, took hold of a cell or seed of Mary, creating a new and distinct human nature which the Son of God took into union with Himself, becoming a unique being with two natures, human and divine, in one body. In this unparalleled way God the Son was made flesh that God might purchase with His own blood those who had sold themselves under sin.

The Virgin Birth and the Person of Christ

That God the Son should come into the world by being born of a virgin without the agency of a human father was indispensable to the perfection of His person. Let it not be forgotten that in Him were united the essential natures of both God and man. He was the God of eternity becoming also man. But God could not become man by taking a body generated by human parents. Such a union of God's person with a human person would result in a monstrosity, a double personality. More than that, it would result in the possession by Christ of a fallen, sinful human nature.

The father and the mother of a child are distinct persons, and each gives something of his own peculiar nature to the child. The result is a new personality with one consciousness and one will. Only the Fatherhood of God and the motherhood of a virgin could produce a single personality in the man Christ Jesus, with a single consciousness and a single will. By the virgin birth alone could God become man, retaining the divine nature that was His through all eternity, while taking into personal subsistence with Himself a true human nature untainted by sin.

It is a strange faith that would lay hold upon the superstructure of Christianity while denying the miraculous foundation upon which it rests. Let those who think that the doctrine of the virgin birth is easily to be dispensed with consider: If His was a human father, then Jesus Christ was born of a woman stained with unchastity and His father was unknown. His only birthright was the bar sinister. If He was not born of a virgin, but was begotten of a human father, He was a natural person, and not God. If He was not God, then He had no right to forgive sin, nor had He any right to make Himself the object of faith. If His was a natural father, then He was not the second person of the Trinity, and without God the Son there is no trinity, no true God. If His was a natural father, he inherited a sinful nature, there was sin in Him. He was, then, under the penalty of sin and could be neither a substitute nor a sacrifice for sin—if begotten by a human father.

The Virgin Birth and the Work of Christ

The atonement of Christ is rooted and grounded in the virgin birth of Christ. In the manward aspect of His atoning work there were two essential requirements for His entrance into the world to redeem men. He must perfectly identify Himself with the race and become as truly human as any child of Adam. This He must do while at the same time avoiding the taint of inherited sin. He must become man; and He must become perfect man. Only from such a beginning could he consummate His work with the exultant cry, "It is finished," as He died for sins not His own. Only by assuming into real union with Himself the perfect humanity generated in the womb of Mary, through the miraculous operation of the Spirit of God, could He satisfy both requirements, becoming man, yet without sin.

It is because Jesus Christ is God's Son that His blood possesses infinite worth in cleansing from all sin. It is because Jesus Christ came into the world as Mary's son that He is related to man by nature and so can be man's true Kinsman-redeemer. Without such a relationship of nature the moral government of God could not be vindicated, nor could His perfect law be upheld. The law was suited to man, and it had a claim upon man. Man alone could fulfill its requirements. Men alone could bear its penalty. Because He was man Jesus Christ could pay the penalty of the law; because, through His virgin birth, He was perfect man He could pay the penalty for others; and because, by the virgin birth, it was God Who became man, His sufferings and death possessed such infinite value that every demand of the law was satisfied in behalf of those whom God purposed to redeem.

The Virgin Birth, The Fatherhood of God, and the Motherhood of Mary

Human fatherhood was not necessary to clothe the eternal Son with humanity. Being eternally pre-existent, no act of fatherhood was required when the Word became flesh. The Word went forth and the Spirit wrought in embodiment, and the eternal Son was clothed with flesh. He became the Son of Man by the virgin Mary, but He was the Son of God before time began. "Unto the Son He (God) saith, Thy throne O God, is forever and ever" (Heb. 1:8 with Ps. 45:6). The eternal Son needed no other fatherhood than that which He had known in the eternity before the world was, the Fatherhood of God

It is the peculiar function of the mother to embody the implanted seed. He who was "Eternal Life," Himself the Seed, received through Mary His human body and His human nature. These alone were His heritage from her.

Even His blood was His own! It is a biological fact that every embryo manufactures for itself the blood that forms its blood stream. It was indeed God's own blood (Acts 20:28) that coursed through His veins and that was spilled as the blood of atonement, the all-sufficient answer to every claim of outraged Holiness.

The Virgin Birth and the Faith that Saves

To deny the virgin birth is to deny Old Testament prophecy, the testimony of the angel Gabriel, the inspired records of Matthew and Luke, as well as the whole list of Scriptures in which the miraculous conception is implied. But more than that, to deny the virgin birth is to deny the eternal Sonship and Deity of the Lord Jesus Christ and the infinite value of His blood. We take our stand with the Holy Scriptures and affirm our belief in His supernatural birth. This we believe, yet it is not the article of our salvation. Not faith in the virgin birth, but appropriating faith in Christ as Savior, Sin-bearer, and Lord, is the condition of eternal life. But the only Christ we know is the Christ of the Bible, and the Christ of the Bible was born of a virgin.

IN THE SHADOW

Mrs. Jene Allen was born in the State of Illinois, but during her early infancy she moved with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. McMahon to Flora, Ind. where she lived the rest of her life. In her early life she confessed Christ and was united with the Christian Church. Later on she joined The Brethren Church of which she remained a member until her last day. Since last spring Sister Allen was one of the very faithful members of the Grace Brethren Church of Flora. Sister Allen's health failed during the month of September. During the 9 weeks of her severe illness it was her sincere desire to be loosed from this body and to be present with the Lord. On Nov. 29, at 7:30 p.m. her desire was granted when the Lord took her home. She died at the age of 83 years and 7 months. Her husband, Mr. George Allen preceded her in death by about 6 years. Sister Allen is survived by 2 daughters, 4 sons, 25 grandchildren and several great grandchildren. We miss Sister Allen in our services, but our loss is heaven's gain.

HENRY REMPEL

Dr. J. C. Beal completed a two week's Bible conference in the First Brethren Church, Cleveland, O. on Nov. 2. The next day he began another two weeks' series of meetings in the Grace Brethren Church at Flora, Ind.

The Senior C. E. Society of the San Diego Church is putting a good idea to practice that might well be copied by others. Every month they print a C. E. Bulletin called "Chart and Compass." In it are printed news, messages from Christian Endeavorers away at school, and plans for the future, etc.

Two Weeks Revival Meeting was begun Oct. 21 at The Brethren Church of Limestone, Tenn. with Bro. Herman W. Koontz, pastor of the Ghent Brethren Church, Roanoke, Va. Rev. J. E. Patterson, pastor of The Brethren Church of Hollins, Va. and Rev. Edward Bowman, pastor of The Brethren Church of Buena Vista, Va. will fill the pulpit in the absence of the pastor.

Events in the Covington, Va. Church recently include: celebration of Rally Day Oct. 13, with 251 present; the substantial start of a radio fund to be used to tell the "old story" over the air soon; the installing of a neon sign, "JESUS SAVES," in three foot letters over the church, and the reading of an annual financial report, telling of the best financial year in the history of the church. $6929.11 was given to the church last year, of which over 25% was used for missions and benevolences.

"The Shadow of a Great Rock"

By HOMER A. KENT

Professor at Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind.

Prof. Kent

"And a man shall be as a hiding place from the wind, and a covert from the tempest; as rivers of water in a dry place, as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land" (Isa. 32:2).

To whom else could the lovely figures of this text refer but to our Lord Jesus Christ? He is the God-man prophesied by the prophet to come into the world to be all to men that they need. There is a very definite sense in which this prophecy of Isaiah has to do with a time yet future when Christ shall come again. But surely there is much in it which has been applicable to the saints of God all down through the years and is preciously applicable today.

I. Christ Is a Hiding Place from the Wind.

When the stormy blasts sweep over the soul the Lord Jesus is our refuge. The wind in Scripture has different meanings. Sometimes it signifies judgment. As in Eph. 4:14 it is illustrative of false doctrine, the wind of Satan. There are Satanic winds blowing today which seek to blow the soul into destruction, but thank God, there is a hiding place from the wind. "A man shall be a hiding place from the wind." That Man is Christ Jesus. In Him there is a complete refuge from every stormy blast of judgment or Satanic doctrine that may come.

II. Christ Is Also a Covert from the Tempest.

Many are the tempests through which even the children of God must pass. The Psalmist David at one time passed through a terrific tempest. It is seen in the 142d Psalm. He was in a cave hiding from Saul who was seeking his very life. Out of desperation he cried, "I looked on my right hand, and beheld, but there was no man that would know me: refuge failed me." But then he flung himself upon God and said, "Thou art my refuge and my portion."

Let us do like David in the midst of the tempests of life. Sometimes it takes a tempest or two to teach us what a wonderful hiding place we have in Christ. He can speak peace to any tempest that may be endangering the little ship of your life if you will let Him.

III. Again, Christ Is as Rivers of Water in a Dry Place.

No doubt there will be a remarkable literal fulfillment of this part of our text when He comes again.

But it also has a blessed spiritual fulfillment in barren hearts today. We remember how our Lord gave refreshing waters to the weary woman by Sychar's well. He has done the same for myriads of thirsty hearts since that day. Christ said, "If any man thirst, let him come unto Me and drink" (Jn. 7:37). The unregenerate heart is like the Sahara Desert. Nothing grows there. It is dry and forbidding—a place of death. The regenerate heart is like the Nile Valley which is watered by a great river which makes it a fertile garden hundreds of miles in length. The Lord Jesus Christ is the Water of Life which satisfies and makes fruitful.

IV. Finally, the Text Before Us Presents Christ as the Shadow of a Great Rock in a Weary Land.

The eye of the prophet pierces the centuries and he sees a weary world: a world weary of judgment, of war, of human government; a world desperately in need of rest and refuge. Then he sees the shadow of a great Rock which appears to bring satisfaction for the need. That Rock is Christ. Many times over Christ is pictured as a Rock in the Scriptures. Isaiah 26:4 speaks of Him as the Rock of Ages. He is the Rock upon which the church is being built. Daniel sees Him as the Stone cut out of the mountain without hands which smashes Gentile dominion and becomes as a great mountain filling the whole earth.

That Rock one day was smitten for a sinful world. It endured the wind and storm of God's righteous judgment that we might not have to endure it. It was cleft in order that in its shelter we might have refuge. Are we singing with Augustus Toplady?

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in thee;
Let the water and the blood,
From thy wounded side which flowed,
Be of sin the double cure,
Save from wrath and make me pure."

If the reader of these words is not a Christian, may the desire of your heart be, as expressed by the Psalmist in the 61st Psalm, "Lead me to the Rock that is higher than I."

A True Missionary Story from Kentucky JOY'S WISH

By MRS. SEWELL LANDRUM

"Joy, Joy," Mother called. "Joy, it is time to get up." Joy got out of bed in a hurry for was not this the day she had been waiting for? Mother had promised that she and Joy would visit Aunt Martha, and Aunt Martha lived near a Sunday School. Joy would get to go to Sunday School as she had done a few times before she had moved so far away. Joy quickly dressed and helped with the breakfast and dishes without any coaxing.

Soon it was time to get "Matt" the mule. Joy put on the bridle, saddle, and saddle bags. The saddle bags held her very best dress and some seed beans for Aunt Martha. Joy led Matt to an old stump so Mother could get on. Then she crawled up behind the saddle, swinging her legs so that both were on one side. Joy broke off a switch from a low limb and off they started, ending goodbye to father and the rest of the family.

Joy rode along balancing herself expertly with her feet. She enjoyed the coolness of the morning. Near noon they came to a hill, and Joy had to hold on tight to keep from sliding off. Both got off the mule at the top as it was too steep to ride down.

Joy was thinking of Bible verses as she followed along behind. She decided she would say Isa. 53:6 if Scripture verses were called for the next morning. After choosing her Bible verse she thought about songs that she might help sing. She couldn't remember all the words of one song except, "The Bible stands though the hills may tumble!" It seemed to her the Bible was very secure, because she knew of nothing that could move that rough rocky hill.

After reaching the bottom of the hill they stopped at a house to get a drink and were invited to stay for dinner. Matt was given some corn. Everything was good but Joy wasn't "much hungry"—she wanted to get started on. The afternoon was long, and Matt's feet seemed to drag in spite of the switch. As the sun went down behind a hill, they reached Aunt Martha's house.

Joy was up real early Sunday morning with her best dress on. After waiting many hours, so it seemed to Joy, Aunt Martha said she could walk to the highway to wait for the Sunday School bus along with the neighbor's children. Amid lots of laughter and fun someone shouted above the rest, "I hear it, I hear it," and sure enough the bus came around the curve. Joy's heart almost burst with happiness. The bus rolled to a stop with many a squeak and rattle, but Joy did not hear a one or notice the scars and dents on its yellow sides. Joy held a smaller child on her lap as there wasn't enough room for all to have a seat to themselves.

Joy's eyes grew wider and wider as the bus came to a stop in front of the new church. Aunt Martha had told her about the new building but she did not expect one as beautiful as this. It was just as nice inside as out and the new seats fairly shone. What a wonderful place to learn about Jesus! Joy sang with the rest of the children, and was the first one on her feet when the pastor called for Bible verses.

In class Joy listened carefully to all the teacher said. The teacher explained how God sent His only Son, Jesus, to die on the Cross, so that everyone through His death might have eternal life, by accepting Him as Savior. The closing bell rang too soon, for Joy wanted to hear more, and it might be a long time before she would be back again. As the rest of the children marched out, Joy walked up to her teacher and said, "I wish you lived where I do, so I could have a Sunday School to go to, too."

OUR BIBLE CHARACTER ALPHABET

Answer to O: Og.

P was a Christian man who owned a run-away slave. Another man whose name began with P won the slave to Christ and sent him back to his master. Find the name of these two men in the book of Philomen.

Thou scoffers ask, "Where is your gain?"

And mocking say, "Your work is vain."

These scoffers die, and are forgot;

Work done for God, it dieth not!

5. Reread it prayerfully until you have drawn from it all you can without outside help.
6. Hunt up the Bible setting for this particular lesson:
  - a. Chronologically, according to God's whole plan.
  - b. Special historical setting.
  - c. Geographically. Be able to locate every place in the lesson.
7. Read all the helps at your disposal.
8. Read the lesson again.
9. Find the message in the lesson:
  - a. To the world.
  - b. To pupils of the age you teach.
  - c. To each pupil in your class. Pray for them by name to determine the message for each.
10. Decide on the method of presentation, and prepare any special materials.
11. Retire early the night before.
12. Arise early enough the next morning for an extra long season of prayer. Pray for each pupil by name.

IT WOULD BE A FINE THING

If teachers committed the text of each lesson to memory before teaching it. This would equip your mind as well as get you ready for your lesson. Never stop your Bible Study. There is no reason why you cannot be the finest kind of a Bible teacher from a technical standpoint. From a spiritual standpoint, if you do not have the message impressed on your heart, you can never give it to your class. The preeminent thing is the heartthrob of God for the heartache of the people.

NO OBJECTION TO CHRIST

A minister once announced a meeting for men in which he would give an opportunity to voice objections to Christianity. There were 27 objections voiced, among which were "Church members are no better than others—their lives are inconsistent;" "The ministers are no good;" "There are hypocrites in the church;" "Even Christians don't believe the Bible any more;" etc. The minister, after admitting that it was all too true, said, "Boys, you have objected to us pastors, to the church, to church members, to the Bible, and to other things, but you have not said one word against my Master!" Then in a few simple words he preached Christ to them as the faultless One, and invited them to come to Him in faith believing. 49 responded.

This proves that if we can get people to take their eyes off faltering men and turn them on the "One altogether lovely" there are bound to be results. Teachers might well consider the relation between Paul's successful ministry and his determination "not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified (I Cor. 2:2).

DID YOU EVER STOP TO CONSIDER—

How great the contrast between the average Bible School teacher's training and the years of study required before one is considered fit to engage in professional work?

What a short span of years one can benefit by professional services in contrast with the eternal values of Bible School teaching?

The importance, therefore, of every Bible School teacher making a constant and sincere effort to become more effective?

The disgrace of not knowing our Bibles as well as we did our textbooks in school?

RUBBER TIPS FOR CHILDREN'S CHAIRS

There is no need to be annoyed by the scraping of chairs on the floor as the children rise or seat themselves or rearrange their chairs for class. Rubber tips hammered out of an old tire casing by using a hammer and the handle bar of an old bicycle will just fit the legs of the chair, and can be fastened in place with a shingle nail.

INCREASING THE HOME DEPARTMENT MEMBERSHIP

A Home Department superintendent in a rural district nearly doubled the department membership by using her telephone. She merely took down her telephone book, and with the aid of several of her visitors, made a list of all the residents of the community who were likely prospects. She divided this list among her workers, and then they proceeded to get in touch with these families by telephone. The calls were made in the early even so as to find the adult members of the family at home, and were always followed up by personal calls if any awakening of interest or encouragement was given. This plan proved not only a splendid advertising scheme for the Home Department, but for the church and church school as well.

THE CRADLE ROLL DEPARTMENT CAN ENLARGE THE BIBLE SCHOOL

The alert Cradle Roll superintendent can possibly do more toward finding prospects for the Bible School than any other person. By watching the birth notices in the newspaper, she can contact the mother before she leaves the hospital to learn whether the child may be placed on the cradle roll. If the parents have no church preference, permission will usually be given to place the child on your own cradle roll. An attractive card with a dainty Christian message may be left at the time of the call, followed by a monthly message from the superintendent in the form of a tract, a touching poem, or something else that will show personal interest. Of course, a birthday card will be sent on the child's birthday. Parents cannot long continue to be indifferent toward a church which gives them such attention.

WHICH WAY ARE YOU LEADING?

'Twas a sheep, not a lamb, that strayed away,
In the parable Jesus told;
A grown-up sheep, that had gone astray
From ninety and nine in the fold.

Out on the hillside, out in the cold,
'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd sought;
And back to the flock, safe into the fold
'Twas a sheep the Good Shepherd brought.

And why for the sheep should we earnestly long,
And as earnestly hope and pray?
Because there is danger. If they go wrong.
They will lead the lambs astray.

For the lambs will follow the sheep, you know,
Wherever the sheep may stray,
When the sheep go wrong, it will not be long Till the lambs are as wrong as they.

And so for the sheep we earnestly plead,
For the sake of the lambs today;
If the lambs are lost, what terrible cost
Some sheep will have to pay.—Selected.

FROM THE FIELD

WASHINGTON, D. C.

A conjunction of events made Oct. 13 a notable day in the history of the Washington church. In preparation for the coming of our new pastor, Mr. Kent was called to introduce Bro. Schneider and to deliver the charge. Rally Day was set for that day, postponed from the first Sunday which is the usual time. The entire Sunday School was assembled in the main auditorium for the opening exercises and Bro. Schneider was introduced to the school. The number present was 433, the second largest attendance in the history of the school. Just a few more were present on Dedication Day in 1935.

At the 11 o'clock service Rev. Kent conducted the installation service using Paul's letter to Timothy as the Scripture lesson. Bro. Schneider's topic was "The Work of the Church in the Present World Crisis." At the close of the service five came forward for membership, three by letter and two by confession of faith.

In the evening Rev. Kent led in the regular fall communion service. This service was also well attended. Preparations are now being made for a series of evangelistic meetings to begin Nov. 4, with Rev. A. L. Lynn as our leader. We ask that you pray that he may be used in bringing many to a saving faith in our Lord.

AUSTIN C. MUNCH

CAMDEN, OHIO

No, we have never written any news for your magazine, but take this opportunity to greet you and tell you something about our effort at Camden, O.

Almost seven years ago we came here on a faith plan. The mission board of Ohio had dropped out and said it was no use; but I want to relate a few things that have been done. We have added five Sunday School rooms to the church, redecorated the inside, painted the outside, and put in new front doors. Three weeks ago some friend presented me an amplifier—a good one too.

During that time some 60 people have been added to the church. You say, "Not many," but it is, considering our field and that the church was shut up when we came here. There was not even a Sunday School and many of the best people had gone into other churches. We now have a good attendance with a Sunday School around 100 most of the time, a weekly Bible study class of 30 to 40 each week studying prophecy, a Christian Endeavor of 30 to 50, half of them young folks, and a women's organization.

We just closed a three weeks' revival. The attendance was good. As a result of this meeting there were six adults baptized, and 10 or 12 reconsecrations. The membership was also revived. We closed last night with one of the most spiritual communions for years.

We believe it is harder to win souls for Christ now than it has been for many years. We are not modernists. We believe what Paul said—that the world would get worse and worse—and it must not be long until the Lord will come for His bride; and amidst a war-torn world we say, "Praise His name who bought us with His precious blood."

S. LOWMAN, Pastor, Brethren Faith Tabernacle.

ALLENTOWN, PENNA.

Inasmuch as the writer, with others, has been taken aside and soundly rebuked and severely admonished concerning his laxity in reporting the activities of the church and the blessings of the Lord upon the labor of hearts and hands, we do hereby confess our failures and assume the role of the church scribe. Seven busy months are now history since we assumed the responsibility of the undershepherd of His flock in Allentown, Pa. Permit me to say to the everlasting credit of my predecessor and this church that everything possible was accomplished to make our coming as congenial as one could desire.

The pastor was not a stranger to the Pennsylvania District, having given 16 years in serving the Lord here. Several members of this congregation have been warm friends of the pastor and family and so we were immediately among friends. Soon other loyal friends were made and we are thoroughly enjoying the blessed fellowship of His saints as we labor together. The writer was introduced to the famous hospitality of the church by being tendered a food shower the first week, which literally caused the table to groan beneath its burden.

Briefly, permit us to give a few highlights of our short ministry thus far. The first Sunday night, at the close of the day's services, eight consecrated young men approached the pastor and pledged 100% loyalty to him. These men constitute the Gospel Team. They have made good their pledge to date. Not long since six high school boys organized themselves into the "Daniel League" and make complete Scriptural separation from the world imperative.

Soon after our arrival the Bible School Sup't. and the pastor worked out a unified church program for Sunday morning worship, which is proving very beneficial by eliminating duplication efforts without losing any teaching opportunity. Consequently both church and Bible School attendance have increased.

A very successful D.V.B.S. with a total enrollment of 160 was conducted with our consecrated Bible School Sup't., Carroll Parks, as director. The W.M.C. with about 30 members is proving a blessing to our women and the recently organized S.M.M. is answering a much felt need with our girls.

The services of the church are well attended and the spirit and fellowship commendable and praise-worthy. The congregation is still praising God for the blessings received from the fall communion. A regular feature of our church program includes the Junior church services conducted for and by the young people every third Sunday morning of each month. The pastor is pleased to give the illustrated object lesson. The second annual "School of the Open Bible" is in progress in our church with a total enrollment of 35 members. Those completing the course are granted credits in the Bible Institute work. We have six consecrated teachers teaching six different courses. The school is conducted from 7:00 to 9:15 each Monday and Tuesday night.

Since April 1st there have been 20 additions to the church with three more awaiting baptism.

Brethren, may we continue to pray for each other that His will may be our will and that our hearts may be in tune with His grace. We are looking for our Lord day by day and consequently are busy aiding in perfecting and completing His body the church (Col. 1:18).

Yours because of Calvary,

JOSEPH L. GINGRICH, Pastor.

NEWS BRIEFS

From Our Workers

From Bro. W. H. Clough we have this word: "The Lord continues to bless the church and the work here in Uniontown, Pa. Just a few weeks ago, an unheard of thing happened. In our regular quarterly church business meeting, about half way thru the meeting, someone passed a note to the pastor-moderator saying, 'Please be sure and give an invitation at the close. There are folks here who want to accept Christ.' I gave the invitation at the close of the business and one man came to the Lord. His Christian wife came with him. They thought it was prayer meeting night, but the Lord took care of them."

Has God Lost His Power?

By HAROLD S. PARKS, Pastor, Garwin, Ia.

Rev. Harold S. Parks

This question has been pondered many times in these last days. Hitler, in one of his speeches states that because the world is in such a tremendous upheaval, and wars and nations are crumbling, that God has lost His power over the earth and that Jesus Christ the Son also has lost His power.

Many today wonder about the same thing. They are asking why is God silent in all this terrible suffering and killing and destruction. They reason with themselves, "Moses was given power to release the children of Israel, Peter was released from prison, the disciples were able to heal the sick and bring back the dead; yet all this murder and God is silent. The heavens seem to be of brass." No, in due time we will witness the answer to this question. We can know why God does not intervene and stop this suffering and bring judgment upon those who are causing it. Read Rev. 20:12-15. Here you will find the answer.

As the world looks upon the church members, I am sometimes inclined to believe that they think God has lost His power in controlling the church. Of course they do not understand that church members may not be Christians. They watch every one who professes Christianity and religion, for they know not the difference, and say, "If this one is a Christian I don't want to be one." Remember Christ receives the brunt of the so-called Christian living today. Oh that Christians may see the importance of living for Jesus today!

All winter long we have had the blessed privilege of ministering to five schools, one every morning, for about half hour. God wonderfully opened the way. At the close of the term the invitation was given. Out of the 100 pupils, 40 gave their hearts to the Lord. Is God still the same God as of old? Praise His holy name, the same yesterday, today and forever!

We began a Bible School. Sixty attended. At the close of this school, the invitation was given. All came forward and 20 of them gave their hearts to the Lord for the first time. Has God lost His power?

While baptizing in the lake a group of people gathered to watch. After the service I approached a young man standing there. After our conversation and pointing him to a living Savior he accepted Christ.

I had the opportunity to visit Dallas Center but not in a pleasure car. I was to help move a family from there to Garwin. On finding out just where I was to ride, I found myself in the back of a stock truck sitting on a blanket on the floor with a young man who was to help. I will never forget that ride nor will he, for as I prayed to God for an opening that I might speak to this young man about his soul, God answered this prayer. I pointed Him to a living Christ and told him the old old story; and when we arrived in Dallas Center this young man's name was written in the Lamb's book of life. (Oh the joy of leading a soul to Christ! Dr. Torrey claimed he never experienced any change in his life till he won a soul to Christ and then he says he was unable to tell you of the joy. How many are missing this joy today!) This young man came forward one Sunday morning, and praise God, his wife also came and both were baptized the next Sunday. God has lost His power never!

I Cor. 9:19-27. While in the Y.M.C.A. I came in contact with two young men, one black, the other white. God marvelously opened the way for personal work and these two men were led to Christ. Then we took them into the Y pool and baptized them. Does this not bring to us the fact that God has only lost His power to those who are not willing to seek His power?

The trumpet of war has sounded. Thousands are preparing for battle. If the trumpet give an uncertain sound, who will prepare for battle? Can you Christians hear the sound? Rally to the cause, the cause of Christ.

When Christ walked the earth He went out and met the individual, then they entered into the temple. Christians have the idea of church backwards today: come in the morning, go home at noon, take a joy ride or visit, and then come back for the evening. This is backwards. The church is an institution to educate the saved to go out and bring others in to be converted, and this process is to keep going.

After Andrew found Christ he went and found his own brother. Have you ever spoken to your mother, father, brother or sister? Have you ever prayed for them, or are you like the man who saw a child dart out in front of a big bus? After the child was crushed, the man said over and over again, "why did I not save him, or try to push him out of the way, and die myself?" Oh, arise out of your sleep! Awake! Everyone at every hand is either on his way to hell or heaven. How can men sleep while their fellowmen are going to the pit without Christ? How? Many are praying for the lost souls but what are they actually doing about it?

Remember God is depending upon your voice, your feet, your hands, to do the work needed to be done. How many have come short of this!

Has God lost His power? Only to the one who blinds himself, the one who is out of fellowship, and to the ones who are not willing to seek it. May we not only talk about evangelism, but be doers also.

Whereas it has pleased God to call us together in this, another assembly of Brethren Churches, and

Whereas our heavenly Father has been most gracious to us in rewarding our labors with a harvest of souls and abundant spiritual blessings, and

Whereas we are entering upon another year with the assurance that the Lord is ready to bestow like blessings to us.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED:

That we express to Almighty God our Father the heartfelt thanksgiving and praise due His blessed name for the wonderful salvation wrought for us through Jesus Christ our Lord.

That we commend the Program Committee of the Brethren Bible Conference for the splendid program which we have been privileged to enjoy.

That we express our deep appreciation to the various speakers of the Brethren Bible Conference for the inspiring, informing and challenging messages. Especially do we commend Dr. Harry Rimmer for his outstanding part in the program.

That we thank the Winona Assembly for the courtesies extended this conference in the use of the grounds, equipment and conveniences.

That we continue to support wholeheartedly The Foreign Missionary Society with intercessory prayer and Spirit-directed giving.

That we commend The Brethren Home Mission Council for the effective way in which it has carried on the work of building new Brethren churches in the homeland.

That we commend Grace Theological Seminary for their efficient work in training our young men for the ministry.

That we commend The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. and all who have labored with it this past year, and that we thank our God for raising it up to meet the needs of the Lord's work so completely.

That we renew our historic stand with relation to war; namely, that "The Brethren Church from her origin has ture from this principle represents an been utterly opposed to the use of violence or any physical force as a means to an end, on the part of the children of God. We regard the governments of this world system as being yet unregenerate, and their methods of violence contrary to the methods God has authorized His children in the present age to use. We reaffirm that while war as a possible method for the attainment of justice, or the securing and maintenance of human liberty may at times be deemed necessary among the unregenerate of this world system, yet, according to the teaching of our common Lord and Master, we, as His disciples, do not belong to this world's system and its methods are not of our own. We are in the world and not of it, as our Master taught (Jn. 17:14), and must maintain our pilgrim character (Heb. 11:8-16). We recognize and appreciate the protection of the flag of the United States. To the nation that God has ordained (Rom. 13:1-7) to afford us protection we gladly offer our service, time, money, and life itself if necessary, to bind up its wounds, or to heal its sorrows, by any means or methods our Lord Jesus Christ has approved for the use of those who follow Him."—Minutes of 1936.

That we pledge ourselves to pray for those in authority, according Rom. 13:1-7.

That we again go on record as standing "for the faith once delivered unto the saints," and that we again affirm our belief in the Old and New Testament Scriptures as the final, complete and authoritative revelation of God in all matters pertaining to faith and practice."

J. C. Beal,
Albert Flory,
Floyd Shiery.

The chairman then suggested that Roy Patterson submit to the assembly any pertinent information concerning the summons and possible injunction. Bro. Patterson suggested that a contact man be chosen and adequate machinery be set up to care for any legal emergency.

A motion then prevailed that the assembled ministers recommend to General Conference that steps be taken immediately to secure competent local counsel to represent us in this anticipated legal situation.

A motion prevailed that last year's committee on ministerial fellowship composed of Brethren Lorenz, Carter and Kent, bring in a recommendation for the organization and objectives of this group not later than the next stated meeting.

The meeting was adjourned upon motion and a closing prayer by Henry Remple.

In Christ,

L. L. Grubb, Sec.

1st, a motion prevailed that the name of this organization be, "The National Fellowship of Brethren Ministers."

2nd, a motion carried that the chairman appoint a committee for the task of drafting a constitution and by-laws, said committee to report as soon as possible. Those appointed were R. D. Barnard, Frank Coleman, Jr., and W. A. Ogden.

3rd, a motion prevailed that the chairman appoint a committee to report on the group insurance plan as soon as possible. Brethren Beal, Lynn and Pine were appointed to constitute that committee.

The meeting adjourned upon motion. The chairman closed with a brief prayer.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Dr. Rimmer changed his subject for the afternoon session because of the popular demand for the message, "The Lawsuit Against the Bible".

Following the Bible Lecture hour, Leo Polman presented the Biola Trumpeters in a sacred concert which was greatly appreciated by the conference.

SUNDAY EVENING

Leo Polman led the singing of the evening. A number of the young people of the conference who had their musical instruments formed a volunteer orchestra for the service. John Aeby led the praise service.

Due to the fact that the Bible lecture of Geo. Kinzie had been omitted Saturday morning because of business, Paul Bauman yielded his place on the program to Bro. Kinzie, who brought the closing address of the conference on the theme, "The Decisive Test of One's Salvation."

Respectfully submitted,

John Aeby, Sec'y of the Bible Conference.

Any other regularly ordained elder in a Brethren church, sending a simple statement to the secretary of the Fellowship, signed by an official of the local church, witnessing to his good standing in the local congregation, is eligible for membership in the National Fellowship of Brethren Ministers upon the payment of a 25c membership fee. The following night letter was sent immediately:

National Ministerial Association of the Brethren Church, Willis Ronk, Sec.

The recently organized National Fellowship of Brethren Ministers meeting at Winona Lake, Ind., sends this message of greeting and request to the brethren assembled in Ashland, O.

Due to the fact that the approximately 10 ministers assembled here have given many hundreds of dollars to the benefit fund of the Ministerial Association, and in order to maintain good feeling in the future, we are requesting that a fair proportion of the Association's funds be released to our organization. We believe this to be the only Christian settlement.

Please reply immediately by Western Union.

Committee—L. L. Grubb, Orville Lorenz,
Homer Kemer.

A motion prevailed that the chairman appoint a membership committee, Brethren Crees, Reed, and R. E. Gingrich were appointed to constitute the committee.

Dr. L. S. Bauman spoke briefly of arrangements which had been made with the other group concerning the relinquishing of certain rights in connection with The Foreign Missionary Society to be matched by action of our own conference in changing its name. A brief discussion followed.

A motion prevailed to adjourn, reconvening at the call of the chairman.

In Christ,

L. L. Grubb, Sec.

A motion then prevailed to recommend the following statement to the General Conference:

"Inasmuch as confusion has been created in the minds of the public concerning the title, 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches', because of certain unfortunate events and conditions which have arisen, for which we feel we are not responsible; and to remove this confusion:

"We hereby recommend that this 51st General Conference of the Brethren Churches amend the Manual of Procedure by substituting the title, 'The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches', for the title, 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches', wherever found in the Manual of Procedure.

"In this action we do not in any manner or degree yield our claim to be the regularly and legally organized 51st General Conference of the Brethren Churches, nor do we make any change in the status thereof.

"We further hold that the National Fellowship of Brethren Churches is the continuation of the same organization as that previously known as 'The General Conference of Brethren Churches,' under the new name, 'The National Fellowship of Brethren Churches,' and that it is the continuation of the same organization as that referred to in the Articles of that Ohio Corporation known as The Brethren Church, which was incorporated in the year 1883".

At this point the chairman ruled that the meeting would adjourn, to reconvene promptly at 1:00 p. m. in the chapel of the Inn.

In Christ,

THE JOY OF THE LORD

surely no people should have the 'joy of the Lord' in their hearts more than we. The Lord's blessing has been upon the work of The Brethren Home Missions Council for good. How any people could ask to receive more of the Lord than we is hard to contemplate. His blessings have simply poured down on us all year long. New fields have come to us never before. Additional offerings have grown apace. Blessing upon blessing has attended our way in every department of our work. As the apostle Paul enjoined us, "Rejoice, and again I say to you, rejoice." Our Father God has been turning our fears and dangers into blessings and favors.

We began the year with nine mission points and are closing it with eighteen full time fields. There is a complete doubling of our work. With a wonderful increase to $24,552.73 cash receipts during the year we have reached our highest point in our work financially. Every Brethren heart should rejoice in the privilege of assisting in this great offering to Christ by his sacrifice.

Yet more new fields are waiting for us to enter. This means more ably trained men and the means to support them in the field. Next year will see still more fields undertaken, for we believe that God is just beginning to bless a people who will preach His gospel in truth and do His will.

With the 'joy of the Lord' in our hearts we close the year with praise and thanksgiving. With deeply humble hearts we face the future fearing lest we go ahead of Him, and also fearing lest we lag behind His will for us. May He glorify Himself more than ever through our ministry in the salvation of increased thousands before our Lord returns.

BRETHREN STUDENT LIFE VOLUNTEERS

The Brethren Student Life Volunteers is a movement which was inaugurated in March, 1939, committed to dedication of Brethren young men and women to the ministry of Christ. It answers a great need in the Brethren denomination: that of encouraging, leading and training her young people to be more acceptable servants of the Most High God. Its primary aim is to draw young men and women from worldly pursuits to the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The world has an overabundance of doctors, engineers, teachers, lawyers, and business men. On the other hand the world has a great scarcity of ambassadors of the Word. We do not believe that Brethren young people will allow the millions of unsaved to go on calling for the truth in vain. Many have already answered the call of Christ and are now in the various stages of advanced preparation to equip themselves better for more effective service. The Brethren Student Life Volunteers calls you to forsake all and follow him. For complete information and membership blanks, write the national superintendent.

MOTTO OF THE B.S.L.V.

Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's (I Cor. 6:19).

MEMBERSHIP COVENANT

Having confessed Christ as my personal Savior on the basis of the promise of Mt. 10:32, which says: "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men him will I confess before my Father who is in heaven," and Having realized that He is now by right my Lord and Master as shown in 1 Cor. 6:19, 20, which reads: "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's."

I hereby commit unto Jesus Christ my whole life and being for His service, and I pray Him to use me as He will for His eternal glory.

CHRISTMAS—glad time of the year;
Joybells, music, caroling,
Glittering trees and holly ring,
Loaded tables, banquetting;
We have enough of everything—

WE CAN SPARE!

CHRISTMAS—glad time of the year;
But beyond our little sphere,
Millions know no Christmas cheer,
Only heartbreak, falling tear—
Homeless, hungry, filled with fear—

DO YOU CARE?

CHRISTMAS—"Peace," the angel said;
Yonder war has cast its dread,
Famine reared its awful head.
We are warmed and clothed and fed—
No Christmas cheer for them is spread

IS IT FAIR?

CHRISTMAS—land of liberty,
Godliness, prosperity;
But the call comes o'er the sea!
Others lack—and how can we Spend this Christmas selfishly?

WILL YOU SHARE?

GOD'S SPIRIT CONTINUES TO WORK

Through direct contact with the headquarters of the China Inland Mission in Los Angeles, we learn that in spite of "man's inhumanity to man" in war torn China, the Spirit of God continues to operate mightily. Baptisms for 1939 exceeded those of any previous years in the history of the great work of that Mission in China. As to the present situation in China, the China Inland Mission, itself, striving to give a true statement of conditions, releases the following statement coming from the Institute of Pacific Relations Bulletin:

"The area of conflict has not changed a great deal in the last year. By means of its guerrilla and partisan organization, China dominates large areas nominally occupied by Japanese troops. China still controls munition routes to the southwest into Burma and to the northwest into Russia. Dispite the lack of adequate artillery, mechanized units, aviation and ground communications, China managed to take the offensive on a number of fronts. Inside China, political unification and government planning continued to bear fruit. The economic and industrial development of her western provinces continued to go forward at an unprecedented rate. Financially, China managed with British assistance to hold her own. In Japan, the year saw three different Cabinets in the saddle. In 1940, China is stronger internally than at any other time in history. In 1940, Japan is in a worse position than she was at the outset of hostilities."

Religious liberty is at stake in the far east. Let us not forget to continue to pray to God that He may keep the doors open in China.

WELCOME HOME, MRS. KENNEDY

We are writing this editorial on Nov. 25th. And, we have just opened a letter from Mrs. Kennedy, written on her boat, "The Challenger," and mailed at Trinidad, telling us that she expected to arrive in New York this day. We hope that she has arrived, and that the perils of the sea are past. We know it will mean a happy reunion with her two precious boys, and other loved ones back in old Pennsylvania.

In this same mail came a letter from Dr. Taber, dated Sept. 9th. He has this to say concerning Sister Kennedy (and of course, we are all interested):

"As a climax to birthday surprises, after we had gone to bed on the evening of Aug. 16th, Orville Jobson and Jake Kliever drove in to the station at Yaloke, to ask me to go to see Mrs. Kennedy. I found her in fairly good condition, although somewhat weakened . . . and in imperative need of surgical attention. She could obtain surgical attention in the colonies, but convalescence would be difficult here. So that I advised that she go home on furlough. (Mrs. Kennedy's furlough was already past due—L. S. B.) Her trouble can be entirely cured by surgery, with no menace hanging over her future health. This operation is not of extreme urgency—it can wait until she gets home. But it should not necessarily be delayed longer than that."

Let us all bear Sister Kennedy up before the throne of divine grace. She is a royal ambassador of the Lord of glory; and, of her service in that capacity has done yeoman service. Welcome home, Sister Kennedy!

"UP AGAINST A STONE WALL"

That is the way Miss Tyson expresses it. She is giving her time, as are some others to trying to find some gap in that "stone wall" which the nations have erected, through which the missionaries in the homeland can return to their posts of duty. But as yet, no gap has been found. It is not a matter of finding a boat, elusive as they are, so much as trying to persuade the United States government to issue a passport to its citizens "on business for the King". The United States government wants its citizens to stay at home, out of the war-torn countries where they might cause trouble for the government. And, it would like its citizens abroad to come home. Passports are not easy to get. If you think they are, ask the missionaries of all Foreign Boards about it. And boats will not take passengers on board who have no passports. And, even if you have a passport, try to persuade a French consul these days to vaise a passport!

All that can be said at this time, is, that no stone is being left unturned to see if some way can be found to return our missionaries who have out-stayed their furloughs and are on the verge of shedding tears to think of sitting here at home while their comrades need them so badly at the battle front.

Meantime, Miss Snyder and the Williamses are spending their time improving their linguistic abilities in the French language—a very vital matter. They are in French Quebec, Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Morrill have just returned from Quebec to Bethel Home, in Ashland, O. Bro. Morrill is expecting to go soon to New York, for further work in obtaining a real French tongue. Mrs. Morrill is nursing a very sick mother in Ashland.

Miss Tyson has been doing some good deputation work in Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia. She is also using her fine persuasive influence in trying to secure the consent of some governmental officials to give her a passport, and of some steamship company to take her on board.

Miss Byron is through recuperating; and, believe it or not, is actually getting fat in Southern California. Can you imagine it? She will be "fitter n' a fiddle" by the time Miss Tyson charms those officials back in Washington to get out of the way of these two ladies and let them return to their beloved equatorial home.

Pray earnestly that God may take a hand, and open the closed doors. "Prayer changes things!"

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN AFRICA

The very latest "Emergency Bulletin" put out by The Executive Committee of The Committee of Reference and Counsel, New York, with regard to the situation on the West Coast of Africa, is at hand. From it, we quote:

"Numbers of missionaries have recently sailed for Central and West Africa despite the growing tensivity of situation there. All reports from 'Free France' and British sources are that German forces are in control of Dakar—were at the time of the de Gaulle attempt to land last month. They are reported to control the port, the customs, the post office, the wireless; to be building land and sea bases for aircraft; to have demobilized certain Senegalese troops and stopped the recruiting of others. Gestapo agents are numerous.

"Just south of Dakar Pan American Airlines is building a seaplane post at Bolamo, Portuguese Guinea, which it expects to use for its winter service New York to Lisbon.

"Just south of Bolama is the largest British naval, military and air base between Gibraltar and Cape Town: Freetown, Sierra Leone. This is the point at which homeward convoys are generally formed and outward convoys are dismissed by their escorts.

"Still further south lies Cameroon, French Equatorial Africa and Belgian Congo. Last week General de Gaulle broadcast from Leopoldville, capital of Congo. He had been in conference with Congo's Governor General Ryckmans. He announced the formation of a large bloc of Free Frenchmen to resist, with Belgians and British, the German-Vichy penetration further into Africa. Then he returned by ferry across the Congo river to Brazzaville, capital of French Equatorial Africa.

"It would appear that French Equatorial Africa, Cameroun, Congo, British areas in East Africa are forming a common front."

ADOLFO ZECHE RESIGNS

Just as we go to press, word reaches us from Argentina that Adolfo Zeche gave Bro. Dowdy, our Superintendent, fifteen days notice that he was resigning his pastorate under our Board at Huinca Renanco, to "take charge of The Brethren Church in Rosario." This occasions no surprise on the part of anyone familiar with our work in Argentina. While very reticent in the matter, yet the Board and all workers in Argentina have known for several years that C. F. Yoder was maintaining contact with Brother Zeche—the one valued worker over whom he exercised influence. And this is not without reason, knowing that it is human to lean toward those who have meant much to us in our lives. Adolfo Zeche was a student in The National College in Rio Cuarto, when C. F. Yoder taught in that institution. The attachment that grew between them there led Adolfo into the Brethren Church, and has still been maintained.

We hold no ill-will whatever in the matter; and shall pray that through his ministry, a Brethren Church may be built in the city of Rosario, and that many souls may be won for Christ there through his ministry.

There was a work in that city formerly under our Board. However, the Board was faced with an expensive proposition to carry on that work and make it what it should be in a great city. Inasmuch as there were a number of Protestant light-houses in Rosario, where the Gospel was being preached, our Board felt that we should use the funds God places in our hands to carry His message into towns and cities wholly without the testimony.

However, if it is true that trine immersion is the only Scriptural form of baptism (and the writer believes that is true), and that without that baptism no salvation is possible (which doctrine of baptismal regeneration the writer does not believe), then The Missionary Board of The Brethren Church, with its headquarters at Ashland, O., is certainly justified in spending its funds in Cordoba, Rosario, and Buenos Aires, no matter how many Protestant churches there exist, they, too, need salvation.

But in that case, why go to Argentina? In that case, the United States is filled with great cities, whose vast multitudes know not the way of eternal life. We believe, in that case, that we should stay in Jerusalem and in Judea until those places have heard of the way of life, before passing on to Samaria and to the uttermost parts of the earth.

If the Missionary Board of The Brethren Church will send forth missionaries who will hold up Jesus Christ as the Son of God, Who died for us upon the cross, Who arose from the dead, and Who is coming again, souls will be saved in spite of what we believe to be their serious error. We shall not say that the members of the Galatian Church were unsaved. But we are glad that we still rejoice in a salvation that comes to us through pure grace—a salvation that, when once received, brings forth the precious fruits of good works, as naturally as an apple tree produces apples and not poisonous toad stools!

God bless Adolfo Zeche in his new field of activity, and may Christ be glorified.

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ARGENTINA

A letter from our Superintendent in Argentina, just received, is very optimistic about the future of the work down there. Domingo Reini will probably go to Huinca Renanco as pastor, when Adolfo Zeche leaves. Brother Reini has been in charge of the Bible Coach work for some months past. Before going to that work, Reini was a pastor at Tancacha, where he did some of the best work ever accomplished by a National Pastor in the Argentine.

Several new automobiles are badly needed down there to replace worn out equipment. The problem of transportation among the unevangelized cities and towns of our territory in Argentina—a territory about the size of the state of Indiana—is a very present problem just now. Automobiles, thanks to the war-gods, have not grown any cheaper in Argentina.

By the time of the next foreign missionary issue of this magazine, Eld. and Mrs. Clarence Sickel probably will be on their way back to the field there.

DOWN TO DOG MEAT

An Associated Press dispatch from Berlin informs us that "The meat of dogs was legalized for human consumption today (Nov. 14th) for Greater Germany, effective January 1, 1941. Commenting upon this, Dr. Robert S. Harris, nutritional biochemist, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, says that dog meat has a food value "quite the same as that of beef" but is "very tough, gamey, and hasn't a very delicate flavor". Doubtless! Horse meat is already legalized in Germany and is being served in some of the restaurants. Probably the next meat to be legalized will be crow. Then will follow cats, mice, rats, snakes, etc. Why not? Other heathen nations consider these meats

Last Call for Service

By Gene Farrell, Long Beach, Calif.

When the disciples asked Jesus, "What shall be the sign of Thy coming?" our Lord mentioned many things, and then said, "Now learn a parable of the fig tree; when his branch is yet tender, and putteth forth leaves, ye know that summer is nigh; so likewise ye, when ye shall see all these things, know that it is near, even at the doors."

The disciples did not know that approximately 1900 years would transpire before these signs would begin delicious tidbits. Once again, Sherman was right: "War is hell!" And the old Hebrew Psalmist was also right: "Blessed is the nation whose God is Jehovah" (Ps. 33:12). Nations that become apostate, hate the Jew, and bow the God of Israel out of their councils, are on their way to dog meat!

THE KISS OF DEATH

Miss Dorothy Mori, aged 34, winner of a beauty contest in St. Louis in 1927, several days ago was standing at the bar of a saloon in New York. Into that saloon stepped a desperado—"Red Murray" Fershing, ex-convict and parole violator. The female Judas, to "balance an account", stepped up to "Red Murray" and kissed him. Instantly the detectives at the bar or in hiding, pounced upon the desperado, and when it was over, Fershing lay dying at the feet of the woman, with six slugs in his body. When will men understand that the kiss of the scarlet woman is a kiss of death? When she once plants her painted lips upon your face, only the marvellous Savior of marvellous grace is able to save; "for, her house inclineth unto death, and her paths unto the dead" (Prov. 2:18).

We are living in a time when many ministers should be preaching the Prophetic Word who belittle it and even scorn to preach it. However, if it can be shown that the Scriptures reveal the future with unerring exactness, could there possibly be a stronger evidence that the Scripture is the inspired Word of the God Who sees the end from the beginning? In these days of wide spread unbelief, what a tremendous mistake we are making in not using this evidence to convince youth, whose breasts are being filled with skepticism in our modern universities.

On the day of Pentecost Peter appealed to the resurrection of Jesus Christ as being a fulfilment of prophecy. His sermon was based upon the fulfilment of prophecies of the Old Testament, and, that preaching brought three thousand skeptical Jews to their knees, crying out, "Men and brethren what must we do to be saved?"

We have just read in that well known missionary magazine, "World Dominion and the World Today," that

"A campaign has been launched in America for the distribution of a quarter-million New Testaments among Jewish people in various lands. A special Testament is being prepared in which verses that signify the fulfilment of Old Testament prophecies appear in bold faced type, making plain to the Jews that the New Testament is the completion and fulfilment of Old Testament revelations, and that Jesus is the true Messiah and Savior of Jew and Gentile alike."

to appear in the skies of world history. Today they are manifest on every hand, whereby we know that His coming is near, "even at the doors". The fig tree is putting forth leaves, and we, by the immutability and integrity of His counsel, have every right to believe "that summer is nigh". Yea, the Sun of righteousness will soon appear with healing in His wings; and for those who fear His name will the darkness of this mortal night be dissolved forever by the glory of His immediate presence. Praise the Lord!

Surrounded as we are by these tokens of His appearing, we realize that another cycle of God's dealing with sinful man is drawing to a close. The gracious offer of this dispensation, "By grace are ye saved through faith . . ." is not being consummated because of our Lord's impatience, but because of the evermounting coldness with which His invitation has been and is being received. As in the latter part of the dispensations of the past, the good news of this day, with two exceptions, is being used as a vindication of the righteousness of God rather than as an instrumentality by which many souls are being turned to the Savior. It seems that God's people of today are being sent as Noah, "to condemn the world," and as Isaiah, "to make the heart of this people fat, and their ears heavy".

The two exceptions to the above mentioned rule are the mission field and personal evangelism.

1. The Call To Foreign Missions—No wonder the Master commanded His disciples to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He knew that the gospel is not a gospel when preached over and over in a Christ-rejecting land. He knew that its primary use would be among those who had never heard the message of the cross. Therefore, He instructed them to entrench themselves nowhere, but to move continually from one harvest field to another—"in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth."

This program of mobility should be adopted by every born again child of God. We sing, "Where He leads me I will follow," and then, the next day, we ask God to O. K. a list of personal ambitions instead of handing Him a blank sheet of paper upon which to affix His plan for our lives.

If every eligible Christian were to do this, do you know how the paper would read when returned to us? If you do not know the answer, or if you know it and do not agree, it is quite certain that your heart has never been truly attuned to the heart of God as He looks daily upon men whose ears have not yet heard the glad tidings of great joy. You have never known the fellowship of Christ's sufferings whose blood was poured out without respect of persons that all men (black, white, yellow, red or brown) might be saved. You have never allowed God to so stir your imagination that you have lived as in the body of a poor, illiterate, sin-controlled heathen. You have never realized the difference between a ministry in the home land of wheedling and gleaning, and one in the foreign field of invitation and harvest.

"Oh," but you say, "I can't go unto the uttermost part of the earth! The Lord needs me here in a profession! Not everybody can go to the mission field!" And, if you have an ear to hear, friend, you will hear Him answer, "When everybody goes to the mission field, you can consider the home land. I have a host of children who are planning as you are. I have only a comparative few who have set themselves to obey this call to the highest good. I guarantee you that this call—"Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature"—is never overcrowded with applicants; no, nor ever shall be. "The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few."

If we are to remain behind, it is God's business to shut doors, not ours. If He does not want us to go, if He thinks that we can best serve Him in this country in a professional or lay capacity, is it possible that He is powerless to forestall our goings and redirect our plans? Let us remember that our common sense decisions are only acceptable as we make them in accordance with His written Word. The Word "Go" is our guide until we can go no further. And let us cease from being so earth-bound that we cannot take God as our Guide every step of the way. "And thine ears shall hear a word behind thee, saying, 'This is the way, walk ye in it, when ye turn to the right hand, and when ye turn to the left.'"

2. The Call to Personal Evangelism—The second exception to the fact that the gospel is being used primarily as a vindication of God's righteousness in the declining days of this dispensation, is personal evangelism.

It would seem that the days of Moody and Torrey and Billy Sunday are past. Those who stand behind the pulpit now—meaning those who preach an unperverted gospel, for the others are not worthy of mention—but rarely see a spirit of revival break forth in a meeting. The souls who come forward to the altar are usually the result of some intense personal work, not some Spirit-filled message. Indeed, there are so many other attractions for the pleasure-mad sinner that the house of God rarely finds any goodly company of them within its walls.

So the preachers of our day—and who shall say that they are not Spirit-filled as in the past—are largely the justifiers of God's righteousness; whereas, to the layman has been entrusted the privilege of gleanings what few souls remain to be gathered until the body of Christ is complete.

(a) The personal worker must mingle with the unsaved—No man whose eye has been fixed upon the trend of the times in which we live can fail to see that personal work is the order of the day. It is a time of hand-picked fruit. Since the sinner will not come to the house of God, those who are ineligible for foreign service are bound to go out into the streets and byways that they may hear the gospel through our individual testimonies. Thus we will meet the first requirement of soul winning, which is to mingle with the unsaved.

"Follow Me, and I will make you fishers of men." If we follow Jesus we will find ourselves more often in the company of unbelievers than otherwise, for He was so often with the publicans and sinners that He was called a winebibber and a gluttonous man. God move upon us to go to the orchard when we seek fruit, not to some self-gratifying cloister among select friends. Let us beware lest our organizations become mere machines rather than the instrumentalities through which we may most effectively reach the unsaved.

(b) The personal worker must be diligent—In personal work, as in the business world, there is no royal road to success. The Word says that we are laborers together with God. If the business world honors the diligent, how much more will God do so. God has given us a fabulous endowment (spirit, soul and body, in other words, our personality). By regeneration He has equipped us with the wisdom and righteousness and sanctification and redemption of His blessed Son. With such an endowment and equipment, how it behooves us to so surrender our wills and exercise our intellects that we may "be ready," as we read in Peter, "always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you. . . ."

The best way to learn to do personal work is to do it. Practical experience is the oven wherein one's theories are made edible to a starving humanity. It is one thing to fondle one's convictions in the home and church; it is quite another to come to grips with the wisdom of this world and seek to express them there. It is one thing to study and sit under the teachings of great men of God. It is quite another to allow the Lord to press us into circumstances where we are pushed beyond second-hand knowledge into real creative thinking. Paul invited the untoward, knowing that, as nothing else, it would heat his zeal white hot, and make him to realize the depths of the riches, both of the wisdom and knowledge of God.

God doesn't hold us responsible for that which we do not know, but for that which we know. "To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin."

Hudson Taylor told the story of a Chinese pastor who asked one of his recent converts how many souls he had won to Christ. "Oh, I haven't won any," was the reply. "You see, I am only a learner. I just received my first New Testament the other day."

"Have you any candles in your home?" the pastor inquired.

"Yes."

"Do you expect them to shine after they have burned half of the way down?"

"No," said the convert, seeing through this application of a spiritual truth, "they should shine as soon as they are lit."

Some weeks later the conversation was renewed and the pastor was overjoyed to learn that his convert had let his light, small though it was, shine before men, with the result that he had won several souls for Christ.

Theoretical knowledge is a good thing only as we apply it on the practical plane, for it is only as mind and will co-operate that it is proven true, both to ourselves and to others. "So then death worketh in us, but life in you," said Paul. "We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore speak."

(c) The personal worker must have the fellowship of His sufferings for the lost—We are not merely sign warning men to flee from the wrath to come, but His ambassadors, beseeching sinful men and women to be reconciled to a holy God through Jesus Christ our Lord. Full many a time we are "the savior of death unto death", but if we are personally and passionately devoted to Jesus, this will not make us hard and metallic. His Spirit will continue to pour His love through us that God may win each day such as should be saved.

If God is glorified exceedingly through the preaching

THINK IT OVER

At every breath you draw four souls perish, never having heard of Christ.

of the gospel to a Christ-rejecting world, how much more shall He be magnified, and His grace esteemed abundant, through those who accept His Son! It is not that we are anything, but that His plan of salvation was so perfect through His Son that poor, helpless sinners might be altered into His likeness! It is as we shall render Him our gratitude throughout the ages and ages that the abundant grace shall redound to the glory of God. "For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace, might through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God."

The great passion of Paul's life was that He might know Christ, and the more he came to know Him that much more did he seek to swell that chorus of thanksgiving which would resound from the lips of the redeemed. His nearness to Christ made him beseech men and women to be reconciled to God. "We pray you," he said, "in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God." And again, "For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at His coming?"

Unto the Jews, Paul became a Jew, that he might gain the Jews; to them that were under the law, as under the law, that he might gain them that were under the law; to them that were without the law, as without the law, that he might gain them that were without the law. To the weak he became as weak, that he might gain the weak. He was made all things to all men, that he might by all means save some.

Not until we are paying a similar price for the salvation of souls shall we be justified in saying that this is not a time of soul winning, but strictly of vindication and of judgment. Not until we can say with Paul, "Even as I please all men in all things, not seeking mine own profit, but the profit of many that they may be saved," shall God excuse us for not winning souls in these latter days. Paul's ministry was so fruitful because, under God, he paid a tremendous price. Shall we pay a lesser price and justify ourselves in a fruitless one?

(d) The personal worker must be wise—Jesus said, "Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves."

Fellowship with God will inevitably make His children the exemplaries not alone of His power, but of His wisdom. He will teach us that salvation is never a result of an exercised intellect but of an energized will. Not "if any man will think as He does . . ." but "if any man will do His will, he shall know of the doctrine. . . ." Spiritual things are a muddle to the unregenerate mind. It is not until the will is surrendered that the Holy Spirit is allowed to suffuse this finite with His infinite understanding.

We must accept the fact, once and for all, that the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God. We must remember that "a man convinced against His will is of the same opinion still." According to the wisdom given unto us, as a wise master builder, we must lay the foundation, which is Christ, through the sinner's acceptance of Him.

We are more than clerks, we are salesmen. We must press continually to a decision. We must seek to get men's names on the dotted line—forever inscribed in the Lamb's book of life. After we have made our proposition known we must make a transaction. The presentation of Christ must be followed by an invitation to receive Him.

A good salesman, after presenting his product, knows the psychological time to close the deal. The personal worker is no exception. By experience the Holy Spirit educates His witnesses to know the exact moment in which the sinner's heart is most open to the gospel. When the conversation becomes sidetracked into some byway of useless argument, He teaches us how to bring it back into proper paths where the sinner is faced with one thing—his personal responsibility before God. Then he will not seek to justify himself by the hypocrisy of others, or the seeming contradictions in the Word of God, but will realize, whether he obeys or not, that it is his own heart that needs cleansing.

It is when the time comes for the invitation that we are most intimidated and hindered. This is Satan's work. He will do anything to keep a sinner from accepting Christ. He does not mind our presentation so much, just so the invitation is silenced. God help us, after we have told of Christ and Him crucified, to remind our listener that there is something that remains to be done on his part, that he must make a personal transaction with God, exchanging his sin for God's Son. "To as many as received Him, to them gave He power to become the sons of God. . . ." "He that hath the Son hath life; but he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

3. The Call to Every Christian—As the westering sun of this dispensation of grace nears the horizon, and the eastern sky is filled with those signs which portend the coming night of superlative tribulation, God's trumpets are sounding a last call for service. There are no drafted men in this army. There are no selective boards. Those who walk in these ranks are enlisted men and every Christian is eligible for service. God does not force men to battle. He constrains them by love: "For the love of Christ constraineth us. . . ." And our eligibility is not determined by our health, size, deficiencies, age, or dependents, but by the measure in which our wills are abandoned to Him: "for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds."

"Are you dumb to the trumpets that call us today? Blind to the blazing swords?" Christian, whether young, middle-aged, or old, let us pay our most earnest heed to this final call of God. In the words of another, let us say, "Here am I; send me to the first man I meet, or to the remotest heathen." May we pray, "Send me in person—send me in prayer—send me through my substance—send me through my son or daughter—send me through my friends and fellow Christians—send me to the heathen—send me to the apostate—to the harvest or to the gleanings—to the sowing or to the reaping—to the foreign field or to personal work—anywhere, Lord, in anything and to anyone, that when Thou dost appear I may hear Thee say, 'Well done, my good and faithful servant'—and that Thy great plan for the closing days of this age may be speedily fulfilled."

NEW BOOKS FOR YOUR LIBRARY

"Light from Bible Prophecy" by Dr. L. S. Bauman.

169 pages; cloth; — price $1.00

Just off the press! This new book contains a series of prophetic messages recently concluded in "The Sunday School Times." Our own Dr. Bauman very vividly portrays the Scriptural background for present-day events, which are giving the stage a perfect setting for the coming anti-christ and for the termination of this present dispensation. To pastors, teachers, and all interested in Bible study and particularly the phase of prophecy, we are anxious to recommend this book by one of the most widely-known Bible teachers of today.—G.G.K.

That Agreement Between Dr. W. S. Bell and the Foreign Missionary Editor

We have learned that the following statement by Dr. W. S. Bell, of Dayton, O., was published in The Brethren Evangelist; and that he sent a copy to The Brethren Missionary Herald, requesting its publication "in all fairness" in the latter magazine. The editor, even as he should have done, sent the same to me to handle. I regret that Bro. Bell did not first call our attention to what he apparently believes was a breach of trust. After an understanding between us, if a breach of trust was apparent, I should have been glad to make all due apology, and have had both publications free Bro. Bell from any charge made against him of acting where he had no authority. Having returned to my office after a long absence in the east in Bible Conference work, I am now glad to grant Bro. Bell's request, and publish his statement here in full. It follows:

THE ACTION OF GENERAL CONFERENCE RECENTLY HELD IN ASHLAND, OHIO IN DISMISSING THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD AS A CO-OPERATING BOARD.

Inasmuch as my name has been used by the Grace Group of The Brethren Church in my conversations and correspondence with Dr. L. S. Bauman in a way that may lead people to think that I was presumptuous enough to set myself up and speak for a people without their knowledge or authorized by them, I am setting forth here the facts on the matter.

First—I acted in my own individual capacity and in no manner as an official or agent of General Conference or of The Brethren Church. What I did was without the knowledge, advice or instruction of General Conference, or any group of men in the church.

Second—The General Conference in dismissing the Foreign Mission Board as a co-operating Board acted independently of any agreement or knowledge of actions taken by the Grace Conference at Winona Lake, Ind., relative to Foreign Board or name of their Conference.

Third—I met Dr. Bauman at the trial in Dayton and we discussed as I understood, confidentially, the foreign mission work, endeavoring to find a solution that might be agreeable to all that would not disrupt the work and carry forward our work independent of each other.

Fourth—The Saturday before our General Conference, Bro. Bauman called me by long distance phone and requested me to meet with him and we arranged to meet at Marion, O., on Monday, it being understood that we were to meet alone as friends and only in our individual capacity and not as agents of the church.

Fifth—We met at Marion as we agreed on Monday, Aug. 26th, 1940, and before we had any conversations, Bro. Bauman mutually agreed with me to sign the following agreement—Here follows the agreement with his signature and my own attached. The original which I have and he also has a copy of the same:

Marion, Ohio,
August 26th, 1940.

It is mutually agreed between us the undersigned that our meeting at Marion, O., Aug. 26th, 1940, was not in any capacity as officials of The Brethren Church, but in our own individual capacity as friends and that our conversations and meeting is

NOT TO BE USED IN ANY WAY IN THE PRESENT CONTROVERSY IN THE BRETHREN CHURCH.

Signed:
W. S. Bell,
Louis S. Bauman.

It was my understanding and I leave it to the readers of this agreement, that I was not assuming to speak for anyone but myself and that our conversations were not to be used in connection with the present church controversy and I regret that Bro. Bauman did not understand it in the same way and that my name has been brought publicly into this matter and has been used as it has.

W. S. Bell.

But now, in all fairness to myself, which I am sure Bro. Bell himself will grant, I wish to make the following explanation and comment.

The statement of Dr. Bell is substantially correct, with one possible exception. When he states that "The General Conference (at Ashland) in dismissing the Foreign Mission Board as a co-operating board, acted independently of any agreement or knowledge of actions taken by the Grace Conference at Winona Lake, Ind., relative to Foreign Board or name of their conference," we feel he is in error. The proof that he is in error can be given by me; but not without doing the very thing of which Dr. Bell complains—being unfaithful to a promise. If Dr. Bell cares to release me from our "agreement," I will furnish the proof.

The release of all claim to The Foreign Society of The Brethren Church by the National Conference of Brethren Churches assembled at Ashland, would never have taken place without that conference not having certain assurances as to what was taking place at Winona Lake. At least, those whose voices were authoritative in that conference knew what was taking place at Winona Lake.

Just one proof can be given that can be given without breach of confidence. We all certainly recall that the first resolution passed by the conference in Ashland, was not satisfactory to the conference at Winona Lake. I wired information to Dr. Bell at Ashland that the resolution was not satisfactory. The conference at Ashland then took action giving us the assurance we believed we should have, and that final action of the Ashland Conference was satisfactory. These actions have been published. Now, why should the Ashland Conference have passed a second resolution on Saturday morning if they had no "knowledge of actions taken by Grace Conference at Winona Lake"? Does it not seem a bit strange that when the Western Union and the telephone company were being used by both Dr. Bell and myself during the two conferences that were being held at the same time, that it now is to be believed that the conferences were ignorant of the points of contact responsible for the actions being taken by both conferences? Will Dr. Bell affirm that the two conferences would have taken the actions they did, if they (or at least their leaders) had not known that the two of us had some understanding between us?

However, I wish to affirm emphatically that Dr. Bell at no time gave me the impression in any understanding we had, that he was speaking for The National Conference of Brethren Churches that was to assemble at Ashland. The farthest he went in any conversation was to say that he believed that if the conference to assemble at Winona Lake would do certain things, the conference to assemble at Ashland would do certain things. And that is as far as either of us went. I was more in command at Winona Lake than Dr. Bell was in command at Ashland. Both of us were honestly seeking for a way out of an unhappy situation, which if left to run its course, would land us all into the courts, with shame and disaster to the cause of Christ and foreign missionary endeavor. Neither of us could be sure that our Brethren would agree to see things as we saw them.

As to the meeting between Dr. Bell and myself, at Marion, that such a meeting between us took place, so far as I know, has first been published to the church by this statement that he had caused to be printed. The signed agreement between us was not violated by me. Dr. Bell says that he regrets that "Bro. Bauman did not understand it the same way" as he did. But I did understand it the same way. But I did not understand that it covered all other conversations that had taken place between us before that meeting. As to the Marion meeting, I kept faith absolutely with Dr. Bell!

In fairness to myself, another impression that might be caused by Dr. Bell's statement, needs to be corrected. Dr. Bell says: "Bro. Bauman called me by long distance phone and requested me to meet him," etc. That is correct. But I am sure that Bro. Bell will also acknowledge that it is correct that during the trial at Dayton, some weeks before, he met me on the street, and requested that I should contact him for a personal conference and talk things over to see if something could not be done to save the church from further litigation, especially in connection with The Foreign Missionary Society; and he assured me that such litigation would take place (not necessarily with his approval) unless something was done. I agreed that I would thus meet him as soon as possible. This meeting at Marion was the result of that promise. And about the first thing that Bro. Bell said to me at Marion was that he had been wondering why he did not hear from me in keeping with that promise. The meeting at Marion therefore was not wholly upon my own initiative, as Bro. Bell's statement might infer.

However, I cannot understand why Dr. Bell should feel that there has been any unpardonable breach of trust on the part of either of us. Dr. Bell himself told me that he felt our efforts, and the actions of our conferences, had saved "thousands of dollars" of the Lord's money to go into the channels where it should go—to make known the gospel to men, instead of into the hands of lawyers. After the conferences were over, he felt a victory for the cause of Christ had been won by the sensible actions of both conferences. I certainly agreed with him. And I for one have no cause to regret any part I have had in the whole matter, and I certainly feel that Dr. Bell has not cause for regret—rather the opposite.

I hope that the life-long friendship that has existed between us will continue until the Lord calls us home, and takes us off to one side, and helps us both to "know as we are known" by Him.

Hardships of Children

By Grace Byron, Long Beach, Calif.

Yakonenzi and Ideli lived in a little bush village, hidden among the rocky crest of the hill back of the mission station. They had clung to the old customs and feared to leave them, as the witch doctor had told them that they would die if they went to the chapel. They were very anxious to have a son, and had consulted the witch doctor on several occasions, giving him chickens for his services. The last time they came, he demanded a goat in exchange for the fetish he made. They should keep it inside the hut.

They were overjoyed when they finally had a son. They took him to the shrine and he was given the name Salda.

After the first rain, late in March, they had prepared the ground for their peanut garden. The second rain was slow in coming, at which time they would plant their peanuts. The crop the year before had been light, and food was getting very scarce. Everyone was anxious for a rain. The natives had eaten up most of their food and were living mostly on greens.

Salda was only ten days old when the rain came. As soon as it cleared Ideli started to the garden, carrying little Salda close to her breast to keep him warm, the heat from her own body, being the only protection for his little naked body from the cold.

She balanced a large basket filled with peanuts on her head as she went to her garden about two miles from her house. It kept drizzling off and on, all day as she planted and worked in her garden.

That night, as Ideli lay on the floor near the fire with Salda in her arms, she was kept awake by the baby coughing and sniffing. The next morning his little body was burning hot, and she knew he was very sick, as he was breathing very fast. His father feared to take him to the mission, thinking he would die if he did. He went for the witch doctor who gave them a fetish in exchange for a chicken, saying the baby would be all right; but he steadily grew worse and soon his spirit left the body.

His parents were filled with fear in the presence of death, and, grief stricken, they threw themselves on the ground repeatedly, and picked up stones and banked them on their heads in their anguish. The women of the village came and marched around and around the hut, wailing as they went. The drummer kept up a constant beating of the drums to chase away the evil spirits.

After the days of mourning were over, Yakonenzi and Ideli again appealed to the witch doctor that he would intercede with the gods so that they might have another son. They were again made happy by the birth of a son.

One night, as the family were sleeping around the fire, the baby rolled out of his mother's arms into the fire and was severely burned. His mother and father were awakened by his screams. The witch doctor plastered them with some concoction, but the sores became infected, and in a few days he was buried near his brother. The relatives and all the village came to mourn and to greet the parents and offer their reasons for their baby's dying. They were sure that they had displeased the spirits, and tried in their ignorance to appease them.

The next dry season another son was born. They were fearful that something might happen to their baby, so they would fool the spirits and not let them know they had a baby by naming Kaka (chicken), and whenever they spoke his name the spirits would be deceived into thinking he was only a chicken. Thus they thought no harm would come to him. But Kaka was only about two years old and was playing at the door when he fell down over the foundation of the hut. His mother came running when she heard him screaming, and he cried for a long time and would not let anyone touch him.

When the witch doctor came he assured the parents that the baby would be all right if they gave him a chicken for doing some of his antics.

After the accident, Kaka could not stand up, and began to crawl instead of walk. After several months, his mother noticed that his legs were not growing and were very weak. The rest of his body grew, but he never walked again, for his spine was injured. He continued to crawl on his hands and knees every place he went. He did not like always to be left behind, and he tried to go with the other children.

One Sunday he followed them to the mission and into the church. There he heard the gospel for the first time. He managed to crawl down off his seat and down the aisle when the invitation was given, and accepted the Lord Jesus. After that he came often and attended the converts' class, and was especially happy the day he was baptized.

Although he had to crawl over the rocks on his hands and knees a distance of a mile or more, he came to the vernacular class and learned to read.

"THE ALL-SUFFICIENT WORD"

(Genesis 1:9)

By Gene Farrell, Long Beach, Calif.

"God said . . . and it was so."

God spoke, and it was done!

His Word ordained the stars!

His Word, the moon and sun!

His Word—and shall we doubt?

Wax feeble-kneed and cold?

For it was God who gave

This Word which we behold.

"God said . . . and it was so."

God spoke, and it was done!

A nation sprang to life!

And from its loins, a Son!

From one as good as dead

God's blessing came to all!

For God had promised Eve

The race to reinstall.

God's Word is not a void,

An ethic shorn of power.

Each promise has its proof,

Each prophecy, its hour.

We link the Word with God,

Our plea, His precious Son;

And find that all we read

Is so, or shall be done!

"We Praise The Lord"

By Estello Myers

The first time we met Kassala was at the dispensary at Bassai. He came with an ulcer on his leg to be treated. His village Ndolo was some distance away, thus he remained with us. He heard the good news, accepted Christ as his Savior and was baptized and returned to his village where there was no catechist.

The devil is always on his job. Sometime afterward when the boys of his village gathered for the shoumaili school, he also enlisted. This is the school where the old men teach devilish worship and the customs of the tribe. Kassala soon found out that it was only a lodge of the devil, and denounced it.

When Miss Byron and I visited his village some years ago, he gathered the people together to hear the way of salvation. In the evening he took us to see a very sick chief whose village joined his. This chief Maidi was grateful for our services, and sent us a goat the next day, that overtook us at the next village named Yayouyeme. We wished this goat to be taken to Bassai; and Kassala, who brought the goat to us, offered to take it, for did he not know the way to Bassai?

When Kassala's village asked for a catechist our former house boy, whose name is Jacque Yaforo, volunteered. Soon after his arrival Kassala was married to Kala, who also loved the Lord. Not long ago God gave them a child. Since Kassala, had been to the Shoumaili school, the village expected him to carry out the rites of that organization. This meant appeal to the gods for the child, and to name it. This Kassala refused to do, a thing which caused no little stir in the village. The chief was away at the time, but when he returned he breathed out threatenings against the catechist Jacque for his teachings. Kassala and Kala said God gave them the baby and that their gods could not name it. Brother Jobson made a special trip there and the baby was named Lydia. The chief denied all his threats, and the village calmed down.

The people are watching the child and expect it to die. Kassala and his wife are attending the early morning prayer meetings. The baby is growing nicely. The old men say if it does not die, the young boys will not attend any more the bush school. They may be right in this, for the boys are seeing the folly of this school and denouncing its wicked teachings. They see that the old men have deceived them. Kassala and Kala are standing true.

We praise the Lord everytime we see hearts standing true to Him. Truly, it is His Spirit that regenerates the life. May there be many Kassalas and Kalas in this heathen tribe. Will you pray to this end?

Letter from Dr. Gribble

Andrew Murray Missionary Home,
20 Bellevue St.,
Cape Town, South Africa,
September 12, 1940.

My dear readers of The Brethren Missionary Herald:

If I were to give this letter a title, that title would be: "Some Missionaries I Have Known."

Staying here at this missionary home in Cape Town are missionaries from all parts of Africa, and even from Palestine. They come and go; some for very short periods of time.

When we came here there was a little group going to Nyassaland. They left one day in their little pickup, driving all the way. It was a privilege to follow them with our prayers. We heard later of the difficulties of their journey, but the Lord had marvelously sustained them.

There is a dear little missionary lady here from beyond Luluaba. She has five children in England, and with her the youngest. She is a widow, and waiting to go to England, to rejoin her children. Funds seem to have been delayed by the war, but she continues trusting. All will soon be well, for she is the Lord's own.

A party arrived the other day from England. There were marks of interest about every member. But one young lady with her fiancé attracted our attention. Just before leaving England mother and sister had been struck by a falling bomb—and killed! She buried her dear ones, and full of courage has come forth to His glory.

Another party arrived from England consisting of Archdeacon Guillebaud and family and Mrs. Stanley Smith, the latter on her way to rejoin her husband from whom she has been separated two and one half years. We have seen Christ in them and can understand the wondrous revival which has taken place in Ruanda, whither they go.

They know friends of mine formerly in the Congo Belge, no less than the minister who married Mr. Gribble and myself, and the best man at our wedding!

From Palestine, from Egypt, from Nigeria they come, through this greatest of doorways to and from their homelands.

Cape Town friends are very kind to the numerous missionaries coming and going. Now and then a wealthy widow, an enterprising widower, an elderly spinster, or an interested minister puts a car at the disposal of a group of missionaries and we go spinning around the mountain, or admiring the beauties of the sea.

We have most of our meals at the Home at astonishingly reasonable rates, but now and again we are invited out by an American doctor, or a group of missionaries picnic together, or we visit someone at Arcadia, the Missionary Home by the seaside at St. James.

One consecrated godly family have missionary teas regularly to welcome arriving missionaries, and to farewell departing ones. These teas are held in a public hall, and are largely attended. One gives a testimony, another an address, and before we know it we are all acquainted. It was after one of these that a gentleman came and asked me if I were any relation to James Gribble who was in Cape Town 26 years ago, on fire for Oubangui-Chari! "Only his widow," I responded. Thus, in various ways channels of friendship are opened up here and there.

On Mondays one can take one's lunch and attend a weekly Sunday School Convention, called Schoolmunk—"Sunday School Monday Lunch."

Occasionally one is asked to speak, now at a Methodist gathering for "March Memorial Orphans," now at a "Baptist Fellowship Meeting for Young People," now at a "Post Office Christian Association" (something new under the sun), now at a group missionary meeting.

A bus takes us from our very door to the heart of Cape Town, where business has been boiled down, so to speak, so that all important business houses are within walking distance of each other. Then the bus delivers us again at our door on the (sometimes) sunny slope of the mountain.

For Cape Town, like California, is having "unusual" weather, winter is September instead of June and July as it should have been!

Boats come and go, and when permitted, missionaries can board crowded ships which sail monthly to New York. Sometimes, in spite of bookings months ahead, one can get passage through accidental cancellation in a few days. One missionary has been required to wait two months.

I expect to be here, the Lord willing, until the last of January. You missionaries and missionary candidates must book soon if you are to arrive by that time! The Lord will undertake through the board for you to obtain all the necessary visas and permissions, and we hope to see you soon! French Equatorial Africa will be open for gospel at least for the "duration", as they say here. Why wait? The end of the war may mean closed doors to many mission fields. He Who is coming soon said: "Occupy till I come."

As I go back to French Equatorial Africa I know not what awaits my colleagues and myself there, but I know it is sweet to be in His will. I know too that French Equatorial Africa needs and must have reinforcements for the harvest.

Faithfully yours,
FLORENCE N. GRIBBLE.

THE CONTINUING CHRIST

Far, far away is Bethlehem,
And years are long and dim
Since Mary held the holy Child
And angels sang to Him:
But still to hearts where love and faith
Make room for Christ in them,
He comes again, the Child from God,
To find His Bethlehem.

O Life that seems so long ago,
And yet is ever new,
The fellowship of love with Thee,
Through all the years is true.
O Master over death and time,
Reveal Thyself, we pray,
And as before amongst Thine own,
So dwell with us today!

—W. Russell Bowie.

"MISSIONARIES' MISSIVES"

MISS ESTELLA MYERS WRITES: "It is raining today and very cold. We have plenty of food, good garden, milk and butter from the goats. We have peace and joy within our hearts. There is much time spent in prayer for there is lots to do. We must work in heart."

(It is evident that there are still some people left who believe that the more time spent in prayer the more time they will have to do other things. It reminds us of what Martin Luther once said. He declared that he had so much to do that he never could get it done without spending three or four hours a day in prayer. That may seem an absurd statement to a mind that is not spiritual, but to those who are acquainted with the Lord and understand the mystery of His ways, the statement is not strange at all.—Ed.)

AGAIN MISS MYERS WRITES: "Everything is O. K. I just am busy with the translation. Want to see the New Testament finished this year. I know that God will supply the funds to see it printed. If we at any time are expelled from this land may the New Testament be left with the Karre people if the Lord tarries that long."

(Miss Myers has the right idea. If the fortunes or the misfortunes of war should ever cause our missionaries to be expelled from French Equatorial Africa, what a marvellous thing it will be to know that they have left behind the New Testament, the Word of God printed in the language that the natives can understand. The Word of God is quick and powerful and sharper than any twoedged sword and it does not have to lean upon the arm of flesh in order to do its work. This does not mean that the consecrated arm of flesh is not helpful, but the Word of God is not absolutely dependent upon it. Let us pray that Miss Myers may be given health and strength to complete the translation of the New Testament and that the Lord will supply the funds to see that it is printed. Perhaps, this brief message will speak very plainly and definitely to some of our brethren or sisters who have this world's goods. How sweet it would be in the dying hour or in the day that you stand in the light of the glory of His face in another world to know that your gift made possible the reading of the Word of God by tens of thousands who would not have had it otherwise. After all the joys of Paradise are the joys that are going to be dependent in a very large measure upon the deeds done in this present life.—Ed.)

MRS. GRIBBLE UNDER DATE OF OCT. 12th WROTE to the home secretary as follows: "Mrs. Kennedy arrived here Oct. 8th. She was booked to sail Oct. 11th, but her boat the Challenger has now been deferred to Oct. 25th. Please notify her friends of this delay and of the possibility of further delays so that they need not be anxious. She is as you doubtless know returning for an operation and was accompanied as far as Leopoldville by Miss Emmert. Since circumstances made it impossible for them both to obtain passage, Miss Emmert asked Mrs. Kennedy to precede her and telegraph me to reserve passage for her which I did. I trust this explanation will reach you before her arrival. The motive for the three voyages is:

1. Mrs. Kennedy's health.
2. Miss Emmert was accompanying her and separation was made necessary by circumstances of travel.
3. The Sheldon's are taking advantage of the trip to send Kenneth home to school."

FROM MISS MABEL CRAWFORD COMES A LETTER written on Sept. 5th, 1940. Mabel's letters are always intensely interesting. The little common place affairs in the lives of our missionaries in Africa are intensely interesting to us here in the homeland who think of them so often and wonder just how they are getting along. From Miss Crawford's letter we quote:

"I haven't had a letter from home since the middle of June and it was written in April. A few papers have come through lately and some of the folks got a few letters the other day, but I didn't happen to be one of the lucky ones. Maybe because I put so much stock in my mail, the Lord thinks He needs to give me a lesson in patience. I can't say that I like it any too well but no doubt it is good for me. . . .

"We don't know what is going to happen from day to day. With two French governments now and both of them wanting the colonies we feel as though we might see some fighting out here one of these days. The French Free government has taken over the colony but the Vichy government may challenge them any day. We must just wait upon our Lord and have faith and trust in Him. Naturally we expect to be true to the government in power and look to the Lord to keep this colony open for His servants until He calls us upward. Of course, if our government comes permanently under the new Free government, we cannot help but see the advantages for U. S. is recognizing it rather than Vichy and we will be able to get supplies which they refuse to supply while we are under "long-distance" German control. Such things as flour, gasoline, etc. that come to us from U. S. are beginning to get pretty low. . . .

"We are all badly feeling the need of new recruits. Several are in need of their furloughs and even us who still have months or even a year on the field are feeling decidedly the stress and strain of these uncertain days. Why, I'm getting grey! I was horrified when Mrs. Kennedy discovered I had about a dozen grey hairs. She pulled them out, but what good will that do? Life for Miss Myers and I here alone at Bassai hasn't been too much of a 'picnic' but we are trying to carry on. Sometimes when tired to the point of desperation I wonder what is the use in our trying to hold out so long against odds but in my better moments I realize that we must be faithful. That is all He asks of us and 'as our days so shall our strength be'. . . .

"I'm dividing my attention between this letter and the kitchen so if this seems rather jumpy blame it on that. I'm in a 'jam' today . . . or at least a jam mood. I have finished cooking two pint glasses of mixed ground cherry and guava preserves and four glasses of guava jelly. Now I have a pan of jam (made from the jelly leavings) on the fire. It will soon be time for me to go to school so I hope it hurries up a bit. I have been doing a lot of canning lately, both for myself and for conference. I've also dried about a dozen quarts of corn. We have to make the most of the food the Lord has given us for we don't know how much we will be dependent upon the land this year. Since I am responsible for the conference garden I've already had to think about that and have it under way. Conference is less than three months off . . . how time does fly. We hope some of our folks at home get out before that time, otherwise we will be a pretty slim number. . . .

"This is a beautiful sunny day and I hear a woman taking advantage of it down in the valley where she is beating flour on a large flat-top rock. The thud, thud, thud, of her mallet comes up to me here as plainly as though she were in my back yard. The view out over the valley with its contrasts of colors and light and shade (made by white-banked clouds) is inspiring. I certainly do love Bassai's scenery."

(Well, Sister Crawford, pulling out the grey hairs won't help along at all. The situation on top of the editors head is bad enough as it is. Imagine what it would be if he had pulled out every grey hair as it came along with the years. Don't you ever again let Mrs. Kennedy operate upon your hair. After all, who said that auburn is a more beautiful color than silvery grey?—Ed.)

ANOTHER INTENSLEY INTERESTING PARAGRAPH FROM MISS CRAWFORD'S LETTER, dated Sept. 25th, causes pastors at home to realize that missionaries upon the foreign field have the same difficult problems with which to deal and the same difficulties to overcome that we have in our churches at home. Scores of pastors in Boston or in Philadelphia or in Chicago or in San Francisco might have written these words gleaned from Miss Crawford's letter.

"The spirit of irreverence and disrespect that is world-wide has invaded our ranks and the attitude of insubordination and defiance on the part of many of our natives (even among the young kids in school) is one of the hardest things we have to face these days. Sometimes I think that what these people here at Bassai need is to be left to themselves. We have carried them along for almost 20 years. If everyone would leave and give the field to them maybe they would stand on their own feet a bit. It is unfortunate that conditions of illiteracy, etc. make it necessary for missionaries to settle down indefinitely in one tribe. Wish we could be more Pauline. When the mission stays too long with such people as these we become too commonplace . . . that horrid but true old adage 'familiarity breeds contempt'. What the folks need here is some new life or something. Maybe what a lot of them need is just that—the new life!'"

(Whether the African convert or the New York convert what they need is just that—"the new life"—Ed.)

ORVILLE D. JOBSON, WRITES FROM BOZOMU, F.E.A.—"You discuss the problem of forwarding money to the field. . . . The Lord only will be able to lead you, and we shall be praying that wisdom shall be granted you. Also, in this letter you discuss the uncertainties surrounding the sailing of the missionaries. These uncertainties are doubled now, if they are not altogether become, in human understanding, impossibilities. But with God nothing is impossible. What the future is for us, He alone knows, but so far there have been no changes here; everything is moving along as usual. We are going forward with the work, waiting for further news. We are well provided for a number of months to come, from every point of view. Attendance at all of the chapels in this district is on the increase.

. . . May the Lord keep the doors open until the last soul has heard, and the witness of the church completed."

AFRICAN PROVERBS and ILLUSTRATIONS

Collected by Miss Mary L. Emmert

(Miss Mary L. Emmert, in charge of our school at Yalohe, French Equatorial Africa, after listening for a number of years to the native evangelists, collected from them a number of proverbs and illustrations. These Africans, who have just emerged from the depths of heathenism and ignorance, have their own unique way of expressing themselves. The following proverbs and illustrations reveal the fact that these natives are thinking straight. As a matter of fact, those of us in the homeland can profit by their ideas.—L.S.B.)

1. "If the kettle is dirty, it must be washed before one can fill it with clear water." "One washes the hands before eating."

Even so, one must be cleansed of his sins before he can be used of the Lord.

2. "When the grass is dry it burns. It is green now, but there is a day coming when it will burn."

There is likewise a day of judgment coming for sinners.

3. "Put the fire out before leaving the house." "Put the ridge cap on the house before quitting."

See to the question of salvation, and be prepared against the danger to come before all else.

4. "The child creeps before it walks."

We must be humble in the way of the Lord.

5. "To those who are hypocritical: Do not kick over a toad stool with both feet at once, for you will fall." "Do not try to smoke rats out of two different holes at the same time."

Don't try to do two things at once; to serve God and the world.

6. "Do not be like the foolish woman who puts water on the fire to heat, but does not put wood on the fire." "Do not be lukewarm in the way of God."

7. "Who takes his eyes to buy with?"

Our life is worth more than money. What will a man give in exchange for his soul?

8. "Catfish are one family, and sardines another." "Birds of a feather flock together." Christians are to be a separate people.

9. "Do not be afraid, for no one can put a rope around the neck of your soul."

This illustration was given to a gang of prisoners.

10. "Don't be like a man with a hole in his pocket." He keeps putting good things in, and rejoices greatly, but when he comes to the end of his journey he has nothing at all. You people are always glad to hear the Word but never accept the Lord.

11. "Don't be like the man who says that the food is good, but never eats of it."

If you say that the food is good, but you never eat of it, will your hunger be satisfied?

12. "Don't try to hold a fish by the tail and put it back in the water, for the water will take it again."

We were once sinners, and now we can't afford to play with sin, for it will get us.

13. "Don't spoil the shady place where you are sitting, and then be obliged to sit in the sun."

You who live here at the mission have a good place. Don't spoil it by sin.

14. "Don't be like the fish in the fish trap, which plays around in the trap to attract the others into the same trap."

Those who get into sin and try to entice the others away are like this.

15. "Don't be like the bird whose feet are stuck in the bird lime who chatters very gaily until the whole

FROM THE FIELD

Almost a year ago when the Philadelphia Third church learned that the writer was moving east, they contacted him about conducting their revival for this fall. There were at least two reasons why the evangelist was happy to accept this gracious invitation. First because he felt the Lord was directing to this end, and second, because he well remembers the wonderful meeting and fellowship enjoyed with these good people 10 years ago.

Once again I have discovered that the pastor, Bro. Steffler, makes a splendid yoke mate. This is equally true in the pulpit as well as upon the field of labor. The congregation were equally loyal and ready to co-operate in the task of personal evangelism.

Our hearts were strangely warmed as we beheld the beautiful spirit of Christian love which surcharged the atmosphere. From the beginning to the end of the two weeks meeting there was not a sour note (except when the evangelist forgot and tried to sing in a sermon). When a pastor and evangelist are called of God to conduct a meeting under such favorable conditions, conscious of the Holy Spirit's leading, both will be willing to spend and be spent for His glory. Night after night the people gathered for prayer. Day after day they went out in true apostolic fashion to visit homes. Even when the evening services closed these good people sent the pastor and evangelist home with pies and cake. Who wouldn't make good? This reminds us of the story of a little insect known as the chameleon which possesses the ability to change its color to harmonize with its environment. A witty Irishman bought one and tested its ability by placing it in on many colors. The little fellow made good. Finally Pat placed it on a bright plaid garment. His little friend almost turned himself inside out trying to make good. When churches properly support their pastors and care for their needs, preachers will go the limit to make good. Try it and see.

Not the least of things to be remembered about this wonderful meeting was the splendid delegation of the Allentown Brethren who drove over to add to the inspiration and fellowship of this Holy Ghost revival. Why do we call it by this caption? Because both pastor and evangelist were willing to be yielded to His unerring counsel. The Holy Spirit certainly brought conviction to hearts as a large number found their way in tears to the altar and knelt for prayer to find Christ as their Savior.

When the two weeks were over and the time came to separate, it was like breaking home ties. We thought we would never get started for home. Some day, perhaps soon, time will be no more and we can fellowship on forever with no interruption.

We are leaving the reporting of the numerical results to the pastor, but we do want to say a word of appreciation for the wonderful hospitality accorded us. The paragon was our headquarters. This is the second time we have had this privilege. However time makes its changes and now two more are added to the home.

(While the pastor isn't listening I want to say that it was a real pleasure to witness a home where the children, real children, were being properly trained and reared as becometh a Christian home, viz, to recognize Christian headship.) Almost every day found us in different homes which tried to vie with each other in caring for the temporal needs of their evangelist. Certainly it is true that he that giveth a cup of cold water in a prophet's name shall receive a prophet's reward.

Then too, permit us to say one word of appreciation for that thoughtful love offering given the evangelist. Perhaps it was a little unusual for both evangelist and church to engage in evangelistic work without mentioning one word about remuneration, but such was the case. Not until the meetings were well under way did the question, unofficially, come up. Did I not say we left everything to the Spirit's guidance? Well, even here He did a good job too. Many thanks for this tangible expression, brethren.

While this epistle is getting altogether too lengthy, the writer would add two more conclusions. First, the Allentown congregation in lending their pastor were well repaid by hearing soul-stirring messages from the Brethren Steffler and Bauers (the latter being a Philadelphia Bible School student). Also, in the pastor's absence the Allentown Church was privileged to see and hear illustrated lectures of Palestine by Bro. and Sister Conard Sandy which were a benefit to all. The second conclusion is to include the report of the recent Bible conference conducted by Rev. Robert Crees, who delivered three messages from Genesis to our people. Both these men will do our churches a lot of good.

Brethren let us pray for one another that His will may be our will

Yours in His service because of Calvary, band come and perch on the same limb, and are likewise stuck fast."

Pay no attention to those who are making a big ado over the good times they are having in the way of sin.

16. "No one has the strength to put a heavy ladder up to the tree alone."

We must all work together.

17. "The bird that takes the bait falls by it."

The good things the devil gives us are like the bait put in the trap to catch rats.

18. "If a runner has come a long way with an important message and you know he is weary and important, what do you do? You relay the message. Someone else carries it on."

The missionaries have come a long way with the message and have taught it to some of us. It is our duty to carry it on.

SUMMARY OF EAST DISTRICT FELLOWSHIP

The East District Fellowship of Brethren Churches, formerly known as the Pennsylvania Brethren Bible Conference, held its second annual meeting in the First Brethren Church of Waynesboro, Pa., Oct. 21-24, 1940.

A more hospitable group of Brethren can scarcely be found. They gave the Fellowship the best of the land in lodging and food. This was their pastor's first experience of entertaining such a large group but the experience of the congregation in past years left nothing undone.

One of the outstanding highlights of the Fellowship was the music. Bro. and Sister Leo Polman were with us during all of the Fellowship and gave of their talent unstintingly. Piano, accordion and the triple octave chimes all came in for their share together with the voices of the musical couple. Most every session was honored with a special number not only from the Polmans but from our brethren and sisters in our Fellowship. The church choir also splendidly gave of their talent each evening service.

The opening message was delivered by Bro. Wm. Clough of Uniontown on Monday night and the closing message by Bro. Archie L. Lynn on Thursday night. Every message in between was spiritual, true to the Word and challenging to holler living.

The Fellowship organized as follows: Moderator, Ord Gehman; Vice-Moderator, R. D. Crees; Secretary, W. H. Schaffer, Jr.; Assistant Secretary, Clair Gartland; Treasurer, J. L. Gingrich; and Statistician, E. F. Pine. A complete record of the organization will be found in the 1941 National Fellowship Annual.

The Fellowship was honored with other visiting Brethren besides those already mentioned. Bro. and Sister Conard Sandy, Bro. and Sister Norman Uphouse, Bro. and Sister L. L. Grubb, Sister Elizabeth Tyson, and Bro. Roy Long.

We were conscious of the leading of the Holy Spirit all through our deliberations and our earnest prayers were to that end. God richly blessed every part of a very full program and it was the testimony of those who attended that they had been spiritually refreshed and encouraged. The misgivings and doubtful disputes of past years was lacking and liberty and freedom prevailed.

Some of the high-lights in business transacted were: the organizing of a mission board to carry on the work of missions in this district. This Board is now caring for three already established churches which need some financial aid, and is planning to survey during this year two prospective fields for new Brethren Churches in co-operation with the Brethren Home Missions Council. Two possible sites have already been selected and a Bible class is being held in one. A Young People's Camp Committee was selected by the ministerial group to locate and make plans for a suitable summer camp. The Executive Committee has already arranged for an outstanding Fellowship next Oct. 13-16.

Although our publishing house, seminary, Missions Council, and foreign missionary interests were represented and their unashamed progress noted, there were no demands made upon the members of our Fellowship for loyalty or for being ruled out of the Fellowship. The only thing to which we feel obligated to pledge our loyalty is to our Lord and Master Jesus Christ and His Holy Word.

Sincerely yours in Christ,
W. H. SCHAFFER, Jr., Sec.

THANKS BE TO GOD*

By John Edward Abnett, Jackson, Ky.

I thank Thee, Lord, for the heavy task,
For the ever quickening pace
Of the busy day, for it proves the pow'r
Of Thy Spirit's sustaining grace.

I thank Thee, Lord, for the saddling blow
That turned my face unto Thee,
From the idol that threatened to wean me away
From power and victory.

I thank Thee, Lord, for the clouded sky,
For darkness that stopped my feet
And made me cry out for Thy guiding hand
And made my surrender complete.

"I can't tell you how much the HERALD means to us. And what a wonderful little paper it is . . . so very different, and alive with Gospel truth on every page."
E. M., Penna.

"We praise the Lord, for the fine church paper we have. I don't think there is any better. Then, too, we are sure that since Bro. Polman is putting full time to the work it will be more than doubled this year. Who knows, it might become a daily before he is through with it!"

R. B., Penna.

"Too many people itch for what they want without scratching for it."

"Some say a revival is temporary. So is a bath!" That's why we are in need of another one.

After a colored pastor had preached a sermon on the theme, "The Water of Salvation Is Free" (Isa. 55: 1), one of his members asked him, "How come, parson, if you says 'de watah ob salvation am free,' do you all de time plague us for money?" The parson gathering up all of his dignity arose to the occasion with this apt reply, "Rastus, its true, de 'watah ob salvation is free' but somebody's got to pay de pipin'?" Are you going to help pay for "the piping?"

Happy New Year

As we face a new quarter among our Sunday Schools, the honor of being first to submit the order for the first quarter of the new year goes to the Brethren Church at Danville, Ohio. Next in order comes Bethel Brethren at Berne, Indiana, and third is the Limestone Brethren in Tennessee. Each of these three has sent remittance in full to cover the order and have thereby set the precedent!

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR RALLY AT WAYNESBORO

On Oct. 11 four C. E. societies met at Waynesboro for a rally and evening of fellowship. The churches represented were Hagerstown Second, Washington, D. C., Winchester and the host church. Norman Uphouse had charge of the program, L. L. Grubb led the music, Bernard Schneider gave an excellent message, and R. D. Crees had charge of the Social hour.

The Washington society came in a chartered bus, and after some delay arrived in high spirits. They claim that it was a lot of fun to ride the bus. We had over 100 present during the evening.

To prove that this is more than a preachers meeting, we elected four officers to plan for future events. Lorraine Dyer is the president. She has three other members to help her; one from each church.

Our next meeting will be held in December at Washington, D. C. L. L. Grubb will be our speaker. We have decided to have similar rallies every two months.

We hope other societies will group together and meet for rallies where distance permits. The good that can come from these meetings is greater than I can mention here. I do know that you might do a good work by starting something in this direction.

Any news of parties, special programs, victories, etc., ought to get in our news column. Please send such information to me at Winchester and I will forward it to The Brethren Missionary Herald.

Norman H. Uphouse.

Again our humble thanks go out to each one of the donors who have had this share in the carrying on of the work for publications. The measure of success attained in the office in respect to giving out the Word through the printed page and meeting the constant needs for Christian supplies is for the most part attributed to the co-operation received from you over the land within the brotherhood. Therefore, we thank you again, and let us continue in this co-operation.

Here and There

SOUTH BEND, IND.

Rev. Alton M. Witter, South Bend, Ind., occupied the pulpit of Rev. Geo. W. Kinzie of the First Brethren Church, West Kittanning, Pa., during Rev. Kinzie's recent appendicitis operation.

During Rev. Witter's stay at West Kittanning, he held a week of "Harvest Home" services from Nov 4th to Nov. 10th. Several evenings the sermons were illustrated in film slides—cartoons being drawn by Dr. E. J. Pace, contributor to the Sunday School Times, and the paintings by Hoffmann. The services drew a great deal of interest and a very nice attendance. The Harvest Home offering was liberal.

Nov. 11th and 12th, the church had the pleasure of hearing Miss Elizabeth Tyson, missionary on furlough, from French Equatorial Africa. She delivered two very stirring messages concerning the mission work in Africa.

We praise the Lord for those, in the field of service, spreading the Gospel during these latter days. May we continue to work till He comes.

EDITORIALS

By Alva J. McClain

President, Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind.

This Issue of the Herald

Dr. McClain

Because the Seminary surrendered its regular space in the November issue of the Herald, which we were glad to do in order to make room for the annual conference material, we are being granted extra space this month. Therefore, we are using the opportunity to present the work of the Seminary somewhat more fully than usual; especially since many of our churches have been setting aside the Christmas season as a time to remember the school in special prayer and gifts.

A Work of Faith

From the beginning, it has seemed to be the Lord's will that Grace Theological Seminary should walk by faith in a special sense. So far as we know, those who have contributed from time to time to its support have not done this because they felt under any ecclesiastical compulsion, but only because they voluntarily chose to do so under the leading of the Holy Spirit. No authoritative church conference ever set any particular day of the year when money must be given to the school. No official "Budget Committee" ever saddled upon the churches a fixed amount of tribute to be rendered annually to this work. No congregation has ever been excommunicated for failure to support the school. No unspiritual strong-arm pressure methods have been used to raise funds for its ministry. The giving to Grace Seminary thus far, so far as we know, has been voluntary, cheerful, and filled with joy, which is what all true Christian giving should be.

If we know our own hearts, we want the giving to continue like this. And should the time ever come when it cannot be so given, joyfully as unto the Lord, then it will be time to stop giving and close the institution. Grace Seminary does not want to be a "burden" loaded on the churches. The churches should not exist for the sake of a school, but the school should exist for the sake of the churches.

By the Grace of God

Walking in this faith, Grace Seminary has come a long way in the little more than three years of her existence. Our experiences during these years have taught us much more than we had known about the name we bear as a school. More than ever before, we have learned the meaning of God's grace. And there has been no time when we have not found this grace wholly sufficient. Our boast, therefore, is not in men, nor in mere things, but in His grace. As we review the past, we can see clearly many failures and much unworthiness on our part. But His grace has never failed. And we are encouraged because we remember that this is exactly what grace is—the undeserved favor of God. Well, we here at Grace Seminary have had a great deal of that kind of favor. In fact, that is the only kind we have had. Our greatest mistakes have always been made when we very foolishly imagined that we deserved something from God. And so we can say with Paul, "Where sin abounded, grace did much more abound." This language will be understood perfectly by all those who have had a personal experience of the saving and keeping grace of God, by all of you who have prayed for a school where this truth might be taught.

What God Hath Wrought

But let us come to details. Financially, we promised God in the beginning that this school would never go into debt for operating expenses, and to date we have never had to think about such a step. Sometimes we have not been able to see any distance in the future but when the time and the need came the Lord proved Himself faithful. When at the recent Winona Conference in August it seemed there would be no time to deal adequately with the matter of finance, in a few minutes you who were there placed a very wonderful offering in our hands. The cash received then, the pledges paid since, together with other outside gifts, met our needs to about the first of December. Then we had prayed definitely that everything could be cared for to the beginning of the Christmas vacation, Dec. 20, which this year will close our first semester. And the other day our tenant on the Laura Bussey farm sent us a check which will just carry us to that date—our share of an unusually fine crop of "soy beans!" Some educational authorities might not think it good for the academic health of a school to be dependent on a crop of beans to get through the first semester. But we were depending on the Lord, not the beans. As a matter of fact, we had not been sure at all about the crop of beans, considering the extremely dry weather in that part of the state, until we actually received the good news "by check." So, last Wednesday night at prayer meeting, we thanked God not only for the many gifts sent in through our friends, but also for the beans. A crop of soy beans may not be quite as elegant a form of income as interest on government bonds, but who are we that we should try to tell God how He should provide for us? "God hath chosen the foolish things . . . to confound the wise."

Our Greatest Need

Many of the churches have been taking special offerings for the Seminary at some time during the Christmas season, and many have indicated their intention of doing it again this year. I do not recall who started the custom, but we think it a very gracious action on the part of the pastors and churches. And we feel it would be fine if Christmas could be associated with the ministry of Grace Seminary, just as Easter is related to Foreign Missions, and Thanksgiving to Home Missions.

However, there may be churches where an offering at this time is not convenient, and which are planning to care for this at some later date. Therefore, let us repeat what has already been said above—Grace Seminary desires that each church and pastor shall settle this matter as the Lord may lead in their particular situation. "Every man according as he purposeth in his heart." If the Lord leads, everything will be as it should be.

But our real need is deeper than all this. Without the united prayers of all concerned, this ministry cannot prosper as it should. If all our friends will earnestly lay hold of God in prayer, all other problems will be solved easily, and we shall lack for nothing. Sometimes we say, rather unthoughtfully, "If you cannot give, you can pray." Of course, this is true in a certain sense. But looking at the matter from another angle, we have often found it harder to get down to business in genuine prayer than it is to make a nominal gift to some worthy cause. We would like to make this plea, therefore, that some time during the Christmas season each one of our churches set a special day of service for definite prayer for the work of Grace Seminary. Every church interested can do this now, even though some may plan to take an offering later.

The Kind of Friends We Have

Some time ago I wrote one of the good friends of the Seminary asking if she would care to write something about the school for publication. In her reply there was one paragraph so fine that I want to share it with the readers of the Herald. She said, "I could only wish for the literary ability to say well all that is in my heart when I think of Grace Seminary. I think I am able to talk about it best when I talk to the Lord in its behalf."

This is why Grace Seminary enjoys the blessing of God — we have friends like this throughout the churches, who are continually talking to the Lord about our work. We thank God for their ministry. May their number increase.

A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE Seminary Trustees

By Rev. A. V. Kimmell

The evidences that Grace Theological Seminary is of the Lord, and is operating in harmony with His will, can be found on every hand.

Many who read this will recall the splendid offering received from the friends present at the Winona Lake rally. We are happy to report that the cash received then and those pledges which have been paid to date, together with other gifts and the Laura Busey Memorial Fund income, will care for the financial needs of the Seminary up to the Christmas vacation period, about Dec. 20. For this we praise the Lord Jesus Christ, and we press forward, recognizing that all of these needs have been met by His faithfulness in answer to the prayers of many friends.

Rev. Kimmell

We are also very thankful for the gifts that come in apart from the annual Seminary rally at Winona. It is a happy surprise to find so many interested people who have no direct contact with the Seminary. The Lord just lays our needs upon their hearts and by this we know that He is working in our behalf in ways only known to Himself, which is just another evidence of His approval and blessing. "Let all those that seek thee rejoice and be glad in thee: and let such as love thy salvation say continually, let God be magnified" (Ps. 70:4).

Since the Lord has provided so abundantly for the first half of the current year, we look to Him with thanksgiving, confidently, for the remaining months. In this we know that He desires us to be "workers together with Him," and therefore we are reminded that there are thousands in The Brethren Church who could not attend the annual rally at Winona Lake to share in the first offering, but are just as anxious as others to share in this work of training preachers and missionaries. This privilege you must not be denied. Many churches are finding Christmas a convenient time and make it a successful way to provide the funds for the second half of the Seminary year. Our pastors and church officials, together with the members, can assist in this greatly by designating a particular offering to the Seminary. Since this has already become the practice in a number of the churches, without any official call having been made, it suggests that it would be a happy practice for all of the churches, and certainly a real blessing to the Seminary. With Thanksgiving set aside for Home Missions, and Easter set aside for Foreign Missions, it just seems reasonable that an offering at the Christmas season be dedicated to the Master Teacher, Who came to us as God's unspeakable gift, for the purpose of training men and women so that they can preach Him in all parts of the world.

If desired, it can be called the "White Gift Offering" or it can be made a part of such offering, or it can be made in the name of the Seminary itself, which might be better. It will be remembered that a gift of $5.00 or more makes the donor eligible for membership in the corporation with the right to vote in elections and at the business meetings.

As you are reading this, the Christmas season will be well on its way. In song and story, sermon and lesson, you will hear of the gifts of the wise men, "And when they were come into the house, they saw the young Child with Mary His mother, and fell down, and worshipped Him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto Him gifts, gold, frankincense, and myrrh" (Matt. 2:11).

The practical results of training in Grace Theological Seminary are already in evidence. Graduates are accepted for the foreign mission fields; some are home mission pastors: others are ministering in established churches; several graduates not of The Brethren Church are pastors in other denominations and have a wonderful testimony for the Seminary. In addition to this, recognition is coming from similar institutions of the highest standing, without any solicitation whatever on our part.

We are more than thankful to Him Who loved us and gave Himself for us. We are also thankful to the hundreds who pray for this work and give to it. Surely there is no better way to lay up treasures in heaven.

WHAT GRACE SEMINARY MEANS TO THE # Women's Missionary Council

By Mrs. A. B. Kidder, Editor for the Women's Missionary Council

First of all, let us consider the question: What is The Women's Missionary Council? It is an organization of Brethren women to promote the spread of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ at home and abroad. This is its outstanding purpose—all of its program must tend toward that one end. One important feature of this work is the gathering of funds for the support of those boards which are engaged in this task directly—The Foreign Missionary Society and The Brethren Home Missions Council.

But the women of our Council well realize that the furnishing of money alone will not accomplish the purpose of getting the gospel to the uttermost parts of the earth, nor indeed to the unsaved at home. Men and women with the love of God in their hearts, and yielded to God for sacrificial service, must be found to man the front lines and bear the burden and heat of the day. But one thing more is still needed—these consecrated men and women must be trained for the specific task to which God has called or may call them.

This is just where Grace Seminary fits into the picture. The gospel ministry is essentially a teaching ministry, and the teacher must know well the subject he is to teach, therefore our Seminary specializes and emphasizes the study of the Word of God, which is the revelation by God Himself of the gospel. All the necessary related subjects are taught, of course, but God's Word holds the center of the curriculum of this school. Then too the practical side is not neglected; students are busy, many with regular preaching places, others in gospel team work, Bible teaching, personal evangelism. In short, they are "redeeming the time."

This, then, is what Grace Seminary means to The Women's Missionary Council: it is the agency under God which transmutes our prayers, our hopes, our funds into a living fulfilment of our Lord's command to witness to the whole earth.

And so we Brethren women praise the Lord continually for Grace Seminary, for the quality of the men on its faculty, for the fine make-up of its student body, for its ever widening Christian influence; and we pray continually that our school be kept true to the Word, and be supported fully to continue its great work, and that the W.M.C. may be blessed in its support of Grace Seminary.

GRACE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY:

An Evaluation

By Louis S. Bauman, D.D.

Secretary-Treasure of The Foreign Missionary Society of The Brethren Church

Dr. Bauman

We have heard it said very emphatically, and a good many times during the past few months, that there is no such thing as an "indispensable man". And, that is probably true. One by one the greatest of saints have departed out of this life, men who seemed to be utterly indispensable to the forward march of the church, but after their departure God's work moved forward in spite of the seeming loss.

John the Baptist, the apostle Peter, the apostle John, the apostle Paul, Martin Luther, John Calvin,

John Knox, John Wesley, D. L. Moody,—one by one they were taken up to be with Christ, but the cause they represented moved forward just the same. We have learned that "God buries his workmen, but carries on His work"

However, while a man may never be indispensable, that is not to say that there is nothing that is indispensable. Institutions may be absolutely indispensable. And we do not hesitate to say that, if The Brethren Church is to live, and her great purpose under God is to be fulfilled, then there is one institution that is indispensable, and that is a real Seminary where her young men may be trained—

First, to know Christ and Him crucified.

Secondly, to know the Scriptures which reveal the Christ and the gospel of salvation that He proclaimed.

Thirdly, to know the church whose mission it is to preach that gospel, the whole of that gospel, and nothing but that gospel.

Fourthly, to know how to make known that Christ, and that gospel, and that church, to the world of men.

Today, Grace Seminary is that institution. In Grace Seminary, we have a school whose teachers know Christ and Him crucified, and have gained the sympathy, the prayers, and the good will of the great fundamentalist forces in America—forces that still preach Christ and Him crucified, the hope of the world, the hope of the ages.

Likewise, the teachers in Grace Seminary know the Scriptures that reveal the Christ, and Him crucified, and are able to "rightly divide" those Scriptures, imparting the vital message of God to those who sit at their feet.

Likewise, the teachers in Grace Seminary know the thought that was in the minds of the organizers of The Brethren Church—the purpose for which The Brethren Church came into existence. They know the church was set from her beginning to make known to men the "good news" (i.e., the gospel); and, they know how to distinguish between the law which is "the ministration of death" (II Cor. 3:7), and "the grace of God that bringeth salvation . . . to all men" (Titus 2:11).

Likewise, if "by their fruits" we are to "know them," then those in command at Grace Seminary are men who know how to train young men and women in the business of making that gospel known to all men. For "the grace of God (that) bringeth salvation" is "unto all men".

The writer is in a position to know that the young men and women that are trained under the tutors of Grace Theological Seminary are without exception thoroughly missionary in spirit. Under them, the major part of our foreign missionary force has been trained. Under them, the strong effective home mission forces have also in large part received their training. The Grace Seminary boys and girls go out and produce results. The evidence of the worth of an institution is in its product. The hope of the future for The Brethren Church lies very largely in the hands of the men and the women who have been under the tutelage of Dr. Alva J. McClain and his associated teachers.

Any man or woman who values The Brethren Church for what it has done for them; or who believes in its mission to be carried forward "until He come"; or who wishes to contribute to an institution that has as the sole purpose of its existence to know Christ and to make Him known—at no place can such a man or woman give a dollar to accomplish these results more effectively than by sending it to Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind.

It is because he realizes this that the writer has done all in his power to place his church and his own life squarely back of this fine institution of which we are all so justly proud.

"TWO OF YOU"

(Mat. 18-19)

If two of you agree on earth,

As touching anything
That ye shall ask in drought or dearth,—
Prayer shall its answer bring.

If two of you agree—just two—
Not numbers swayed by power,
But two linked hearts, with purpose true,
That pray in some dark hour;

If two of you agree—just two—
Who share a heavy load,
Or with sad questioning eyes pursue
The lone Emmaus road;

If two of you—just two—agree,
Thereby encouraging
Each other, strong in faith to be,—
Prayer shall its answer bring.

If two of you agree to ask
In Jesus' Name for aught,
Your Father undertakes the task
Of doing what ye sought!

GRACE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY—

Personal Impressions

By Homer A. Kent

Professor at Grace Theological Seminary, Winona Lake, Ind.

I have not long been affiliated with Grace Seminary as a full time member of the faculty, but long enough to form some very definite impressions of the school which I should like to share with my readers.

Prof. Kent

First, I have been wonderfully impressed with the fine type of consecration which I have witnessed among the students. It is very evident that each student is in the Seminary as a result of a definite dedication of life unto the Lord. Some are in school at a real sacrifice as far as material things are concerned but they are trusting the Lord to see them through. And the Lord is honoring such faith in a marvelous way!

Second, I have been greatly impressed with the earnest devotion of the students to the study of God's Word. Seldom has the writer seen more eagerness on the part of young people in the study of the Scriptures. One cannot help but be encouraged in the work of the Lord when he sees such zeal for divine knowledge. It assures us that the future will see men and women mighty in the Scriptures in places of leadership.

Third, I have been deeply impressed with the exemplary prayer life of the student body. The students know how to pray and delight in prayer. The prayer meetings in the school in which both students and faculty join are like a breath from heaven. Such a dependence upon God in prayer is bearing and will bear much fruit.

Fourth, I have been remarkably impressed with the passion to win souls which is present among the students of the Seminary. It is stimulating from week to week to hear them tell of the efforts put forth in churches, C. C. C. camps, trains, jails and elsewhere to reach the unsaved for Christ. May such zeal ever continue!

Fifth, the writer has been most happily impressed with the manner in which the students and faculty work together in the life of the school. This intimate contact between faculty and students is mutually helpful to both. The credit for this situation, as far so much else that is commendable in the school, is largely due to its president, Dr. Alva J. McClain, who has had a vision of a Seminary with high scholastic standards and at the same time a warm spiritual life. This vision is being splendidly fulfilled at Grace Seminary.

Lastly, I have been impressed by the good name which the Seminary bears in the community where it resides. The school has given a good account of itself during its location at Winona and there is happy fellowship with the churches and people of this place. May Grace Seminary ever be kept true to her high calling!

GRACE SEMINARY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF

A Brethren Home Missions Pastor

By Rev. John H. Squires, pastor, First Brethren Church of Wooster, O.

Our home mission fields need Grace Theological Seminary, for as Grace Seminary goes, so goes Brethren home missions. Back of a large and ever expanding home mission field there must be a Seminary that is producing Christ-called and Christ-consecrated men. The day that our Seminary ceases to send pastors out from its doors, that day will mark the halt of Brethren home missions in America. God forbid that such a day should ever come! Now, as never before, there is the opportunity before us to bring men to Christ. Keep open the doors that swing out from Grace Seminary into our home mission fields.

Our home mission fields need the kind of men that Grace Seminary can produce. In home mission points, as elsewhere, there is no place for half-prepared preachers. They demand the very best kind of preachers that can be delivered. In the home mission field the pastor must be trained for a Bible teaching ministry, and if he has graduated from Grace Seminary he has that training.

Perhaps no field of Christian service within The Brethren Church offers a more severe and accurate proving ground for Grace graduates than our home mission points. Every field has its battles, difficulties, hardships and heartaches. But to the pastor who is in the pioneer work of building a church from the bottom up, the home mission field holds a unique place. The merits of Grace Seminary are immediately seen in this connection for the Seminary prepares the home mission pastor for his field.

Our home mission fields have already begun to show how they feel about Grace Seminary. The day will come when our home mission points will be responsible for the presence of many young men and women enrolled in the Seminary. Already word comes to us that several of our newly established mission points have in their midst young men and women who have given their lives to Christ for full time service. These young people will enter Grace Seminary to receive the best Bible training that can be found in America. How thankful we are that we have a seminary which we can recommend without reservation to all those who want to prepare for the greatest work in the world.

Brethren home missions are watching the doors of Grace Seminary. They are watching and praying that yearly they shall see coming forth from those doors men in love with Christ, ready to serve Him in the ranks of those who are pioneering for Christ. Pray for our Seminary and support it with your gifts. Every gift to Grace Seminary is a vote for an enlarged home mission field, and an enlarged mission field means more souls won for Christ.

GRACE SEMINARY NEEDED BY

Brethren Home Missions

Mr. Roy A. Patterson, President, The Home Missions Council

When The Brethren Home Missions Council was organized, those responsible for this work recognized the necessity of being assured that the motto, "The Bible, the whole Bible and nothing but the Bible," should be more to The Brethren Church than a mere collection of words without spiritual significance.

We realize that the organization and supervision of our young mission churches must be through a program which makes certain, at least in a large degree, that those doctrines which have made a place for The Brethren Church, shall be protected and proclaimed.

With such purpose in mind, mission churches are required to preserve and to emphasize these doctrines. It is our belief if this program is followed by the membership of these embryo Brethren Churches, while receiving support and supervision through your home missions offering, they will not depart very far as they grow into the self supporting churches of our denomination.

Important as the careful organization and supervision of mission churches may be, equally important and perhaps more important is the spiritual quality of ministry in those churches. It is necessary that we have pastors in all our churches, both dependent and self supporting, whose messages and leadership give full import, expression and sanction to the message in that motto which The Brethren Church seeks to declare to the world.

Our denomination can be assured of having a proper trained ministry by lending our every aid and assistance to the institution whose very basic reason for creation and existence is to train young people to know, believe and teach the precious truths of the Word.

Grace Theological Seminary is an institution which owes its birth to a fervent desire to provide a ministry and laity, in our Brethren Churches, whose very lives are possessed and motivated by the doctrines which are so precious to every Brethren Church and its membership.

It is the task, as declared, to which Grace Theological Seminary is fully committed. It is to Grace Seminary that home missions must look for a thoroughly Brethren trained ministry. The self supporting churches should also recognize the very important mission of this institution. The spiritual status of our future Brethren Churches and our churches in the future rests, very largely, upon the product of Grace Theological Seminary.

The home missions program and Grace Seminary are inseparable. All who desire to see strong mission churches founded will desire to see those same churches continued under the guidance of fundamental dealers. Our "home missions dollars" are wasted unless they are invested in a manner which will provide proper results.

As we approach the season for making our contributions to the educational interest of our denomination, may we remind ourselves that we need Grace Theological Seminary, and Grace Theological Seminary needs our most liberal and kindly financial support and our earnest prayers for her success. In either of these may there be nothing but the best.

Again, we most earnestly urge all friends and home missions to consider how much Brethren home missions need Grace Theological Seminary, and may your response be likewise most liberal to this indispensable work.

GRACE SEMINARY FROM THE STANDPOINT OF

A Brethren Missionary

By Miss Elizabeth Tyson, Missionary to French Equatorial Africa

"The evangelization of the heathen world in the place where it is carried on is certainly not an issue of strange customs and adventures as thrilling as a romance, it is a desperate struggle with the prince of darkness and with everything his rage can stir up in the shape of obstacles, vexations, opposition and hatred, whether by circumstance or by the hand of man. It is a serious task. It needs a life of consecration and faith." These were the words of one of the great missionaries to Japan.

Consecration or the yielding of life to the call of God is of the most vital importance and should be the first step in preparation for Christian service. However, consecration in itself is not sufficient to face the subtle realities of the powers of darkness in heathen lands. A thorough knowledge of God's written Word, and an implicit faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, the living Word, is absolutely essential and necessary in order to be efficient and fruitful servants of God. The shield of faith must still be our protection against the fiery darts of the wicked one, but how often consecrated workers have failed to put on this part of the armour, simply because they lacked in the knowledge of God's Word. "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the Word of God" (Rom. 10:17).

Brethren missionaries must be trained men and women of faith, and there is no better place to secure that training "in the school of faith" than at Grace Theological Seminary. This Seminary is literally a product of faith in a faithful God; it was born in faith, and has grown by faith. It has the high scholastic standards which are required today, yet they do not overbalance the deep spiritual life of the school. The faculty members are not only men of intellect, but also men of faith and lovers of the truth as it is revealed in the Word; hence it is not surprising to find the graduates, our preachers and missionaries, to be stalwart men of faith, who are prepared and ready to meet the great task of reaching men with the gospel of the grace of God. They truly are "laborers who need not blush for His work, but who drive the ploughshare of truth in a straight furrow" (2 Tim. 2:15, Weymouth).

God bless Grace Seminary in its message and ministry, that through the training of consecrated young lives many precious souls may be brought to our Lord Jesus Christ and be built up in the faith which we all love and cherish.

The One Body

By Rev. R. D. Barnard, President, The Brethren Missionary Herald Co.

"As the body is one, and hath many members," so the church is one and has many members. Certainly we are not out of harmony with the spirit of this Scripture when we speak of Grace Theological Seminary, of The Brethren Home Missions Council, of The Foreign Missionary Society, of The Brethren Missionary Herald Co., of The Woman's Missionary Council, of the Sisterhood of Mary and Martha, and of the many other service units of the church as members of the body of The Brethren Church.

For the body to be healthy, all the members must be healthy. The body is greater than any or all of its members, and if they offend the body, that body may cut them off. But, even so, the happy, healthy arrangement is when every member of the body functions properly, and the body and members are happy. We pray that this arrangement may always prevail in The Brethren Church.

We are writing, today, in the interest of Grace Theological Seminary. But as the readers of this article will know, we are as vitally interested in the other members of our denominational body as we are in this one. May the interest of all of us always be in all of our work!

You have just expressed a most definite and substantial interest in our work of home missions at the Thanksgiving season. We are sure that substantial expression will have been sufficient for all of our home mission needs. You will certainly express your interest in the great program of The Brethren Church in carrying the gospel into distant lands in the fast approaching Easter season. May your expressions be abundant! You will care for the needs of the other members of the body in proper and fitting times; of this we have no doubt.

Grace Theological Seminary sets no dates and makes no specific demands. Hers has always been a free-will ministry and we trust it always shall be. But in past years many churches have used the Christmas season to give all interested Brethren people an opportunity to make a substantial and supporting expression of interest in the Seminary.

What could be more fitting than that at this season of giving, when we celebrate God's great giving of His only Son to earth, that we should give to Grace Theological Seminary! She trains and equips young men and women to go out and tell the wondrous story of salvation to men in a world scarred and marred with sin. Grace Seminary assures you that to such preparation alone, she is dedicated. Yes, in ways far more than we can probably ever know, as we sustain her, we preach the gospel to the ends of the earth.

Pray for Grace Seminary, for her faculty, for her students, for her board of directors, for her friends. Pray with us that the future may continue to reveal the Lord's blessing through Grace Theological Seminary to the whole church, and thence, to the whole world.

Training for Leadership

By Rev. Norman Uphouse, News Editor for Brethren C. E.

A MESSAGE TO EVERY CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORER IN THE BRETHREN CHURCH

One of the tasks of Christian Endeavor is to train for leadership. However, we understand that there is a limit to which a society can do this. Certainly it falls far short of what is needed for a full time Christian worker.

Beyond the work of the society, there is a possibility of one attending a Bible Institute. This is a wonderful opportunity, and accomplishes a great thing for the student as far as it is able to go. This work especially appeals to one who does not have much time for preparation or does not feel able to go to college.

A Bible College is a different organization. One planning to take advanced Bible work ought to go to a sound Bible College. It is this type of school that gives the best preparation for a graduate seminary. In itself, it must be regarded as only the foundation or beginning.

The Graduate Seminary offers the highest type of Bible instruction. It is the desire of such schools to have their students complete the college course before entering the seminary.

Now we know that many people have done great things for the Lord even though they had no special training or instruction. These were among the exceptions. The general rule calls for the best training and best instruction in order to assure the best results. Christian Endeavor workers realize this today.

As a man interested in the promotion of Christian Endeavor and the development of Christian leaders in the church today, I believe that a young person who can attend Grace Theological Seminary will never need to feel that the instruction received there was inferior to any in the United States. I meet men constantly who graduated from the popular and wealthy seminaries in the East, and know that many have gone for the name or for some other reason that did not come from a conscientious conviction. Too many have never received the proper instruction to equip them for the Lord's work.

Inasmuch as our Christian Endeavors today will gradually fill the places of importance and teaching in our church, we ought to have a part in supporting our graduate school in Theology. Its connection to Christian Endeavor is inseparable. Young people from Christian Endeavor will constitute much of the student body at Grace Seminary and the graduates from the school will determine the policies and work of our societies.

Too many times we have heard of and felt the sting of heresy in educational institutions and were compelled to withdraw interest and support. On the other hand, I am happy to say to every Christian Endeavorer that we can conscientiously support and recommend Grace Theological Seminary to prospective students as a school true to the Lord and outstanding in defense of the faith.

Messages From Seminary Trustees

"The brightest outlook in The Brethren Church, humanly speaking, is to be found in the leadership being trained at our Seminary. A gift here is a gift to every other department of the church. Wisdom and loyalty will compel generous support to Grace Theological Seminary."

—W. A. Ogden, pastor of the First Brethren Church, L. A., Calif.

"It is a pleasure to be associated with a group of men in connection with the affairs of Grace Theological Seminary. I believe many do not fully realize the amount of good that is being accomplished through the Seminary. May God's richest blessings rest upon each member of the faculty."

—L. T. Burkett, layman of the First Brethren Church, Dayton, O.

"I am so thankful for Grace Theological Seminary for I know that through its work The Brethren Church is obtaining that which is needed more than money or anything else—men and women equipped spiritually and intellectually to preach and teach the Word, build our churches, and man our mission fields."

—Herman W. Koantz, pastor of the Ghent Brethren Church, Roanoke, Va.

"What The Brethren Church needs most today is preachers who are approved of God, unashamed, and who rightly divide the Word. The institution that makes this possible in young lives is worthy of all the support we can give it. Grace Seminary is that institution in The Brethren Church today."

—William H. Clough, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Uniontown, Pa.

"We Brethren ought to consider it a great privilege to have a part in helping support an institution such as Grace Theological Seminary, which trains young men to go out and fearlessly preach the Word of God and lead men to Jesus Christ."

—Paul Arnold, layman of the Brethren Church.

"We have no need greater than that of a strong training center for the preparation of full time workers for the home and foreign fields. We can advance only as we have available men and women who are solidly grounded in the Word of God. At the Christmas season may we devote a liberal portion of our means to support this great need."

—Frank Coleman, pastor of the Grace Brethren Church, Waterloo, Ia.

"Only those of us who are thrown in contact with the product of most of the denominational theological seminaries of our day know the need of supporting an institution like our Grace Seminary at Winona Lake. It is not just another school like many others, but one in a class by itself."

—A. D. Cashman, pastor of West Homer Brethren Church, Homerville, O.

"After spending most of my life under a teaching ministry of the social gospel type, and now after eight years have elapsed since God, through His marvelous grace, brought a new revelation of Himself to me through the finished work of my wonderful Lord and Savior on Calvary's cross, I feel deeply indebted to serve my Lord in supporting an institution like Grace Theological Seminary where the pure gospel of salvation by grace, plus nothing, is so efficiently and effectually taught without reservation by its most capable professors."

—Cleve G. Miller, layman of the Grace Brethren Church, Waterloo, Ia.

"Why the greatest white gift offering ever this year for the Seminary? First, because of the appalling need for trained men to man the churches that are opening up to us. Second, the time is short and the gospel demands haste."

—J. S. Cook, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Dallas Center, Ia.

"The challenge of the Christian ministry today is greater than ever before. The forces arrayed against the gospel message are more numerous and mightier. Today demands the best preparation possible for the Christian minister. The laborers are few, it is true. The King's business demands haste. But it is false economy to spare preparation. More will be accomplished in the time left after thorough preparation has been made than to spend less time in preparation and more in action. Therefore, there is great need for Grace Seminary. The Lord has unquestionably put His hand of approval upon this noble institution. When we give to it we are making investments in The Brethren Church. Dividends will continue even into eternity."

—Chas. H. Ashman, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Whittier, Calif.

"On this anniversary of our Savior's birth we greet you in behalf of our Seminary. Grace Seminary is a testimony to His grace, for "grace and truth" came by Jesus Christ. Let us sing as did the angels, worship as did the shepherds, and give gifts and homage as did the wise men, on His first birthday. A Christ-honoring Christmas means a happy Christmas."

—Orville A. Lorenz, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Meyersdale, Pa.

"On my visit to Winona Lake, I was impressed with the building and grounds as ideal for the Seminary. I believe there is no higher calling for man than this great work of training men and women for the ministry, and therefore, it deserves the largest share of our tithe."

—C. T. Belt, layman of the First Brethren Church, Long Beach, Calif.

"Greetings in the name of our blessed Lord Who bought us and loosed us from our sin. In these trying days of intense and increased testings from within and from without, God's servants must prepare for every move of Satan's strategy. In Luke 18:1 we read—"that men ought always to pray and not to faint." We need Bible study and prayer within to meet the increased pressure from without to keep us strong. For every added pound of pressure from without, God supplies added grace within."

—J. L. Gingrich, pastor, First Brethren Church, Allentown, Pa.

The great purpose of Grace Seminary, "To know Christ", is the most blessed privilege granted to man. It is the most precious gift in the power of God to bestow. To look back at the "old man" and forward to our inheritance surely is a great joy. But to be called "to make Him known" in addition to knowing Him—surely "my cup runneth over".

—R. E. Donaldson, layman, First Brethren Church, Washington, D.C.

"I count it a privilege to be connected with Grace Seminary of Winona Lake, Ind. Our school under the capable leadership of Pres. McClain and the Seminary faculty will continue to train young men and women for the special functions of Christian work—the ministry and missionary service. Our school is turning out well trained, consecrated men and women who are loyal to the Word. Let us back Grace Seminary with our prayers and gifts. In this way each one can have a definite part in the spreading of the gospel."

—Wm. A. Steffler, pastor of the Third Brethren Church, Philadelphia, Pa.

"Grace Theological Seminary is both an answer to and a challenge to our faith. It was born in a prayer meeting (I was there) and continues to live by prayer. The Lord must have needed a testimony like this in these uncertain days or He would never have answered the prayers of His humble and unworthy servants in such a marvelous manner when even under trying circumstances, He brought Grace Theological Seminary into existence."

—W. H. Schaffer, pastor of the First Brethren Church, Conemaugh, Pa.

Few realize, I'm afraid, the tremendous responsibility that rests upon a pastor. His commission is definite: "feed my sheep." To feed them The Truth, he must first be trained by competent Bible teachers. Grace Seminary offers this training to a remarkable degree. And to us it offers an opportunity—through our gifts—to share in a ministry of unlimited scope and untold blessings. Where could we invest our tithe to accomplish more?

F. B. Miller, layman, First Brethren Church, Cleveland, O.

Student Testimonies

"Apart from the fundamental character of the teaching at Grace Seminary, the most important and valuable contribution to my personal life and public ministry has been a practical working illustration, in the lives of students and faculty members alike, of what our Lord meant when He said through Paul, 'Come out from among them, and be ye separate.'"

—Gene Allen

"In reflecting upon the many schools that were at one time strongholds for the faith, but are now in an apostate condition, it is with joy that I consider my association with Grace Seminary as a student for the past year and a half. I can truly testify that this school holds a unique position in educational circles today, for it provides a genuine spiritual, devotional and evangelistic atmosphere, without sacrificing academic standards. I count it a privilege and honor to be in preparation for the ministry here at Grace Seminary."

—Walter H. Miekley

"I am glad to offer a word of personal testimony for Grace Theological Seminary. Since coming here our zeal for souls has become a zeal "according to knowledge." The teaching in the classrooms is of such a practical nature that it can be used as we go out to work for our Lord. Also, personal conferences with faculty members have gone far in the moulding of my life while a student here. Another thing that has impressed me is the deep consecration of the student body to the Lord, something I have found in no other school. I do praise Him for leading me here to study His Word."

—Earl D. Umbaugh

"With thanksgiving to my Lord I desire to express appreciation for the opportunity of attending such a school as Grace Seminary. To me its scholastic, spiritual, and social standards are all that one could desire in a school, and certainly more than could be found in many. But the greatest thing is that the ministry of Grace Seminary has brought me nearer to my Lord, and my Lord nearer to me."

—Phillip J. Simmons

"In an age governed largely by modernism and unbelief, it is not easy to find a Seminary true to the faith "once delivered." But I have found Grace Seminary, with its Spirit-charged environment and its Bible-centered curriculum, just such a school. I am thankful that God has allowed me to sit under the teaching of a faculty whose love for the Lord and His Word, added to their high scholarship, has made a deep impression on the students training here. Going out from this place I shall be better prepared to give a reason for the faith which is in me."

—William Kerr

"It was indeed a great day in my life when the Lord led me to Grace Theological Seminary. I can never thank Him enough for the blessings which He has showered upon me since I answered the call to preach

His Word and He brought me into the fellowship we enjoy here at Grace Seminary. Thus He has supplied my need according to the promise in Phil. 4:19."

—Robert W. Hill

"As we see the thirsty multitudes perishing at the "broken cisterns" of mere human philosophy and tradition, we are made to thank God that He has been pleased to open a channel here at Grace Seminary in Winona Lake through which the "Living Water" may flow to thirsty souls."

—Jack W. Mellick

"Having been subjected for the past two years to the teachings of a heretical college, I praise the Lord Jesus Christ that He led me to become a student at Grace Seminary. Here my schooling has become a pleasure, rather than the drudgery which it had been. I have no further need now to be warring constantly the "Sword of the Spirit" in defense of my convictions. Grace Seminary is Scripturally sound."

—Jack Shaffer

"Grace Theological Seminary has given me the opportunity of studying the Word of God under teachers yielded to God and able to guide us along the narrow path of divine truth, thus preparing us intellectually and spiritually for His service. Our lives have been deepened by our studies in this sanctuary. I praise God for this privilege, and also for the fellowship of students who are living lives of separation from the world."

—Clarence Nida

"We are thankful to God for bringing us here to Grace Seminary, where His Word is faithfully taught and believed, and where our Lord Jesus Christ is truly exalted. He has richly blessed our lives also through the outside channels of service, on gospel teams and in the jail work."

—Mr. and Mrs. Herman Boerg

"The Lord has been very gracious in giving me the privilege of attending Grace Seminary. One thing that impresses me is the kindness shown us who are students regardless of our denomination. It is here that I have learned the true meaning of "grace," not only from the Word taught, but also from the testimony of those in charge of the school."

—Flo Mellick

"It has been a great privilege to attend Grace Seminary this year. My first contact with the school was during its first annual session while located in the city of Akron, O. While attending the University there, I took several courses in the Seminary. These few hours each week spent under the God-given teachers in charge were as refreshing as a beautiful oasis in a parched desert. We praise God for permitting us to be here."

—Don and Helen Hare

"I am indeed thankful to my heavenly Father for the privilege of attending Grace Seminary again this year. The greatest blessing I have received is a fresh and clearer vision of my Lord and His finished work of salvation at Calvary. And this vision has been brought to me through a systematic study of His precious Word."

—Ralph Rambo

"I do thank and praise God for this Seminary and for the blessed privileges I have in being a student here. God has blessed me very richly thus far, and I am looking forward to even greater things in the coming days and months."

—Hugh M. McInnes

"The thing which has meant most to me during my few months here at the Seminary is the deep spiritual quality of the work in the classrooms. We leave our classes feeling as if we had been in some uplifting service of worship where the Word of God has been presented in the power of the Spirit. This has meant a great deal to those of us who go out to minister to others, enabling us to pass along some of the blessing and strength we ourselves have received."

—J. Keith Altig

"Feeling the need of more training and special study in a theological school after my graduation from college, I had prayed definitely that God would make this possible. And the Lord answered prayer by opening the way for me to enter Grace Seminary last year from my pastorate at Clay City, Ind. The atmosphere here in fellowship, study, and Christian activity with students and faculty, I have found to be above any other institution I have attended or known."

—Paul A. Davis

"I rejoice and testify to the marvelous grace of God for permitting me to be here at Grace Seminary. Coming here as a student with certain handicaps, I have much appreciated the kind and friendly co-operation extended on the part of both faculty and students. Nowhere else have I found such a devoted spirit of fellowship as I have enjoyed here. Above all, I am thankful for this preparation to give forth the message of His wonderful gospel."

—Peter Bury

"Surely God must have chosen the location of Grace Seminary. We do enjoy greatly the deeply spiritual atmosphere, not only of the school, but also of the surrounding community. I count it a real privilege to be permitted to come here to study and grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

—Harold O. Mayer

"I certainly praise the Lord for His marvelous grace in allowing me to attend Grace Seminary. The benefits have not only been intellectual but spiritual. I count it a great privilege to be able, in this day, to attend a school where Christ is uplifted and the Word of God is taught in truth and in its entirety."

—Glenn O'Neal

"This is my first year at Grace Seminary and it is certainly a wonderful, new experience for me. The instruction in the classes, the fellowship of the students, and the genuine spirit of love that fills everything, is a constant source of joy to me. I shall never cease to praise the Lord for permitting me to attend such a school."

—Mrs. Glenn O'Neal

BIBLE SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

IDEAS FOR YOUR BIBLE SCHOOL

Selected From The Sunday School Times

REGULAR ATTENDANCE

A special campaign to build up the membership was carried on without any red tape or record keeping. The period covered one month. On the first Sunday every one present received a red ribbon badge; the second Sunday the red was exchanged for a blue ribbon; the third Sunday a white ribbon took the place of the blue, and on the fourth Sunday a striped red, white, and blue ribbon bookmark was given all those who had been present for the four Sundays.

HIGH POINTS OF ACHIEVEMENT

One school issues a bulletin at the close of each year and lists important events in the school history in chronological order. The names of scholars uniting with the church are always given, as this is after all the most important event in any school.

CONTACTING ABSENTEES

Believing that a school with a large membership is handicapped when a high percentage of these members are inactive, one school has the membership mapped out in districts. Each district is in charge of a committee of three. When a member is absent and the teacher has not been able to reach him, then the name is given the committee in charge of the district in which he lives, and a visit is made to the home.

IDEAS FOR ALL OCCASIONS

In the school office of one church is a long box containing a number of big Manila envelopes. This is the file in which are kept all sorts of things that are of interest to a worker. One file is marked "Rally Day," another "Christmas," still another, "Absentees." In all there are more than fifty classifications. Plans and ideas are clipped from old Sunday school papers and filed away for future use. Does some worker visit another school and run across a good idea? Then it is written down and filed in its proper envelope. Does the school work out a special day program? Then a copy is filed away so that at some other time it may be used if needed. The idea is that here all together are to be found the plans for any particular phase of the work, and when the school is getting ready for a special day, seeking a solution to some problem or a plan for building up a department, there may be on hand material that will suggest something to be used.

QUARTERLY FELLOWSHIP

Four times a year, in an eastern school, the entire Sunday school body gets together for a night of good fellowship. New friendships are formed, teachers and parents become better acquainted, and a spirit of good fellowship is created.

CLOCK RECORDS FOR PRIMARY CHILDREN

Primary children are just beginning to take active interest in clocks and watches. A clock record card will prove interesting for one or more quarters of the year at this time. For younger pupils the one-hand system, which marks attendance only, might be used; but the older ones will like the minute hand also which marks points won in attendance, promptness, offering, home work prepared, and deportment in class, five minutes for each point won.

Find a clock picture in an advertisement and use this for a pattern, cutting it out and using it for outline only. Sketch the face and the numbers on each clock and let the children color the frames to suit their fancy the last Sunday of the quarter as hand work. They also fasten on the hands cut from black paper and attached to the face by means of a split clip, enabling them to move freely.

The first Sunday of the quarter set the hands at twelve noon, each child present attending to his own. Then move the larger hand forward five minutes for every point the child has won that day.

Each Sunday the hour hand is moved forward an hour for each pupil present. If one is absent the hour is punched out and the hand set forward to the number corresponding with the Sunday he is again in his place. But the longer hand on each clock is set forward each Sunday according to the number of points won. If a child has a perfect record this is 25 minutes a Sunday and on the third Sunday he reaches and passes the noon hour. When a child passes the noon hour with his long hand he is entitled to punch a hole in the margin of his clock frame and go right on as many minutes past as he has won points. When he again reached the noon hour he punches another hole

The interest in this longest hand and its movements become intense as the holes in the margin grow in number. If a child has a perfect record at the end of a quarter he has five perforations in the edge of his clock and the longer hand standing at 25 minutes after 12. If a child misses one Sunday but has a perfect record for every Sunday he is present, his card would show five perforations in the edge, with the longer hand standing at 12 noon and one hour numeral punched out.

The children take their clocks home to show to their families and explain how they work. Ours liked them so well we used them again, but made them watches instead of clocks which they wore home, pinned to their breasts, at the end of the quarter.

Amen.

OUR BOY'S and GIRL'S VERY OWN PAGE

"INTO MY HEART, LORD JESUS"

"Away in a manger, no crib for His bed,
The little Lord Jesus laid down His sweet head;
The stars in the heavens looked down where He lay,
The little Lord Jesus, asleep on the hay."

So sang a mother to her little boy. Howard loved stories of the Lord Jesus, and often as he went to bed at night, he would say, "Mother, a true story of Jesus, please!" But tonight as his mother sang, his heart was heavy and all at once he began to cry.

"What can the matter be, Howard?" she said; "does something hurt you?"

And she gathered Howard into her arms and hugged him close. He was sobbing and nothing she could do seemed to comfort him. He cried so hard that for a long time he could not tell what he was crying about. Finally he said, "Oh, Mother, it is the song! Why didn't Jesus have any crib? Why was He born in a stable? Why did he have no soft mattress to lie on? Poor little Jesus! Why, I have such a soft bed and lots of covers, I wish He could sleep in my bed."

And again the little boy sobbed on his mother's shoulders.

"Listen, my boy, and I will tell you more about Jesus. Yes, He was born in an old stable because there was no room for His mother and Him in the inn. But when He came to earth, it was a glad day for the people who lived here and it was a wonderful day for you and me, too. Men's hearts were dark and sinful and Jesus came to earth because He loved us and wanted to show us how we could have white hearts instead of black hearts, how we could be happy instead of sorrowful and ugly. He lived just as the poorest live, He preached, He taught, He made sick people well, He even brought dead folk back to life again and then one day just because He loved us so much, He died for us that our sins might be forgiven and our hearts made clean. You remember I told you the other day that when the angels told the shepherds that Jesus was born, they sang, "Glory to God in the highest, on earth peace, good will toward men." Why did they sing that song? Because this Jesus was God's Son and He came to earth to make us all good and to get us ready to live in heaven with him some day. Yes, He wants us to be His children, His very own. That is how much He loves us. Aren't you glad?"

And Howard looked into his mother's face and cried,

"Oh, Mother did He do all that for me? I wish I could do something for Him."

"You can, my son, you can."

"But what, Mother, tell me what?"

"This is what you can do. Jesus wants your heart to be all clean because He wants to live in your heart. Our hearts can really be His home! Did you know that? They aren't wonderful and beautiful like the homes many people live in today, but just as Jesus was willing to be born in a stable, just so Jesus is willing to live in your heart and mine and make us pure and good and happy. Will you give Him your heart to be His home?"

Now the little boy's heart was almost bursting with joy

"Oh, yes, Mother, I will! I want Him to make me pure; I want Him to live in my heart always. I'll tell Him so right now."

And down on his knees he went and he prayed,

"Oh, Jesus, here is my heart. It isn't much, but Thou canst have all there is of it. And I want to love Thee forever because Thou art willing to live in my heart!"

And as he prayed the mother sang softly,

"Into my heart, into my heart,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus;
Come in today, come in to stay,
Come into my heart, Lord Jesus."

There was no room in the inn for Jesus that night so long ago, and so he was born in a manger. Is there room in your heart for Jesus today?

—The Evangelical Friend.

"GRACE SEMINARY A BLESSING" TO

the Sisterhood of

MARY and MARTHA

By Ethel Morrill, President of the Sisterhood of Mary and Martha

The Word of God is filled with countless examples of the labors of godly women. The Old Testament has its Rachael, its Hannah, its Ruth—but somehow we feel closer to the women of the New Testament.

There were many who lovingly and faithfully ministered to the needs of our Savior and His disciples. Surely that was a rare privilege!

Like the sisters, Mary and Martha of old, the girls of our Sisterhood organization desire to know Him, to serve Him, and to make Him known. Our purpose is to promote a deeper devotion to Christ among the girls of our church, and in so doing we know that there will be many usable servants in His vineyard.

Grace Theological Seminary has truly been an inspiration and a blessing to our organization. It is a joy to know that many are being prepared and fitted for the service of our Lord. "We thank God upon every remembrance of you."

FROM THE FIELD

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Once again the Lord has poured out an abundance of His richest blessings in the Third Brethren Church, Philadelphia. Of the many mountain top experiences this congregation has enjoyed, some are saying this year has been one of the best.

It was our good pleasure to have with us for a two weeks' evangelistic meeting, Bro. Joseph L. Gingrich, pastor of the Allentown Brethren Church. It was almost 11 years ago the Lord used our Bro. Gingrich in an outstanding meeting at this place.

Our membership received a spiritual quickening. Souls were saved. All told 46 came forward, many to consecrate themselves to the Lord. Since the meeting six more have come forward. There will be a number of fine additions to the church.

The weather was ideal and everything seemed to be in our favor for a good meeting. Brother "Joe" proved himself a veritable warrior of the truth in every service. His messages were forceful, fundamental and effective. Every sermon abounded with Scripture.

Delegations that gave encouragement came from Calvary, N. J., Allentown, Pa., and the First Church, Philadelphia.

The week following the revival we had a wonderful communion service. We are looking forward to a great winter's work here. Brethren, pray for us.

Wm A. Steffler, Pastor.

LIMESTONE, TENN.

Just a word regarding our revival meeting, from the valley here in Limestone, Tenn. Limestone Brethren Church was indeed blessed by God through his servant, Bro. H. W. Koontz, of Roanoke, Va.

Two weeks of the finest, clear, plain, logical, sensible, fundamental, God-guided, Bible-centered messages were the undoubted reasons why practically every home was touched for rededication unto God; and also the confession of the Lord Jesus Christ for the first time by six boys and girls.

The subject lessons that Bro. Koontz presented were received with much interest and enthusiasm, carrying with them great heart-searching truths.

The love, zeal, concern, and interest for the lost was indeed outstanding in the labors of Bro. Koontz during his two weeks among our people. His work will long be remembered. How we thank God for every moment of his work in our behalf.

May I add this little note of further news? Brother and Sister Sandy were with us for November 27-28, showing their pictures on Palestine. I must say that the pictures we saw during these two nights were the best collection of pictures on Palestine we have ever seen. We are hoping to have Brother and Sister Sandy show the remainder of his pictures, the Lord willing, sometime in the near future.

*Among The Churches*WITH YOUR SECRETARY OF PUBLICATIONS

Your Brethren Missionary Herald Secretary has been having some wonderful times of fellowship with the Brethren in their churches as well as in their district conferences.

Mrs. Polman and I had a wonderful two weeks of evangelism in the Meyersdale, Pa. church, Rev. Orville Lorenz, pastor. The Lord blessed with some 25 first time confessions and some 60 other decisions. Then we were at Waynesboro, Pa. in the district conference, where much was accomplished in the interest of our publication work.

A two weeks meeting at Leon, Ia., Rev. Miles Taber, pastor, has already been reported in an earlier magazine.

During an eight day campaign at Dallas Center, Ia. with Brother Cook and his good people we had eight first time confessions and 47 decisions in a candle light service.

Two nights were spent at Garwin, Ia. at the Carleton Brethren Church, Rev. H. S. Parks, pastor, and then on to Waterloo, Ia. for the Iowa Brethren Bible Conference.

Then we spent six days at our mission church, The River Park Brethren Church, South Bend, Ind. where three more confessions were received and one victory from the tobacco habit.

While you read this we shall be in the midst of a campaign in another mission church at Sharpsville, Ind. where Vern Stuber is pastor, closing there Dec 15. Then we will be one week at Moody Bible Institute—Dec. 16-20, speaking over W.M.B.I. radio station and also to the students there at school. Pray for us and our efforts for Him and our company.

We are making dates for our 1941 schedule now. Write if interested in having our company's work presented, as well as for meetings.

THE HUMILIATION OF THE LORD OF GLORY

By Frank Coleman

"Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient even unto death, yea, the death of the cross" (Phil. 2:5-8 ARV). In these words, so sublime in their brevity, the voluntary self-emptying and humiliation of our Lord is set forth.

Had He so willed it was entirely in His power to retain the equality with God which was His before times eternal. Surely it was His right to live in a manner consistent with His dignity as the eternal Lord of glory. Surely He had every right to present Himself in such manner that He might be received and treated by all creatures as their Lord. But He became subordinate to the Father, taking the creature's place, until the hour when He could say, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." He assumed the form of a servant that in the likeness of men He might be servant both of God and of man: of God that His eternal purpose in redemption might be realized, of man that man's supreme need in redemption might be supplied. This is the essence of His humiliation.

His was the incomparable glory of eternity, a personal possession, His by virtue of His deity. Before the world began He enjoyed it, but it was not too much for Him to veil this glory in part that for a time He might appear among the children of men as God manifest in the flesh. It was not in His divine nature, but in human nature, that He was to reveal Himself. Until He ascended He referred to Himself as the Son of man, declaring His unity with us and His submission to the needs of humanity. This was to be the sphere of His brief manifestation in a temporal world, and He must needs put off for the time the visible glorious light in which the eternal God is said to dwell (1 Tim. 6:16).

He resigned for the time the exercise of His sovereign personal will, that the will of His Father might be supreme. He said, "I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me" (Jn. 6:38). As a servant, rendering perfect obedience, He chose to take a subordinate place that the will of God, Who purposed to redeem our fallen race, might be done, though it meant His own ignominious death on the cross. From the first words concerning His mission, "I must be in my Father's will," to the last, "My Father is greater than I," this truth rules all the Redeemer's relations to His God and our God.

He voluntarily gave up His independence that during the days of His humiliation He might cast Himself completely upon His Father in unwavering reliance upon Him. He placed Himself under the guidance of the Holy Spirit during His earthly life rather than retain the independent agency of His own divine personality. In His life on earth He was very God, but at the same time He was truly man; and He chose, as a man, to live in subjection to and dependence upon His Father in heaven. Whatever He did, therefore, He did as a man Who was completely filled with the Spirit. It was by this Spirit that He was led into the wilderness to be tempted. And it was by this Spirit, the eternal Spirit, that He offered Himself to God for us.

He gave up the independent exercise of His right to know (Mk. 13:32), His right to speak (Jn. 12:49,50), and His right to act (Jn. 5:19), save as one wholly dependent upon another, wholly given to another's service, wholly resigned to another's will. What a humiliation was this!

But it was His voluntary relinquishment of His right to live that perfected the Redeemer's humiliation. As the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world He approached the baptismal waters of Jordan. Himself the sinless substitute, in the river Jordan He was numbered with the transgressors. In His temptation He demonstrated that there was no sin in Him. And finally, in His vicarious passion, His voluntary endurance of the penalty of human sin, His humiliation was complete. The shadow of the cross fell upon His entire path from Bethlehem to Golgotha, and His death was His perfect humiliation, an act of supreme submission, self-renunciation, and abasement.

Let the world of men pause at the cross of Calvary where, to climax His humiliation, the spotless Son of God was made sin. Christ was not merely made man, He was made sin, and that for us (2 Cor. 5:21). In His humiliation sin was slain, its power to deal death was ended for all whose reliance is upon Calvary's sacrificial Lamb. "Made sin"—what words are these to describe the death of God's Well-beloved! The Holy One Who could not look upon sin nor behold iniquity—this is the One Who was made sin. And it was for us, that we might become the righteousness of God in Him. What a price to pay for the ransom of rebellious men! But there was no other way; there was no lesser price that would purchase our redemption than the voluntary self-humbling of the Lord of glory, His becoming obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

7 Distinctive Facts

About Grace Theological Seminary

1. Grace Theological Seminary holds to the Bible as the infallible Word of God, verbally inspired in all its parts, and therefore the only sufficient creed of a Christian institution. But because certain modernistic denominational bodies, as well as some of the very worst religious cults, also claim to take the Bible alone as their creed, Grace Seminary feels itself under a serious moral obligation to state clearly and publicly what it believes the Bible teaches regarding especially those Christian doctrines which are being questioned in the modern religious world. The Seminary also holds that the supporters of such a school have a right to demand some binding assurance that the faculty and controlling officers cannot change its position with arrogant impunity.

2. Therefore, not only all the great fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith, which are being questioned and denied on every hand, but also the distinctive doctrines and practices of The Brethren Church, have been written by the founders into the legal charter of Grace Theological Seminary so that they can never be "changed or diminished."

3. No person can ever become a member of the faculty of Grace Theological Seminary who does not believe, accept, and observe these things.

4. No person can ever be legally elected as a member of the Board of Trustees who does not believe, accept, and observe these things.

5. All members of both the faculty and Board of Trustees are required to indicate their belief in these things by signing annually the Seminary "Covenant of Faith."

6. Any member who fails to meet this requirement, or who teaches anything contrary to the "Covenant of Faith," automatically forfeits his position.

7. All these requirements are included in the purposes of the original Articles of Incorporation of the Seminary, and therefore cannot be changed or abrogated by any future board under any circumstances.

"IT CAME UPON A MIDNIGHT CLEAR - -"

Midnight Song

Out on the bare Judean hills,
Far from the scenes of mirth,
The shepherds heard a midnight song
That echoed 'round the earth.

And straightway, challenged by the sound,
They left their lonely place,
And took the road to Bethlehem
To seek the young Child's face.

They came, they saw, they understood,
And knew a strange release
As, stooping down, they knelt before
The little Prince of Peace.

And now the midnight of the world
Has settled, dark and still,
And frightened hearts are crouching low—
Like shepherds on a hill.

What mean the ancient carols now?
Their glad and sweet refrain
Is lost amidst the scream of shells,
As men forget again.

And yet, in countless waiting hearts,
The light of faith still burns . . .
Lord, send again a midnight song
To say the Prince returns!

Flora Brethren Dedicate New Church

Last Feb. 25, we organized the Grace Brethren Church at Flora. During their nine months of existence, this group has met in the basement of the City Public Library. While this arrangement was far from ideal, yet in spite of their handicaps their Sunday School increased and souls were baptized and received into the church. They were ministered to by various preachers and teachers from Grace Seminary for several months.

In the month of May, Henry Rempel, a graduate of Grace Seminary became pastor. From that time the work took on the aspect of a real church and definite plans were made for building a house of worship. Under Brother Rempel's leadership, ground was purchased and plans drawn for the structure which was dedicated on Dec. 8.

A better location in this community could hardly be found. The building is of a new type in material and design. It is modernistic in motif and is very practical in providing the maximum of space at the minimum of cost. The building is exceedingly permanent, being built of a new type of glazed tile trimmed at all corners and door and window openings with a beautiful maroon colored brick. The cost of the building was $10,221.00.

The Sunday School attendance was 147 on dedication day and the church attendance 210. They have room to grow for several years with their present space. Their church membership is now 89 and growing right along.

The speakers on dedication day were R. Paul Miller who spoke in the morning, Russell D. Barnard who gave the dedicatory addresses in the afternoon, and Homer A. Kent who gave the evening message. There were delegations from Peru, Sharpsville, Dayton, Berne, Winona Lake, Fort Wayne and other places.

Henry Rempel has done a fine work in leading these people to this splendid achievement. He is a spiritual man and a good leader. He is loved by his people, and with his good wife will undoubtedly carry on this field to the glory of God. They are now preparing for their revival in January. They have a great field for expansion. The country is full of people who need the Lord. We rejoice in this new Brethren Church which is but one more evidence of God's favor upon us as a people.

NOTICE TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE WOMEN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL

We have prepared posters on white paper showing all of our mission pastors and their fields. These are especially designed for the use of our women in making up scrap books and prayer lists. There are sufficient on hand for one poster for each member of each Council. These may be obtained by sending to our office in Berne and stating the number of posters desired.

A CALL FROM OUR TREASURY

To date we have received just two checks from churches toward our Thanksgiving offering. For some reason the offerings have not been forwarded promptly. Our new appropriations begin Jan. 1st, and to prevent harm to our newer fields, we ask those churches that are able, to please send in their offerings at once. Lack of funds goes rather hard on our fields. We appreciate the help of all.

THE CLAYHOLE PARSONAGE IS READY, EXCEPT—

We are exceedingly anxious that Brother and Sister Landrum move into their new home by Christmas. It will be a real Christmas present for them, and one which they genuinely deserve after the many sacrifices they made for this work.

Furthermore, they are to have the Grace Seminary Gospel Team there for the week after Christmas and they need the new house to entertain them. An appeal for other needs has been made in this issue. But the secretary has just been to Clayhole and has found these further immediate needs and we pray that among our people there will be found those who can supply these things at once. The furniture Brother and Sister Landrum previously had was practically ruined by rain and other calamities. Their salary is too small for them to buy new. We feel we must give them furnishings fitting for the new home we have provided for them. It would be a shame to give them a new home and then have to move their old goods into it. Now here is the material needed right away:

Window shades

4—42" x 65"; 3—42" x 53"; 2—30" x 53"; 2—30" x 28";
1—30" x 45"; 1—30" x 38"; 2—30" x 46"
(adjustable curtain rods are needed for these windows)

Rugs

Dining Room—6' x 9' (congooleum); Living room —10' x 20'; Bed room—5' x 7'; Bed room—6' x 9'; Bed room—9' x 12'.

Furniture

1 Double bed, 1 Dresser, 1 Dining room suite, (table, chairs, etc.)

Before sending anything, write to the secretary, R.
Paul Miller, about it.

WE ARE LOOKING FOR A CARPENTER—

To finish the kitchen cupboard, build the back porch, and put up shelving in the basement of the parsonage.

In the church building we need to have the celotex finished, the wainscote finished, and about fifteen more seats to be made.

There are other smaller items to be done to completely finish our buildings at Clayhole. It will take a good carpenter about two weeks to do the work.

We are making this announcement in the hope that there is some good brother who is a capable carpenter and who has a couple of weeks that he will give to the Lord this winter to finish this work. We will pay transportation if it is not too far.

Some of this work is needed at once before Brother and Sister Landrum move in. But if we cannot get it done now we will have to wait. Write to the secretary,
R. Paul Miller, about it before going down.

JOSHUA RIDES AGAIN

For the first time since Nebuchadnezzar razed Jerusalem, a true Jewish army is now being planned to step into the conflict on the side of Britain and against Hitler, the "despoiler" of the people of Israel. The Associated Press reports an announcement from A.
Abrahams, head of the political department of the Zionistic military organization that has just been formed, to the effect that a world-wide recruiting is already outlined and that 100,000 troops would be assembled as quickly as possible. While the men would come from all over the world, yet the real recruiting would come from the United States. Many, of course, would be recruited in Palestine. It is planned to provide for their own equipment as far as possible, and what they cannot do, England will provide for them.

It is a far cry back to the day when the Jewish legions marched to victory under Joshua and David.
The spirit of these great military men of Israel seems to be rising again. How soon it may be that Israel will again take the field in actual warfare against her foes we do not know, but things happen pretty fast these days. How soon may it be that Israel's foes will face an army of Jews in which every man "shall be as David" (Zech. 12:8)? Well, these are great days in which to live with an open Bible in hand and to observe His Word marching on. It is great to know that soon Israel's rejected Lord shall come and fight for the people who have been without a friend among the nations of the world. Are they now forming the army that shall one day stand and defend Jerusalem, and, when about to be overwhelmed, shall see "The Lord go forth and fight against those nations, as when He fought in the day of battle" (Zech. 14:3)? Glad day of victory for Israel after all these sad years of defeat and loss. O, Israel, lift up your heads for your Lord draweth nigh!

THE WORLD'S INDISPENSABLE MEN

A new type of men is rising "out of the sea", from among the people of the nations of the world, up from the masses. Antichrist will so arise, and already the world is seeing the beginning of the appearing of this type of leader on the earth scene. People are losing sight of laws and governments and are looking to men supposed to have unusual and miraculous powers to lead them and bring about a millennial age on earth for sinful men. Lenin was Russia's indispensable man'.
He called upon the poorer classes of Russia to trust him to bring about deliverance from the awful yoke of oppression that the Czars has placed upon their necks.
They trusted him, passively giving him the power over their destiny. Mussolini was Italy's "indispensable" man. He called upon the people of that land to trust him to save them from the collapse of their nation before the threat of Communism. He claimed to be the poor people's champion. Without their consent and help he could not have risen to power. He knew that. But the Italian people trusted him and gave him absolute power over their state. Hitler was the "indispensable" man in Germany. He told them so. He alone was the German people's friend and champion, so he said. They believed him, and also gave him a mandate over their nation. These men now control all of Europe and much of Asia and Africa. Each of these men, as soon as they had risen to power by the consent and assistance of the laboring classes of people, turned and stripped those same people of their religious freedom, their freedom of speech, and the freedom of the press. Each of these dictators has shut the people away from God, from their fellow men in the world, and from the privilege to protest any injustice he may force upon them. Each of these dictators has seized the banks, the industries, the property of the people, and the people themselves, down to the children seven years old. The people have lost their liberty utterly and their lives are but so much ammunition to be used to maintain the dictator in power and to enforce every changing whim he has.

America has just shattered an unwritten law against a third term for any president, a law of honor respected until now by all Americans as a bulwark against the very thing that has swept Europe into an orgy of blood and terror. A zealous and well meaning young person was heard to remark on the day of the election, "I hope to be able to vote for Mr. Roosevelt's fourth term". One ruling man, one ruling party in power, spells the death knell of the voice of the people. It means political conventions that make a farce of the people's choice. It means elections where people fear to vote against the ruling party for fear of reprisals in loss of positions, and persecution. Frequently of late the writer has heard the statement, "Why not have a dictator? Look what Hitler has done for Germany." Without one thought of what it has cost European people, Americans are beginning to resign themselves to the lot of those unhappy peoples. All of which goes to show that the way is swiftly being prepared all over the world for the incoming of the type of men and government out of which shall spring Antichrist. How significant the words of our Lord in Lk. 21:28, "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh". Keep looking up!

"DEMOCRACY IS DONE IN ENGLAND"

These are the words of Ambassador Joe Kennedy, just returned from Great Britain. No sooner had he spoken them than a howl went up from the crowd in Washington who are planning steadily to change our form of government to that of the European countries. Mr. Kennedy is unquestionably a keen minded and a well informed man. He has been on the ground in Europe and knows from first hand experience. We are inclined to believe him. We believe that this informed man is right when he says that "All this talk about England fighting to safeguard democracy is the bunk". Where does this put our country in our efforts to pour our men and millions into England's contest? Are we now plunging into a mad sacrifice of ourselves, not to 'safeguard democracy', but to aid in the establishment of just another dictatorship? Is America once more to be hoodwinked into the foolish effort to 'make the world safe for democracy' such as we tried to do 23 years ago? It is well known that the Communistic forces deliberately plan to foment wars among democracies, for they know that in the confusion and weakness of a war, they have their golden opportunity to 'take over' and bring an end to all liberty and freedom. The way in which nations are being misled into 'believing a lie', and doing the very thing that they do not want, is very evidently a characteristic fulfillment of the ways of the end of the age. To 'deceive the nations' is Satan's great occupation, and we can look for that deception to become more utter and complete as the days pass.

IS AMERICA HEADED FOR DICTATORSHIP?

We have just returned from 10 weeks of constant traveling from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Ocean. We have mingled with scores of congregations (a different one each night) and we have talked with hundreds of people. This nation is dictator conscious today. Some men we have met are enthusiastic about the prospect of dictatorship, for they feel that they will profit thru it by their connections with the party in power which they then expect to be permanent. Others are alarmed about the drift of things and are quick to tell you so. Then the great majority are apathetic with a sort of resignation to the inevitable. Personally we feel that a dictatorship based on an emergency could be declared tomorrow in this land and that people would go back to work as usual the next morning. The argument of emergency would stop all mouths from protest. Anyone who would protest against it would be howled down as a traitor to the common good. The people of this land are already submissive to appointed bureaucrats who are not subject to the people's call or recall. They are used to having the government tell them what they must do and how they must run their farms and their business. The people are used to running to the government for loans for building a garage or putting in a kitchen cupboard. They are used to looking to a paternal government to feed them no matter how they have wasted their substance. The modern American child believes that Santa Claus comes from Washington, not from the north pole! The labor unions now have their 'man' whom they believe is their champion. So was Hitler labor union's champion until he got his absolute power by their help and consent. Today union labor has ceased to exist in Europe, and yet the dictators there could not have succeeded without their help. A blind man could see the handwriting on the wall in these United States. It is clear that the spirit of Antichrist is already abroad in the world raising up world leaders such as the Holy Spirit describes in Rev. 17:12.

"And the ten hours thou sawest are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beast".

Such men of fabulous powers as are controlling the world today have never before crossed the horizon of human history. It is evident that the stage is set and the peoples of the world are ready for the 'man of sin' to step in and organize his 10 world dictators for the final windup. "Fear not, little flock for it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom."

THE FIRST OF ITS KIND

On our recent stop at the Roanoke, Va., church, we were surprised to see a huge Neon electric sign atop the tower of the church building. It makes a striking effect upon the whole community both day and night.

It can be seen from a mile across the city. At night it looks like a blaze of fire as its brilliant red letters

"JESUS SAVES"

flash "Jesus Saves", and it leaves a warm and friendly effect upon all who read it.

Already it has become a landmark in directing folks about the city. It could hardly be improved upon as a means of advertising the church and the Gospel she preaches.

Brother Herman Koontz and his people are going right ahead accomplishing greater things for Christ every year. He has a group of people who follow their leader, and they have a leader who has his eye upon the Lord.

WHAT IS GOD DOING IN THIS WAR?

A Chicago preacher approached blasphemy by asking "What in the world is God doing today?" the question seemingly implying that God was doing nothing. A certain university professor who passionately hates Hitler recently bantered, "If I were God for five minutes I would know exactly what to do." Would his destruction of Hitler or all dictators solve the world problem? Not as long as men remain capable of inordinate ambition and world power by force and strategy. Many honest souls have asked "Why does God permit such butchery and slaughter as Hitler has perpetrated on the battle fields of Europe and against defenseless women and children driven from their houses?"

Two laws of God must be remembered in answering that question. 1. In God's omnipotence and creative omniscience He made man free to do right or wrong as He pleases. 2. The law of the harvest is sure—"Whatsoever a man (or nation) soweth that shall he also reap." God is not the only free agent in the world. He created man in His image, free to break the Ten Commandments or to be saints and martyrs; free to murder individually or en masse; free to make war or to build the bulwarks of peace. God permits war for the same reason that He permits hell. He permits hell in order that He might provide heaven for those of mankind who choose and elect to be sons of God. . . . Despite Sherman, hell is worse than war. The horrors of war are not one drop in the lake of fire and brimstone.

What is God doing in the world today? He is trying to picture to man through the lurid suffering of the battlefield the eternal horrors of hell. Men have forgotten the existence of hell in their modern sophistication, and God is permitting man to kindle the fires of hatred and war and suffering in order to paint a small picture of the hell of eternal damnation. God is trying to warn men to flee the wrath to come.

A CONFESSION

"Almighty God, as I sit here this lovely Sunday morning surrounded by the paper and half listening to one of the big preachers over the radio, it has just come to me that I have lied to Thee and to myself. I said I was not well enough to go to church. That was not true. I would have gone to the office if it had been Monday morning. I would have played golf if it had been Wednesday afternoon. I would have attended my lunch club if it had met this noon. I would have been able to go to the picture show if it had been Friday night. But it was Sunday morning, and Sunday sickness seems to cover a multitude of sins. God, have mercy on me, I have lied to Thee and myself. I am not sick, I am lazy. Amen."

LOOKING UPON HIM

In my weakness, in my sorrow,
Oh, how tenderly He came!
Bade me fix my eyes upon Him,
As I breathed His precious name.
When I saw His wondrous beauty,
All of earth grew faint and dim,
And my soul is filled with rapture,
As my eyes are fixed on Him.

CHRISTMAS DAY —FOR WHOM . . . ?

A Christmas Day in Africa, in China and Japan;
A Christmas Day in India, and far Afghanistan;
A Christmas Day in all the world, the islands of the sea,
A Christmas Day for everyone—that's how it ought to be!
But there can be no Christmas joy for those who never heard
This story—there can be for them no meaning in the word
A Christmas Day in Heaven! Oh, yes; I think the angels know
When Jesus' birthday comes, and sing as they did long ago.
Do you suppose they wonder why we are so slow to tell
The tidings of great joy they sang that night, and love so well?
Sometimes I think they long to speed on eager wings away
To tell the story of the King who came to earth one day.
But not to angels was His last commission given: "Go!
Tell all the world"—it was to us; and we've failed Him so!
Shall we not give ourselves to Him and then go forth to share
Our Christmas Day—our Christ—with needy ones "everywhere"?

—The Evangelical Christian

Keep Your Eye Upon the Rail

By W. A. Ogden

"Now a little before them, there was on the left hand of the road a meadow and a stile to go over it, and that meadow is called By-path Meadow. Then said Christian to his fellow, if this meadow lieth along by our way-side, let's go over into it. . . . When they were gone over, and were got into the path, they found it very easy for their feet."—John Bunyan.

There are roads today that seem to run parallel to the path the Christian travels, and sometimes these roads appear to be more inviting than the "narrow way". The same is true of the church in regard to her duties and her field of service. Let us remember, however, that the road through By-path Meadow ended in a "deep pit", and that, if one should be so fortunate as to discover the pit before stumbling into it and attempt to return again to the main path, he will find the night to be dark and stormy with the floods running high, and that Giant Despair, ruler of Doubting Castle, lives between the beautiful Meadow and the stile that leads back into the King's Highway.

There can be no substitute for salvation through the atoning work of our Lord Jesus Christ. Neither can we substitute any other service for obedience to the great commission of our Redeemer. Paths that appear to be parallel to this last command of Christ are soon proven to be so far afield that one cannot reach the main road again without retracing the long hard road back to the point where he left it.

There are many things wrong with the world, this we acknowledge. Its politics is bad. Its social order is corrupt. It is out of balance economically. But why? These things, we hold, are not the cause of our troubles, but rather the result of some deep-seated malady from which they rise. We may attempt to adjust these matters, but will be about as successful as though we attempted to catch in a bucket the water that seeps through a leak in a dam, pouring it back again into the reservoir, and not stopping the leak. What is the attitude of the church to be in such an hour as this? Are we fulfilling the marching orders of our blessed Lord, or are we off on the sidetrack engaged in secondary matters?

The "reformer" and the preacher of regeneration alike recognize the presence of evil in our world, and in the human heart. Both are concerned with the elimination of evil, and the results of evil from human experience. They take, however, widely different paths in their attempt solution of the matter. It occurs to the writer that an understanding of the source of evil might help in the matter of finding a treatment for the same. The Holy Spirit, through the inspired writing of James, asks, "From whence come wars and fightings among you?" It is necessary to discover the origin of the trouble that you would blot out. Now, the answer is given by the same person who asked the question, "Come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?"

"Whence comes sin?" asks Mrs. Annie Besant in her Autobiography. She, too, gives answer to her own question, thus, "Evil comes from ignorance, ignorance of physical and moral facts, primarily from ignorance of physical order. . . . The root of all is poverty and ignorance."

"Whence comes sin?" "Sin and misery are the removable results of social circumstances, and the poverty, ignorance, and class distinctions consequent, are at the root of all the crimes and wretchedness afloat."—Linton.

"Whence comes sin?" "Fully nineteen-twentieths of all crime, using the word broadly to include all sorts of misdemeanors, result from the inequality in the possessions of the individuals."—Bellamy.

Although the three quotations above were taken from the literature of half a century ago, they are fairly representative today of that philosophy that teaches that evil is not to be identified with the fallen nature of the human race, but is the working of some outside influence upon the individual, causing him to do the thing that is wrong. If this be true, what is the method of correction? Again we will let Mrs. Besant answer. "Educate the children, and give them fair wages for fair work in their maturity, and crime will gradually diminish and ultimately disappear. Make the circumstances good and the results will be good." Exactly. If the diagnosis is correct, the treatment is correct also.

"Whence comes sin?" "Not that which goeth into the mouth defileth a man; but that which cometh out of the mouth, this defileth a man. . . . For out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies"—Jesus (Matt. 15:11, 18). No wonder the Pharisees "were offended, after they heard this saying," for this was a direct upset of their whole philosophy of life, in relation to good and evil. They practiced a rigid abstinence from contacting anything that would "defile" them. They believed that evil originated in some hidden enemy, wholly outside of themselves. They never imagined that their own hearts were "full of dead men's bones, and of all uncleanness" (Matt. 23:27). "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess" (Matt. 23:25).

Now that we have discovered the source of sin, what is the treatment? We will follow the above practice of letting the one speak who has asked the question. "Cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also"—

THINK IT OVER

VOLTAIRE SAID, "I hate life and yet I hate to die." The Apostle Paul said, "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain."

Bethlehem's Cradle, What Did It Hold?

By Clarence L. Sickel, Missionary to Argentine

Only heaven fully knew. All the hosts of the celestial world had their eyes fixed upon that humble cradle in the little town of Bethlehem. And as the cry of the new born babe reached the ears of the immediate family, the heavenly multitude began proclaiming its message to mankind: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace and good will to men." Many looked upon the event without interest—it was but the birth of another babe; but all heaven looked reverently on and eagerly anticipated. Even the shepherds having received the message from the angels, and having looked upon the Babe with their own eyes, did not fully understand the significance of it all. It was not until the wise men came from the east, that the inhabitants of Bethlehem and Jerusalem began to realize that something extraordinary had taken place in their midst, that the crude cradle made in the manger contained more than just "another babe." But, even then, they had no understanding of the glory of the One Who was wrapped in swaddling clothes there in Bethlehem's cradle. Just a select few possessed the Divine conviction that that cradle held—

A Babe to be Adored

The birth of no other babe since the beginning of time has so changed conditions, has so moved both heaven and earth, and has so involved such important consequences to the human race. The Babe of Bethlehem made history, yea, is the center of history. Hardly had man fallen into sin, than he was directed by God to look forward to this event in Bethlehem, and from that time on, until the birth of the Babe, kings, sages and prophets desired, spoke and prophesied of His coming. They had longed for the day when He would come Who was typified in their sacrifices.

Mary and those who were with her, stood in worship and wonderment before Him, Who is the fulfillment of prophecy. This Babe was no ordinary babe brought into the world in the ordinary way, but a miraculous Babe brought into the world in a miraculous way—the Son of God and the virgin Mary by miracle. We cannot understand it, we cannot explain it, any more than we can explain the idea of the eternity of God; but we reverently receive it, we confidently believe it.

A Son to be Worshipped

"The Word became flesh, and tabernacled among us." In the child which was born, the Son was given. He came into the world, not of the will of men, but of the will of God. The gulf between God and man was bridged. No wonder mystery surrounded His coming, and angels announced His birth for there was a purpose behind His appearance in this world. "And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call His name Jesus: for He shall save His people from their sins."

Man could never reach heaven through his own efforts. To him God was a God afar off. But now as he looked in the cradle at Bethlehem, he realized that God had come down to earth. Heaven was brought closer to man. What an event! And as He grew from childhood to youth, and from youth to manhood, they were conscious that He was like unto themselves—a Man of flesh and bone, One who could sympathize with them, One who was kind, loving and longsuffering. As He walked in and out among men, winning this one and that one to Himself, should we marvel that they worshipped Him?

What a difference it makes in our attitude toward the Babe born in Bethlehem, laid away in the manger-cradle, when we see in that Babe, the divine Son of the living God. Man's worship of God, man's love for God, man's faith in God, is governed by the attitude he takes toward the Babe of Bethlehem. When man looks at Bethlehem's cradle, and all it holds for him is just a babe, who has come into the world as any other babe, his love is cold and indifferent, and can never possess a real spirit of worship toward God, much less to the One of Bethlehem. It is the Lord Jesus Christ, God's Son, Who has united heaven and earth. Who has torn down the middle wall of partition, Who has rent the veil in twain, Who cried out as He hung there upon the cross, "It is finished". Now, through the Son, God dwells in the believer, and the believer in Him. Now the relationship is so intimate between God and man that constant communion and fellowship is enjoyed.

A King to be Crowned

This Babe, this Son, is a King, the King of kings. The prophet Isaiah announced His kingship some 700 years before His birth in Bethlehem: "The government shall be upon His shoulder, and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of peace." He is all that a true king ought to be. Every one who has made Him King of his life has found Him to be:

Wonderful. No better or greater word can be found to express the feeling of the redeemed heart, as the soul is made alive unto God through faith in the One

Jesus (Matt. 23:26). "For this is my blood of the New Testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins" (Matt. 26:28). "And the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin" (1 Jn. 1:7).

How like the ancient city of Jericho is our world today! It was situated a pleasant city, but its water was bad, bringing death to the people and barrenness to the land. Elisha, the prophet of God, was advised of this condition, and, instead of treating the water that flowed into the city, he went back to the source, back to "the spring of the waters" and "cast the salt in there" (2 Kgs. 2:19-21). Yes, apply the healing medicines to the "spring of the waters." The world is overrun with political and religious isms. War is an evil thing, and a blotch on our civilization. Liquor is making its unhappy victims by the thousands. Youth is in grave peril. What is the answer to this situation? "Preach the word" (2 Tim. 4:2). Stay out of By-path Meadow, out of the field of endeavor that deals only with externals, and does not touch the heart and make men to become "new creatures in Christ Jesus." Jerusalem went down in flames because she "knew not the things that belonged to her peace". She rejected Jesus Christ and accepted the scribes and Pharisees, whose only righteousness was external, and not in the heart. Let us go to the youth of the land and cast our "salt" in there. Let us tell all men everywhere that Jesus saves.

Who came by Bethlehem's cradle. He is wonderful in His love, wonderful in His pardon, wonderful in His Divine care, wonderful in His revealing Himself through daily fellowship. He was wonderful in His pre-existence, wonderful in His coming into the world, wonderful in His departure, and will be wonderful when He comes again. Through Him, life is made wonderful, service is wonderful, sacrifice is wonderful and suffering is wonderful. The more one meditates upon this King of kings, the more wonderful He becomes.

Many have sought to fathom this One Who has been declared by heaven King of kings, but at the end of their seeking, they have had to sum up their findings in the word "Wonderful". He is altogether lovely, the fairest of 10,000, the Lily of the valley, the bright and morning star.

Counselor—the very essence of wisdom and knowledge, therefore perfect in His counsels. None ever went from His presence disappointed. His judgments are always fair, and blessed are those who follow in the ways He directs. He was the Counselor at the beginnings, and is still man's wisest Counselor. Blessed are those today who seek His counsel, who trust His judgments, and who walk in His Ways.

The Mighty God—a mystery, but true. Incomprehensible, but not incredible. He lived, walked, talked as man, but a mere man could never accomplish what was accomplished by Him Who was called Jesus of Nazareth. He gave instructions concerning that water and it became wine. He spoke to the dead and they heard His voice. He ordered the messengers to return home, and upon their arrival they found the sick cured. He touched the eyes of the blind, and they came forth seeing. He spoke to the raging sea and it became as calm as an infant's breast. Those who were burdened with their sins and lives of shame, went away from His presence every whit whole, fully satisfied for the Almighty had wrought a miracle. None other but the Almighty God could accomplish such works, exert such an influence, and speak words, which up to the present hour still comfort, bless, cheer, guide and sustain all those who crown Him King of their lives.

The everlasting Father. Though we speak of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, as each performs His work in relation to the salvation of mankind, yet they are one in character. The Three are in possession of all divine attributes, so what we can say of One, we are certain the other possesses. This expression, the everlasting Father, brings out a truth that is very near and dear to every human heart—father. This speaks to us of parental care, of sympathy, longsuffering, loving-kindness. "Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord—Jehovah—pitieth them that fear Him. For He knoweth our frame: He remembereth that we are dust."

The Prince of peace. He came to bring peace, but they rejected Him. Men want peace, but they seek it from the wrong source. Peace can never, will never, be established by the sword, by the will and efforts of mankind. Only He Who is the Prince of peace can bring peace to this sin-cursed, sin-sick world. And peace shall be established in God's own time upon this earth, and man shall know war no more. But that peace is not for this age. The Prince of peace now sneaks peace to the individual heart. What a peace! As He is crowned King of a life, there comes into that heart a peace which passes all understanding, a peace which no earthly storm can disturb. A peace which permits the possessor to face the storms of life with faith and courage, fully assured that He will never leave nor forsake. "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid."

We are living in dark days, when we know not what a day will bring forth. Let us look to Him Who sees the whole way through, Who is the Alpha and Omega, the Beginning and the End, the Counselor, the Almighty God, the everlasting Father and the Prince of Peace.

Let us gather in spirit around Bethlehem's Cradle and worship Him Who came to be our Savior, very God of very God—the mighty One.

THIS IS NOTHING NEW TO US!

It is no surprise to us to read of the unwholesome effect the movie has upon the public; but when the situation is deplored and condemned by movie sympathizers, it is certainly something to think about. The following quotations are from an editorial entitled, "Let's Banish Drinking Scenes from our Movies," in a recent issue of Movio-Radio Guide:

"Tipping in the talkies is assuming alarming proportions. Recall almost any recent movie. . . . Somewhere in its plot you will find a pair of pinch-bottle babies engaged in either humorous or serious drinking.

"We who voted for repeal are alarmed. Already one state, North Carolina, has brought back Prohibition. Bluesoes everywhere are organizing to close cocktail bars and prohibit the sale of liquor. . . .

"Today there is too much drinking in pictures. . . . Drinking-scenes furnish comedy, drama, motivation. But they do more. They provide every child who sees movies (and most children are movie regulars) with the conviction that (a) all smart people drink, (b) that it is fun to get "woozled", (c) that hard drinking is the logical resort of anyone who is disappointed in love or business.

"The point is that nowhere is the other side of the story told. That moderation is a virtue is a fact which children must also learn. The movies teach only excess. . . .

"This high-ball game as pictured by Hollywood is too attractive. It needs attention. The Hays office can stop it. Once it did, so let them do it again. Let them tell producers to cut out barroom scenes, eliminate comedy drunks and ban the loopy-legged character man.

"We are convinced that most movie-makers want to do that which is best for their business. Producers forget the tremendous force of their medium. They can make manners, styles and morals by the pattern of their pictures. By their present course, they are making our youngest generation into potential alcoholics.

"This is bad for the movies, bad for the children, and bad for America. An editorial such as this cannot stop the practise. Only a strong, united protest can achieve any result. If you believe with us that drinking-scenes should be either curtailed or banned, please write to us your own opinion. We will see that it is delivered to Mr. Will Hays himself."

"What The Home Missions Council Is Doing"*ACROSS
THE
NATIONwith our
secretaryHOME MISSION PICTURES GREAT SUCCESS

We have just completed the most unusual and strenuous effort to place the real work of Home Missions before our people. We have realized for many years that through special addresses or through the means of articles in the magazine, very few of our people obtained a very realistic impression of the tremendous opportunities and responsibilities of this great work which God has given us to do. This sharp departure from our usual method of informing our constituency was at first undertaken with some misgiving. However, from the very first showing it was evident that a means had been found to make home missions real to the people. The Secretary has covered 44 churches east of the Rocky Mountains in one night stands. It has been mighty hard work, but if it results, as we believe it will, in stirring our brotherhood to the point of seizing the opportunities which are now being sent to us by God, we shall be rewarded. Brother Paul Bauman has been showing these pictures to the Southern California churches with a duplicate set of films. We have as yet received no report from him, and therefore cannot give any information relative to his success out there.

The interest shown in the pictures was extraordinary from the very start. Our pastors were exceedingly cooperative, and many of them laid aside scheduled arrangements in order that we might be able to show the pictures to their people. Dr. J. C. Beal rearranged one of his evening services in Cleveland, O., in order that we might show the pictures to that congregation. Brother Robert Crees delayed an engagement at Uniontown, in order that we might show them to that congregation. We could hardly ask for finer spirit than our men have shown.

At each showing of the pictures an opportunity was given to the congregation to speak their impressions. These reactions have been most informative and highly satisfactory. From the expressions that we heard almost everywhere, it is evident that a new conception of the wonderful work that God is now doing through our Brethren Churches has come to pass. In many places we were urged to arrange a second showing of the pictures because they were so full of interesting features that it was impossible to get a real conception of them all on just one showing. We plan to show the pictures as opportunity affords at various places throughout the year. We are continually adding new pictures and those who have seen them once will find many new features on a second showing.

In each service, with the exception of one, we took an offering for meeting the cost of the machines and also of the trip, among the churches. We received close to $500.00 in this way. We also received enough to buy a regular crystal screen on which to show the pictures. This will increase the effectiveness fully 50%. These gifts for the screen were provided by individuals who realized the need of it.

EARLY RETURNS

It is still just a few days since Thanksgiving but we have received word regarding several offerings. Our Dayton church sent us $1000.00 cash on Nov. 29 as part of their offering. This was the first church offering to be sent in. It was a mighty fine starter and we thank God for the spirit of our Dayton church and their pastor. We have learned that the Waynesboro, Pa. church already has $755.00, in their offering with more to come. The little Homerville Church in northern Ohio already has $275.00 in their offering. The Bethel Church at Berne, Ind. raised $564.00 the first Sunday that the offering was lifted. We believe they will reach their goal of $800.00 of last year. Altogether, we believe that the showing of the pictures will contribute greatly toward reaching our goal of $30,000.00 for this year.

HOME MISSION PICTURES AT GRACE SEMINARY

After returning from our trip throughout the east showing the home mission pictures to the churches, we drove over to Winona Lake on the night of Dec. 5, and showed them to the faculty and students at Grace Theological Seminary. Brother McClain showed us every consideration in arranging for the service, and held his folks quite a while after the time set for the showing because we were late in arriving. I can hear Mrs. Maurine Schaffer say, "As usual, he was late". But this time there was a good reason! We had about 40 miles of highways covered with ice to traverse, and that delayed us almost an hour, for we had to just creep along. But when we arrived we found nearly everyone present who had been at prayer meeting and we had a fine time with them all. If they enjoyed the pictures as much as we enjoyed showing them, we all had a good as well as a profitable time together. This was the first time we had met with the Seminary group since the year started. It is certainly a fine group of students that they have this year.

NO ROOM

"There was no room for them in the inn."
Luke 2:7.

By Annie Johnson Flint

There was no room in the inns of the world

For the Lord of the world to come;
In a manger bed He must lay His head,
In a stable make His home.

There is no room in the inns of the world
For the Savior of men today;

The feasts of the earth, with their song and mirth,
Leave Him no place to stay.

There is no place in the inns of the world
For the Lord of the world to rest,

But again and again in the hearts of men
He has found a shelter blest.

There is no room in the inns of the world
That border the world's highway,

And they bid Him depart from school and mart;
He is homeless still today.

There is no room in the inns of the world
For the Lord of the earth and sea;

Let us give Him room and bid Him come
To the hearts of you and me.

AROUND THE COUNCIL TABLE

WATERLOO LETTER

Greetings to all the Brethren in the name of our blessed Lord, who counted us faithful, putting us into the ministry. God is continuing to bless His Word in Waterloo, and we look to Him to lead us further victories to the glory of His name. We arrived in Waterloo at the hour of prayer on Wed., Apr. 10, and found some thirty people assembled for prayer. What a joy it was to unite in thanksgiving with the Lord's own! We found a group of saints whose hearts the Lord had opened to receive us. Everything possible was done to ease the burden of getting established in our new home. The saints of like precious faith in the city, too, received us with a warm welcome into their common labors and fellowship.

The past months have been a time of adjustment to the conditions of a new field, a time of getting acquainted, and of planning our attack on Satan's stronghold. No city in the land has been blessed with a greater and more consistent testimony than has Waterloo. The opening wedge, we believe, will be through the children. In this field, a little city in itself which has been built up within the last two or three years, there are several hundred children. 700 are enrolled in the grade school just across the street from the church. We are stressing the evangelism of the child this year and have been blessed in it.

One of the first ventures which we undertook was a two weeks Daily Vacation Bible School in which 150 youngsters were enrolled. 20 helpers were raised up to assist. Many youngsters received Christ. At the present time we are engaged in another Youth Evangelism effort with Richard W. Neale, Wheaton, Ill., youth evangelist, who is conducting afternoon meetings for the boys and girls. Over 160 were in attendance several times the first few days. Some 40 or 50 remained after dismissal of the services to hear more of salvation. A number of these gave strong evidence of conversion, one of whom was a little Jewish girl. As a result of the first week of these services we have an entrance into over 50 homes which we perhaps would not have had otherwise. We pray that our follow up work will be blessed in the salvation of the parents.

Our Bible School has grown steadily and consistently. At present our attendance is between 130 and 140. The peak attendance the past month was 160. We have just put into service a 58 passenger bus which we expect to fill very shortly. Our goal for this year was set at 200 in Bible School by next spring, but it is apparent that the goal will be reached long before the flowers bloom.

Our church building is not as yet completely finished. The downstairs department rooms are not yet finished, but we expect to have the work completed this winter. The building is being widely copied. Hardly a week passes but that visitors contemplating erecting a new building call to inspect it. Our Brother Cleve Miller has proved that a tabernacle type of building can be attractive as well as practical.

It has been our good fortune to have as ministering brethren during the past few months, the following: Brother Herman Hoyt, whose three day Bible conference in July was a real blessing; Brother R. Paul Miller, whose one day visit with the home missions pictures was a real treat; Brother Paul Guiley, missionary to Brazil; Brother Leonardo Mercado of Phoenix, Ariz.; Brother Kenneth M. Monroe, Dean of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles; Brother O. E. Phillips of the Biblical Research Society; Brother John Nicholson, co-founder of the Gideons.

We were hosts to the Iowa Brethren Bible Conference Nov. 22-24. On Sun., Nov. 24, dedication of our church building took place with Chas. W. Mayes, our conference speaker, delivering the dedicatory address.

It has been a rich blessing to us to take the gospel in printed form to the 700 homes near the church. Sunday mornings find faithful workers meeting at the church for prayer before taking their bundles of tracts and letters to the homes. Before nine o'clock every Sunday morning a tract and a mimeographed letter are placed on every door step in our field. We expect this to bear fruit in due season. Already reports have come that the Word so given is beginning to bear fruit.

Our first communion service was held on Nov. 3 with 79 at the tables. No communion service in our memory was ever so blessed. It was a real time of searching of hearts and self-judgment, without which the service becomes mere ritual.

In answer to the need of a home for the pastor near the church, the Lord recently laid it on the heart of one of His stewards to purchase a dwelling opposite the church to be placed at the disposal of the pastor. We have moved into our new quarters with thanksgiving that our God is able to supply all our need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus.

We solicit the prayers of the brotherhood that we may be able to discern at all times what is His will as problems arise, and as Satan's warfare becomes more and more intense. Pray, too, that souls may respond to the gospel invitation, for this is the end of our whole program and activity.

THE GRACE BRETHREN CHURCH OF FLORA

The Grace Brethren Church at Flora rejoices over the victories of a two weeks' Bible conference conducted by Dr. J. C. Beal. A Bible conference in this town was almost something unheard of. The last one which this community witnessed was one that was conducted here nearly one year ago, under the auspices of a group of Brethren which now constitute the membership of this church. Much prayer and a good deal of announcing and advertising preceded the coming of our beloved Brother Beal. The Brethren here had so much hoped that the new church would be ready by the time of our conference, but it was not. Consequently we commenced our meetings in the Flora Library where the church had been meeting before.

The conference commenced on Nov. 3 and lasted for two weeks. From the very beginning the interest was keen and the attendance very good. Dr. Beal used prophetic subjects during the first week and these created unusual interest. Night after night he preached from 45 minutes to an hour, and people listened with great interest. The Spirit of God worked mightily in the hearts of people so that by the end of the first week definite results were noticed. The entire community became interested in these nightly Bible studies, for people from other churches were in attendance at most of the services. An average attendance of over 80 was tallied for the two weeks. On Sun., Nov. 10 we moved into our new church home. This gave added impetus to the conference, so that the attendance steadily increased.

During the second week Dr. Beal spoke from the first Epistle of John, and these messages were very timely and fitting, and brought forth definite results. Only eternity will reveal the actual results of these studies. The conference closed on Sun., Nov. 17. It was a great day for our church. Our pastor baptized five on that afternoon, and received these and three others by letter into our fellowship, so that now our membership has reached 89.

Brother Beal stayed over for Mon., Nov. 18 on which night the church observed its fall communion. Brethren Vernon Stuber of our church at Sharpville, and Robert Ashman of our Peru church fellowshiped with us. Brother Beal led us in the three-fold service, and it marked a fitting climax to our 2 weeks of Bible Study. We had 70 present, 35 of which were ladies, and 35 men. The Lord was consciously present and greatly blessed those who were there.

We thank God for our Brother Beal and his faithful services among our people. The Lord heard and answered our prayers, for our entire membership has been revived and edified, and several sinners have found Christ as their Savior. We thank God also for the fine spirit of co-operation among our members. Our building is complete, and our people are faithfully going forward.

Again we thank the Home Missions Council for its interest in our work here in Flora. Its advice and assistance has meant more than words can tell.

As we close we again ask the prayers of all who love the Lord and the hope of His soon return, that this mission church, in this needy town, shall faithfully "contend for 'the faith' once for all delivered unto the saints."

TEN MONTHS IN FREMONT

As 1940 greeted the world, the Lord placed upon the heart of the writer great concern about his testimony in the preceding year. A survey of 1939 showed only very few visible results as to the reaching of lost men for the Lord. This brought prayer and dedication; prayer for a definite field, and dedication to a definite task. Little did the writer expect that the Lord had this field already waiting.

Meanwhile in Fremont, O., a small group of believers were meeting, and inquiring for a pastor. This group being small was not in position to call a full-time pastor, and because of the fact that the need came so suddenly, the Council was not in position to put a man on the field immediately. In the person of the writer, the Lord saw fit to lead in the calling of a student in the Seminary to shepherd this portion of His flock.

On Jan. 14 we arrived to find a group of enthusiastic people already organized into a Sunday School and meeting in a small Presbyterian Chapel just outside the city limits. They were anxious to go ahead, and thus the Lord led.

Fremont is a small city of 15,000, 32 miles southeast of Toledo. It has only one or two small churches which are immersionists. The city has neither a Baptist, nor a Christian church. It is in great need of a church with a fundamental evangelical message.

From the very beginning we enjoyed the Lord's constant blessings, and leading. Before long Bro. Miller was invited to be present at our organization into a Brethren Church. On that evening the Grace Brethren Church of Fremont was born. The group immediately applied to the Council for both supervision and financial help. The first was granted upon request, and the second came later.

On May 1st our charter membership was closed with 34 members. 21 had been led into the waters of baptism prior to this date.

Throughout the summer the Lord continued to bless, and as we look back we have many, many things for which to praise Him. He has been so wonderful to us; much better than we have deserved.

The very first blessing was the providing of a temporary place for meeting. While the place is far from ideal, it came as a real blessing from the Lord. Much has been done to beautify the building and to make it more serviceable.

Then He has blessed our Sunday School until it has doubled in numbers, and now averages around 85. Our membership of the church, at the present, stands at 52.

While our church does not as yet have a large number of mature adults, it has a fine group of young folks, and young married folks. We expect and pray for a continuous growth.

Satan has not been idle; in fact he had a 20 year jump on us, and has not failed to try to block the Lord's work. A building sight was chosen, but some 20 years ago a building restriction which prevented the erection of any building other than a residence hindered the purchase. Since that the same thing has occurred three or four times. The fact that this is registered land makes it much harder than it might appear, but we have the assurance that He will lead.

It is a thrilling experience to watch God's marvelous work of grace as men and women, who a few months ago did not know the Lord, are now seen active in His work and bearing a true testimony. But all has not been roses. There have been the hard things, and we can expect those in these trying days. These tend to bring us to the place where we trust the Lord and more completely lean upon Him. They present a greater challenge with a greater need.

We have a well organized Sunday School with eight classes, and a fine group of devotional teachers. There are two active Christian Endeavors at work. Our men are organized into a growing Fisherman's Club. Both the women and the girls have their Missionary Councils. On Wednesday evenings the adults and young folks meet separately for Bible study, and prayer. Last week our communion service was well attended, and proved to be a real blessing to the congregation. Over half of the people had never communed before, but without exception people spoke of it as a time of special blessing.

Brother R. Paul Miller will be our evangelist for meetings from Dec. 31 to Jan. 12. We are trusting the Lord for a great ingathering. Already definite plans are being laid and we are praying daily for these services. This is our first campaign. It is important. May we enlist you as a prayer helper?

Our work thus far has primarily been foundational, and consolidation work. Now we have an opportunity to witness real growth. However, our work is limited until we can be situated in our permanent building. We are trusting to do this next summer.

So from Fremont we send our greetings, ask your prayers for our work, express our thanks for your keen interest and prayers, and wish to each congregation our Lord's richest blessings. Our prayer is that we may all be faithful until He comes, and watching when He comes.

NEW BRETHREN CHURCH SHARPSVILLE, INDIANA

Sharpsville, a village of about 600 people, near Kokomo, Ind., is seeing the beginning of a new Brethren Church under the leadership of Rev. Vern Stuber. This church was organized last Easter Sunday and now has a membership of 12. The average attendance for the Sunday School is 35, while the Sunday evening service has an average attendance of 30. This group holds a mid-week prayer service and is very much alive spiritually.

There is one other church in this village. This Methodist Church has an average Sunday attendance of about 150. This leaves a large percentage of the village unchurched, and there is no church within a radius of three miles of Sharpsville. It looks like a very promising field for the Brethren work here.

Rev. Stuber's father bought this church property at a real bargain. He has offered to turn it over to the Extension Committee of the Indiana District for the $275 which he has in it. The building stands in need of some urgent repair, the cost of which is estimated at about $250. The members of the Extension Committee feel that this work is worthy of our help, but our funds are very limited. We therefore ask the Brethren Churches to co-operate in this mission work by sending a free will offering to R. Paul Miller, Berne, Ind., and designate it to the Indiana Extension Committee for the Sharpsville work. Will you also remember this new work in your prayers? May the Lord bless you for your part in it.

Much was accomplished for the Lord at the Iowa Brethren Bible Conference recently held at the Grace Brethren Church of Waterloo, Ia. The messages were inspiring. One of the outstanding features of the conference was the dedication of the Grace Brethren Church, at which the dedicatory address was delivered by Rev. Chas. W. Mayes.

This bit of news from Dr. Bauman will be welcome to all: "It will be very interesting for you to know that I have just sent my check to New York covering four fares of our missionaries to Africa. The action demanded is so speedy in order to get on the boat that the only four who can make themselves ready for the trip are Miss Tyson, Miss Byron, and the Dunnings. We are therefore ordering them to get on the boat! They will be sailing on the Steamship Zarembo, of the American-West African Line, going direct from Port

HOME MISSION STORY NO. 6

How cheerful the Children's Department looked that Sunday morning! At every window there was a wreath with holly berries twined about and a big red bow at the bottom. On each sill was a glass candlestick with a red candle.

On the blackboard Miss Bryce had drawn the shepherds and the sheep with a beautiful golden star pasted above.

Before the story the children sang their favorite Christmas carols, "Silent Night, Holy Night", and "Hark the Herald Angels Sing".

This is Miss Bryce's story.

Jean and John were twins who lived in a lovely home and had many toys and games to amuse them. But this December morning they were not happy. They pressed their noses against the windowpane and frowned at the damp snow which was falling outside.

"Why won't mother let us go outside?" asked Jean.

Just then mother passed through the room and answered, "The snow is too wet this morning, children. Your clothes would be soaked in a few minutes. Anyway, with Christmas so near I think it would be a fine thing to make your Christmas lists now."

The children rushed for pencil and paper and were soon seated at the dining table writing away.

"I want a new sled and a Tinkertoy with a motor and a football and a—Say Jean, how do you spell tractor?"

"Just a minute," said Jean, busily writing. "A doll, a doll carriage, and a box of candy. My bathrobe is too small. I think I'll put down a quilted one with slippers to match."

"How are you getting on," said mother, glancing at the table at the lists. "Why you selfish children, that isn't what I meant. I meant a list of those you wish to give to and what you want to give each one."

The children looked very sober as they quickly tore the pages from their notebooks and began over. This time the list was like this: Father, gloves; mother, perfume; grandfather, a subscription to The Brethren Missionary Herald; grandmother, handkerchiefs. Of course Jean's name was on John's list and John's was on Jean's list.

"These are fine," said mother, "but I don't see the most important name of all."

The children looked at each other wonderingly. Whom had they missed?

Tampa, Fla., to Matadi. They are to leave Port Tampa on Dec. 20. . . . Let us pray that nothing will disrupt these plans. Our missionaries in Africa are in desperate need of help."

The Waynesboro, Pa. church reports three confessions on the evening of Dec. 1st when the pastor, Rev. R. D. Crees, preached an evangelistic sermon, "Bidding Goodbye to God."

"Whose birthday do we celebrate on Christmas?" mother asked.

"The Lord Jesus Christ's," answered both children at once.

"Then don't you think He would appreciate a gift on His birthday?"

At once the children placed this name at the head of their lists, and then asked, "But how can we give Him a gift?"

"You know, children, one way of giving to Him is to give to His children who are doing a special work for Him. I am thinking now of a little family down in the Kentucky hills who have endured many hardships so that they can preach the gospel to the people there. Could you think of something you would like to do for them?"

As a result, the Kentucky missionary and his family received a great box to open on Christmas morning. Back in a northern city no children were happier over their Christmas than the two who planned it for them.

Funeral services were conducted from the Clark Schneeberger & Son funeral parlors in Canton, O., Oct. 25, by the undersigned, assisted by Rev. Paul Lora. Bro. Robinson leaves to mourn his home-going his faithful companion, two sons and three daughters.

It was the joyous privilege of the undersigned to be used by the Holy Spirit, early in his pastorate in Canton, to lead Bro. Robinson to the Lord. This furnished the basis for an unusually close friendship in the Lord. Bro. Robinson proved himself to be a faithful servant of the Lord, whom he dearly loved, and his testimony was a real one among the men with whom he worked. His faithful service in the local congregation was of more than usual value. While always unassuming, Bro. Robinson was faithful in the performance of every task to which he was called and his faithful attendance at the services of the church was a real help to those who ministered the Word in the Canton church. Such a life is a real blessing in any congregation and may Bro. Robinson's life of faithful service be a real incentive not alone to his family but to all those who know him. Those who remain here "sorrow not as others, which have no hope."

New Books For Your Library

"WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE DANCE?"

By John R. Rice

44 pages; paper; price, 25c.

This booklet contains the stenographic report of the sermon delivered Sunday evening of June 9, 1935, by Dr. Rice at the Fundamental Baptist Tabernacle in Dallas, Texas.

He courageously speaks the plain truth about the devastating evil of the modern dance. Note a few of the title heads in his indictment: Drinking and Dancing Always Go Together, Nudity and Lewdness Go with the Dance, Dance and Divorce Go Together.

In the closing paragraphs, he makes an appeal for coming to Christ (in response to which eight souls were saved at that time).

Put this booklet into the hands of all who are thus tempted and perchance it will be the means of winning them to Christ and thus saving them from a life of sin which inevitably culminates in a Christless grave.

'RUSSIANS AND ROMANS—Will the European Crisis Result in the End of the Age?'

By Herbert Lockyer

In this booklet, the author deals with four lines of prophecy necessary to the understanding of what the Bible has to say regarding current and future events.

1. The Northern Confederacy—the grizzly bear Russia gradually gaining power and Germany to be a part of this confederacy.
2. The Roman Empire—revival of this once great world dominion with trend toward a universal church being Roman.
3. The Palestine Conflict—Jews returning to Palestine in unbelief and the wealth of their land being exploited and sought by other governments. Interest being concentrated toward the East—Japan a nation to be feared by America.
4. The Return of the Lord—that blessed hope for which His children long and which shall precede the completion of these other three lines of prophecy. Coming of the Lord referred to over 300 times in the New Testament.

This 28-page, paper-cover booklet can be a supplement to your prophetic library for only 25c.

"TESTS AND TRIUMPHS OF ARMENIANS in Turkey and Macedonia"

By Jensine Oerts Peters (Mrs. E. W. Peters)

95 pages with 8 full pages illustrations. Price: paper, 50c; cloth, $1

The authoress of this vivid account of missionary endeavor was Danish by birth. Obeying the call to mission work, her heart was set upon the field in Armenia where for 10 years she labored. Because of the hardships and relentlessly bloody persecutions inflicted by the Turks, she set out with a horde of refugees to land on Macedonian soil, and there for 18 years her life was poured out for the cause of Christ. Later she spent considerable time in America, both in service and further training at Moody Bible Institute, from which enrollment, incidentally, she acquired a husband. Their home base has been established in Canada and they serve together under the name of Macedonian and Armenian Gospel Mission, Inc.

Full of adventure in connection with a life resting and serving in the everlasting arms of Him Whom she claims as Savior and Lord, this book might well be a companion volume to "My Beloved Armenia" written by Marie S. Banker some few years ago, also obtainable from this company.

—G. G. K.

"COME AND SEE" by Janie Lancaster McMann

A new book of children's Bible stories.

158 pages; cloth, price, $1.00—a fine gift book.

A fine book for grammar school children. Stories for Junior C. E., children's church, week day church school, child evangelism classes, Bible stories for a children's party, bed time stories, or for a Sunday School library—they are good for every occasion.

Among the favorites of children you will find "The Scarlet Chord," "Good for Nothing" (Onesimus), "Your High Tower" (David and Saul), "Twenty Miles Away" (Jesus and the nobleman's son), "Caves and Dens" (Gideon). There are 19 Bible stories in all, told in a most interesting manner, with practical lessons interwoven: salvation, service, and in the last chapter "Follow Thou Me" and the second coming is explained.

—Mrs. L. P.

A WORD FOR PREACHERS ONLY

We have been reading a letter written by a lady who has been attending a Christian conference. She makes some searching observations as to impressions made upon her by ministers she saw at this conference. They are worthy of the consideration of every Christian worker, for they are not written in a critical spirit.

"These are the ambassadors for Christ," she writes. "They stand in His stead and beseech mankind in His stead to be reconciled to God. They preach Christ crucified, but are they themselves crucified with Him? The experience and habits of many I met do not seem to be in accord with the simplicity and purity of a holy and cross-bearing life.

"Many in their personal appearance and conversation did not seem to be a savor of Christ. They did not seem to be strong in the Lord to do and suffer all things for Christ's sake. How can these things be? Why is it that many acceptable teachers and pastors do not confess and exemplify in their experience and conduct the fulfillment of the promises and requisitions of the Gospel they preach?

"It seems to me the witnesses for Jesus should be unspotted from the world. They supposedly bear in their bodies the marks of the Lord Jesus and their works manifest that they are wrought in God. Their names and influence may not indeed be popular among men, because the multitude do not love nor receive the testimony of Christ."

BECAUSE JESUS CAME

Because Jesus left heaven's portals so fair,
Laid aside all His glory, and then
In the form of a servant, obedient, He came
And dwelt upon earth among men—

Because angels sang on that night long ago
Of the peace that alone will endure,
Then the shepherds in Bethlehem found Him, their King
And the wise men brought incense and myrrh.

Because Christ was willing to drink of the cup,
Counting all of earth's pleasures but dross—
Because He in love gave Himself for the world
And for us bore the shame of the cross—

'Tis because Jesus came—I am saved by His grace,
And because He now lives, so do I;
Because He is coming I watch and await
His return in the clouds of the sky!

God's Method of Revival

II Chron. 7:14—"If my people which are called by my name shall humble themselves and pray, and seek my face, and turn from their wicked ways, then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin and will heal their land."

Jer. 33:3—"Call unto me and I will answer thee, and show thee great and mighty things which thou knowest not."

Hosea 10:12—"So to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground: for it is time to seek the Lord, till he come and rain righteousness upon you."

Malachi 3:10—"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Malachi 3:16—"Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another and the Lord hearkened and heart it, and a book of remembrance was written before him, for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name."

"Merry Christmas Everybody!"

Maybe some day when we grow up we can give to help other little boys and girls. Pray for us . . . . and thanks again!"

Fifty Ministers Meet in Prophecy

CHICAGO, ILL.—Some time ago 50 ministers met in special Bible conference without public meetings to discuss world affairs in the light of Bible prophecy. Many others were invited who could not be present. At the close of this great conference for Bible study and prayer, 10 statements were formulated. These are too long to be reprinted here, but it is well to say that they are in complete harmony with the prophetic teaching for which this magazine stands. One great and final statement can well be used by believing churches and pastors everywhere as a slogan. It could well be placed on inside bulletin boards, in church calendars, and in personal correspondence. Here it is: "We call upon God's people, in repentance, confession, and humility, to pray and work for a mighty revival, that multitudes may yet be saved before the Lord comes."

Don't Use Mission Funds to Buy Coal

BERNE, IND.—It was learned today that The Brethren Missions Council with offices in this city has reason to rejoice in the early response of the Thanksgiving offering for home missions in a great many Brethren churches. It will be remembered that new churches are being established just as fast as money and men can be presented the Lord for service. Churches which are a little lax in getting in the offering should send it at once. Locally, it might help to pay for coal, but it was not given for that purpose.

Brethren Minister Asks For Beer

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—Stopping at a combination gas station, tourist camp and restaurant near here, a Brethren minister from the east confidentially asked the owner of the camp, "Have you any beer?" Although the manager did not sell beer as a rule, he recalled that he could secure it quickly across the highway. Expecting the minister to stop for the night, the manager quickly replied, "Well, er—yes, we can furnish you all the beer you want."

"That's all I wanted to know," replied the minister, "I never stop where they sell beer."

It is reported that the minister drove on until he could find a place to stay where there was no beer for sale.

Methodist Publications Consolidated

CHICAGO, ILL.—One man has now been selected to become the editor-in-chief of the Methodist Board of Publications. This means the consolidation of all the Methodist "Christian Advocates" into one new official organ to serve a membership of about 8,000,000. The new editor gives his opinion as to what a church paper ought to be. "It is the business of a church newspaper to sit in judgment on the passing show. It must stand ready to summon industry, politics, social customs, international movements, or church life before the Christian conscience. It must not be afraid to make enemies of evil doers, or unwilling to support an unpopular, although Christian, cause."

Probably the new editor has not stated all that he thinks a church paper ought to be. He has no doubt mentioned what he thinks is most important. We wonder if the teaching of God's holy Word is not important also! What is the most important truth in the world? Certainly, it is the truth of God's Word. It would be a splendid thing if some church members would hear about Christ, sin, salvation, prophetic truth and holy living from the church paper. Why not let them read the gospel if they do not hear it from the pulpit?

MINISTER GETS CHURCH MEMBERS SAVED

CLEVELAND, OHIO—Not far from here an elderly minister was heard to say, "In recent years of my ministry, my chief aim has been to get the church members saved. And they surely need it."

This good and discerning brother was old fashioned enough to believe that these pre-Easter hatchings in which a lot of folks are rushed into church membership without the new birth is more damage to the church than good. We would like to go a step further than this good brother and suggest that a campaign be instituted to get a lot of the preachers saved. And there are some who surely need it. If this could be brought to pass, the church could do something about the world chaos which is now threatening us. But there is so much fifth column activity in the world that if the rulers would call upon the godly believing ministers of the gospel to offer a solution for the way out, there would be an equal number of men of religion to rise up and deny every word that would come from the lips of God's Spirit-filled ministers. If the rulers want to find God's will, they should get busy and read the Bible carefully and believe the promises for themselves.

EDITORIALS

INVENTORY

At this time of year business firms are quite generally taking inventories: checking up on the stock on hand, and then on the basis of that, looking forward and making plans for the new year. This, however, is not the end of the year's work for the Women's Missionary Council; but again, many business firms find it good business to make a check up in the midst of the year as well as at the end. So we wondered if it would not be a good idea for each local council to do just that.

As the basic items of our inventory we might use the six objectives on our list. At the end of November we completed our first major offering—our National Expense Fund. Was the offering in your council what it should have been? If each council did as well proportionally as yours, would it mean that the need of $920 would be met? Or did your council do so well that the amount sent will help make up the average for some weaker group? Or it may be that we must acknowledge that our own council did not measure up to what should be expected of it. These facts must be faced. Our heavenly Father is looking to our women to do a certain piece of work—will He be pleased with us, or grieved? And as we face that item of record, we must see that we are now one month advanced on our second major offering, that which will be used to support the training school in Africa for native evangelists. If we did not do so well with the first offering, let us consider carefully how we may do more along this line; if our first record is a good one, we must not let down or fall behind with this and the succeeding ones.

And then what about those scrap books? Has your council made a good start? That is fine. Hasn't it been going as well as you could desire? It is not too late even to begin if you have not done so. This is an objective where the new councils may do just as well as those who started at the beginning of the year. Don't forget you are to bring or send your scrap book to National Conference. And while you are gathering material about our missionaries for your scrap book, you are increasing your knowledge and interest in this vital subject.

Then is your council using the daily prayer cards, remembering both home and foreign missionaries daily? If these cards are exchanged faithfully each month among the women, they will be a means of getting to know our missionaries better, and our prayer life will grow; because, having prayed for a missionary for a whole month, we shall want to continue remembering that one daily, and so it will mean just adding another name to our prayer list.

How many chapters of the Bible has your council read to date? And how can you stimulate this reading to make the total grow? Your council might vote to read a certain portion of the word each month if the members do not seem to be doing so well on their own initiative.

Objective Num. 5 is perhaps the most important of all. Let us not leave it to become hazy and indefinite, but as five is the number of grace in Scripture, let us get the message of the grace of our loving God out to as many as possible in the days that remain to us. So many are dying without Christ and without hope—the time is short—let us redeem it, for the days are surely evil.

How many subscriptions to The Brethren Missionary Herald has your council secured? Perhaps the better way to ask this question is: How many families in your church are still without the benefit of the weekly visit of this truly fine church paper?

And then there may be local objectives which should be considered by your council. Is your membership as large as it should be? If there is a woman in the church or congregation who should be a member and who is not, there is a task to which your attention should immediately be given. Is there a place anywhere in the spiritual life of your church where any or all of the W.M.C. members might be of service?

Let us keep central in our thoughts our general topic for this year—Glorifying God. Let us put all our W.M.C. activities to the test of I Cor. 10:31—"Do all to the glory of God."

MATERIAL FOR YOUR SCRAP BOOKS

We are just in receipt of a supply of large sheets of pictures of our home mission pastors. These have been gotten out by The Brethren Missions Council to be used by our women in their scrap books. You will receive samples with your January Devotional Topics. If you can use more of these sheets, just drop the editor a card stating how many, and we shall be glad to forward them to you.

MEMORIAL NOTICE

The La Verne, Calif. council sends us word of the passing to glory of one of their faithful members—Mrs. S. McMahon. This sister was 80 years old last December and left this life on Aug. 10, 1940.

And from Flora, Ind., comes word of the home going of their dear sister and ours, Mrs. Jane Allen, on Oct. 29, 1940 at the age of 83.

The record of these sisters, faithful to the work of the Lord to the end of long lives, should be an inspiration to us not to be weary in well doing, but to continue with vigor what these have laid down to go into the presence of their Lord.

PRAYER REQUESTS

National Prayer Chairman: Mrs. Arthur Carey, Rittman, O. Let us pray:

1. That each council member may daily use her prayer card for home and foreign missions.
2. That each council member may grow in the peace of definite witnessing to the unsaved.
3. That Brother Curtis Morrill may be able to secure passage across the sea when he goes to New York, although everything is booked ahead for months.
4. That sufficient money may come in to support our own Brethren Jewish Mission in Los Angeles.
5. That many churches will see souls saved through special evangelistic effort this winter.

all ages of ladies until the group became large enough to divide into separate councils.

The regular devotional program outlined for the month of December was followed.

A free will offering was taken for the support of the Bouca Station. A delightful social hour followed with Mrs. Allen Hostettler acting as hostess.

The second meeting of the W. M. C. was held Feb. 8, 1940, with 20 women present. The regular devotional program was followed. A very interesting and stimulating discussion of each topic read was enjoyed by the group. The constitution and by-laws of the National W. M. C. were read and discussed. During this meeting the women decided the group was large enough to separate into a Senior and Junior Council. At present the Senior Council has 18 members while the Juniors have a baker's dozen.

The Listie Council, together with our Senior and Junior Councils, decided to exchange visits that we may secure new ideas and enjoy an evening of fellowship. Our councils combined gave a program relative to the home mission churches on Oct. 10 at the Listie church. A real Christian fellowship was thoroughly enjoyed by every person present. The Listie Council is returning the visit Nov. 21 at our church. We have invited the councils at Vinco, Munday's Corner and Johnstown to fellowship with us that night. We are looking forward to a very enjoyable visit.

At present the Junior Council is gathering clothing for the Clayhole church. We expect to send it to them before Christmas. The Senior Council already has sent their contribution of clothing. The Junior group will meet this week to decide how we shall compile the scrap book for our mission study.

We have planned a Christmas party with our husbands as guests for our December meeting. We shall have our regular devotional program centered around a Christmas program. In January we are planning to have a joint meeting at the church with our Senior Council in honor of our first birthday.

Our prayer is that we may live so closely to our Lord and Savior that others may see Him in us—that we may be true to Him until He comes. Pray for us.

Because of Calvary,
 MRS. RAYMOND ANTHONY, Pres. Junior Council

(Editor's note: The above is a fine example of what we wish to receive from our councils all over the country. Won't you please send them in so fast that the general editor will have to cut our copy down? Thank you.)

"TEACH US TO PRAY"

I often say my prayers,
 But do I ever pray?
 And do the wishes of my heart
 Go with the words I say?

I may as well kneel down
 And worship gods of stone,
 As offer to the living God
 A prayer of words alone.

For words without the heart
 The Lord will never hear;
 Nor will he to those lips attend
 Whose prayer is not sincere.

SENIOR COVENANT

Grateful that I know the Christ, and trusting in His help—

I will endeavor to be a living testimony unto Him; to serve others; to do unto others as I would have others do unto me.

I will be mindful that vast millions of girls and women have not heard the tidings of great joy, and for these I will not cease to make offerings of prayer, time, and money that they know the love of Jesus.

In loving remembrance of my Master, I gladly enter this covenant.

Signed.....

JUNIOR COVENANT

Grateful for the love that God has shown toward me through Christ, I will try to study the Bible regularly; I will try to be kind and loving to the girls with whom I associate; and I will gladly help the missionaries and those in need in every way I can.

Signed.....

To be an active member of the S. M. M., each girl should truthfully sign the above covenant.

We anxiously look forward to receiving news from your society. This week we received an interesting letter from Flora, Ind.

GREETINGS FROM FLORA Y.P.M.B.

This is not a Sisterhood report but a Young People's Mission Band which is similar to Sisterhood work. When the new Brethren work began last January one of the first questions asked by the girls was, "What about Sisterhood?" Since the boys had never had any missionary work, it was suggested they be invited to join the work with the girls, which was gladly accepted, and from the very first meeting the boys have been just as faithful in attendance and service as the girls.

At the first meeting in January, 16 were present, and the attendance has been as high as 26, with the average attendance about 19 or 20. The present membership is 23. Program booklets were made outlining the service for each meeting, which included songs, devotional topics and mission study. On the last page was placed the pictures of two missionaries which were to be prayed for especially by the possessor of that booklet. One special meeting was held for rolling bandages, and believe it or not the boys worked as hard as the girls, even to running the sewing machine.

This group had their own building fund which amounted to a little over $43.00 which was used to buy 30 chairs for their class room. $10.00 given to general building fund and the rest for incidentals. At the present time they are filling dime books for the home mission offering, and several have been filled and turned in; others report nearly full.

At the December meeting there will be a co-operative supper, after which there will be an exchange of toys for those whose names had been previously drawn—then each toy will be rewrapped and sent to the Kentucky Mountain children; also the new officers and sponsor will be installed and a Christmas program enjoyed.

We do praise God for such a splendid group of young people who are just as faithful at Sunday School, Church, and C. E. We know the Lord will do great things for them and through them to His glory.

We trust similar organizations will report their activities. We hope this group can be recognized some way in the national work.

Our prayers go up for all the young people in this day and age, when there is so much to attract them away from God—but we know that He is able to do all things well.

MRS. MABEL FLORA, Sponsor,

MISS ELIZABETH FISHER, Secretary.

To this letter I am sure we all join with, "Praise the Lord"!!

A LETTER WAS RECEIVED FROM THE SISTERHOOD GIRLS OF THE IOWA BRETHREN BIBLE CONFERENCE

It reads—

The Sisterhood girls associated with the Iowa Brethren Bible Conference, convened 4 p.m., Sat., Nov. 23, 1940, at Grace Brethren Church. 16 girls, three from Leon, three from Dallas Center, one from Lanark, one from Garwin, and eight from Waterloo, with four leaders, were present. Mrs. Vernon Schrock, patroness of the host church opened the meeting. We sang "I am Thine, O Lord". Mrs. Miles Taber led in prayer. Mrs. Schrock read for the Scripture lesson, Jn. 14:1-6, closing with v. 6, "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth and the life; no man cometh unto the Father, but by me". Each girl then gave greetings to the group as she was introduced. Several of the girls gave fine testimonies.

Mrs. Glenn Hoover read Col. 3:17, "And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by Him," which was the verse on the program at National Sisterhood Conference this year. She read greetings from our national patroness, Mrs. Polman, and several other national officers. The picture of the National Sisterhood Conference was passed around. It was interesting to see pictures of our national officers as well as other Sisterhood girls who attended conference this year.

The goals were presented and discussion followed. Several suggestions were made about benevolent work other than bandages. There are so many things Sisterhood girls can do. Besides sending offerings and serving at home churches, some go to county homes and hospitals and have services, prayer, singing and testimony. Mrs. Hoover urged us to take as our own, the Sisterhood theme, "To Know Him and to Make Him Known." For truly to know Jesus Christ as our personal Savior, then to desire to make Him known to others, should be our purpose.

Thank you for this letter. We want to hear from every rally or conference, news, and new officers. Don't fail us.

A PURPOSED LIFE

In keeping with the theme for the year "To know Him and to make Him known", let us consider the purpose of our lives. The psalmist gives a beautiful description of a well purposed life in Psl. 9:10-11. As you read these verses you will see four things that ought to be found in the life of every believer. First of all it should be our purpose to

Know Him

Does not every child of God need to know Christ personally? Certainly a divinely purposed life would require that we know Him Who is our Redeemer. It was He who paid the price of our redemption, and it is He Who walks daily with us. Christ said, "I know mine own, and mine own know Me" (Jn. 10:14). We read in Acts how Saul was traveling the road to Damascus with a purpose to persecute the Christians. But God called him and the purpose of his life was changed. Later in his letter to the Philipians, he said, "Yea verily, I count all things to be loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord; . . . that I may know Him and the power of His resurrection, and the fellowship of His sufferings, becoming conformed unto His death". Would that our daily communion with Him might bring us into a more intimate knowledge of Him and of His sufferings for us, and of His present intercession on our behalf.

Trust Him

"And they that know Thy name will put their trust in Thee." These words given to us by the Holy Spirit are an expression of a deep personal experience of the psalmist. Let us turn to I Sam. 17 and there reread the defiance of the army of Israel to send out one against Goliath, the giant. In v. 42-44 we read how Goliath trusted in his own power. He speaks of what I will do. Notice David's answer in v. 45-46: "I come to you in the name of the Lord of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel: Whom thou hast defied." David came in the name of the Lord. It was the Lord Who was to deliver; for it was the Lord's battle, and for His honor and glory. The battle is a victory when we trust Him. But what about those small, every day (even trivial) battles of life? Paul says, "The just shall live by faith". Then each battle will be won by faith "for we walk by faith and not by sight" and we ought to practice daily trusting Him more.

Praise Him

"Sing praises to Jehovah who dwelleth in Zion". This text is centered in a psalm devoted to thanksgiving to God for Who He is as well as what He has done and is doing for His people. The Lord is worthy of praise because of His holiness, His power, and His majesty. Let us remember to glorify His holy name.

Praise is the expression of a genuine appreciation of the wonderful Person of God. This expression comes forth in speech, in song, and even in silence (Gal. 5:19 R. V.)

Dona Rosa is a little old lady in Rio Cuarto who is 73 years old. She trusts the Lord for all her living. She was left alone and penniless when her husband died. She has no children and no relatives. Her eyesight is very poor but otherwise she enjoys good health and she is always bubbling with joy. She is never sad but praises the Lord and is thanking Him "always for all things". She rises early each morning to take mate and sing hymns. She testifies that the Lord loves her much to supply all her needs as He does.

Serve Him

"Declare among the people His doings." There are many ways in which we can serve Him, but here the psalmist tells us to tell others about God's doings. Look also at the commission of our Lord, "And ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth" (Acts 1:8). Then read further in Acts 5:29-52 how Peter testified when on trial. Having been accused by the high priest, he did not try to defend himself with arguments. He simply related some of the wonderful works of God accomplished in His beloved Son. Furthermore he assured his accusers that he was a witness of these works of God and that his testimony was the testimony of the Holy Spirit. Let us pray that the Lord may use each one of us to tell of God's wonderful works.

Friends, as children of God, have you a purpose or plan for your life? If not, ask God to-day what His will is for you in this matter. Every Christian can follow the simple teaching of this portion of Psl. 9—to know, trust, praise, and serve Him—and find her life greatly enriched.

NEW YEAR

Dear Lord, as this new year is born
I give it to Thy hand,
Content to walk by faith what paths
I cannot understand.

Whatever coming days may bring
Of bitter loss, or gain,
Or very crown of happiness,
Should sorrow come, or pain—

Or Lord, if all unknown to me
Thine angel hovers near
To bear me to that farther shore
Before another year—

It matters not—my hand in Thine,
Thy light upon my face,
Thy boundless strength when I am weak,
Thy love and saving grace!

I only ask, loose not my hand;
Grip fast my soul, and be
My guiding light upon the path
Till, blind no more, I see.

AN EXPOSITION OF REVELATION 11

By R. I. HUMBERD

"And there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, arise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein" (v. 1).

Some have misunderstood the battle of Armageddon and think it is a battle between two earthly armies, with God helping one side. They are sometimes led astray by hearing a message on Ezekiel 38, 39, where two earthly armies are in a struggle.

In these chapters, Russia and Germany are to unite to come down upon Palestine. This great hoard will bring a confederacy of nations against it which will probably resolve itself into the full manifestation of the Roman Empire. In this great battle, which will be fought before the battle of Armageddon, God does step in and turn them back leaving "but the sixth part." If 6,000,000 men came down, only 1,000,000 will return.

Armageddon

But that is not Armageddon for Armageddon is the armies of the entire world gathered to consciously "make war against Him that sat on the horse, and against His army" (Rev. 19:19). It is Christ Himself that they hate, so God "will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle—"Then shall the Lord go forth, and fight against those nations" (Zach. 14:2,3; Joel 3:2).

It used to be a great question in my mind what could bring all the nations of the world against Jerusalem when a few aeroplanes could wipe it out of existence. But here in ch. 11 we have our clue.

Christ purchased the earth on the cross but will not take possession until all the church is in. He will then be opposed by Satan and must take steps to force possession. He snaps the seals, opens the title deed and comes down from heaven; plants one foot on the sea and one on the land and swears that delay will be no longer.

Satan has been terribly opposing Christ and fighting Him through His people. No one who pledges loyalty to the God of heaven is safe on the earth, for "all that dwell upon the earth shall worship" Satan's superman (ch. 13:8).

A Plot of Ground

Christ now measures off a small portion of ground in Jerusalem and keeps it by supernatural power, permitting the Gentiles to still tread "the holy city" under foot for 42 months (v. 2). Anything that can oppose the Antichrist will draw the attention of the entire world and bring their armies to fight against it.

"And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and three score days, clothed in sackcloth" (v. 3).

Not only does God measure off a plot of ground in Jerusalem and keep it by supernatural power, but two men appear upon the earth and witness to the God of heaven. The measuring is for 42 months and these two men witness for 12060 days. It is the same length of time and corresponds to the last half of Daniel's 70th week; a time times and half a time;  $3\frac{1}{2}$  years, or the period of time usually called the great tribulation.

These men are clothed in sackcloth. Their very clothes speak of judgment and sorrow.

Just who these two men will be, we are not told. In the last verses of the Old Testament, God promises to "send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord" (Mal. 4:5).

John the Baptist Not Elijah

Elijah was taken to heaven without dying. These two witnesses are finally killed, so some think Elijah will return to earth and yet pass through that experience.

When Christ sent His messenger, John the Baptist, before His face, people were expecting the messenger to be Elijah. But when the people asked Him, "Art thou Elias? And he saith, I am not" (Jn. 1:21). Whatever else might be written, it cannot contradict this plain statement—John the Baptist is not Elijah.

The disciples asked concerning Elijah, and Christ said "Elias truly shall come first—But I say unto you, That Elias is come already—Then the disciples understood that He spake unto them of John the Baptist" (Matt. 17:11). The latter part of this verse does not make void the former that Elias "shall come first".

God has promised to send Elijah before the dreadful day of the Lord comes. At the first coming of Christ, God knowing the Jews would reject their King sent John the Baptist in the spirit and power of Elijah. Christ said "If ye shall receive it (the kingdom) this is Elias which was for to come (Matt. 11:14). That is, God knows all things ahead of time, and had the Jews accepted Christ at His first coming, Elijah would have been sent.

Enoch Or Moses

Enoch was another to leave this earth without dying. Some think he will return as one of the witnesses and be killed.

When Moses died, God buried him and for some reason Satan desired the body and Michael had to guard it (Jude 9). At the mount of transfiguration it was Moses and Elijah that appeared and some think they are the two witnesses of this chapter.

Death to Enemies

"And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies" (v. 5).

Those who preach the gospel of grace have enemies, but suppose they were permitted to execute them on the spot. This is a death struggle, and if God is to have any witness on the earth at all, it must be by supernatural power. Elijah brought fire from heaven and destroyed the captain and his fifty. Let a man seek to hurt these two men of God and lightning will flash from their mouth and the enemy will fall dead.

What a time of anger and fierce wrath it will be! It has been so easy to destroy God's people, but here are two that can withstand any attack upon their life and even strike back with death dealing blows, turn water to blood and "smite the earth with all plagues as often as they will" (v. 6).

Imagine if we can the mad desire of the Antichrist to rid the earth of these two tormenters. Radios will announce their activities to the world; great headlines will promise wealth and honor to the man or woman who can outwit them and put them to death. They will be the talk of the day, and blaspheming humanity will seek in vain for their life.

If men will not listen to their message, they can "shut heaven, that it rain not". During the reign of Ahab, Elijah shut up the heavens for three and one-half years and well did he get the ears of the people by that act.

Items of Interest About Israel

By JOHN AEBY

When Modernism Takes Its Mask Off its antichristian character is plainly visible as is evidenced by excerpts of the following letter by "W. E. R." to the "Plain Talk" columnist in B'nai B'rith. He writes: "Dear Mr. Segal: I am seriously thinking of taking up the Jewish religion. As a good Christian I feel that in a time like this I should help to carry the terrible burden of my Jewish brethren. The only way I know of doing this is to join them. . . . I feel it would not violently wrench my Christian faith to become a Jew by religion. In all the ethical essentials the two religions are pretty much alike. As a Jew I can continue to honor Jesus as the noblest of all gentlemen." This self-styled "good Christian" doesn't seem to recall that Jesus repudiated this kind of honor from the rich young ruler (Lk. 18:18, 19). If Jesus was not God He was not good, for He claimed to be God!

He continues: "In fact, among a great many enlightened Christians faith in Jesus the God is giving way to veneration for a fine human being who by the very fact of having been human is the more understandable as an exemplar." The fact of this statement is a remarkable admission of the widespread apostasy from an apostate himself. But, in the opinions he expresses he misses the truth terribly. First, all who are enlightened by the Holy Spirit know that Jesus Christ is as He claimed God! Secondly, apart from His being God, His humanity in its perfection presents to all men an impossible example.

Instead of helping the Jews by such a proposition, this professed "good Christian" could only serve to confirm them in their unbelief. If His position is right, then the New Testament is all wrong and Bible believing Christians from Pentecost till the present hour have been ridiculous fools. Perhaps we are in the eyes of the worldly wise, but we know the "wisdom of God"! As a final answer, the Jews' that is a Jew, saying, "We will go with you: for we have heard that God is with you" (Zech. 8:23). Today the Jew is out of God's will, and what a contrast to his position in society! In many places men are taking hold of their necks to persecute them, but in that day they shall hang to their skirts for their favor. May God hasten the day when, as Paul says in Rom. 11:26, All Israel shall be saved!"

STUDIES IN THE HEBREW EPISTLE

"Search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have Eterna! Life, and they are they which testify of me"—John 5:39

Study No. VII

CHAPTER VI

By Ord Gehman

In this study we are confronted with a most precious chapter dear to the heart of every born-again child of God. To the weak it gives strength. To those who are floundering for the truth, it gives light and hope. To the wavering it gives stability. To the careless it gives added impetus for righteousness in Christ Jesus.

The chapter before us rather naturally divides itself into two main divisions, both having to do with the transcendent theme of Christian perfection, or, better stated, perfection in Christ. The first 12 verses address our attention to an urgent appeal to perfection with its attendant warning and expression of confidence. The remainder of the chapter deals with the actual hope of perfection and a great Biblical example of perfection. With these two divisions in mind, let us examine the chapter before us more minutely. May the blessed Holy Spirit motivate and guide our minds as we thus study together.

It is to be remembered that the epistle is addressed to Hebrews who have been contacted with the message of the gospel. Doubtless, many of them were true believers, but there were some who were only "professors" as the whole of the New Testament teaches. Hence, we see this Epistle to Hebrew Christian believers and Hebrew "professors" of Christianity. To the former group is addressed the urge to full perfection in Jesus Christ. To the latter group is addressed the warning of not trusting fully in Christ for perfection but relying partially on their old Judaism. This warning can be understood better when we realize that in every Jew's very make-up was the Old Testament law as an integral part. This same problem of the Judaizers confronted the early church in the first council in Jerusalem (Acts 15). The Hebrew Epistle faces the same problem and deals with it accordingly. The plain question was: could Christians be perfect in Christ without the law? to which question the Hebrew Epistle and the remainder of the New Testament echoes the answer in the affirmative.

Thus, the forepart of this chapter warns of the danger to the Hebrew of stopping short of Jesus Christ Himself, for there is no other means of repentance. The Jew had many advantages because unto him had the oracles of God been committed (Rom. 3:2 ff.) They have sampled of the things of salvation, but have refused to go the whole way without the "crutch" of Judaism. In Christ alone comes salvation, not as a result of a strange admixture of faith and human effort. The requirements placed before the true believer are decidedly different than those of the unbeliever. And according to the New Testament, a part of the realm of professing Christianity comes under the latter caption. There is only one way by which God can forgive human sin, and that is in Christ Jesus. If individuals choose to remain outside that realm, there is nothing God can do about it but render the judgment which they have decided upon.

The writer here uses a very familiar and graphic illustration in substantiation of this great spiritual principle. It is not because of the lack of the Holy Spirit that men are not wooed and won for Christ. It is because men choose: not to yield to His persistent calling. The rain falls on two plots of ground side by side. The one plot produces an abundant yield unto the harvest. But the other plot produces a scant harvest worthy only of discarding. Why the difference? Did "better rain" fall on the one plot than the other? Not so. One plot was fertile and responded to the effect of the rain and produced. The other plot did not respond. So it is with the work of the Holy Spirit. With the same power and the same winsomeness He woos two men. The one responds, accepts Christ and becomes a fervent, fruit-bearing Christian. The other sluffs off, an eternal rejector of the blessed Christ. Beloved reader, does His Spirit bear witness with your spirit that you are His child? (Rom. 8:16).

The writer of the Hebrew Epistle expresses utter confidence in the Hebrews to whom he writes (v. 9). Let us note this verse and those immediately following. The emphasis is placed upon God. "God is not unrighteous to forget—". There may be a great many "things" which professed believers do, but only those done in love and in the name of the One Who loved us will elicit God's consideration. Great movements and accomplishments fostered only in human effort are doomed to dismal failure and defeat. But even a "cup of cold water" given in the Master's name will receive the blessing of our all-wise Father. There is here an appeal for diligence in one's efforts for Him because we have a host of forerunners who through faith and patience have inherited the promises. As we sing in one of the great hymns of the church:

Not to the strong is the battle,
Not to the swift is the race,
Yet to the true and the faithful
Victory is promised through grace.

Not only does he express this confidence in them, but alludes to Abraham's faith as recorded in the Old Testament to prove that this perfection is possible. God has made these great promises and He cannot fail. Neither will He forsake His children who trust in Him. He has promised and so it stands. When we have laid hold upon the only hope of safety in Jesus Christ, it becomes to us an anchor of the soul. Christ our forerunner has entered within the veil, thus guaranteeing in God's good time. Brethren, let us likewise be patient for we by His grace shall soon enter in to His blessed fullness.

CRITICISM

It is easy enough to pick out flaws,

In the work that others have done;

To point out errors that others made,

When your own task you haven't begun.

It's easy enough to fuss and find fault,

When others are doing their best:

To sneer at the little they have achieved

When you have done nothing but rest.

It's easy enough to cavil and carp,

To criticize, scoff, and deride;

For few of us ever have done perfect work

No matter how hard we have tried.

It is easy enough not to speak of the best

And to dwell all the time on the worst;

And perhaps it is proper sometimes to find fault,

But be sure that you've done something first.

"NOT ASHAMED"

By MRS. KEITH ALTIG

Mrs. Smith sat down one morning to read a chapter in the Bible just before the children started to school. Just as she started to read she heard a knock at the door.

"Bobby, will you go to the door and see who is there?"

"Yes, mother. Oh, hello Roger, we're just about ready for school, come in just a minute."

"I'll just go on reading, you may come in and listen if you'd like," said mother.

Mrs. Smith was reading the book of Romans and her children loved to hear her musical voice reading the Scriptures to them. When she read the 16th verse where Paul says "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation", it made a deep impression on them. They felt that they should not be ashamed of Christ in school or at play.

So Roger, too, enjoyed the reading more than the content of the passage, for he was a Catholic and was not accustomed to hearing the Bible read.

The next morning Roger started five minutes earlier for school so he could stop and hear the chapter read to Bobby and Jane.

One evening when Bobby was getting ready to go to a Bible club, Jane said, "Say Bobby, why don't you ask Roger to go with you tonight?"

"I don't think he'd be interested. He's a Catholic, and anyway, I don't think his dad would let him," replied Bobby.

"But Bobby you remember mother read about not being ashamed, and the gospel is the power of God unto salvation. You wanted to be a help in winning boys to the Lord Jesus, perhaps that would be a good way to start," suggested Jane.

"You're right, I'll go by and ask him; that is the least I can do."

So Bobby went directly to Roger's house to ask him to go. He knocked on the door and Mr. Brown, Roger's father came to the door.

"Why hello Bobby," said Mr. Brown, "I'm surprised to see you here—"

"Mr. Brown, is Roger home?" Bobby asked.

"Yes, come in, won't you?"

"I am on my way to a boy's club and I stopped to invite Roger to go along," said Bobby.

Roger heard Bobby's voice and came in the room, his eyes shining and with a happy smile said, "If Dad will let me, I'll be glad to go with you. Will you Dad?"

"What kind of club is it?" asked Mr. Brown, "We don't want him getting into any mischief."

"Oh he won't, sir," quickly replied Bobby, "Our Sunday School teacher is the sponsor of it and we have a little Bible study first, then play a few games and have refreshments. We usually get home around nine."

"All right, you may go, and be sure and come home early," Mr. Brown said.

Bobby made it a regular habit to go after Roger every month. It was not many months before Roger accepted Christ as his own Savior. And don't you suppose Bobby was the happiest boy in the community? It was just a small part he had in inviting Roger to come, but he was faithful even in the small task.

The next morning, after Bobby had related the events of the previous evening to his mother he said, "I am going to take Romans 1:16 as my verse for the year." "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth to the Jew first, and also to the Greek."

Don't you think that would be a good verse for you for the year of 1941?

OUR BIBLE CHARACTER ALPHABET

Answer to P: Philemon and Paul.

Q is the only man in the King James version of our Bible whose name begins with this letter of the alphabet. He was a friend of the apostle Paul. Find his name in Rom. 16:23.

WATCH NIGHT

By VIOLET ALLEYN STOREY

"Midnight! Hark! Last Year's final bell! God's Hand Has turned another page," my mother said.

"I promised I should wake you, sleepy-face!" I sat up, startled, in my bed,

And looked, between the curtains, at the night Above the trees, beyond the window, bars.

"Just like the old page that God turned," I cried, "This new one, too, is all alight with stars!"

"Whatever God's Hand touches is, my dear!

On each new page He turns to, anywhere, Even though dense clouds may hide them from your eyes."

My mother said, "stars always will be there!"

Seven Confident Men

The words "I know," in relation to the Lord, will be found on the lips of each of the men, as testimonies of what they found the Lord to be to them:

1. Naaman knew the Lord as the INSTANT CLEANSER (II Kings 5:15).

2. Job knew the Lord as the KINSMAN REDEEMER (Job 19:25).

3. David knew the Lord as the GRACIOUS BLESSER (Psalm 41:11).

4. Solomon knew the Lord as the PERFECT WORKER (Ecc. 3:14).

5. Peter knew the Lord as the POWERFUL DELIVERER (Acts 12:11).

6. Paul knew the Lord as the CONSTANT KEEPER (II Tim. 1:12).

7. Christ knew His Father as the PRESENT HELPER (Is. 50:7).

GREETINGS FROM SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA

We have neglected sending any news of our society to you, but hereafter we want to be counted in on everything. We have had a rather trying time, but are coming out on top. By next year we will have 40 members.

Each month we print a paper, "The Chart and Compass," and we are quite proud of it.

Our boys are outstanding for the Lord. There are 10 who are with us regularly, one in the Naval Reserve, one in the army, two in the navy, and one in Westmont Bible College. One is a baseball player and is with us only in the fall. You can see they are in all walks of life, but the service is getting most of them.

As you know also, Al Flory is our pastor and he is a fine leader.

There are 11 girls also, one in Westmont Bible College and one in Bible Institute.

We are only two years and a month or two old, so we are quite proud of our progress.

Yours in Christ,

MISS MARION PRENTISS.

REMEMBER

Your news editor is Rev. Norman Uphouse. Please notify him of any society activities as soon as they take place, or of any items of interest. With your co-operation we can have some real newsy news each month in the C. E. Department.

C. E. NOTES AND NEWS

Don't forget to order your C. E. quarterlies right away if you have not already done so. The price is 12c for single copies, 10c each in lots of two or more. Send your order to the executive secretary (see official).

The Conemaugh young people liked the Scriptural study of courtship and marriages, "God and the Christian Home", so well in Bible School that they repeated the course in C. E. last quarter for the benefit of those who were not in the young people's class in Bible School. They heartily recommend this interesting course to other C. E.'s which are looking for something different for C. E. The price of this quarterly is 10c each. Every member of societies using this course will want one.

As an aid to new members who feel timid about leading Christian Endeavor for the first time, the Ellet young people's society uses the system of having co-leaders, one an experienced leader and the other a new one. The new one takes charge of the meeting, and the old one takes the main topic or helps in some other way. This plan has proved to be very successful and extremely helpful to those who are not accustomed to taking charge.

C. E. PARTY POINTERS

You will hear remarks such as these: "Ain't we got fun!" "This party was well planned; no wonder everything is going like clock-work!" "This is lots of fun, am I glad I came!"—if you plan carefully every detail of your party.

One secret of a successful party is that every one is brought into the fun at the beginning. The Ellet program with a good mixer, break up cliques by introducing various ways of pairing or grouping for the games, keep the crowd mingling.

Start party anticipation with well planned announcements and invitations. Make the realization one long to be remembered.

You are a smart leader if you will change from one game to another quickly and without attracting undue attention if you see a lack of interest or lagging in a game. Plan for more games than you can use, it is far better to have too many than not enough; unused plans will keep for another occasion.

Remember parties are for fun! Do not overtax the skill or wits of your crowd. Plan always to close your meetings with a devotional period. Bear in mind the admonition in Col. 3:17. A certain wise man of old said "In all thy ways acknowledge Him." That includes good times, and who has a better right to a royal good time and happiness than Christian young people?

WHAT KIND OF MEETINGS CAN WE HAVE?

Let the superintendent or adult counselor make these suggestions and let the members vote which they would like to try.

1. Discussion of a life problem.
2. An outside speaker.
3. An open forum with a speech followed by questions and discussion.
4. Discussion of a certain sermon which pastor preached beforehand especially for young people in the church.
5. Missionary meeting.
6. Question box.
7. Debate.
8. Musical.
9. Special reports or talks on problems such as Sunday desecration, un-Christian amusements, etc.

Greetings

FROM THE FIELD

CONEMAUGH, PA.

Since our last report we have enjoyed countless blessing thru our Lord Jesus Christ.

In addition to the regular services held by our minister, Rev. W. H. Schaffer, we have had the great privilege of having a series of Bible conferences. Rev. Russell Humberd was with us in July, Rev. Robert Crees in November, and Dr. J. C. Beal in December. We are looking forward to having Rev. H. B. Centz of the American Board of Missions to the Jews with us the first part of January. We have discovered that those who follow the admonition of Roms. 1:16, "To the Jew First" receive untold blessings.

This year for the third time, our pastor delivered the union Thanksgiving sermon. He clearly outlined some of the real blessings God has given and still is giving us.

Past records reveal that we have been growing in missionary enthusiasm. We have not lost that zeal. While some local contention has divided our offerings, we believe that the total will run above that of other years. This increase of missionary offerings in the past is due to the fact that our pastor for the past 10 years has been faithfully preaching and teaching the importance of missionary giving. He was responsible for the opening of a mission in a neighboring community in which no religious services have been held for some time. For almost a year Rev. Schaffer with his wife and several members of our congregation conducted services several times a week. Our pastor, feeling that he could not devote the necessary time required to properly care for this work, suggested a member of the First Brethren Church of Johnstown to superintend the mission. Bro. Ray Starr, an experienced mission worker and with some pastoral experience, was glad to take over the work under the supervision of our Conemaugh church. In January this work will be two years old. For a year and a half we were located in a fine redecorated room with rent, light and heat furnished free of charge by the owner. We had comfortable seating for about 100. Last July we were asked to move because the room had been rented. We certainly appreciate splendid co-operation of the Burgess of Franklinboro who so graciously gave us this room. Another room was found about a block up the Main Street which was procured for $15 a month. Although the Conemaugh Church guarantees the rent each month, the mission offerings have been meeting the rent.

This fall, following a union evangelistic campaign in Johnstown by Gipsy Smith, two young men, Walt Hobbs of Windber and Ken Jones of Johnstown, conducted a two weeks evangelistic meeting for our mission. These young men are preparing for the ministry and very acceptably served as singers and evangelists. They are to return this spring for another meeting.

Several members have been baptized and received into our Conemaugh church thru our mission. During this last campaign a middle aged man gave his heart to the Lord. He was baptized and taken into the membership, and he celebrated his first communion with us that same day. The next day he took ill and in three weeks later went to be with his Lord.

Franklinboro is an industrial town of about 2,500 people with a high percentage of foreign born residents. A few of our members live in the community. The work has to be done mostly with the children and some of them are forbidden to come. Regular services are held Sunday afternoon with Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and preaching services in the evening, and Bible classes Tuesday and Thursday nights.

We are planning Child Evangelism classes in the homes of Conemaugh and pray that many children will be won for Christ through these classes. Recently we had with us Miss Dorothy Kenyon, Western Pennsylvania District Director for Child Evangelism, for one Sunday morning service. She gave a demonstration that morning of the possibilities of Child Evangelism and a number of children made confession. Spurgeon once said, "Satan keeps school for neglected children." How true it is. We must win them young for Christ.

This year we are planning a one hour church service for Christmas morning, 9:30-10:30. We hope to celebrate this annually. The pastor will bring a simple Christmas sermon, and special efforts will be made to bring whole families to this worship service.

Rev. R. Paul Miller, Secretary of the Home Missions Council, visited with us twice this past month. On one occasion he showed the moving pictures of our Home Mission points. After seeing these pictures an inspiration for greater sacrifice to support Home Missions was instilled in our hearts. Because of bad roads he again stopped over with us on Thanksgiving eve and fitted in with our home mission program that evening.

Again we want to thank our Lord for the privilege of serving Him to His glory.

MRS. MARLIE M. RODGERS,

Church Correspondent.

ANKENYTOWN, O.

Perhaps we are just a bit late in making this report, but still wish to make it anyway. It was our privilege to be engaged in two weeks of evangelistic services at the Ankenytown Brethren Church, near Belleville, O. from Nov. 5-17. Brother Robert Culver, student in Grace Theological Seminary, is pastor of this church. Due to the fact that Brother Culver is engaged in school work at the seminary we had to "carry on" by ourselves during the school week. However, over the week ends he was on the field and our relationship was very cordial and rich. It was a real pleasure to work with him and the people he shepherds in the Lord's work.

One of the things that made the work at Ankenytown so enjoyable was the fine preparation that had been made in advertising the meetings. So well was this done that at almost every service there were visiting friends of the church present. They added greatly to the interest and enthusiasm of the campaign.

Another contributing factor to the interest of the meeting was the deep interest of the brethren in the salvation of souls. This was a constant theme for conversation. While the field is limited in its prospects, yet we do believe that a real work for God is being done, and some of God's choicest saints are being garnered in that portion of the vineyard. May His blessing and grace be extended in abundance upon this people and their pastor is our prayer.

R. E. GINGRICH.

Developments Among the Nations

By Chas. W. Mayes

These are days when it is well to hold an open Bible in one hand and a newspaper in the other. It is a privilege today to see what no previous generation ever saw—the unfolding of the end time events.

Within the last year there have been many changes among the nations of the earth. One international gangster has done what no one thought he could ever do. All the world has been compelled to wonder what is coming next. They who read God's Word realize that the events of last year in Europe have brought the nations further along in the alignment foretold in the Word of God. In this brief article we will discuss the four major divisions of the nations of the end time. These four powers will be: the king of the north, the king of the south, the king of the east, and the king who shall "do according to his will" (Dan. 11:36). The books of Daniel, Ezekiel and Revelation should be read carefully to see the outstanding facts concerning these groups.

Kings vs. Democracies

We were told that the first World War was fought to make the world safe for democracy. But regardless of the purpose of the war, it brought about the time in human history when dictatorships have largely supplanted democracy. Even in our own country democracy is more talk than a reality. So 22 years after the World War we find that the dictators are here even as the Word states concerning "kings".

The King of the North

The prophet Ezekiel (Ezek. 38, R. V.) with the prophet Daniel (Dan. 11:35-45), will make it clear that the king of the north is Rosh or Russia. After the World War it was thought that Russia had about collapsed. The nation was supposed to be rendered almost helpless. But our Lord's words have found fulfillment in the days since the World War. Now is the time of "wars and rumors of wars" when "nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom" (Matt. 24:6,7). Russia has taken her place only as a world military power, but she has proven her power to dominate over great northern territories.

The King of the South

That this is Great Britain, we will not be dogmatic. Nevertheless, it seems in harmony with the Scriptural revelation that Great Britain can qualify both from the vastness of her dominion, and from the stubborn fact that today she is rating as one of the major powers in the present conflict. If Great Britain is not the king of the south she should find a place of mention in some respect. She will not pass away, for as Tarshish, she must be prominent in end time events. That she is not subdued is evidenced by the fact that she will yet speak forth as the great lion and with her young lions in such a way as to demand world-wide attention. (Ezek. 38:13).

The Kings of the East

Hitler, Mussolini, and Stalin have thundered forth their threats for world dominion. It seems to be a disease, and a contagious one at that. Now Japan is talking world dominion. (One thing is certain, not all these can realize their ambition.) Japan is trying to conquer China completely and will probably do so. At least the two will apparently be together before long either by conquest or by mutual agreement. Once the military machine of Japan is set up in China, these eastern powers will cause the world to take note. R. 16 leaves us with the impression that these kings of the east come on the scene with intense power after the other great groups of nations have been in conflict for some time. Nevertheless the day will come that these eastern nations shall take a definite part in the end time conflict.

The Wilful King

The king who "shall do according to his will" (Dan. 11:36), is the final ruler of the revived Roman Empire. When he comes to the fulness of his power he will be the Antichrist, the head of the ten-kingdomed confederacy. How these 10 kingdoms shall be formed, we are venturing no explanation. The last year has given us a suggestion. Perhaps the head of Rome will allow others like Hitler to make the conquests and then take them over in some mysterious way as in the case of France.

We are certain of a few facts. The 10 kings under revived Rome will be in existence under the Antichrist when the Lord Jesus returns as King of kings and Lord of Lords to establish His kingdom (Dan. 2:34, 44). We would not even suggest that Mussolini is this wilful king. Mussolini is not a young man any more, and he may die tomorrow. Even if he should however, another can arise quickly to take his place. Mussolini's dream of a revived Roman Empire will be realized either by himself or by another.

Today there is much being said about the weakness of Italy in the conflict. German and other military leaders cannot understand how, after all Mussolini has said about the greatness of his army, he seems to suffer defeat from such easy opposition. Some seem to be tempted to try to find some other reasonable way in which God may bring these things to pass. It has been conjectured that possibly we have been wrong in expecting the Antichrist to come from Rome. Perhaps Hitler is the man! Hitler seems to be "taking everything". Personally, the writer does not sympathize with this effort to "help the Lord out" in His program. God does not need such help. What He has said will come to pass whether or not we may see how at the present. Even if Rome seems to be weak today, the time will yet certainly come when the Antichrist from that section of Europe shall have world dominion. Concerning that great personage, God's Word states clearly, "and power was given him over all kinds, and tongues and peoples." (Rev. 13:7). It is important to note that "power was given him". It may be that God will allow the Roman Empire to suffer miserable defeats at times until God sees fit to allow the devil to give the head of the empire the power he needs to fulfil God's program. God's Word is clear that "the dragon (the devil) will give this wilful king his power

WHERE TO BUY CHORUSES

"To Know Him" and many other good choruses which can be used in your Sisterhood are found in Radio Songs and Choruses No. 3. Order from The Brethren Missionary Herald Co. Price, 30c.

(Rev. 13:2). An ounce of God's revelation is worth a ton of man's speculation.

The Coming World Dictator

Yes, he is coming! We do not have the space to begin to discuss the conflicts and the wars of the Antichrist who shall be the head of the revived Roman Empire. Neither do we have space to discuss what he will do as that head. It is enough for the present to say that the coming world dictator will make a decree that "all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond" shall receive a mark in their right hand or in their foreheads and that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast or the number of his name" (Rev. 13:16-17). In order that he may be the great counterfeit of the Lord Jesus Christ as the ruler of the earth, he demands that they of the whole earth shall worship him or be killed. As Satan's man he will have power, but not all power. Some will escape out of his hand, as Edom, Moab and Ammon (Dan. 11:41), and perhaps others as individuals not definitely mentioned.

As for 1940

There are many details which might be mentioned as contributing to these great general trends. But it is more important for the student of prophecy to note the big things than to draw too many conclusions from little things. The fact is that the great events of the last year or more, if carefully observed, can be seen to have their bearing on the general trends. Even the United States is lining up with Tarshish, Great Britain. As for Hitler, unless he can "take over" Russia or the revived Roman Empire, his place is temporary. He may scatter his efforts over so much space that they will be too thin to last. Part of his conquests may be to Russia and part to the Roman Empire. The immediate future news will be interesting along this line. Hitler's downfall tomorrow would be no surprise.

A Simple Conclusion

It appears from Scripture revelation that practically all that we have mentioned concerning these various powers will take place within the lifetime of one generation on the earth. If this be true, certainly the coming of the King of kings to put down Gentile rule forever is close upon us. If His coming as King is near, how much nearer His coming to receive His bride unto Himself! The nearness of the end of the age should remind us that now nothing else matters much except God's business. We had better get busy, more busy than ever before, in presenting the gospel and in teaching the Word from pulpit, in Bible classes and personal conversation. We must build churches, get souls saved, and be at His work when He comes. This is no time to hesitate because of what men may say or think of us. We must consider what He will say when we must report at the judgment as stewards of the mysteries of God. Prophecy is not given to us that we may prophesy, but to stir us to faithfulness to our Lord and to establish us in the blessed hope which belongs to believers.

POOR SIMON

Simple Simon did not thinking

All the livelong week;

When he went to the C. E. meeting

Of course he could not speak.

When the leader asked of him

Ideas few or many,

Said Simple Simon to the leader,

"Indeed, I have not any."

TRINE IMMERSION AND THE CHURCH

By REV. MILES TABER, Pastor First Brethren Church
Leon, Ia.

The authority for baptism by trine immersion is to be found in the Bible alone. But to show that that authority was recognized, understood and obeyed in the early days of the church is the function of church history. Fortunately, the writings of Christians who lived at that time have been preserved in sufficient number to establish trine immersion as the one original form of Christian baptism.

"The Didache" (The Teaching of the Twelve Apostles) was written between A.D. 80 and 120. It contains two divisions: (a) a book of moral precepts; (b) a manual of church ordinances. In the second division, concerning baptism, it says: "Baptize into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, in living water. But if they have not living water, baptize into other water; and if thou canst not in cold, in warm. But if thou have not either, pour out water thrice upon the head into the name of the Father and Son and Holy Spirit." Thus pouring was allowed instead of immersion in cases of necessity, but even then the action was to be trine.

Tertullian (A.D. 155-222) "is the earliest and after Augustine the greatest of the ancient church writers of the west" (Enc. Brit.). In his tract, "Concerning Baptism," he says, "He (Christ) gave as his last command that they should immerse into the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, not into one person. For we are immersed not once, but thrice, as the naming of each person of the Trinity."

Clement of Alexandria (A.D. 150-220) was the teacher of Origen, and of Alexander, bishop of Jerusalem, being the head of the first Christian seminary in the world. He wrote: "Ye were conducted to a bath just as Christ was carried to the grave, and were thrice immersed to signify the three days' burial."

Here are three witnesses from the first two centuries of the church's history who agree that trine immersion was the prevailing mode of baptism known to them. And their testimony is not contradicted by any of their contemporaries.

"USE IT OR LOSE IT"

THIS REMARK, credited to Alf Landon, former candidate for president: "You and I profess to be church members. We assert we believe in religion. If our religion means anything to us, let's start using it in a practical way, a decisive way before it is taken away from us."

WHOSOEVER, WHATSOEVER

There are two precious words often found in the mouth of Christ: "Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely". "Whatsoever ye ask in my name, that will I do". The "whosoever" is on the outside of the gate, and invites in all who are willing to come. The "whatsoever" is on the inside, and gives to those who enter the free range of all the region and treasures of grace. "Whosoever" makes salvation free. "Whatsoever" makes it full.

LISTEN TO THE VOICE OF JESUS

By C. H. HARTSON
(82 years of age)

Let not your heart be troubled here—
So reads the Savior's word of cheer.
A place for you I will prepare,
And all My glory you shall share.

So let your heart, My child, rejoice;
You're all My own and that by choice.
Not yours but Mine the choice has been
To save you from a world of sin.

A Victim to the cross was led;
O child, for thee My blood was shed.
No work of thine by gain or loss
Can spoil the work of Calvary's cross.

'Twas there the battle raged within;
The mighty Sovereign dealt with sin;
On Me thy load of guilt was laid
And not a mite was left unpaid.

Look up, My child, My home is thine
And in the glory you shall shine,
For to the mansions bright and fair
My blood secures a passage there.

I know that Satan oft will try
To dim this vision from your eye,
And while his darts fly thick and fast,
You tremble as you read the past.

But let Me say now once for all
That I have saved you from the fall;
Just look to Me, the victory's won,
My blood is shed, the work is done.

And soon I'm coming in the air;
Thy blood washed throng will meet me there,
Dead ones be raised, the living changed;
For so My Father has arranged.

The trump shall sound, the church will rise
To meet Me yonder in the skies;
So now again I say to thee;
Ye believe in God, believe in Me.

NEW YEAR'S POEMS

Has the year brought sadness? Joy is yet in store.
Has it given gladness? Next year giveth more.
Let your Father measure all your pain and care;
Let Him weight the burden that your heart must bear;
Sending light or shadow as He deemeth best,
For in His sure wisdom, you can safely rest.
Peace for all the morrows, strength for all the days,
These shall be your portion through the New Year's ways.

Wondrously

The Lord hath dealt with thee!
Wondrous mercy all the way,
Wondrous patience every day,
Wondrous pardon, wondrous feeling,
Wondrous help and wondrous leading
Through the bygone year.

Wondrously

The Lord shall deal with thee!
Wondrous tenderness and grace,
Wondrous shining of His face,
Wondrous faithfulness and power,
Wondrous love shall twine each bower
Through the coming year.

Take Thou my harp,
And prove if any string be out of tune,
Or flat or sharp!
Correct Thou, Lord, for me
What ringeth harsh to Thee
That heart and life may sing, the new year long, Thy perfect song!"

—CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

LIQUOR AND MURDER

A certain man in the state of Tennessee was electrocuted for slashing his wife to death, and justly so. But some of these distillers will have these two lives to answer for in the day of judgment, for note what the man said before going to his doom: "I killed a good woman just because I was full of liquor. If a person walks the straight and narrow path, he'll never be brought to the place where I am now."

TIP-TOE

Very soon we will be going,
Fetters broken; heaven bound.
In the fraction of a moment;
"In the twinkling" not a sound.
He is cutting loose the ballast
So the church can slip away.
We are tip-toe on the threshold
Of "that blessed hope today".

NICOTINE

Prussic acid is the only substance more poisonous than nicotine.
